

THE LOEB CLASSICAL LIBRARY

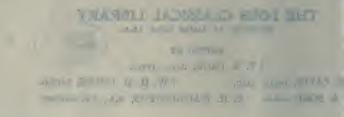

FOUNDED BY JAMES LOEB, LL.D.

EDITED BY

† T. E. PAGE, C.H., LITT.D.

F. CAPPS, PH.D., LL.D. † W. H. D. ROUSE, LITT.D. A. POST, L.H.D. E. H. WARMINGTON, M.A., F.B.HIST.SOC.

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

PLOTARON'S MORALIA

F

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

IN FIFTEEN VOLUMES

П

86 B-171 F

WITH AN ENGLISH TRANSLATION BY FRANK COLE BABBITT TRINITY COLLEGE, HARTFORD CONNECTICUT

CAMBRIDGE, MASSACHUSETTS HARVARD UNIVERSITY PRESS LONDON WILLIAM HEINEMANN LTD MCMLXII

Shar Parocha

From I fam.

CONTENTS OF VOLUME II

PREFACE	PAGE VII
THE TRADITIONAL ORDER OF THE BOOKS OF THE MORALIA
How to profit by one's Enemies-
Introduction	3 4
ON HAVING MANY FRIENDS-
Introduction . <t< td=""><td>45 46</td></t<>	45 46
CHANCE-
Introduction	73 74
VIRTUE AND VICE-
Introduction	93 94
A LETTER OF CONDOLENCE TO APOLLONIUS-
Introduction	105 108
Advice about Keeping Well-
Introduction	214 216 V
	V

CONTENTS

Advice to Bride and Groo	PAGE
Introduction
Text and Translation	298
THE DINNER OF THE SEVEN	WISE MEN-
Introduction
Text and Translation	348
0.0
SUPERSTITION-
Introduction	452
Text and Translation	454
x
INDEX	497
- b .	. 0
All a second a second	and a family from the second
	THE REAL PROPERTY AND
	and the de 000-1 Theory Theorem petralimont
	COLD BALL MORE
	A Real Property and the second second 1011	be al.
	Lower Low Arth
AD
50 · · · · · ·	states that you b vi

- It time got for bails of an a most share the

An example of the parameters of the second s

PREFACE

As in the first volume of this series, no apology is offered for the translation which, it is to be hoped, may be slightly better than that offered in the first volume, or, if that hope is vain, at least no worse.

To the bibliography in Vol. I. p. xxvi, is to be added an important and interesting book : H. J. Rose, The Roman Questions of Plutarch. A New Translation with Introductory Essays and a Running Commentary (Oxford, 1924).

Of the essays included in this volume all but the last two had been sent to the printer, and the last two were ready for printing, when the new Teubner edition of Vol. I. of the Moralia appeared (Plutarch Moralia, Vol. I. recensuerunt et emendaverunt W. R. Paton† et I. Wegehaupt†. Praefationem ser. M. Poholenz. Leipzig, 1925). Consequently the text of the last two essays has been diligently compared with that of the new edition before they were sent to the printer, and in the rest only such changes have been made as seemed imperative. It is but fair to say that the changes made consist almost wholly of additional notations in regard to the readings of the Mss. The text as originally, constituted, whether for better or for worse, has hardly been changed at all.

It may not be amiss to say a word about the new edition, which was prepared with the advice and consent of v. Wilamowitz-Moellendorff, who is spoken of in the preface as "huius editionis patronus." The book is a great disappointment. True it gives detailed information in regard to the readings of the Mss., and some additional information regarding the Mss. and their relations, and it provides also a more generous list of references both to Plutarch and to other authors, although some important references seem to be missing. But the text itself, as finally constituted, is inferior to that of Bernardakis or of Wyttenbach. The editors seem too much inclined to subjective emendation, to rewriting Plutarch so as to make him say what they think he ought to have said-a fashion more in vogue in the last century. It is becoming clear that most of the minor errors in the text of Plutarch will yield in time to the orderly processes of textual criticism.

In the really difficult passages one will usually look in vain for help from this edition, for one will find in the text, as a rule, only a transcript of the reading of one or more manuscripts, or else occasionally an emendation which only too loudly condemns itself, and too often no note of suggestions made by others. The editors seem not to have read Hatzidakis' review of Bernardakis' edition $(A \theta_{\eta} v \hat{a}, \text{ vol. xiii.})$, and many of the minor mistakes found in Bernardakis' edition are reprinted in this.¹ Again, in several cases, emendations are not correctly attributed to their authors, and this leads one to question whether the readings of the MSS. are always recorded correctly. Yet, on the whole, the book is a distinct contribution to the study of Plutarch and it is a matter for regret that its publication was so long delayed, and a matter for still keener regret is the untimely death of the two editors, W. R. Paton and J. Wegehaupt.

¹ It is amusing to find that one of these little errors, to which v. Wilamowitz Moellendorff, "huius editionis patronus," called especial attention in Hermes, vol xxv., appears here unchanged.

PREFACE

F. C. B.

TRINITY COLLEGE, HARTFORD, CONN. November 1926.

ix

DUADAULT

and so is the providence of the state of the

E.C. D.

1

VI JUNE

NOR LANDILION AL SIN

120

THE TRADITIONAL ORDER OF THE BOOKS of the Moralia as they appear since the edition of Stephanus (1572), and their division into volumes in this edition.

There is a support of the support

	Comments of the owner of the state of the owner o	PAGE
I.	De liberis educandis (Περί παίδων άγωγής) .	14
	Quomodo adolescens poetas audire debeat	1
	(Πώς δεί τον νέον ποιημάτων άκούειν)	17D
	De recta ratione audiendi (Περί τοῦ ἀκούειν) .	37в
	Quomodo adulator ab amico internoscatur
	(Πώς αν τις διακρίνειε τον κόλακα τοῦ φίλου) :	48E
	Quomodo quis suos in virtute sentiat profectus (Πως αν τις αισθοιτο έαυτοῦ προκόπτοντος έπ	IV.
	άρετή) .	75A
11	De capienda ex inimicis utilitate ($\Pi \hat{\omega} s a \nu \tau i s$	TOA
11.		86B
		93A
		97a
	De fortuna ($\Pi \epsilon \rho i \tau v \chi \eta s$)	100B
	De virtute et vitio (Περί αρετής και κακίας)	TOOR
	Consolatio ad Apollonium (Παραμυθητικός πρός	101F
	Άπολλώνιον)	IUIF
	De tuenda sanitate praecepta ('Tyreurà map-	100-αγγέλματα)	122B	/
	Coniugalia praecepta (Γαμικά παραγγέλματα).	138A
	Septem sapientium convivium (Tŵv έπτα σοφών
20.0	συμπόσιον)	146в
	De superstitione (Περί δεισιδαιμονίας)	164e
ш.	Regum et imperatorum apophthegmata ('Amoφθέγματα βασιλέων και στρατηγών)	1724 Apophthegmata Laconica ('Αποφθέγματα Λακωνικά)	2084
	Instituta Laconica (Τὰ παλαιὰ τῶν Λακεδαιμονίων έπιτηδεύματα).	236F
		xi

STATES TA TRACPA O LAL

THE TRADITIONAL ORDER

		PAGE
	Lacaenarum apophthegmata (Aakawŵw ano-φθέγματα) .	240c
	Mulierum virtutes (Γυναικών άρεταί)	242e
IV.	Quaestiones Romanae (Aïria 'Pwµaïĸá).	263d
	Quaestiones Graecae (Airia 'Ellyvika)	291d Parallela Graeca et Romana (Suvaywyn ioroριών παραλλήλων Έλληνικών και 'Ρωμαϊκών).	305a
	De fortuna Romanorum (Περί της 'Ρωμαίων	1
	τύχης)	316в
	De Alexandrı magni fortuna aut virtute, libri ii (Περί της 'Αλεξάνδρου τύχης η άρετης, λόγοι β')	326D
	Bellone an pace clariores fuerint Athenienses (Πότερον Αθηναΐοι κατὰ πόλεμον η κατὰ σοφίαν ένδοξότεροι) .	345c
V.	De Iside et Osiride (Περί "Ισιδος και 'Oσίριδος).	351c
	De E apud Delphos (Περί τοῦ ΕΙ τοῦ ἐν Δελφοῖς)	384c
10	De Pythiae oraculis (Περί τοῦ μὴ χρâν ἔμμετρα
	νῦν τὴν Πυθίαν)	394D De defectu oraculorum (Περί τῶν ἐκλελοιπότων χρηστηρίων)	409E
V1 .	An virtus doceri possit (Ei διδακτον ή άρετή) .	439A
	De virtute morali ($\Pi \epsilon \rho i \tau \eta s \eta \theta \iota \kappa \eta s d\rho \epsilon \tau \eta s$).	440p
	De cohibenda ira (IIepì dopyngias)	452E
	De tranquillitate animi (Περί εὐθυμίας) .	464E
	De fraterno amore (Περί φιλαδελφίας) .	478A De amore prolis (Περί της είς τὰ ἔκγονα φιλοστοργίας)	493A
	An vitiositas ad infelicitatem sufficiat (Ei αὐτάρκης ή κακία πρὸς κακοδαιμονίαν)	498A
	Animine an corporis affectiones sint peiores (Πότερον τὰ τῆς ψυχῆς ἢ τὰ τοῦ σώματος πάθη χείρονα).	500в
	De garrulitate (Περι άδολεσχίας) .	502в
	De curiositate (Περί πολυπραγμοσύνης) .	515в
VII.	De cupiditate divitiarum ($\Pi \epsilon \rho i \phi i \lambda o \pi \lambda o v \tau i a s$).	523c
	De vitioso pudore ($\Pi \epsilon \rho i \delta v \sigma \omega \pi i a_s$)	528c
-11	De invidia et odio (Περί φθόνου και μίσους) .	-536e De se ipsum citra invidiam laudando (Περί τοῦ έαυτόν έπαινειν άνεπιφθόνως)	539A
	De sera numinis vindicta (Περι των ύπο τοῦ θείου βραδέως τιμωρουμένων)	548a

xii

THE TRADITIONAL ORDER

		PAGE
	De fato (Περί είμαρμένης)	568в
	De genio Socratis (Περί τοῦ Σωκράτους δαιμονίου)	575A
	De exilio ($\Pi \epsilon \rho i \phi v \gamma \eta s$).	599 A
	Consolatio ad uxorem (Παραμυθητικός πρός την	000
	yvvaika).	608A
VIII.	Quaestionum convivalium libri vi (Suumooia-	61 2 a κῶν προβλημάτων βιβλία 5΄) 1, 612c: ΙΙ, 629 Β: ΙΙΙ, 644ε: ΙV, 659ε: V.	0120
	672D: VI, 686A
IX	Quaestionum convivalium libri iii ($\Sigma o \mu \pi o \sigma a$ -
141.	κῶν προβλημάτων βιβλία γ')	6970
	VII, 697c; VIII, 716p: IX, 736c	0010
	Amatorius ('Ερωτικός)	748E
Х.	Amatoriae narrationes ('Epwrikai dinynoeis) .	771E
	Maxime cum principibus philosopho esse disserendum (Περί τοῦ ὅτι μάλιστα τοῖς ἡγεμόσι δεῖ τὸν φιλόσοφον διαλέγεσθαι)	776A Ad principem ineruditum (IIpos ήγεμόνα amai-δευτον)	779c
	An seni respublica gerenda sit (Εἰ πρεσβυτέρω	***
	πολιτευτέον)	783A
	Praecepta gerendae reipublicae (Πολιτικά	798A
	παραγγέλματα) De unius in republica dominatione, populari	1954 statu, et paucorum imperio (Περί μοναρχίας καί δημοκρατίας και όλιγαρχίας)	8264
	De vitando aere alieno ($\Pi \epsilon \rho i \tau \sigma \hat{v} \mu \eta \delta \epsilon \hat{v} \delta a v \epsilon i$ -	0.20A
	ζεσθαι).	827p
	Vitae decem oratorum (Περί των δέκα μητό-	114
	ρων)	832B
	Comparationis Aristophanis et Menandri compendium (Συγκρίσεως 'Αριστοφάνους και Μεν-άνδρου έπιτομή)	853a
XI.	De Herodoti malignitate (Περί της Ηροδότου	0.54
	κακοηθείας)	854e
	De placitis philosophorum, libri \mathbf{v} ($\Pi \epsilon \rho \tau \hat{\omega} \mathbf{v}$	874p ἀρεσκόντων τοῖς φιλοσόφοις, βιβλία ε') . Quaestiones naturales (Αἴτια φυσικά) .	9110
XU	De facie quae in orbe lunae apparet ($\Pi \epsilon \rho \tau \sigma \hat{v}$	5110 anal.	έμφαινομένου προσώπου τῶ κύκλω τῆς σελή-
	vns)	920
	De primo frigido (Περί τοῦ πρώτως ψυχροῦ)	945E
	free (red to the set of the set o	xiii
		AIII

THE TRADITIONAL ORDER

		PAGE
	Aquane an ignis sit utilior (Περι τοῦ πότερον ύδωρ η πυρ χρησιμώτερον).	955D
	Terrestriane an aquatilia animalia sint callidiora (Πότερα τῶν ζώων φρονιμώτερα τὰ χεροαία ή τά ένυδρα)	959A
	Bruta animalia ratione uti, sive Gryllus (IIepi	ALL Y
	τοῦ τὰ ἄλογα λόγω χρησθαι)	985D De esu carnium orationes ii (Περί σαρκοφαγίας λόγοι β')	993A
CIII.	Platonicae quaestiones (Πλατωνικά ζητήματα).	999c
-	De animae procreatione in Timaeo (Περί της έν
	Τιμαίω ψυχογονίας)	1012A
-	Compendium libri de animae procreatione in Timaeo ('Επιτομή του περί της έν τω Τιμαίω ψυχογονίας)	1030p
	De Stoicorum repugnantiis (Περί Στωικών έναν-
. 14	. τιωμάτων)	10334
	Compendium argumenti Stoicos absurdiora poetis dicere (Σύνοψις τοῦ ὅτι παραδοξότερα οἰ Στωικοί τών ποιητών λέγουσι)	1057c
	De communibus notitiis adversus Stoicos ($\Pi \epsilon \rho$)	10010
	τών κοινών έννοιών πρός τούς Στωικούς)	1058E
XIV.		10000
	("Οτι οὐδ' ἡδέως ζην ἔστι κατ' Ἐπίκουρον)	1086c
	Adversus Colotem (Προς Κωλώτην)	1107p
	An recte dictum sit latenter esse vivendum El καλώς εξρηται το λάθε βιώσας)	1128A
	De musica ($\Pi \epsilon \rho i \mu o \nu \sigma i \kappa \eta s$) .	1131A
VV	Frogmonts and Index

The second secon

HOW TO PROFIT BY ONE'S ENEMIES (DE CAPIENDA EX INIMICIS UTILITATE)

, INTRODUCTION

THE essay on turning even one's enemies to some profitable use was an extempore address which was afterwards reduced to writing. It still retains, however, some of the marks of its extempore character in an occasional asyndeton or anacoluthon, in a few repetitions, and in such little slips as reversing the positions of Domitius and Scaurus (91 p). But minor matters of this sort cannot obscure the excellence of the essay as a whole, which contains much good advice, many wholesome truths, and much common sense. To cite but one example, the statement (91 B) that many things which are necessary in time of war, but bad under other conditions. acquire the sanction of custom and law, and cannot be easily abolished, even though the people are being injured by them, will appeal to everybody except the confirmed militarist. The essay was written some time after the essay entitled Advice to Statesmen, which in turn must be placed shortly after the death of Domitian (A.D. 96).

This is one of the "moral" essays of Plutarch which so impressed Christians that they were translated into Syriac in the sixth or seventh centuries. The translation of this essay is rather an adaptation, many details being omitted as unessential, but even so it gives light on the Greek text in a few places. The Syriac translation is published in Studia Sinaitica, No. IV (London 1894)

Stol DOLLOWITS,

(86) Β ΠΩΣ ΑΝ ΤΙΣ ΥΠ' ΕΧΘΡΩΝ ΩΦΕΛΟΙΤΟ

 Όρῶ μὲν ὅτι τὸν πραότατον, ῶ Κορνήλιε Ποῦλχερ, ἐπολιτείας ἥρησαι τρόπον, ἐν ῷ μάλιστα τοῦς κοινοῦς ὠφέλιμος ῶν ἀλυπότατον ἰδία τοῦς ἐν-C τυχχάνουσι παρέχεις σεαυτόν. ἐπεὶ δὲ 'χώραν μὲν ἄθηρον ῶσπερ ἱστοροῦσι τὴν Κρήτην εὑρεῖν ἔστι, πολιτεία δὲ μήτε φθόνον ἐνηνοχυῖα μήτε ζῆλον ἢ φιλονεικίαν, ἔχθρας γονιμώτατα πάθη, μέχρι νῦν οὐ γέγονεν (ἀλλ' εἰ μηδὲν ἄλλο, ταῖς ἔχθραις αἰ φιλίαι συμπλέκουσιν ἡμᾶς· ὅ καὶ Χίλων ὁ σοφὸς νοήσας τὸν εἰπόντα μηδένα ἔχειν ἐχθρὸν ἠρώτησεν εἰ μηδὲ φίλον ἔχει), δοκεῖ μοι τά τ' ἄλλα περὶ ἐχθρῶν τῷ πολιτικῷ διεσκέφθαι προσήκειν καὶ τοῦ Ξενοφῶντος ἀκηκοέναι μὴ παρέργως εἰπόντος ὅτι τοῦ νοῦν ἔχοντός ἐστι καὶ '' ἀπὸ τῶν ἐχθρῶν ὠφελεῖσθαι.'' ἅπερ οὖν εἰς τοῦτο πρώην εἰπεῖν μοι παρέστη, συναγαγὼν ὅμοῦ τι τοῖς αὐτοῖς ὀνόμασιν ἀπέσταλκά σοι, φεισάμενος ὡς ἐνῆν μάλιστα τῶν

¹ Ποῦλχερ Xylander: ποῦλχρε (or ποῦλχερ) ἄτερ. Perhaps ἄτερ came from the explanatory note of some copyist (Λατ. ερ).

^a Presumably Cn. Cornelius Pulcher, who was procurator in Achaea towards the close of Plutarch's life. He also held various other offices. Cf. Corpus Inscr. Graec. i. 1186. ^b This tradition in regard to Crete is found in several

^b This tradition in regard to Crete is found in several ancient writers. Cf. for example Pliny, Nat. Hist. viii. 83. 4

STREET, STREET, STREET, ST.

HOW TO PROFIT BY ONE'S ENEMIES

at the minimum of a start to

1. I OBSERVE, my dear Cornelius Pulcher,ª that you have chosen the mildest form of official administration, in which you are as helpful as possible to the public interests while at the same time you show yourself to be very amiable in private to those who have audience with you. Now it may be possible to find a country, in which, as it is recorded of Crete,^b there are no wild animals, but a government which has not had to bear with envy or jealous rivalry or conten-tion—emotions most productive of enmity—has not hitherto existed. For our very friendships, if nothing else, involve us in enmities. This is what the wise Chilon ^c had in mind, when he asked the man who boasted that he had no enemy whether he had no friend either. Therefore it seems to me to be the duty of a statesman not only to have thoroughly investigated the subject of enemies in general, but also in his reading of Xenophon d to have given more than passing attention to the remark that it is a trait of the man of sense " to derive profit even from his enemies." Some thoughts, therefore, on this subject, which I recently had occasion to express, I have put together in practically the same words, and now send them to you, with the omission, so far

5

^e The same remark is quoted by Plutarch in Moralia 96 A. Cf. also Aulus Gellius, i. 3. ^e In Oeconomicus 1, 15.

(86) ἐν τοῖς Πολιτικοῖς Παραγγέλμασι γεγραμμένων, D ἐπεὶ κἀκεῖνο τὸ βιβλίον ὅρῶ σε πρόχειρον ἔχοντα πολλάκις.

2. Ἐξήρκει τοῖς παλαιοῖς ὑπὸ τῶν ἀλλοφύλων καὶ ἀγρίων ζώων μὴ ἀδικεῖσθαι, καὶ τοῦτο τῶν πρὸς τὰ θηρία τέλος ἦν ἀγώνων ἐκείνοις· οἱ δ' ὑστερον ἦδη χρῆσθαι μαθόντες αὐτοῖς καὶ ἀφελοῦνται σαρξὶ τρεφόμενοι καὶ θριξὶν ἀμφιεννύμενοι καὶ χολαῖς καὶ πυτίαις ἰατρευόμενοι καὶ δέρμασιν ὅπλίζοντες ἑαυτούς, ὥστ' ἄξιον εἶναι δεδιέναι μὴ τῶν θηρίων ἐπιλιπόντων τῷ ἀνθρώπῳ θηριώδης ὁ βίος αὐτοῦ γένηται καὶ ἄπορος καὶ ἀνήμερος. ἐπεὶ τοίνυν τοῖς μὲν ἅλλοις ἱκανόν ἐστι τὸ μὴ πάσχειν ὑπὸ τῶν ἐχθρῶν κακῶς, τοὺς δὲ νοῦν ἔχοντας ὁ Ξενοφῶν καὶ ἀφελεῖσθαί ψησιν ἀπὸ τῶν διαφερομένων, ἀπιστεῖν μὲν οὐ χρή, ζητεῖν δὲ μέθοδον καὶ τέχνην δι' ἦς τοῦτο περιέσται τὸ καλὸν οῖς χωρὶς ἐχθροῦ ζῆν ἀδύνατόν ἐστιν.

Οὐ δύναται πῶν ἐξημερῶσαι δένδρον ὁ γεωργὸς οὐδὲ πῶν τιθασεῦσαι θηρίον ὁ κυνηγός· ἐζήτησαν οὖν καθ' ἑτέρας χρείας ὁ μὲν ἐκ τῶν ἀκάρπων ὁ δ' ἀπὸ τῶν ἀγρίων ὠφελεῖσθαι. τῆς θαλάττης τὸ ὕδωρ ἄποτόν ἐστι καὶ πονηρόν, ἀλλ' ἰχθῦς τρέφει καὶ πόμπιμόν ἐστι πάντῃ καὶ πορεύσιμον ὅχημα τοῖς κομιζομένοις· τοῦ δὲ σατύρου τὸ πῦρ, ὡς F πρῶτον ὦφθη, βουλομένου φιλῆσαι καὶ περιβαλεῖν, ὁ Προμηθεύς as possible, of matter contained in my Advice to $Statesmen,^a$ since I observe that you often have that book close at hand.

^e This work has been preserved ; it is to be found in the Moralia, 798 $_$ -825 $_$.

HOW TO PROFIT BY ONE'S ENEMIES, 86

2. Primitive men were quite content if they could escape being injured by strange and fierce animals, and this was the aim and end of their struggles against the wild beasts; but their successors, by learning, as they did, how to make use of them, now profit by them through using their flesh for food, their hair for clothing, their gall and colostrum as medicine, and their skins as armour, so that there is good reason to fear that, if the supply of wild beasts should fail man, his life would become bestial, helpless, and uncivilized.^b Since, then, it is enough for most people if they can avoid suffering ill-treatment at the hands of their enemies, and since Xenophon ° asserts that men of sense will even derive profit from those who are at variance with them, we must not refuse him credence, but rather try to discover the system and the art through which this admirable advantage is to be gained by those who find it impossible to live without an enemy.

The farmer cannot domesticate every tree, nor can the huntsman tame every beast; and so they have sought to derive profit from these in ways to meet their other needs: the farmer from the trees that bear no fruit and the huntsman from the wild animals. The water of the sea is unfit to drink and tastes vile; yet fish thrive in it, and it is a medium for the dispatch and conveyance of travellers everywhere. The Satyr, at his first sight of fire, wished to kiss and embrace it, but Prometheus said,

^b Cf. Moralia, 964 A.

· Oeconomicus, 1. 15; cf. also Cyropaedia, i. 6. 11.

7

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

τράγος γένειον άρα πενθήσεις σύ γε. καί γαρ¹ κάει τον άψάμενον, άλλα φως παρέχει καί θερμότητα και τέχνης άπάσης ὄργανόν έστι τοῖς χρήσθαι μαθούσι. σκόπει δή και τον έχθρόν, εί βλαβερός ών τάλλα και δυσμεταχείριστος, άμωσγέπως άφην ένδίδωσιν αύτου και χρησιν οικείαν 87 και ωφέλιμός έστι. και των πραγμάτων άφιλα πολλά και άπεχθη και άντίπαλα τοις έντυγχάνουσιν άλλ' όρậς ότι και νόσοις ένιοι σώματος είς άπραγμοσύνην έχρήσαντο, και πόνοι πολλοίς προσπεσόντες έρρωσαν και ήσκησαν. ένιοι δε καί πατρίδος στέρησιν και χρημάτων αποβολήν έφόδιον σχολής εποιήσαντο και φιλοσοφίας. ώς Διογένης και Κράτης. Ζήνων δέ, της ναυκληρίας αὐτῶ συντριβείσης, πυθόμενος είπεν, "εῦ γ', τύχη, ποιείς, είς τον τρίβωνα συνελαύνουσα ήμας." ώσπερ γὰρ τὰ ῥωμαλεώτατα² τοὺς στομάχους³ καὶ ύγιεινότατα των ζώων όφεις έσθίοντα καταπέττει Β καί σκορπίους, έστι δ' ά και λίθοις και όστράκοις τρέφεται (μεταβάλλουσι δε δι' ευτονίαν και θερμότητα πνεύματος), οί δε σικχοί και νοσώδεις άρτον και οίνον προσφερόμενοι ναυτιωσιν, ούτως οί μέν άνόητοι και τας φιλίας διαφθείρουσιν, οι δέ φρόνιμοι και ταις έχθραις έμμελως χρήσθαι δύνανται.

¹ καὶ γàp added by Bernardakis.

² ρωμαλεώτατα Hercher : ρωμαλέα (ρωμαλεώτερα Suidas s.v. σικχύς).

⁸ τούς στομάχους Suidas: τοῖς στομάχοις.

4 olvov] ὕδωρ Suidas.

^a From Prometheus the Fire-bearer of Aeschylus. Cf. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Aeschylus, No. 207.

^b Cf. Diogenes Laertius, vi. 20 ff.

8

HOW TO PROFIT BY ONE'S ENEMIES, 86-87

You, goat, will mourn your vanished beard," for fire burns him who touches it, yet it furnishes light and heat, and is an instrument of every craft for those who have learned to use it. So look at your enemy, and see whether, in spite of his being in most respects harmful and difficult to manage, he does not in some way or other afford you means of getting hold of him and of using him as you can use no one else, and so can be of profit to you. Many of the circumstances of life are unkindly and hateful and repellent to those who have to meet them ; yet you observe that some have employed their attacks of bodily illness for quiet resting, and trials which have fallen to the lot of many have but strengthened and trained them. Some, too, have made banishment and loss of property a means of leisure and philosophic study, as did Diogenes^b and Crates.^c And Zeno,^d on learning that the ship which bore his venture had been wrecked, exclaimed, " A real kindness, O Fortune, that thou, too, dost join in driving us to the philosopher's cloak !" For just as those animals which have the strongest and soundest stomachs can eat and digest snakes and scorpions, and there are some even that derive nourishment from stones and shells (for they transmute such things by reason of the vigour and heat of their spirit), while fastidious and sickly persons are nause-ated if they partake of bread and wine, so fools spoil even their friendships, while wise men are able to make a fitting use even of their enmities.

· Ibid. vi. 85.

^d The remark of Zeno is again referred to by Plutarch in Moralia, 467 D and 603 D; cf. also Diogenes Laertius, vii. 5, and Seneca, De animi tranquillitate, chap. xiii.

9

(87) 3. Πρώτον μέν ουν δοκεί μοι της έχθρας το βλαβερώτατον ώφελιμώτατον αν γενέσθαι τοις προσέχουσιν. τί δε τοῦτ' ἐστίν; ἐφεδρεύει σου τοῖς πράγμασιν ἐγρηγορώς ὁ ἐχθρὸς ἀεὶ καὶ λαβὴν ζητῶν πανταχόθεν περιοδεύει τὸν βίον, οὐ διὰ δρυός μόνον όρων ώς ό Λυγκεύς ούδε δια λίθων C και δστράκων, άλλα και δια φίλου και οικέτου και διὰ συνήθους παντὸς ὡς ἀνυστόν ἐστι φωρῶν τὰ πραττόμενα καὶ τὰ βουλευόμενα διορύττων καὶ διερευνώμενος. οἱ μὲν γὰρ φίλοι καὶ νοσοῦιτες ἡμᾶς πολλάκις καὶ ἀποθνήσκοντες λανθάνουσιν άμελοῦντας καὶ ὀλιγωροῦντας, τῶν δ' ἐχθρῶν μονονουχὶ καὶ τοὺς ὀνείρους πολυπραγμονοῦμεν· νόσοι δὲ καὶ δανεισμοὶ καὶ διαφοραὶ πρὸς γυναῖκας αύτούς έκείνους μαλλον η τον έχθρον λανθάνουσι. μάλιστα δε των άμαρτιων έχεται και ταύτας έξιχνεύει. και καθάπερ οι γυπες επι τας όσμας D τῶν διεφθορότων σωμάτων φέρονται, τῶν δὲ καθαρών και ύγιαινόντων αισθησιν ούκ έχουσιν, ούτω τὰ νοσοῦντα τοῦ βίου καὶ φαῦλα καὶ πεπονθότα κινεί τον έχθρόν, και πρός ταῦθ' οι μισοῦντες άττουσι και τούτων απτονται και σπαράττουσι. τοῦτο οὖν ὦφέλιμόν ἐστι; πάνυ μέν οὖν, εὐλαβούμενον ζην και προσέχειν έαυτῷ και μήτε πράττειν μηδεν όλιγώρως και ἀπερισκέπτως μήτε λέγειν, άλλ' άει διαφυλάττειν ωσπερ έν άκριβει διαίτη τον βίον ἀνεπίληπτον· ή γὰρ οὕτω συστέλλουσα τὰ Ε πάθη και συνέχουσα τον λογισμον ευλάβεια μελέτην έμποιεί και προαίρεσιν του ζην έπιεικώς και

^a Lynceus was gifted with superhuman powers of vision; cf. for example Moralia, 1083 D; Pindar, Nemean Odes, x. 60; Horace, Epistles, i. 1. 28, and Pausanias, iv. 2. 10

HOW TO PROFIT BY ONE'S ENEMIES, 87

3. In the first place, then, it seems to me that the most harmful element in enmity may be made most profitable to those who give heed. What is this? Your enemy, wide awake, is constantly lying in wait to take advantage of your actions, and seeking to gain some hold on you, keeping up a constant patrol about your life; and not only does his sight, like the sight of Lynceus,^a penetrate the oak-tree and stones and tiles, but your enemy, through every friend and servant and acquaintance as well, so far as possible, plays the detective on your actions and digs his way into your plans and searches them through and through. Oftentimes we do not learn, until too late, of the illness or the death of our friends, so careless are we and neglectful; but our curiosity about our enemies all but prompts us to pry into their dreams; sickness, debts, and conjugal disagreements are more likely to be unknown to the very persons affected than to their enemy. Especially does he try to get hold of their failings and ferret them out. And just as vultures are drawn to the smell of decomposed bodies, but have no power to discover those that are clean and healthy, so the infirmities, meannesses, and untoward experiences of life rouse the energies of the enemy, and it is such things as these that the malevolent pounce upon and seize and tear to pieces. Is this then profitable ? Assuredly it is, to have to live circumspectly, to give heed to one's self, and not to do or say anything carelessly or inconsiderately, but always to keep one's life unassailable as though under an exact regimen. For the circumspection which thus represses the emotions and keeps the reasoning power within bounds gives practice and purpose in living a life that ἀνεγκλήτως. καθάπερ γὰρ αἱ πολέμοις ἀστυγειτονικοῖς καὶ στρατείαις ἐνδελεχέσι σωφρονιζόμεναι πόλεις εὐνομίαν καὶ πολιτείαν ὑγιαίνουσαν ἠγάπησαν, οῦτως οἱ δι' ἔχθρας τινὰς ἀναγκασθέντες ἐπινήφειν τῷ βίῷ καὶ φυλάττεσθαι τὸ ῥαθυμεῖν καὶ καταφρονεῖν καὶ μετ' εὐχρηστίας ἕκαστα πράττειν λανθάνουσιν εἰς τὸ ἀναμάρτητον ὑπὸ τῆς συνηθείας ἀγόμενοι καὶ κατακοσμούμενοι τὸν τρόπον, ἂν καὶ μικρὸν ὁ λόγος συνεπιλαμβάνηται. τὸ γάρ

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

F ή κεν γηθήσαι Πρίαμος Πριάμοιό τε παίδες

οίς έστιν ἀεὶ πρόχειρον, ἐπιστρέφει καὶ διατρέπει καὶ ἀφίστησι τῶν τοιούτων ἐφ' οίς οἱ ἐχθροὶ χαίρουσι καὶ καταγελῶσι. καὶ μὴν τοὺς περὶ τὸν Διόνυσον τεχνίτας ὅρῶμεν ἐκλελυμένους καὶ ἀπροθύμους καὶ οὐκ ἀκριβῶς πολλάκις ἀγωνιζομένους ἐν τοῖς θεάτροις ἐφ' ἑαυτῶν ὅταν δ' ἅμιλλα καὶ ἀγὼν γένηται πρὸς ἑτέρους, οὐ μόνον αὑτοὺς ἀλλὰ καὶ τὰ ὅργανα μᾶλλον συνεπιστρέφουσι, χορδολογοῦντες καὶ ἀκριβέστερον ἁρμοζόμενοι καὶ καταυλοῦντες. ὅστις οὖν οἶδεν ἀνταγωνιστὴν βίου καὶ δόξης τὸν

88 έχθρον όντα, προσέχει μαλλον αύτῷ, καὶ τὰ πράγματα περισκοπεῖ καὶ διαρμόζεται τον βίον. ἐπεὶ καὶ τοῦτο τῆς κακίας ἴδιόν ἐστι, τὸ τοὺς ἐχθροὺς αἰσχύνεσθαι μαλλον ἢ τοὺς φίλους ἐφ' οἶς ἐξαμαρτάνομεν. ὅθεν ὁ Νασικᾶς, οἰομένων τινῶν καὶ λεγόντων ἐν ἀσφαλεῖ γεγονέναι τὰ Ῥωμαίων πράγματα Καρχηδονίων μὲν ἀνῃρημένων 'Αχαιῶν δὲ

^a Homer, Il. i. 255. The words are addressed by Nestor to the Greek leaders, Agamemnon and Achilles, who have quarrelled.

^b Actors and musicians.

HOW TO PROFIT BY ONE'S ENEMIES, 87-88

is fair and free from reproach. For just as states which are chastened by border warfare and continual campaigning become well content with good order and a sound government, so persons who have been compelled on account of enmities to practise soberness of living, to guard against indolence and contemptuousness, and to let some good purpose prompt each act, are insensibly led by force of habit to make no mistakes, and are made orderly in their behaviour, even if reason co-operate but slightly. For when men keep always ready in mind the thought that Priam and Priam's sons would in truth have cause for rejoicing,^a it causes them to face about and turn aside and abandon such things as give their enemies occasion for rejoicing and derision. Furthermore, we observe that the Dionysiac artists ^b often play their parts in the theatres in a listless, dispirited, and inaccurate way when they are by themselves; but when there is rivalry and competition with another company, then they apply not only themselves but their instruments more attentively, picking their strings and tuning them and playing their flutes in more exact harmony. So the man who knows that his enemy is his competitor in life and repute is more heedful of himself, and more circumspect about his actions, and brings his life into a more thorough harmony. For it is a peculiar mark of vice, that we feel more ashamed of our faults before our enemies than before our friends. This is the ground of Nasica's remark, when some expressed their belief that the power of the Romans was now secure, inasmuch as the Carthaginians had been annihilated and

- (88) δεδουλωμένων, "νῦν μὲν οὖν," εἶπεν, "ἐπισφαλῶς ἔχομεν, μήθ' οὖς φοβηθῶμεν μήθ' οὖς αἰσχυνθῶμεν ἑαυτοῖς ἀπολελοιπότες."
 - B 4. "Έτι τοίνυν πρόσλαβε τὴν Διογένους ἀπόφασιν, φιλόσοφον σφόδρα καὶ πολιτικὴν οὕσαν "πῶς ἀμυνοῦμαι τὸν ἐχθρόν;" " αὐτὸς καλὸς κἀγαθὸς γενόμενος." ἵππους ἐχθρῶν ὅρῶντες εὐδοκιμοῦντας ἀνιῶνται καὶ¹ κύνας ἐπαινουμένους. ἂν χωρίον ἐκπεπονημένον ἴδωσιν, ἂν εὐθαλοῦντα κῆπον, ἐπιστένουσι. τί οῦν οἴει, σεαυτὸν ἐπιδεικνύμενος ανδρα δίκαιον ἀρτίφρονα χρηστόν, ἐν λόγοις εὐδόκιμον, ἐν πράξεσι καθαρόν, ἐν διαίτῃ κόσμιον, βαθείαν αύλακα διὰ φρενὸς καρπούμενον, ἐξ² ἦς τὰ κεδνὰ βλαστάνει βουλεύματα;

" νικώμενοι," φησὶ Πίνδαρος, " ἄνδρες ἀγρυξία δέδενται,"

C οὐχ ἑπλῶς οὐδὲ πάντες, ἀλλ' ὅσοι νικωμένους αύτοὺς ὅρῶσιν ὑπὸ τῶν ἐχθρῶν ἐπιμελεία χρηστότητι μεγαλοφροσύνῃ φιλανθρωπίαις εὐεργεσίαις παῦτ' '' ἀποστρέφει τὴν γλῶτταν,'' ὡς ὅ Δημοσθένης φησίν, '' ἐμφράττει τὸ στόμα, ἄγχει, σιωπῶν ποιεῖ.'' σύ τοι διάφερε των κακών έξεστι γάρ.

εἰ θέλεις ἀνιῶν τὸν μισοῦντα, μὴ λοιδόρει κίναιδον μηδὲ μαλακὸν μηδ᾽ ἀκόλαστον μηδὲ βωμολόχον

¹ kal added by Bernardakis. ² $\xi = \delta \phi'$ Aeschylus.

^b Aeschylus, Seven against Thebes, 593; quoted also in Moralia, 32 D, 186 B, and Life of Aristides, chap. iii. (p. 320 B).

14

^a Quoted again in Moralia, 21 E.

HOW TO PROFIT BY ONE'S ENEMIES, 88

the Achaeans reduced to subjection. "Nay," he said, "now is our position really dangerous, since we have left for ourselves none to make us either afraid or ashamed."

4. Moreover, as a supplement to this take the declaration of Diogenes,^a which is thoroughly philosophic and statesmanlike: "How shall I defend myself against my enemy?" "By proving yourself good and honourable." Men are much distressed when they see their enemies' horses winning renown or their dogs gaining approval. At the sight of a well-tilled field or a flourishing garden they groan. What, think you, would be their state of mind if you were to show yourself to be an honest, sensible man and a useful citizen, of high repute in speech, clean in actions, orderly in living, Reaping the deep-sown furrow of your mind From which all goodly counsels spring ? *

Pindar c says,

The vanquished are bound In the fetters of silence profound, not absolutely or universally, however, but only those who realize that they are outdone by their enemies in diligence, goodness, magnanimity, kindly deeds, and good works. These are the things which, as Demosthenes ^{d} puts it, "retard the tongue, stop the mouth, constrict the throat, and leave one with nothing to say."

Be thou unlike the base ; this thou canst do."

If you wish to distress the man who hates you, do not revile him as lewd, effeminate, licentious, vulgar, Pindar, Frag. 229 (ed. Christ).

Demosthenes, Or. xix. (De falsa legatione) 208 (p. 406).
Euripides, Orestes, 251.

- (88) μηδ' ἀνελεύθερον, ἀλλ' αὐτὸς ἀνὴρ ἴσθι καὶ σωφρόνει καὶ ἀλήθευε καὶ χρῶ φιλανθρώπως καὶ
 - D δικαίως τοῖς ἐντυγχάνουσιν. ἂν δὲ λοιδορῆσαι προαχθῆς, ἄπαγε πορρωτάτω σεαυτὸν ῶν λοιδορεῖς ἐκεῖνον. ἐνδύου τῆ ψυχῆ, περισκόπει τὰ σαθρά,¹ μή τίς σοί ποθεν ὑποφθέγγηται κακία τὸ τοῦ τραγωδοῦ άλλων ίατρός αύτος έλκεσιν βρύων.

αν ἀπαίδευτον εἴπης,² ἐπίτεινε τὸ φιλομαθὲς ἐν σεαυτῷ καὶ φιλόπονον· αν δειλόν, ἔγειρε μαλλον τὸ θαρραλέον καὶ ἀνδρῶδες· καν ἀσελγῆ καὶ ἀκόλαστον, ἐξάλειφε τῆς ψυχῆς εἴ τι λανθάνον ἐστὶ φιληδονίας ἵχνος. οὐδὲν γὰρ αἴσχιόν ἐστι βλασφημίας παλινδρομούσης οὐδὲ λυπηρότερον, ἀλλ' ἔοικε καὶ τοῦ φωτὸς τὸ ἀνακλώμενον μαλλον ἐνοχλεῖν τὰς ἀσθενεῖς ὅράσεις καὶ τῶν ψόγων οἱ πρὸς αὐτοὺς ἀναφερόμενοι τοὺς ψέγοντας ὑπὸ τῆς Ε ἀληθείας. ὡς γὰρ ὁ καικίας τὰ νέφη, καὶ ὁ φαῦλος βίος ἐψ' ἑαυτὸν ἕλκει τὰς λοιδορίας.

5. Ό μεν οῦν Πλάτων ὅσάκις ἀσχημονοῦσιν ἀνθρώποις παραγένοιτο, πρὸς αῦτὸν εἰώθει λέγειν " μή που ἄρ" ἐγὼ τοιοῦτος; " ὁ δὲ λοιδορήσας

¹ For $\tau \dot{a} \sigma a \theta \rho \dot{a}$ the Syriac version appears to have read $\tau \dot{a} \sigma \dot{a} \, \tilde{\epsilon} \rho \gamma a$, "examine your actions."

 $2 \epsilon t \pi \eta s$ Boissonade, confirmed by the Syriac version: $\epsilon t \pi \eta \sigma \epsilon$.

³ που άρ' Hercher, to conform to the other quotations of this saying by Plutarch: πη åρ', or ποι åρ'.

^a From an unknown play of Euripides; cf. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Euripides, No. 1086; Plutarch quotes the line also in Moralia, 71 F, 481 A, and 1110 E.

^b Proverbial; cf. Aristotle, Problem. 26. 1; Theophrastus, De ventis, p. 410; Pliny, Nat. Hist. ii. 48; 16 or illiberal, but be a man yourself, show self-control, be truthful, and treat with kindness and justice those who have to deal with you. And if you are led into reviling, remove yourself as far as possible from the things for which you revile him. Enter within the portals of your own soul, look about to see if there be any rottenness there, lest some vice lurking somewhere within whisper to you the words of the tragedian:

HOW TO PROFIT BY ONE'S ENEMIES, 88

Wouldst thou heal others, full of sores thyself? *

If you call your enemy uneducated, strive to intensify in yourself the love of learning and industry; if you call him a coward, rouse even more your selfreliance and manliness; if you call him unchaste and licentious, obliterate from your soul whatever trace of devotion to pleasure may be lurking there unperceived. For there is nothing more disgraceful or painful than evil-speaking that recoils upon its author. So reflected light appears to be the more troublesome in cases of weak eyesight, and the same is true of censures that by the truth are brought back upon the very persons who are responsible for them. For as surely the north-east wind ^b brings the clouds, so surely does a bad life bring revilings upon itself.

⁵. As often as Plato ^c found himself in the company of persons whose conduct was unseemly, he was wont to say to himself, "Is it possible that I am like them?" But if the man who reviles another's Plutarch, Moralia, 823 B, and Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Adespota, No. 75.

^c This remark of Plato is cited also in the Moralia, 40 p, 129 p, and 463 E.

τὸν ἐτέρου βίον ἂν εὐθὺς ἐπισκοπῆ τὸν ἑαυτοῦ καὶ μεθαρμόττη πρὸς τοὐναντίον ἀπευθύνων καὶ ἀποστρέφων, ἕξει τι χρήσιμον ἐκ τοῦ λοιδορεῖν, ἄλλως ἀχρήστου καὶ κενοῦ δοκοῦντος εἶναι καὶ ὄντος.

Οί μέν οῦν πολλοὶ γελῶσιν, ἄν τις ῶν φαλακρὸς ἢ F κυρτὸς ἐτέρους εἰς ταῦτα λοιδορῃ καὶ σκώπτῃ· γελοῖον δ' ὅλως ἐστὶ τὸ λοιδορεῖν καὶ σκώπτειν ὅτιοῦν ἀντιλοιδορηθῆναι δυνάμενον, ὡς Λέων ὅ Βυζάντιος ὑπὸ κυρτοῦ λοιδορηθεἰς εἰς τὴν τῶν ὀμμάτων ἀσθένειαν, '' ἀνθρώπινον,'' ἔφη, '' πάθος ὀνειδίζεις, ἐπὶ τοῦ νώτου φέρων τὴν νέμεσιν.'' οὐκοῦν μηδὲ μοιχὸν λοιδορήσῃς, αὐτὸς ῶν παιδομανής, μηδ' ἄσωτον, αὐτὸς ῶν ἀνελεύθερος.

άνδροκτόνου γυναικός όμογενής έφυς προς τον "Αδραστον ος 'Αλκμέων. τί οῦν ἐκεῖνος; οὐκ ἀλλότριον ἀλλ' ἴδιον αὐτῷ προφέρων ὄνειδος σύ δ' αὐτόχειρ γε μητρός η σ' έγείνατο.

πρός τὸν Κράσσον ὁ Δομίτιος, " οὐ σὺ μυραίνης ἐν ζωγρείω σοι τρεφομένης εἶτ' ἀποθανούσης ἔκλαυσας; " καὶ ὁ ἕτερος " οὐ σὺ τρεῖς γυναῖκας ἐκκομίσας οὐκ ἐδάκρυσας;" οὐκ εὐφυῆ δεῖ τὸν λοιδορησόμενον εἶναι καὶ μεγαλόφωνον καὶ ἰταμόν, ἀλλ' ἀλοιδόρητον καὶ ἀνέγκλητον· οὐδενὶ γὰρ οὕτως ἔοικε προστάττειν ὁ θεὸς ὡς τῷ μέλλοντι ψέγειν

^b From the Alcmaeon of Euripides; cf. Nauck, T.G.F., Adespota, No. 358. Quoted also in Moralia, 35 D.

^c Crassus's pet eel was famous. Plutarch speaks of it twice elsewhere : Moralia, 811 A and 976 A. Of other writers, Aelian, De natura animal. viii. 4, contains the most interesting account of it.

18

89

^a Cf. 633 c, for a slightly different version of the story.

life will at once carefully inspect his own, and readjust it by directing and turning it aside into the opposite course, he will have gained something useful from this reviling, which, otherwise, not only gives the impression of being useless and inane, but is so in fact.

Now most people laugh if a man who is bald or hump-backed reviles and jeers at others for being in such case; for it is altogether ridiculous to indulge in reviling and jeering at anything that affords to another the opportunity for a caustic retort. For example, Leo^{α} of Byzantium, being reviled by a humpback for the weakness of his eyes, said, "You reproach me with that which can happen to any man, while you bear on your back the mark of God's wrath!" Do not therefore ever revile an adulterer when you yourself are given to unnatural lust, nor a profligate when you yourself are stingy.

Own kin are you of her who slew her spouse b are the words of Alcmeon to Adrastus. What then does Adrastus say? He reproaches the speaker with a shameful deed which is not another's but all his own:

But you yourself slew her who gave you birth.

Domitius remarked to Crassus, "Did you not weep at the death of a lamprey ^c which was being kept for you in a fish-pond?" And the other replied, "Did you not bury three wives and not shed a tear?" The man who is going to indulge in reviling need not be smart and loud-voiced and aggressive, but he must be irreproachable and unimpeachable. For upon nobody does the divine power seem so to enjoin

VOL. II

(89) ἕτερον τὸ '' γνῶθι σαυτόν,'' ἕνα μὴ λέγοντες ἁ θέλουσιν ἀκούωσιν ἃ μὴ θέλουσι. '' φιλεῖ '' γὰρ ὅ τοιοῦτος κατὰ τὸν Σοφοκλέα γλωσσαν ἐκχέας μάτην ἄκων ἀκούειν οΰς ἑκων εἴπῃ λόγους.

6. Τουτί μέν ούν ένεστι τώ λοιδορείν τόν έχ θρόν ωφέλιμον και χρήσιμον ούκ έλαττον δ' έτέρω, τώ² λοιδορείσθαι και κακώς ακούειν αὐτὸν ὑπὸ των έχθρων. όθεν όρθως ό 'Αντισθένης είπεν ότι τοις μέλλουσι σώζεσθαι φίλων δει γνησίων ή διαπύρων έχθρων. οί μέν γαρ νουθετουντες τους άμαρτάνοντας οί δε λοιδορουντες αποτρέπουσι. επεί δ' ή φιλία τὰ νῦν ἰσχνόφωνος γέγονεν ἐν τῷ παρρησιάζεσθαι, και το κολακεύον αυτής λάλον έστι, το C δέ νουθετοῦν άναυδον, ἀκουστέον ἐστὶ παρὰ τῶν έχθρῶν τὴν ἀλήθειαν. ὡς γὰρ ὁ Τήλεφος οἰκείου μὴ τυγχάνων ἰατροῦ τῷ πολεμικῷ δόρατι τὸ ἕλκος ὑπέθηκεν, οὕτω τοὺς ἀποροῦντας εὐνοίας νουθετούσης υπομένειν ανάγκη μισουντος έχθρου λόγον, αν ελέγχη και κολάζη την κακίαν, σκοπουντας το έργον άλλά μή την γνώμην του κακώς λέγοντος. ώσπερ γάρ ό τον Θεσσαλόν Προμηθέα κτείναι διανοηθείς έπαισε τω ξίφει το φύμα και διείλεν ούτως ἐτέρφ F.C.B.: ἐτέρου, ἔτερα οr ἔτερον.

 ² τφ̂] τὸ most Mss.

^a Two lines of a longer quotation from an unknown play; ef. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Sophocles, No. 843.

^b Diogenes is given as the author of this saying twice elsewhere in the Moralia, 74 c and 82 A. One MS. gives Diogenes here.

^c Among the many references to this story, it is perhaps sufficient to cite Moralia, 46 F; Propertius, ii. 1. 63; Ovid, Tristia, v. 1. 15.

20

B

the precept, "Know thyself," as upon him who purposes to censure another, so that such persons may not, by saying what they want to say, have to hear what they do not want to hear. For a person of this type, as Sophocles ^a puts it,

> By babbling thoughtless talk is wont to hear Against his will the words he willing speaks.

6. There may be, then, so much that is profitable and useful in reviling one's enemy; but no less profit lies in the alternative of being reviled oneself and ill spoken of by one's enemies. Hence Antisthenes ^b was quite right in saying that, as a matter of self-preservation, men have need of true friends or else of ardent enemies; for the first by admonition, and the second by reviling, turn them from error. But since friendship's voice has nowadays become thin and weak when it comes to frank speaking, while its flattery is voluble and its admonition mute, we have to depend upon our enemies to hear the truth. For as Telephus, unable to find a suitable physician, subjected his wound to his enemy's spear, so those who are cut off from benevolent admonition must submit with patience to the remarks of a malevolent enemy if he exposes and reprehends their vice, and they must give consideration to the facts only, and not to what is in the mind of the detractor. Another parallel is the case of the man who, with intent to kill the Thessalian Prometheus,^d smote with his sword a tumour which Prometheus had, and opened it so that the man's life

⁶ Apparently a sort of nickname of Jason of Pherae; at any rate this story is told of Jason by Cicero, De natura deorum, iii. 28 (70); Pliny, Nat. Hist. vii. 51; and Valerius Maximus, i. 8, ext. 6. Cf. Xenophon, Hellenica, ii. 3. 36.

- (89) ώστε σωθήναι τον άνθρωπον καὶ ἀπαλλαγήναι τοῦ φύματος ἑαγέντος, οὕτω πολλάκις ὑπ' ὀργής ἢ ἔχ-
 - D θρας προσπεσοῦσα λοιδορία κακὸν ψυχῆς ἢ ἀγνοούμενον ἢ ἀμελούμενον ἐθεράπευσεν. ἀλλ' οἱ πολλοὶ λοιδορηθέντες οἱ σκοποῦσιν εἰ πρόσεστιν αὐτοῖς τὸ λεγόμενον, ἀλλὰ τί πρόσεστιν ἔτερον τῷ λοιδοροῦντι, καὶ καθάπερ οἱ παλαίοντες τὴν κόνιν οὐχ ἑαυτῶν ἀποψῶσι τὰς λοιδορίας, ἀλλὰ συμπάττουσιν ἀλλήλους εἶτα φύρονται καὶ ἀναχρώννυνται συμπεσόντες ὑπ' ἀλλήλων. δεῖ δ' ἀκούσαντα κακῶς ὑπ' ἐχθροῦ τὸ μὲν προσὸν ἀφαιρεῖν αὑτοῦ μᾶλλον ἢ κηλῖδα προσοῦσαν ἱματίω καὶ δειχθεῖσαν. ἂν δέ τις λέγῃ τὰ μὴ προσόντα, ὅμως ζητεῖν τὴν' αἰτίαν ἀφ'
 - Ε ής ή βλασφημία γέγονε, καὶ φυλάττεσθαι καὶ δεδιέναι μή τι λανθάνωμεν ἢ σύνεγγυς ἢ ὅμοιον τῷ λεγομένῳ παραμαρτάνοντες. οἶον Λακύδην² τὸν ᾿Αργείων βασιλέα κόμης τινὸς διάθεσις καὶ βάδισμα τρυφερώτερον εἰς μαλακίαν διέβαλε, καὶ Πομπήιον τὸ ἐνὶ κνᾶσθαι τὴν κεφαλὴν δακτύλῳ πορρωτάτω θηλύτητος καὶ ἀκολασίας ὅντα. Κράσσος δὲ τῶν ἱερῶν μιῷ παρθένων αἰτίαν ἔσχε πλησιάζειν, χωρίον τι καλὸν ἀνήσασθαι παρ' αὐτῆς βουλόμενος καὶ διὰ τοῦτο πολλάκις ἐντυγχάνων

¹ $\tau \dot{\eta} \nu$ added by Hercher.

² Λακήδην] Λακήδην was suggested by Wyttenbach (followed by Wilamowitz), comparing Pausanias, ii. 19, 2.

^a Mention of this habit of Pompey's is found also in the Moralia, 800 D, in the Life of Pompey, chap. xlviii. (p. 645 A), and in the Life of Caesar, chap. iv. (p. 709 B). ^b The story is told more fully in the Life of Crassus, chap.

i. (р. 543 в). 22

was saved, and he obtained relief from his tumour through its bursting; so oftentimes reviling launched upon a man by the prompting of anger or enmity cures some evil in his soul which either was not recognized or was disregarded by him. But most persons on being reviled do not stop to think whether the reproach is applicable to themselves, but they try to think what other form of reproach is applicable to the reviler, and, just as wrestlers do not wipe the dust from off their own bodies, so these persons do not wipe off the revilings from themselves, but they besmear one another, and in consequence get besmirched and begrimed by each other as they grapple together. But it is more imperative that the man who is ill spoken of by an enemy should rid himself of the attribute in question, than that he should get rid of a stain on his clothes to which his attention has been called ; and if anybody mentions things which are not really attributes of ours, we should nevertheless seek to learn the cause which has given rise to such slanderous assertions, and we must exercise vigilance, for fear that we unwittingly commit some error either approximating or resembling the one mentioned. For example, an unwarranted suspicion of unmanliness was aroused against Lacydes, king of the Argives, by a certain arrangement of his hair and a mincing gait, and Pompey a suffered in the same way on account of his habit of scratching his head with one finger, although he was very far removed from effeminacy and licentiousness. Crassus b incurred the charge of being too intimate with one of the Vestal virgins, when he only wanted to buy from her a piece of good land, and for this reason had many private ἰδία καὶ θεραπεύων. Ποστουμίαν δὲ τὸ γελᾶν F προχειρότερον καὶ λαλιậ χρῆσθαι θρασυτέρα πρὸς ἄνδρας διέβαλεν, ὥστε κριθῆναι φθορᾶς. εὑρέθη μὲν οὖν καθαρὰ τῆς αἰτίας, ἀπολύσας δ' αὐτὴν ὅ ἀρχιερεὺς Σπόριος Μινούκιος ὑπέμνησε μὴ χρῆσθαι λόγοις ἀσεμνοτέροις τοῦ βίου. Θεμιστοκλεῖ δὲ Παυσανίας μηδὲν ἀδικοῦντι προσετρίψατο τὴν ὑποψίαν τῆς προδοσίας διὰ τὸ χρῆσθαι φίλω καὶ γράφειν συνεχῶς καὶ πέμπειν πρὸς αὐτόν.

 Όταν οὖν λεχθῆ τι μὴ ἀληθές, οὐχ ὅτι ψεῦδός ἐστι δεῖ καταφρονεῖν καὶ ἀμελεῖν, ἀλλὰ σκοπεῖν τἱ τῶν ὑπὸ σοῦ λεγομένων ἢ πραττομένων ἢ σπου-90 δαζομένων ἢ συνόντων ὁμοιότητα τῆ διαβολῆ παρέσχηκε, καὶ τοῦτο διευλαβεῖσθαι καὶ φεύγειν. εἰ γὰρ ἕτεροι πράγμασιν ἀβουλήτοις περιπεσόντες διδάσκονται τὸ χρήσιμον, ὥσπερ ἡ Μερόπη φησίν

αί τύχαι δέ με

μισθόν λαβοῦσαι τῶν ἐμῶν τὰ φίλτατα σοφὴν ἔθηκαν, τί κωλύει διδάσκαλον ἄμισθον λαβόντα τὸν ἐχθρὸν ώφεληθῆναι καὶ μαθεῖν τι τῶν λανθανόντων; πολλὰ γὰρ ὁ ἐχθρὸς αἰσθάνεται τοῦ φίλου μᾶλλον ('' τυφλοῦται '' γὰρ '' τὸ φιλοῦν περὶ τὸ φιλούμενον,'' ὡς ὁ Πλάτων φησί), τῷ δὲ μισεῖν μετὰ τοῦ πολυ-Β πραγμονεῖν καὶ τὸ λαλεῖν ἔνεστιν. ὁ 'Ιέρων ὑπό

^a A Vestal virgin ; cf. Livy, iv. 44.

^b Thucydides, i. 135; cf. also Plutarch, Life of Themistocles, chap. xxiii. (p. 123 c).

^e From the Cresphontes of Euripides; Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Euripides, No. 458.

^d Plato, Laws, p. 731 E. The quotation is repeated a few pages farther on (92 E), and also in the Moralia, 48 E and 1000 A.

interviews with her and paid her much attention. Again, Postumia's ^a ready laughter and overbold talk in men's company put her under unjust suspicion, so that she was tried for unchastity. She was found innocent of the charge, but in dismissing her the Pontifex Maximus, Spurius Minucius, reminded her that the language she used should have no less dignity than her life. And again Pausanias inflicted on Themistocles,^b who was doing nothing wrong, the suspicion of treason by treating him as a friend, and by writing and sending messages to him continually.

7. Whenever, then, anything untrue has been said, you must not despise and disregard it just because it is false, but rather consider what word or act of yours, which of your pursuits or associations, has given colour to the calumny, and then be studiously careful to avoid it. For if others by becoming involved in undesired situations thereby learn a useful lesson—just as Merope says that

> Inconstant Fortune took from me, To pay her fee, the dearest that I had, But she for that hath made me wise e_{--} what is to hinder a man from taking his enemy as his teacher without fee, and profiting thereby, and thus learning, to some extent, the things of which he was unaware? For there are many things which an enemy is quicker to perceive than a friend (for Love is blind regarding the loved one, as Plato ^d says), and inherent in hatred, along with curiosity, is the inability to hold one's tongue. Hiero ^e was reviled by

• The story is repeated in the Moralia, 175 B, and elsewhere by other writers. One author tells it of Gelon.

(90) τινος τῶν ἐχθρῶν εἰς τὴν δυσωδίαν ἐλοιδορήθη τοῦ στόματος. ἐλθῶν οὖν οἴκαδε πρὸς τὴν γυναῖκα " τί λέγεις;" εἶπεν, '' οὐδὲ σύ μοι τοῦτ' ἔφρασας." ἡ δ' οὖσα σώφρων καὶ ἄκακος '' ǚμην," εἶπεν, '' ὅτι τοιοῦτο πάντες ὅζουσιν οἱ ἄνδρες." οὖτω καὶ τὰ αἰσθητικὰ καὶ τὰ σωματικὰ καὶ τὰ καταφανῆ πᾶσι παρὰ τῶν ἐχθρῶν μαθεῖν πρότερον ἔστιν ἢ τῶν φίλων καὶ συνήθων.

8. "Ανευ δὲ τούτου τὴν περὶ τὴν¹ γλῶτταν ἐγκράτειαν, οὐ μικρὸν ἀρετῆς μέρος οὖσαν, ὑπήκοον C ἀεὶ τῷ λογισμῷ καὶ πειθήνιον ἔχειν οὐκ ἔνεστιν, ἂν μή τις ἀσκήσει καὶ μελέτῃ καὶ φιλοπονία τὰ κάκιστα τῶν παθῶν, οἶόν ἐστιν ἡ ὀργή, κατεργάσηται. ἡ γὰρ '' ἀκουσίως ἐκπίπτουσα φωνὴ '' καὶ τὸ έπος φύγεν έρκος όδόντων, καί τὸ

ένια έξίπτασθαι των ρημάτων αὐτόματα

τοῖς ἀνασκήτοις μάλιστα θυμοῖς οἶον ὀλισθάνουσι καὶ διαρρέουσιν ἐπιγίγνεται δι' ἀσθένειαν θυμοῦ, δι' ἀκρατῆ γνώμην, διὰ δίαιταν θρασεῖαν.^{*} λόγου δὲ κουφοτάτου πράγματος βαρυτάτη ζημία κατὰ τὸν θεῖον Πλάτωνα καὶ παρὰ θεῶν ἔπεται καὶ παρ' D ἀνθρώπων. ἡ δὲ σιγὴ πανταχοῦ μὲν ἀνυπεύθυνον (οὐ μόνον ἄδιψον, ὥς φησιν 'Ιπποκράτης), ἐν one of his enemies for his offensive breath; so when he went home he said to his wife, "What do you mean? Even you never told me of this." But she being virtuous and innocent said, "I supposed that all men smelt so." Thus it is that things which are perceptible, material, and evident to all the world, may sooner be learned from our enemies than from our friends and close associates.

¹ περl την Stobaeus, Flor. xxiii. 9: περl.
 ² διά δίαιταν θρασείαν F.C.B.: διαίτη θρασεία.

^a A picturesque expression several times used by Homer ; 26

8. But, quite apart from this, control over the tongue, which is no small part of virtue, is something which it is impossible to keep always in subjection and obedience to the reasoning faculties, unless a man by training, practice, and industry has mastered the worst of his emotions, such as anger, for example. For the "voice that slips out unintended,"^a and the Word that has 'scaped the lips' prison,^a and

Some of the sayings that flit forth of themselves,^a are all incident to temperaments that are quite untrained, and are unsteady and fluctuating, so to speak, owing to weakness of will, headstrong opinions, and a reckless way of living. Just for a word, the lightest thing in the world, is ordained, according to the divine Plato,^b heaviest punishment, coming from both gods and men. But silence cannot under any circumstances be called to an accounting (it is more than a preventive of thirst, as Hippocrates ^c says of it), and in the midst of reviling it is e.g. Il. iv. 350; xiv. 83; Od. i. 64; xxiii. 70. The source of the other two quotations is unknown.

^b Plato, Laws, pp. 717 c and 935 A. Plutarch quotes it again in Moralia, 456 D and 505 c.
^c Cf. Moralia, 515 A.

VOL. II

(90) δε λοιδορίαις¹ σεμνόν καὶ Σωκρατικόν, μᾶλλον δ' Ἡράκλειον, εἶ γε κἀκεῖνος οὐδ' ὄσσον μυίας στυγερῶν ἐμπάζετο μύθων. οὔτι² μὴν τούτου σεμνότερον καὶ κάλλιόν ἐστι, τοῦ³ λοιδοροῦντος ἐχθροῦ τὴν ἡσυχίαν ἄγειν > λισσάδα πέτραν φιλοκέρτομον ῶς παρανηχομένους, άλλά μείζων ή άσκησις. αν έχθρον έθισθης λοιδορούντα φέρειν σιωπη, πάνυ ραδίως οίσεις γυναικός όρμην κακώς λεγούσης, και φίλου φωνάς και άδελφοῦ πικροτάτας ἀκούων ὑπομενεῖς ἀθορύβως. πατρί δε και μητρί τυπτόμενος και βαλλόμενος Επαρέξεις άθυμον και αμήνιτον σεαυτόν. ό μεν γαρ Σωκράτης έφερε την Ξανθίππην θυμοειδή και γαλεπήν ούσαν, ώς εὐκόλως συνεσόμενος έτέροις, ἂν έκείνην υπομένειν έθισθη· πολύ δε βέλτιον έγθρων και άλλοτρίων έγγυμνασάμενον βδελυρίαις και όργαῖς καὶ σκώμμασι καὶ λοιδορίαις ἐθίσαι τὸν θυμὸν ήσυχίαν άγειν μηδ' ασχάλλειν έν τω λοιδορεισθαι. 9. Πραότητα μέν ούν και άνεξικακίαν ούτως έστιν ένεπιδείξασθαι ταῖς ἔχθραις, ἁπλότητα δὲ καὶ μεγαλοφροσύνην και χρηστότητα μαλλον η ταις F φιλίαις. φίλον μέν γάρ ούχ οὕτω τὸ εὖ ποιεῖν καλόν, ώς αἰσχρόν τὸ μὴ ποιεῖν δεόμενον έχθροῦ

¹ λοιδορίαις Stob. Flor. xix. 7: λοιδορία.

2 out Madvig: oute.

³ $\tau \circ \hat{\nu}$ Reiske: $\tau \delta$: both confirmed by the Syriac version. ⁴ $\delta \rho \gamma \dot{\eta} \nu$ Wyttenbach.

⁵ \hbar Amyot (confirmed by the Syriac version): $\epsilon \nu$.

^o Source unknown; the story in Pausanias, v. 14, is not to the point.

^b The source of the quotation is not known.

dignified and Socratic, or rather Heraclean, if it be true that Heracles

Not so much as to a fly gave heed to words of hatred."

Indeed, there is nothing more dignified and noble than to maintain a calm demeanour when an enemy reviles one,

Passing by a man's scoffs Just as swimmers swim past a precipitous rock,^b but far more important is the practice. If you once acquire the habit of bearing an enemy's abuse in silence, you will very easily bear up under a wife's attack when she rails at you, and without discomposure will patiently hear the most bitter utterances of a friend or a brother; and when you meet with blows or missiles at the hands of a father or mother, you will show no sign of passion or wrath. For instance, Socrates bore with Xanthippe,^c who was irascible and acrimonious, for he thought that he should have no difficulty in getting along with other people if he accustomed himself to bear patiently with her; but it is much better to secure this training from the scurrilous, angry, scoffing, and abusive attacks of enemies and outsiders, and thus accustom the temper to be unruffled and not even impatient in the midst of reviling.

9. In this manner, then, it is possible for us to display the qualities of gentleness and forbearance in connexion with our enmities, and also straightforwardness, magnanimity, and goodness better than in our friendships. For it is not so honourable to do a good turn to a friend as it is disgraceful not to do it when he is in need; but even to forgo taking δέ και τό τιμωρίαν παραλιπείν έν καιρώ παρασχόντος επιεικές έστι, τον δε και πταίσαντι συμπαθήσαντα καί δεηθέντι συλλαβόμενον και παισίν έχθροῦ καὶ οἰκείοις πράγμασιν¹ ἐν χρεία γενομένοις σπουδήν τινα καὶ προθυμίαν ἐνδειξάμενον ὄστις ούκ άγαπα της εύμενείας ούδ' έπαινει την χρηστότητα, έκείνος.

· Xenophon, Symposium, 2. 10.

έξ άδάμαντος

91 η σιδάρου κεχάλκευται μέλαιναν καρδίαν.

Τῶ Καίσαρι κελεύσαντι τὰς Πομπηίου τιμὰς άνασταθήναι καταβεβλημένας ό Κικέρων "τους Πομπηίου," φησίν, " ἀνδριάντας ἀνέστησας, τοὺς δὲ σοὺς ἕπηξας." ὅθεν οὐδ' ἐπαίνου φειστέον ούδὲ τιμῆς περὶ ἀνδρὸς ἐχθροῦ δικαίως εὐδοκιμή-σαντος. ἔπαινόν τε γὰρ φέρει μείζονα τοῖς ἐπαινούσι, και πίστιν έχει πάλιν έγκαλων, ώς ού τον άνδρα μισών άλλά την πραξιν αποδοκιμάζων το Βδέ κάλλιστον και χρησιμώτατον, απωτάτω καθίσταται τοῦ φθονεῖν καὶ φίλοις εὐτυχοῦσι καὶ κατορθούσιν οικείοις ό τούς έχθρούς έθισθεις έπαινείν και μη δάκνεσθαι μηδέ βασκαίνειν εθ πραττόντων, καίτοι τις ασκησις ετέρα μείζονα ώφέλειαν ενεργάζεται ταις ψυχαις η διάθεσιν κρείττονα τῆς ἀφαιρούσης τὸ δύσζηλον ἡμῶν καὶ φιλό-φθονον; ὥσπερ γὰρ ἐν πολέμῳ πολλὰ τῶν ἀναγ-καίων ἄλλως δὲ φαύλων ἔθους λαβόντα καὶ νόμου

1 πράγμασιν] χρημάτων Hartman.

^a Part of a longer fragment of Pindar; cf. Pindar, Frag. 123 (ed. Christ); guoted again by Plutarch, Moralia, 558 A. Plutarch repeats this story in Moralia, 205 D; Life of Caesar, chap. lvii. (p. 734 E), and Life of Cicero, chap. xl. (p. 881 D). Cf. Suetonius, Caesar, 75. 30 vengeance on an enemy when he offers a good opportunity is a handsome thing to do. But in case a man shows compassion for an enemy in affliction, and gives a helping hand to him when he has come to be in need, and displays some concern and zeal in behalf of his children and his household affairs when they come to want, I say that whosoever does not feel affection for such a man because of his kindliness, or does not commend his goodness, Hath a black heart Forged from adamant or else from steel.*

When Caesar gave orders that the statues in honour of Pompey, which had been thrown down, should be restored, Cicero b said to him, "You have restored Pompey's statues, but you have made your own secure." Wherefore there must be no scanting of commendation or due honour in the case of an enemy who has justly gained a fair repute. For such an attitude wins greater commendation for those who bestow it, and inspires confidence, when later a man makes a complaint that he does so, not because he hates the person, but because he disapproves of the action. But best of all, and most advantageous, is the fact that a man is farthest removed from envying the good fortune of his friends or the success of his relatives, if he has acquired the habit of commending his enemies, and feeling no pang and cherishing no grudge when they prosper. And yet what other process of training produces greater benefit to our souls or a better disposition, than does that which takes from us all our jealousy and our proneness to envy? Just as many of the things which are necessary in war, but bad under other conditions, when they once acquire the sanction of custom and law, 31

(91) δύναμιν ούκ έστι ραδίως απώσασθαι και βλαπτομένους, ούτως ή έχθρα συνεισάγουσα τώ μίσει φθόνον, ζηλοτυπίαν ἐπιχαιρεκακίαν μνησικακίαν έναπολείπει. πρός δε τούτοις και πανουργία και C ἀπάτη καὶ ἐπιβουλή, δοκοῦσα μὴ φαῦλον είναι μηδ' άδικον πρός έχθρόν, αν έγγένηται, παραμένει δυσαπάλλακτος· είτα χρώνται πρός τους φίλους αὐτοί ύπο συνηθείας, αν μή φυλάξωνται πρός τούς έχθρούς. «ιπερ ούν όρθως ό Πυθαγόρας, έν άλόγοις ζώοις εθίζων ώμότητος απέχεσθαι και πλεονεξίας. όρνέων τε θηρευτάς παρητείτο και βόλους ώνούμενος ίχθύων ἐκέλευεν ἀφιέναι, καὶ παντὸς ἡμέρου ζώου φόνον απηγόρευε, πολύ δήπου σεμνότερόν D έστιν έν διαφοραίς πρός άνθρώπους και φιλονεικίαις, γενναΐον έχθρον όντα και δίκαιον και άψευδη, τὰ μοχθηρὰ καὶ ἀγεννῆ καὶ πανοῦργα πάθη κολάζειν καί ταπεινά ποιείν, όπως έν τοις πρός τούς φίλους συμβολαίοις παντάπασιν άτρεμη και άπέχηται τοῦ κακουργείν. Σκαῦρος ἐχθρὸς ἦν Δομιτίου και κατήγορος. οἰκέτης οὖν τοῦ Δομιτίου πρό της δίκης ήκε πρός αὐτὸν ὡς ἔχων τι μηνῦσαι των λανθανόντων έκεινον, ό δ' ούκ είασεν είπειν, άλλά συλλαβών τον άνθρωπον απήγαγε πρός τον δεσπότην. Κάτωνι δε Μουρήναν διώκοντι δημοκοπίας και συνάνοντι τους ελέγχους έξ έθους

Cf. Moralia, 729 E.
For the facts see Cicero, Oration for King Deiotarus, 11 (31). 32 cannot easily be abolished by the people even though the people are being injured by them, so enmity introduces envy along with hatred, and leaves as a residue jealousy, joy over others' misfortunes, and vindictiveness. Moreover, knavery, deceit, and intrigue, which seem not bad or unjust when employed against an enemy, if once they find a lodgement, acquire a permanent tenure, and are hard to eject. The next thing is that men of themselves employ these against their friends through force of habit. unless they are on their guard against using them against their enemies. If then Pythagoras a was right when, in trying to accustom men to refrain from cruelty and rapacity in connexion with dumb animals, he used to intercede with fowlers, and buy up catches of fish and direct that they be released. and forbid the killing of any domesticated animal, it is surely a grander achievement by far, in disagreements and contentions with human beings, for a man to be a noble, honest, and ingenuous enemy, and to repress and put down his base, ignoble, and knavish propensities, so that in his dealings with his friends he may be always steadfast and may keep himself from wrongdoing. Scaurus was an enemy of Domitius and his accuser before the law.^b Now a servant of Domitius came to Scaurus before the trial, claiming to have information on some matters that had escaped Scaurus's knowledge, but Scaurus would not let him speak, and caused the man to be arrested and taken back to his master. When Cato was prosecuting Murena for corrupt political practices and was getting together his evidence, there followed him, in accordance with the usage of the παρηκολούθουν οἱ τὰ πραττόμενα παραφυλάττοντες. Ε πολλάκις οὖν αὐτὸν ἠρώτων εἶ τι μέλλει σήμερον συνάγειν ἢ πραγματεύεσθαι πρὸς τὴν κατηγορίαν εἰ δὲ μὴ φαίη, πιστεύοντες ἀπήεσαν. ταῦτα μὲν οὖν αὐτοῦ τῆς δόξης ἔχει τεκμήριον μέγιστον ἀλλὰ μεῖζον καὶ κάλλιστον, ὅτι τῷ δικαίῳ χρῆσθαι καὶ πρὸς ἐχθροὺς ἐθισθέντες οὐδέποτε μὴ προσ ἐνεχθῶμεν ἀδίκως καὶ πανούργως τοῖς συνήθεσι καὶ φίλοις.

10. Έπει δέ

πάσαις¹ κορυδαλλίσι χρή λόφον έγγενέσθαι

κατὰ τὸν Σιμωνίδην, καὶ πᾶσα φύσις ἀνθρώπου φέρει φιλονεικίαν καὶ ζηλοτυπίαν καὶ φθόνον, κενεοφρόνων άνδρων έταιρον, ώς φησι Πίνδαρος, οὐ μετρίως ἄν τις ὠφελοῖτο τῶν παθῶν τούτων ποιούμενος εἰς τοὺς ἐχθροὺς ἀποκαθάρσεις καὶ ἀποστρέφων ὥσπερ ὀχετοὺς πορρωτάτω τῶν ἑταίρων καὶ οἰκείων. καὶ τοῦτο, ὡς ἔοικε, συνιδὼν πολιτικὸς ἀνὴρ ὄνομα Δῆμος,^{*} ἐν Χίω τῆς κρατούσης μερίδος ἐν στάσει γενόμενος, παρήνει τοῖς ἑταίροις μὴ πάντας ἐξελάσαι τοὺς ἀντιστασιάσαντας, ἀλλ' ὑπολιπέσθαι τινάς, 92 " ὅπως," ἔφη, "μὴ πρὸς τοὺς φίλους ἀρξώμεθα

F

¹ πάσαις Bergk: πάσαισι.

⁴ δνομα $\Delta \hat{\eta} \mu os$, which has but slight Ms. authority, is confirmed by the Syriac version: $Oropa \delta \eta \mu os$ in most MSS. $\Delta \hat{\eta} \mu os$ was used as a proper name, but there is no evidence for $Oropa \delta \hat{\eta} \mu os$ except here and Moralia 813 A.

^a Explained more fully in the Life of Cato Minor, chap. xxi. (p. 769 b), where the story is repeated.

в Repeated by Plutarch in Moralia, 809 в, and in the Life time, a men who watched what was being done? [?] Very often they would ask him if he was intending that day to gather evidence or to do any work on the case, and if he said "No," they believed him and went away. In these facts may be found the greatest proof of Cato's repute; but it is a greater thing, and indeed the noblest, that, if we acquire the habit of practising honesty in dealing even with our enemies, we shall never deal dishonestly and knavishly with our intimate associates and friends. 10. But since On every lark a crest must grow, as Simonides ^b puts it, and since all human nature bears its crop of contention, jealousy, and envy, Boon comrade of rattle-brained men.

as Pindar c says, a man would profit in no moderate degree by venting these emotions upon his enemies. and turning the course of such discharges,^d so to speak, as far away as possible from his associates and relatives. This fact, as it seems, a statesman. Demus by name, apprehended : when he found himself on the winning side in a civic strife in Chios, he advised his party associates not to banish all their opponents, but to leave some of them behind, "in order." he said, " that we may not begin to quarrel of Timoleon, chap. xxxvii. (253 E), with much the same application. Cf. Bergk, Poet. Lyr. Graec. iii. p. 418, Simonides. No. 68; Diehl, Anthologia Lyrica, ii. p. 62; Edmonds, Lyra Graeca (in L.C.L.), ii. p. 278, all differing in their reading of this one line.

· Frag. 212 (ed. Christ).

. Cf. Xenophon, Memorabilia, i. 4. 6.

" Cf. Moralia, S13 A, where the story is repeated almost word for word. and Jordan and Diorell Mas

(92) διαφέρεσθαι, των έχθρων παντάπασιν άπαλλαγέντες." οὐκοῦν καὶ ἡμῶν καταναλισκόμενα ταῦτα τὰ πάθη πρὸς τοὺς ἐχθροὺς ἦττον ἐνοχλήσει τοῖς φίλοις. οὐ γὰρ "κεραμεῖ" δεῖ "κεραμέα φθονεῖν" οὐδι "ἀοιδὸν ἀοιδῷ" καθ 'Ησίοδον, οὐδὲ γείτονα ζηλοῦν οὐδι ἀνεψιὸν οὐδι ἀδελφὸν "εἰς ἄφενος σπεύδοντα '' και τυγχάνοντα χρηστών πραγμάτων. άλλ' εί μηδείς τρόπος έστιν άλλος άπαλλαγής Β ερίδων και φθόνων και φιλονεικιών, εθιζε σεαυτόν δάκνεσθαι των έχθρων εύημερούντων, και παρόξυνε και χάραττε το φιλόνεικον έν εκείνοις θηνόμενον. ώσπερ γάρ οι χαρίεντες γεωργοί τα ρόδα και τὰ ια βελτίω ποιειν νομίζουσι σκόροδα και κρόμμυα παραφυτεύοντες (ἀποκρίνεται γὰρ εἰς ἐκεῖνα πῶν ὅσον ἐνεστι τῆ τροφῆ δριμὺ καὶ δυσ-ῶδες),οὕτω καὶ ὁ ἐχθρὸς ἀναλαμβάνων καὶ περισπῶν¹ το κακόηθες και βάσκανον, εύμενέστερον παρέξει σε τοις φίλοις εθ πράττουσι και αλυπότερον. διο και τας άμιλλας πρός εκείνους εστι ποιητέον ύπερ δόξης η άρχης η πορισμών δικαίων, μη δακνομένους μόνον, αν τι πλέον ήμων έχωσιν, άλλα καί C πάντα παραφυλάττοντας έξ ών πλέον έχουσι, καί πειρωμένους ύπερβαλέσθαι ταῖς ἐπιμελείαις καὶ φιλοπονίαις καὶ τῷ σωφρονεῖν καὶ προσέχειν ἑαυτοῖς, ὡς Θεμιστοκλῆς ἔλεγεν οὐκ ἐᾶν αὐτὸν καθεύδειν την έν Μαραθώνι Μιλτιάδου νίκην. ό μέν γάρ εύτυχία διαφέρειν αύτοῦ τον έχθρον ήγούμενος έν άρχαις η συνηγορίαις η πολιτείαις η παρά

1 περισπών Bases and F.C.B.: περιέπων.

[&]quot; The references are to the Works and Days, 25-26 and 27.

^b Cf. Plutarch, Life of Themistocles, chap. iii. (p. 113 B), and Moralia, 84 B and 800 B.

with our friends, through being completely rid of our enemies." So also in our own case, if our emotions of this sort are expended upon our enemies, they will cause less annoyance to our friends. For " a potter " must not " envy potter," nor " a minstrel a minstrel," as Hesiod ^a puts it, nor must there be any feeling of rivalry against a neighbour or relative or brother who is " winning his way towards riches " and meeting with prosperity. But if there is no other way of getting rid of strifes, envies, and contentions, accustom yourself to feel the sting of resentment when your enemies enjoy health and happiness, and whet your contentiousness to a sharp jagged edge on these. For just as skilled gardeners believe that they improve their roses and violets by planting beside them garlic and onions (since whatever pungency and malod rousness there is in what the plants feed on is all drawn off into the vegetables), thus also your enemy, by taking up and diverting to himself your malice and jealousy, will render you more kindly and less disagreeable to your friends in their prosperity. For this reason it is with our enemies that we must also engage in rivalry for repute or office or honest money-getting, not only feeling the sting of resentment if they get the advantage of us, but also watching carefully every means by which they get the advantage, and trying to surpass them in painstaking, diligence, selfcontrol, and self-criticism : after the manner of Themistocles, who said that Miltiades' victory at Marathon would not let him sleep.^b For he who thinks that it is by mere good luck that his enemy surpasses him in public offices, in pleading cases, in state administration, or in his standing with friends

(92) φίλοις καὶ ἡγεμόσιν, ἐκ τοῦ πράττειν τι καὶ ζηλοῦν εἰς τὸ βασκαίνειν παντάπασι καὶ ἀθυμεῖν καταδυόμενος, ἀργῷ τῷ φθόνῳ καὶ ἀπράκτῳ σύνεστιν ὁ δὲ μὴ τυφλούμενος περὶ τὸ μισούμενον ἀλλὰ καὶ βίου καὶ ἤθους καὶ λόγων. καὶ ἔργων γιγνόμενος θεατὴς δίκαιος τὰ πλεῖστα κατόψεται D τῶν ζηλουμένων ἐξ ἐπιμελείας καὶ προνοίας καὶ πράξεων χρηστῶν περιγιγνόμενα τοῖς κεκτημένοις, καὶ πρὸς ταῦτα συντείνων ἐπασκήσει τὸ φιλότιμον αῦτοῦ καὶ φιλόκαλον, τὸ δὲ χασμῶδες ἐκκόψει καὶ ῥάθυμον.

11. Εἰ δέ τινας οἱ ἐχθροὶ κολακεύοντες ἢ πανουργοῦντες ἢ δεκάζοντες ἢ μισθαρνοῦντες αἰσχρὰς καὶ ἀνελευθέρους δοκοῦσι καρποῦσθαι δυνάμεις ἐν αὐλαῖς ἢ πολιτείαις, οὐκ ἐνοχλήσουσιν ἡμᾶς ἀλλὰ μᾶλλον εὐφρανοῦσι, τὴν αὑτῶν ἐλευθερίαν καὶ τὸ καθαρὸν τοῦ βίου καὶ ἀνύβριστον ἀντιτιθέντας. Ε " ἅπας" γὰρ " ὁ ὑπὲρ' γῆς καὶ ὑπὸ γῆς χρυσὸς ἀρετῆς οὐκ ἀντάξιος" κατὰ Πλάτωνα, καὶ τὸ τοῦ Σόλωνος ἔχειν ἀεὶ δεῦ πρόχειρον ἀλλ' ήμεῖς αὐτοῖς οὐ διαμειψόμεθα τῆς ἀρετῆς τὸν πλοῦτον

οὐδέ γε βοὰς δεδειπνισμένων θεάτρων οὐδὲ τιμὰς κὰὶ προεδρίας παρ' εὐνούχοις καὶ παλλακαῖς καὶ σατραπείας^{*} βασιλέων· ζηλωτὸν γὰρ οὐδὲν οὐδὲ F καλὸν ἐξ αἰσχροῦ φυόμενον. ἀλλ' ἐπεὶ τυφλοῦται

¹ $\dot{\upsilon}\pi\dot{\epsilon}\rho$] $\dot{\epsilon}\pi\dot{\iota}$ Plato.

 2 garparelas F.C.B., and so apparently Shilleto in his translation : garparelas.

^a Cf. the note on 90 \land supra.

^b Plato, Laws, p. 728 A; quoted also by Plutarch, Moralia, 1124 E.

and leading men, and who from activity and emulation sinks down into a state of utter jealousy and discouragement, has abiding with him an envy that is inert and ineffectual. If, however, a man is not blind a in regard to the object of his hatred, but makes himself an honest observer of the other's life, character, words, and deeds, he will discover that most of the successes which excite the envy of others come to those who have won them as the result of painstaking, forethought, and fair conduct, and so, bending all his energies in this direction, he will put into practice his own ambitions and high aspirations, and will eradicate his listlessness and indolence.

11. But even if our enemies by flattery, knavery, bribery, or hireling service appear to reap their reward in the form of dishonourable and sordid influence at court or in the government, they will not be a source of annoyance but rather of joy to us when we compare our own freedom, the simplicity of our life, and its immunity from scurrilous attack. For "all the gold on earth and beneath the earth is not worth so much as virtue," as Plato ^b says, and we must always keep ready in mind the sentiment of Solon^e:

> But we will not take in exchange All of their wealth for our virtue, nor yet the acclamations of spectators who have dined at our expense, nor honours such as front seats among eunuchs and concubines, and royal governorships; for nothing enviable or noble ever springs from dishonour. But since "love is blind regarding the loved one," as Plato^a says, and it is rather our enemies who by their unseemly conduct afford us an opportunity to view our own, neither our joy at their failures nor our sorrow at their successes ought to go without being employed to some purpose, but we should take into account both their failures and successes in studying how by guarding against the former we may be better than they, and by imitating the latter no worse.

• Quoted more fully in Moralia, 78 c, and as here, 472 E.

(92) τὸ φιλοῦν περὶ τὸ φιλούμενον, ὥς φησιν ὁ Πλάτων, καὶ μᾶλλον ἡμῖν οἱ ἐχθροὶ παρέχουσιν αἴσθησιν ἀσχημονοῦντες, δεῖ μήτε τὸ χαῖρον ἐφ' οἶς ἑμαρτάνουσιν ἀργὸν εἶναι μήτε τὸ λυπούμενον ἐφ' οἶς κατορθοῦσιν, ἀλλ' ἐπιλογίζεσθαι δι' ἀμφοτέρων ὅπως τὰ μὲν φυλαττόμενοι βελτίονες ὥμεν αὐτῶν, τὰ δὲ μιμούμενοι μὴ χείρονες.

• A reminiscence from Plato; see the note on 90 A supra.

TO ENTRY EVEN WE TRANSFOR WOIT

the state of the s

ON HAVING MANY FRIENDS (DE AMICORUM MULTITUDINE)

AND AND MANY FAILANTS

INTRODUCTION

PLUTARCH'S essay on friendship may possibly have been offered on some occasion as a lecture, but there is nothing to prove or disprove this assumption. From what we know of Plutarch's relations to his friends we can well believe that he was singularly happy in his friendships, and hence well fitted to speak on the subject. He was familiar, too, with the literature dealing with friendship, and the result is an essay well worth reading. Cicero's essay on friendship (De amicitia) may profitably be compared with Plutarch's.

Two or three emendations of a more radical nature have been adopted in the text, in the effort to make it intelligible: for example, in 96 A the translation probably gives the right sense of the passage, as Wyttenbach seemed to see, but whether the emendation is right is more doubtful. Even more doubtful is Paton's $\pi \rho o \sigma \epsilon v \tau \epsilon i v a \sigma \theta a i$ in the quotation from Euripides; for Plutarch would not be apt to refer to an aorist middle by a present active form. In these matters Plutarch was more careful than Paton.

ΠΕΡΙ ΠΟΛΥΦΙΛΙΑΣ

σοφίης' ἐπ' ἄκροισι θαμίζειν ήρώτησεν δ Σωκράτης τί ἀρετή ἐστιν ἀποκριναμένου δ' ἰταμῶς ἐκείνου καὶ προχείρως ὅτι καὶ παιδός ἐστιν ἀρετὴ καὶ πρεσβύτου καὶ ἀνδρὸς καὶ γυναικὸς καὶ ἄρχοντος καὶ ἰδιώτου καὶ δεσπότου καὶ θεράποντος, " εὖ γ'," εἶπεν ὁ Σωκράτης, " ὅτι μίαν ἀρετὴν αἰτηθεὶς σμῆνος ἀρετῶν κεκίνηκας," οὐ κακῶς τεκμαιρόμενος ὅτι μηδεμίαν εἰδὼς ἀρετὴν ὁ ἄνθρωπος³ πολλὰς ἀνόμαζεν. ἅρ' οὖν οὐχὶ καὶ ἡμῦν ἄν τις ἐπιχλευάσειεν ὅτι μηδέπω C μίαν φιλίαν κεκτημένοι βεβαίως φοβούμεθα μὴ λάθωμεν εἰς πολυφιλίαν ἐμπεσόντες; σχεδὸν γὰρ οὐδὲν διαφέρομεν ἀνθρώπου κολοβοῦ καὶ τυφλοῦ, φοβουμένου μὴ Βριάρεως ὁ ἑκατόγχειρ καὶ "Αργος ὁ πανόπτης γένηται. καίτοι τόν γε παρὰ τῷ σοφίης in Sextus Empiricus: σοφίας.

 ό άνθρωπος] άνθρωπος Hercher: άνθρωπος.

COLLARD ST STOREAULTON

ON HAVING MANY FRIENDS

1. MENO,^a the Thessalian, who felt that he had had a good training in debating, and, to quote Empedocles' familiar expression, was Haunting the lofty heights of wisdom, was asked by Socrates what virtue is; and when he replied impulsively and promptly that there is a virtue appropriate to a child and to an old man, to a grown man and to a woman, to a public official and to a private citizen, to a master and to a servant, Socrates exclaimed, " A fine answer ! for when asked for one virtue you have stirred up a whole swarm of virtues," c inferring, not badly, that it was because the man knew not a single virtue that he was naming so many. And might not we also be subject to ridicule because we, who are not yet in secure possession of one friendship, are afraid that we may unwittingly become involved in a multitude of friendships? We hardly differ at all from a man who, being maimed or blind, is afraid that he may become a Briareus of the hundred hands or an Argus all-seeing.' And yet we commend above measure

" Plato, Meno, 71 E.

^b From a longer fragment; cf. Diels, Fragmente der Vorsokratiker, i. p. 225.

· Cf. Moralia, 111 B.

(93) Μενάνδρω νεανίσκον ύπερφυως επαινουμεν είπόντα θαυμαστόν δσον νομίζειν άγαθον ἕκαστον, αν ἔχη φίλου σκιάν.

2. Ἐναντίον¹ δὲ μετὰ πολλῶν ἄλλων οὐχ ἥκιστα γ' εἰς φιλίας κτῆσιν ἡμῖν³ ἡ τῆς πολυφιλίας ὅρεξις, ὥσπερ ἀκολάστων γυναικῶν, τῷ πολλάκις καὶ D πολλοῖς συμπλέκεσθαι τῶν πρώτων κρατεῖν μὴ δυναμένοις ἀμελουμένων καὶ ἀπορρεόντων· μᾶλλον δ' ὥσπερ ὅ τῆς Ὑψιπύλης τρόφιμος εἰς τὸν λειμῶνα καθίσας ἔδρεπεν > ἕτερον ἐφ' ἑτέρῳ αἰρόμενος ἄγρευμ' ἀνθέων ἡδομένα ψυχậ τὸ νήπιον ἄπληστον³ ἔχων, ουτώς εκαστον ήμων διὰ τὸ φιλόκαινον καὶ ἁψίκορον ὁ πρόσφατος ἀεὶ καὶ ἀνθῶν ἐπάγεται, καὶ μετατίθησι πολλὰς ὁμοῦ καὶ ἀτελεῦς ἀρχὰς πράττοντας φιλίας καὶ συνηθείας, ἔρωτι τοῦ διωκομένου παρερχομένους τὸν καταλαμβανόμενον. Ε Πρῶτον μὲν οῦν ὥσπερ ἀφ' ἑστίας ἀρξάμενοι

Ε Πρῶτον μέν οὖν ὥσπερ ἀφ' ἑστίας ἀρξάμενοι τῆς τοῦ βίου φήμης ῆν ὑπερ φίλων βεβαίων ἀπολέλοιπεν ἡμῖν, τὸν μακρὸν καὶ παλαιὸν αἰῶνα μάρτυρα ἅμα τοῦ λόγου καὶ σύμβουλον λάβωμεν, ἐν ῷ κατὰ ζεῦγος φιλίας λέγονται Θησεὺς καὶ Πειρίθους, ᾿Αχιλλεὺς καὶ Πάτροκλος, ᾿Ορέστης καὶ έναντίον Wyttenbach: αἴτιον.

 ημιν added by F.C.B. ἄπληστον Moralia, 661 f.: ἄχρηστον.

⁶ The Epiclerus. Kock, Com. Attic. Frag. iii., Menander, No. 554. See also Plutarch, Moralia, 479 c, where four lines of the play are quoted, and Allinson, Menander (in the L.C.L.), p. 493.

^b Cf. Lucian, Toxaris, 37.

the youth in Menander's play ^a who says that any man counts it a marvellous good thing

If he but have the shadow of a friend.

2. One thing which stands out among many others, as particularly antagonistic to our acquisition of friendship, is the craving for numerous friends, which is like that of licentious women,^b for because of our frequent intimacies with many different persons we cannot keep our hold on our earlier associates, who are neglected and drift away. A better comparison, perhaps, is the nursling of Hypsipyle, who seated himself in the meadow, and

> One after another caught up Handfuls of flowers with joyful heart, But with childhood's yearning unsated.•

So it is with all of us : because anything new attracts us but soon palls on us, it is always the recent and freshly blooming friend that allures us and makes us change our minds, even while we are busy with many beginnings of friendship and intimacy at the same time, which go but little further, since, in our longing for the person we pursue, we pass over the one already within our grasp.

In the first place, then, let us begin at the hearthstone, as the saying is, with the story of men's lives which history a has left us regarding steadfast friends, and let us take as witness and counsellor in our discussion the long and distant ages in which are mentioned, as paired in the bond of friendship, Theseus and Peirithoüs, Achilles and Patroclus, ^e Presumably from the Hypsipyle of Euripides; cf. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Euripides, No. 754. Cf. also Plutarch, Moralia, 661 F.

^d Plutarch is considering Greek history only.

Πυλάδης, Φιντίας και Δάμων, Ἐπαμεινώνδας καί Πελοπίδας. σύννομον γαρ ή φιλία ζώον ούκ άγελαϊόν έστιν οὐδέ κολοιωδες, και το άλλον αύτον ήγεισθαι τον φίλον και προσαγορεύειν έταιρον ώς έτερον, ούδέν έστιν η μέτρω φιλίας τη δυάδι χρωμένων. ούτε γαρ δούλους ούτε φίλους έστι κτήσασθαι πολλούς απ' όλίγου νομίσματος. F τί οῦν νόμισμα φιλίας; εῦνοια καὶ χάρις μετ' άρετής, ών ούδεν έχει σπανιώτερον ή φύσις. όθεν τό σφόδρα φιλείν και φιλείσθαι πρός πολλούς ούκ έστιν, ἀλλ' ὥσπερ οἱ ποταμοὶ πολλὰς σχίσεις καὶ κατατομὰς λαμβάνοντες ἀσθενεῖς καὶ λεπτοὶ ῥέουσιν, ούτω το φιλείν έν ψυχή σφοδρον πεφυκός είς πολλούς μεριζόμενον έξαμαυρουται. διο και των ζώων το φιλότεκνον τοις μονοτόκοις ισχυρότερον 94 ἐμφύεται, καὶ Ομηρος ἀγαπητὸν υἱὸν ὀνομάζει μοῦνον τηλύγετον," τουτέστι τον τοις μήτ' έχουσιν ἕτερον γονεῦσι μήθ' ἕξουσι γεγενημένον.

3. Τον δὲ φίλον ἡμεῖς "μοῦνον" μὲν οὐκ ἀξιοῦ-μεν εἶναι, μετ' ἄλλων δὲ " τηλύγετός" τις καὶ ὀψίγονος έστω, τόν θρυλούμενον εκείνον χρόνω των άλων συγκατεδηδοκώς μέδιμνον, ούχ ώσπερ νυν πολλοί φίλοι λεγόμενοι συμπιόντες απαξ η συσφαιρίσαντες η συγκυβεύσαντες η συγκαταλύσαντες, έκ πανδοκείου και παλαίστρας και άγορας φιλίαν συλλέγουσιν.

 $1 \mu \dot{\eta} \tau$ Schellens: $\mu \dot{\eta}$.

• Iliad, ix. 482; Odyssey, xvi. 19.

^b Cf. Moralia, 482 B; Cicero, De amicitia, 19 (67); Aristotle, Eth. Nicom. viii. 3. 50

Orestes and Pylades, Phintias and Damon, Epameinondas and Pelopidas. For friendship is a creature that seeks a companion ; it is not like cattle and crows that flock and herd together, and to look upon one's friend as another self and to call him "brother" as though to suggest "th'other," is nothing but a way of using duality as a measure of friendship. It is impossible to acquire either many slaves or many friends with little coin. What then is the coin of friendship? It is goodwill and graciousness combined with virtue, than which nature has nothing more rare. It follows, then, that a strong mutual friendship with many persons is impossible, but, just as rivers whose waters are divided among many branches and channels flow weak and thin, so affection, naturally strong in a soul, if portioned out among many persons becomes utterly enfeebled. This is the reason why, in the case of animals, love for their young is more strongly implanted by nature in those that give birth to but one at a time; and Homer's a name for a beloved son is "the only one, child of our eld," that is to say, born to parents who neither have nor can ever have another child.

3. We do not maintain that our friend should be "the only one," but along with others let there be some "child of our eld" and "late-begotten," as it were, who has consumed with us in the course of time the proverbial bushel of salt, ^b not as is the fashion nowadays, by which many get the name of friend by drinking a single glass together, or by playing ball or gambling together, or by spending a night under the same roof, and so pick up a friendship from inn, gymnasium, or market-place.

VOL. II

(94) Έν δὲ ταῖς τῶν πλουσίων καὶ ἡγεμονικῶν Β οἰκίαις πολὺν ὅχλον καὶ θόρυβον ἀσπαζομένων καὶ δεξιουμένων καὶ δορυφορούντων ὅρῶντες εὐδαιμονίζουσι τοὺς πολυφίλους. καίτοι πλείονάς γε μυίας ἐν τοῖς ὀπτανίοις αὐτῶν ὁρῶσιν. ἀλλ' οῦθ' αῦται τῆς λιχνείας οῦτ' ἐκεῖνοι τῆς χρείας ἐπιλιπούσης παραμένουσιν. ἐπεὶ δ' ἡ ἀληθινὴ φιλία τρία ζητεῖ μάλιστα, τὴν ἀρετὴν ὡς καλόν, καὶ τὴν συνήθειαν ὡς ἡδύ, καὶ τὴν χρείαν ὡς ἀναγκαῖον (δεῖ γὰρ ἀποδέξασθαι κρίναντα καὶ χαίρειν συνόντα καὶ χρῆσθαι δεόμενον, ἅ πάντα πρὸς τὴν πολυφιλίαν ὑπεναντιοῦται, καὶ μάλιστά πως τὸ κυριώτατον ἡ κρίσις), σκεπτέον δὴ πρῶτον εἰ δυνατόν C ἐστιν ἐν βραχεῖ χρόνῷ δοκιμάσαι χορευτὰς συγχορευσομένους, ἐρέτας ὅμορροθήσοντας, οἰκέτας χρημάτων ἐπιτρόπους ἢ τέκνων παιδαγωγοὺς ἐσομένους, μήτι γε φίλους πολλοὺς εἰς ἀγῶνα πάσης τύχης συναποδυσομένους, ὧν ἕκαστος αὐτός > πράσσων² εῦ τίθησιν εἰς μέσον, τοῦ δυστυχοῦς τε λαγχάνων οὐκ ἄχθεται.

οὔτε ναῦς γὰρ ἐπὶ τοσούτους ἕλκεται χειμῶνας εἰς θάλατταν, οὔτε χωρίοις θριγχοὺς καὶ λιμέσι προβάλλουσιν ἕρκη καὶ χώματα τηλικούτους προσ-D δεχόμενοι κινδύνους καὶ τοσούτους, ὅσων ἐπαγγέλλεται φιλία καταφυγὴν καὶ βοήθειαν, ὀρθῶς

¹ Probably the first line had $a\dot{v}\tau \delta v$ as the beginning, as Xylander saw, but Plutarch was apt to fit his quotations to his own words.

² πράσσων, the regular form in tragedy : πράττων.

^a Author unknown; cf. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Adespota, No. 366. 52

ON HAVING MANY FRIENDS, 94

In the houses of rich men and rulers, the people see a noisy throng of visitors offering their greetings and shaking hands and playing the part of armed retainers, and they think that those who have so many friends must be happy. Yet they can see a far greater number of flies in those persons' kitchens. But the flies do not stay on after the good food is gone, nor the retainers after their patron's usefulness is gone. But true friendship seeks after three things above all else: virtue as a good thing, intimacy as a pleasant thing, and usefulness as a necessary thing, for a man ought to use judgement before accepting a friend, and to enjoy being with him and to use him when in need of him, and all these things stand in the way of one's having many friends; but most in the way is the first (which is the most important)-the approval through judgement. Therefore we must, in the first place, consider whether it is possible in a brief period of time to test dancers who are to dance together, or rowers who are to pull together, or servants who are to be guardians of property or attendants of children, let alone the testing of a multitude of friends who are to strip for a general contest with every kind of fortune, each one of whom

Puts his successes with the common store, And shares in bad luck, too, without distress.^a

For no ship is launched upon the sea to meet so many storms, nor do men, when they erect protecting walls for strongholds, and dams and moles for harbours, anticipate perils so numerous and so great as those from which friendship, rightly and surely tried,

(94) καὶ βεβαίως ἐξετασθεῖσα· τῶν δ' ἀνεξετάστως παραρρυέντων ὥσπερ νομισμάτων ἀδοκίμων ἐλεγχομένων > οί μέν ἐστερημένοι χαίρουσιν, οἱ δ' ἔχοντες εὔχονται φυγεῖν.

έστι δὲ τοῦτο χαλεπὸν καὶ οὐ ῥάδιον τὸ ψυγεῖν η ἀποθέσθαι δυσαρεστουμένην ψιλίαν. ἀλλ' ὥσπερ σιτίον βλαβερὸν καὶ δυσχεραινόμενον οὕτε κατέχειν οἶόν τε μὴ λυποῦν καὶ διαφθεῖρον οὕτ' ἐκβάλλειν οἶον εἰσῆλθεν ἀλλ' εἰδεχθὲς καὶ συμπεφυρμένον καὶ ἀλλόκοτον, οὕτω φίλος πονηρὸς η σύνεστι λυπῶν καὶ λυμαινόμενος,' η βία μετ' Ε ἔχθρας καὶ δυσμενείας ὥσπερ χολή τις ἐξέπεσε.

4. Διό δεῖ μἡ ἑαδίως προσδέχεσθαι μηδὲ κολλασθαι τοῦς ἐντυγχάνουσι μηδὲ φιλεῖν τοὺς διώκοντας, ἀλλὰ τοὺς ἀξίους φιλίας διώκειν. οὐ γὰρ αἱρετέον πάντως τὸ ἑαδίως ἁλισκόμενον. καὶ γὰρ ἀπαρίνην καὶ βάτον ἐπιλαμβανομένην ὑπερβάντες καὶ διωσάμενοι βαδίζομεν ἐπὶ τὴν ἐλαίαν καὶ τὴν ἄμπελον. οῦτως ἀεἰ² μὴ τὸν εὐχερῶς περιπλεκόμενον ποιεῖσθαι συνήθη καλόν,³ ἀλλὰ τοῦς ἀξίοις σπουδῆς καὶ ὡφελίμοις αὐτοὺς περιπλέκεσθαι

5. ["]Ωσπερ οῦν ὁ Ζεῦξις αἰτιωμένων αὐτόν τινων ὅτι ζωγραφεῖ βραδέως, '΄ ὅμολογῶ,'' εἶπεν, '΄ ἐν πολλῷ χρόνω γράφειν, καὶ γὰρ εἰς πολύν,'' οῦτω φιλίαν δεῖ καὶ συνήθειαν σώζειν παραλυμαινόμενος Hercher: λυπούμενος.

 ² άεἰ] δεῖ Wyttenbach.
 ³ καλόν: καὶ φίλον Wyttenbach.

^a From some play of Sophocles; it is cited again by 54

ON HAVING MANY FRIENDS, 94

promises a refuge and protection. But when some thrust their friendship upon us without being tried, and are found to be like bad coins when put to the test.

> Those who are bereft rejoice. And those who have them pray for some escape."

But here is the difficulty-that it is not easy to escape or to put aside an unsatisfactory friendship; but as harmful and disquieting food can neither be retained without causing pain and injury, nor ejected in the form in which it was taken in, but only as a disgusting and repulsive mess, so an unprincipled friend either causes pain and intense discomfort by his continued association, or else with accompanying enmity and hostility is forcibly ejected like bile.

4. We ought therefore not to accept readily chance acquaintances, or attach ourselves to them, nor ought we to make friends of those who seek after us, but rather we should seek after those who are worthy of friendship. For one should by no means take what can be easily taken. In fact we step over or thrust aside bramble and brier, which seize hold upon us, and make our way onward to the olive and the vine.^b Thus it is always an excellent thing not to make an intimate acquaintance of the man who is ready with his embraces, but rather, of our own motion, to embrace those of whom we approve as worthy of our attention and useful to us.

5. Just as Zeuxis,^c when some persons charged him with painting slowly, retorted by saying, "Yes, it takes me a long time, for it is to last long," so it is necessary to preserve friendship and intimacy by λαβόντας ἐν πολλῷ κριθεῖσαν. ἆρ' οὖν κριναι μὲν οὐκ ἔστι πολλοὺς φίλους ῥάδιον, συνειναι δὲ πολλοῖς ὁμοῦ ῥάδιον, ἢ καὶ τοῦτο ἀδύνατον; καὶ μὴν ἀπόλαυσίς ἐστιν ἡ συνήθεια τῆς φιλίας, καὶ τὸ ἦδιστον ἐν τῷ συνείναι καὶ συνδιημερεύειν.

Plutarch in Moralia, 768 E; cf. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Sophocles, No. 779. ^b Cf. Moralia, 709 E. Sophocles, No. 779. • Cf. Moralia, 709 E. • Cf. Plutarch, Life of Pericles, chap. xiii. (p. 159 p).

ού μέν γὰρ ζωοί γε φίλων ἀπάνευθεν ἐταίρων βουλàs έζόμενοι βουλεύσομεν.

95 και περί του 'Οδυσσέως ό Μενέλαος ούδέ κεν άλλο

άμμε¹ διέκρινεν φιλέοντέ τε τερπομένω τε, πρίν γ' ὅτε δη θανάτοιο μέλαν νέφος ἀμφεκάλυψε.

τούναντίον οὗν ἔοικεν ή καλουμένη πολυφιλία ποιεῖν. ή μὲν γὰρ συνάγει καὶ συνίστησι καὶ συνέχει καταπυκνοῦσα ταῖς ὁμιλίαις καὶ φιλοφροσύναις

ώς δ' ότ' όπος γάλα λευκον έγόμφωσεν και έδησε

Β κατ' Ἐμπεδοκλέα (τοιαύτην γὰρ ή φιλία βούλεται ποιεῖν ἐνότητα καὶ σύμπηξιν), ή δὲ πολυφιλία διίστησι καὶ ἀποσπậ καὶ ἀποστρέφει, τῷ μετακαλεῖν καὶ μεταφέρειν ἄλλοτε πρὸς ἄλλον οὐκ ἐῶσα κρâσιν οὐδὲ κόλλησιν εὐνοίας ἐν τῆ συνηθεία περιχυθείση καὶ παγείση γενέσθαι. τοῦτο δ' εὐθὺς

¹ άλλο | άμμε] ήμέας | άλλο Homeric Mss.

^a Homer, Il. xxiii. 77; the words are spoken by the ghost of Patroclus to Achilles.

^b Homer, Od. iv. 178; Plutarch quotes the first two lines in Moralia, 54 F.

^e Probably adapted by Empedocles from Homer, Il. v. 902; cf. Diels, Fragmente der Vorsokratiker, i. p. 239. 56

ON HAVING MANY FRIENDS, 94-95

adopting them only after spending a long time in passing judgement upon them. Is it, then, true that while it is not easy to pass judgement on a large number of friends, yet it is easy to associate with a large number at the same time, or is this also impossible? Now it is a fact that the enjoyment of friendship lies in its intimacy, and the pleasantest part of it is found in association and daily companionship :

Never in life again shall we take counsel together Sitting apart from our comrades.⁴

And in regard to Odysseus, Menelaus says:

Else there were nothing

Which could have parted us twain in the midst of our love and enjoyment;

No, not till Death's dark cloud had wrapped its shadow around us.^b

Now what is commonly called having a multitude of friends apparently produces the opposite result. For friendship draws persons together and unites them and keeps them united in a close fellowship by means of continual association and mutual acts of kindness—as Empedocles ^c puts it (for such is the unity and consolidation that true friendship desires to effect); but, on the other hand, having a multitude of friends causes disunion, separation, and divergence, since, by calling one hither and thither, and transferring one's attention now to this person, now to that, it does not permit any blending or close attachment of goodwill to take place in the intimacy which moulds itself about friendship and takes enduring (95) ύποβάλλει καὶ τὴν περὶ τὰς ὑπουργίας ἀνωμαλίαν καὶ δυσωπίαν· τὰ γὰρ εὕχρηστα τῆς φιλίας δύσχρηστα γίγνεται διὰ τὴν πολυφιλίαν.

Just as the fig-juice fastens the white milk firmly and binds it.

> " ἄλλον τρόπον " γὰρ " ἄλλων¹ ἐγείρει φροντὶς ἀνθρώπων."

οὖτε γὰρ aἱ φύσεις ἡμῶν ἐπὶ ταὐτὰ ταῖς ὁρμαῖς ῥέπουσιν, οὖτε τύχαις ὁμοτρόποις ἀεὶ σύνεσμεν· οἶ C τε τῶν πράξεων καιροὶ καθάπερ τὰ πνεύματα τοὺς μὲν φέρουσι τοῖς δ' ἀντιπίπτουσι.

6. Καίτοι καν πάντες αμα των αὐτων οἱ φίλοι δέωνται, χαλεπὸν ἐξαρκέσαι πασι βουλευομένοις η̈ πολιτευομένοις η̈ φιλοτιμουμένοις η̈ ὑποδεχομένοις. α̈ν δ' ἐνὶ καιρῷ διαφόροις πράγμασι καὶ πάθεσι προστυγχάνοντες ὅμοῦ παρακαλῶσιν ὅ μὲν πλέων συναποδημεῖν, ὅ δὲ κρινόμενος συνδικεῖν, ὅ δὲ κρίνων συνδικάζειν, ὅ δὲ πιπράσκων η̈ ἀγοράζων συνδιοικεῖν, ὅ δὲ γαμῶν συνθύειν, ὅ δὲ θάπτων συμπενθεῖν, > πόλις δ' όμοῦ μὲν θυμιαμάτων γέμη, όμοῦ δὲ παιάνων τε καὶ στεναγμάτων

D ή πολυφιλία. πασι μέν ἀμήχανον παρεῖναι, μηδενὶ δ' ἄτοπον, ένὶ δ' ὑπουργοῦντα προσκρούειν πολλοῦς ἀνιαρόν.

ούδεις γαρ άγαπων αύτος άμελειθ' ήδέως.

1 άλλων Crusius: άλλον.

^c Sophocles, Oedipus Tyrannus, 4; cited by Plutarch also in Moralia, 169 D, 445 D, and 623 c. 58

^a Bergk, Poet. Lyr. Graec. iii. p. 721, Adespota, No. 99.

^b The language here seems to be an amplification of Aristotle, Ethica Nicom, ix, 10.

form. This at once suggests also the inequality there must be and embarrassment about rendering services, since the very useful elements in friendship are rendered practically useless by having many friends. For

In divers men solicitude excites conduct diverse."

For neither do our natures tend in the same direction as our impulses, nor do we, day in and day out, meet with the same sort of fortune; and the occasions which prompt our various actions, like the winds, help some friends on their way, and are adverse to others.

6. But if all our friends want the same things at the same time, it is hard to satisfy all, in either their counsels, their public life, their ambitions, or their dispensing of hospitality. And if at one and the same time they chance to be occupied in diverse activities and experiences, and call upon us at the same instant, one to join him on a voyage to foreign parts, another to help him in defending a suit, another to sit with him as judge, another to help him in managing his buying and selling, another to help him to celebrate his wedding, another to mourn with him at a funeral,^b is the possession of a host of friends. It is impossible to be with them all, and unnatural to be with none, and yet to do a service to one alone, and thus to offend many, is a source of vexation;

> The city is with burning incense filled ; Full too of joyous hymns and doleful groans *

For fond affection does not brook neglect.^d

^d A line from Menander, cited also in Moralia, 491 c; cf. Kock, Com. Attic. Frag. iii. p. 213.

VOL. II

59

- (95) Καίτοι τὰς ἀμελείας καὶ ῥαθυμίας τῶν φίλων πραότερον φέρουσι, καὶ τὰς τοιαύτας ἀπολογίας ἀμηνίτως δέχονται παρ' αὐτῶν '' ἐξελαθόμην'' '' ἠγνόησα.'' ὁ δὲ λέγων '' οὐ παρέστην σοι δίκην ἔχοντι, παριστάμην γὰρ ἑτέρῷ φίλῷ,'' καὶ '' πυρέττοντά σ' οὐκ είδον, τῷ δεῖνι γὰρ φίλους ἑστιῶντι συνησχολούμην'' αἰτίαν τῆς ἀμελείας τὴν ἑτέρων
 - Ε ἐπιμέλειαν ποιούμενος οὐ λύει τὴν μέμψιν, ἀλλὰ προσεπιβάλλει ζηλοτυπίαν. ἀλλ' οἱ πολλοὶ τὰς πολυφιλίας ἃ δύνανται παρέχειν μόνον ὡς ἔοικε σκοποῦσιν, ἃ δ' ἀνταπαιτοῦσι παρορῶσι, καὶ οὐ μνημονεύουσιν ὅτι δεῖ τὸν πολλοῖς εἰς ἃ δείται χρώμενον πολλοῖς δεομένοις ἀνθυπουργεῖν. ὥσπερ οῦν ὁ Βριάρεως ἑκατὸν χερσὶν εἰς πεντήκοντα φορῶν γαστέρας οὐδὲν ἡμῶν πλέον εἶχε τῶν ἀπὸ δυεῖν χεροῖν μίαν κοιλίαν διοικούντων, οὕτως ἐν τῷ φίλοις χρῆσθαι πολλοῖς¹ καὶ τὸ λειτουργεῖν πολλοῖς ἔνεστι καὶ τὸ συναγωνιῶν καὶ τὸ συνασχολεῖσθαι καὶ συγκάμνειν. οὐ γὰρ Εὐριπίδῃ πειστέον λέγοντι χρῆν γὰρ μετρίαν εἰς ἀλλήλους φιλίαν² θνητοὺς ἀνακίρνασθαι καὶ μὴ πρὸς ἄκρον μυελὸν ψυχῆς, εὕλυτα δ' εἶναι θέλγητρα³ φρενῶν, ἀπό τ' ὤσασθαι καὶ ξυντεῖναι, καθάπερ πόδα νεώς ένδιδόντι καὶ προσάγοντι ταῖς χρείαις τὴν φιλίαν. ἀλλὰ τοῦτο μέν, ὦ Εὐριπίδη, ἐν τῷ φίλοις χρῆσθαι πολλοῖς is perhaps more likely than Halm's ἐν τῷ πολλοῖς φίλοις χρῆσθαι: ἐν τοῖς φίλοις χρήσιμον.

 ² μετρίαν . . . φιλίαν: μετρίας . . . φιλίας Euripides, Hippolytus, 253.

^s θέλγητρα, ibid. 256: στέργηθρα. 60

F

Yet people are more tolerant of acts of negligence and remissness on the part of their friends, and they accept from them without anger such excuses as "I forgot," "I didn't know." But the man who says, "I did not appear with you when your case was in court, for I was appearing with another friend," and "I did not come and see you when you had fever, for I was busy helping so-and-so to entertain some friends," thus alleging, as the reason for his inattention, his attention to others, does not absolve himself from blame, but only aggravates the trouble by arousing jealousy. But most people, apparently, look at the possession of a host of friends merely from the point of view of what such friendships are able to bestow, and overlook what these demand in return, forgetting that he who accepts the services of many for his needs must in turn render like service to many in their need. Therefore, just as Briareus in purveying for fifty bellies with an hundred hands had no advantage over us who manage one stomach with what two hands provide, so in making use of many friends is involved also serving many, and sharing in their anxieties, preoccupations, and troubles. For no credence is to be given to Euripides a when he says :

In the friendship which mortals with each other form Moderation should rule, and it never should reach To the soul's inmost marrow; and easy to loose Should the spells ever be that are laid on the mind So to thrust them aside or to draw them close, thus easing off one's friendship or hauling it close according to exigencies, like the sheet of a ship's sail. But let us, my dear Euripides, turn the applica-μεταθώμεν ἐπὶ τὰς ἔχθρας, καὶ κελεύωμεν '' μετρίας '' ποιεῖσθαι τὰς διαφορὰς καὶ '' μὴ πρὸς ἄκρον μυελὸν ψυχῆς, εὔλυτα δ' εἶναι '' μίση καὶ ὀργὰς 96 καὶ μεμψιμοιρίας καὶ ὑπονοίας· ἐκεῖνο δὲ μᾶλλον ἡμῖν παραίνει τὸ Πυθαγορικὸν '' μὴ πολλοῖς ἐμβάλλειν δεξιάν,'' τουτέστι μὴ πολλοὺς ποιεῖσθαι φίλους μηδὲ πολύκοινον μηδὲ πάνδημον ἀσπάζεσθαι φιλίαν, καὶ πρὸς ἕν' ἅν τις ῇ μετὰ πολλῶν παθῶν εἰσιοῦσα,' ῶν τὸ μὴ² συναγωνιῶν καὶ συνάχθεσθαι καὶ συμπονεῖν καὶ συγκινδυνεύειν πάνυ δύσοιστον τοῖς ἐλευθέροις καὶ γενναίοις ἐστίν.

[·] Hippolytus, 253.

Το δε τοῦ σοφοῦ Χίλωνος ἀληθές, ὅς προς τὸν εἰπόντα μηδένα ἔχειν ἐχθρόν '' ἔοικας,'' ἔφη, '' σὺ μηδε φίλον ἔχειν.'' αἱ γὰρ ἔχθραι ταῖς φιλίαις εὐθὺς ἐπακολουθοῦσι καὶ συμπλέκονται, Β ἐπείπερ (7) οὐκ ἔστι φίλον μὴ συναδικεῖσθαι μηδε συναδοξεῖν μηδε συναπεχθάνεσθαι· οἱ γὰρ ἐχθροὶ τὸν φίλον εὐθὺς ὑφορῶνταί τε καὶ μισοῦσιν, οἱ δὲ φίλοι πολλάκις φθονοῦσί τε καὶ ζηλοτυποῦσι καὶ περισπῶσιν. ὥσπερ οὖν ὅ τῷ Τιμησία περὶ τῆς ἀποικίας δοθεὶς χρησμὸς προηγόρευσε σμήνα μελισσάων τάχα τοι καὶ σφήκες ἔσονται,^{*} ούτως οἱ φίλων ζητοῦντες ἑσμὸν ἔλαθον ἐχθρῶν σφηκιαῖς περιπεσόντες.

Καί οὐκ ἴσον ἀγει σταθμόν ἐχθροῦ μνησικακία

¹ και πρός ἕν' ἅν τις η ... είσιοῦσα F.C.B. (cf. Aristotle, Magna Moralia, ii. 16): και πρός ἐναντίην (or ἐναντίαν) ή (or ἡ) ... είσιοῦσαν (or εἰσιοῦσα).

- ² μή Hartman: μέν.
- ³ σμηνι . . . Επονται Reiske.

^a Cf. Moralia, vol. i. 12 E and the note.

tion of this advice to our enmities, and advise the use of "moderation" in our disagreements, "not reaching the soul's inmost marrow," and that hatred, anger, complainings, and suspicions be "easy to loose," and commend rather to us the Pythagorean a maxim, "not to clasp hands with many"; that is, not to make many friends nor to welcome a common and indiscriminate friendship, or even a friendship with one person, if the coming of any friendship into one's life brings with it many afflictions, wherein refusal to share the other's anxieties, burdens, toils, and dangers is altogether intolerable for free-born and generous persons.

There is truth in the remark of the wise Chilon,^b who, in answer to the man who boasted of having no enemy, said, "The chances are that you have no friend either." For enmities follow close upon friendships, and are interwoven with them, inasmuch as (7) it is impossible for a friend not to share his friend's wrongs or disrepute or disfavour ; for a man's enemies at once look with suspicion and hatred upon his friend, and oftentimes his other friends are envious and jealous, and try to get him away. As the oracle given to Timesias c about his colony prophesied :

Soon shall your swarms of honey-bees turn out to be hornets, so, in like manner, men who seek for a swarm of friends unwittingly run afoul of hornets' nests of enemies.

Besides, the resentment of an enemy and the gratitude of a friend do not weigh equally in the

 Cf. Moralia, 86 c, and Aulus Gellius, i. 3.
 Cf. the story told of Timesias by Plutarch, Moralia, 812 A.

(96) καὶ φίλου χάρις. ὅρα δὲ τοὺς Φιλώτου καὶ C Παρμενίωνος φίλους καὶ οἰκείους â διέθηκεν 'Αλέξανδρος, â τοὺς Δίωνος Διονύσιος τοὺς Πλαύτου Νέρων καὶ τοὺς Σηιανοῦ Τιβέριος στρεβλοῦντες καὶ ἀποκτιννύοντες. ὡς γὰρ τὸν Κρέοντα τῆς θυγατρὸς οὐδὲν ὁ χρυσὸς οὐδ' ὁ πέπλος ὠφέλει, τὸ δὲ πῦρ ἀναφθὲν αἰφνιδίως προσδραμόντα καὶ περιπτύξαντα κατέκαυσε καὶ συναπώλεσεν, οὕτως ἔνιοι τῶν φίλων οὐδὲν ἀπολαύσαντες εὐτυχούντων συναπόλλυνται δυστυχοῦσι. καὶ τοῦτο μάλιστα πάσχουσιν οἱ φιλόσοφοι' καὶ χαρίεντες, ὡς Θησεὺς τῷ Πειρίθω κολαζομένω καὶ δεδεμένω αίδοῦς ἀχαλκεύτοισιν «ζευκται πέδαις,*

D ἐν δὲ τῷ λοιμῷ φησιν ὁ Θουκυδίδης τοὺς ἀρετῆς μάλιστα μεταποιουμένους συναπόλλυσθαι τοῦς φίλοις νοσοῦσιν· ἠφείδουν γὰρ σφῶν αὐτῶν ἰόντες παρὰ τοὺς ἐπιτηδείους.

8. "Οθεν οὕτώ τῆς ἀρετῆς ἀφειδεῖν οὐ προσῆκον ἄλλοτ' ἄλλοις συνδέοντας αὐτὴν καὶ συμπλέκοντας, ἀλλὰ τοῖς ἀξίοις τὴν αὐτὴν³ κοινωνίαν φυλάττειν, τουτέστι τοῖς ὅμοίως φιλεῖν καὶ κοινωνεῖν δυναμένοις. καὶ γὰρ δὴ τοῦτο πάντων μέγιστόν ἐστιν ἐναντίωμα πρὸς τὴν πολυφιλίαν, ὅτι τῆ φιλία

¹ ϕ_i λόσοφοι] ϕ_i λόφιλοι Michael, ϕ_i λόστοργοι Sauppe; but cf. 112 D infra for some justification of the MS. reading.

² $al\delta o \hat{v}_s$... $\pi \epsilon \delta a \iota s$ is the reading in the other three places in which Plutarch quotes this line (MSS, here have $\pi \epsilon \delta a \iota s$... $\pi \delta \delta a s$), but it is not impossible that Plutarch may have adapted the line to suit his context, which seems to require $d\chi a \lambda \kappa \epsilon \delta \tau \sigma s \sigma u \nu \epsilon \delta \epsilon u \kappa \tau a$ of Stephanus.

³ αὐτὴν] αὐτῆs several Mss.

^a Rubellius Plautus; cf. Tacitus, Annals, xiv. 57 ff., and Dio Cassius, lxii. 14.

64

ON HAVING MANY FRIENDS, 96

balance. See what treatment Alexander meted out to the friends and family of Philotas and Parmenio, Dionysius those of Dion, Nero those of Plautus,^a and Tiberius those of Sejanus,^b torturing and killing them. For as the golden crown and the robe of Creon's daughter did not help Creon,^c but, as he suddenly ran to her and clasped her in his arms, the fire, fastening upon him, burned him up and destroyed him as well as his daughter, so some persons without deriving any benefit from their friends' good fortunes, perish with them in their misfortunes. This is the experience especially of men of culture and refinement, as Theseus, for example, shared with Peirithoüs his punishment and imprisonment, Yoked fast in duty's bonds not forged by man," and Thucydides ^e asserts that in the pestilence those who had the highest claim to virtue perished with their friends who were ill; for they did not spare themselves in going, as they did, to visit those who had claims on their friendship.

8. For these reasons it is not a fit thing to be thus unsparing of our virtue, uniting and intertwining it now with one and now with another, but rather only with those who are qualified to keep up the same participation, that is to say, those who are able, in a like manner, to love and participate. For herein plainly is the greatest obstacle of all to having a multitude of friends, in that friendship comes into ^b Cf. Tacitus, Annals, v. 7 ff., and Dio Cassius, lviii. 11-12.

^c Euripides, Medea, 1136 ff.

⁴ A line of Euripides, probably from the Peirithoüs, cited by Plutarch also in Moralia, 482 A, 533 A, and 763 F. Cf. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Euripides, No. 595.

· Thucydides, ii. 51.

γένεσις δι' όμοιότητός έστιν. ὅπου γάρ και τά άψυχαι τὰς μίξεις πρός τὰ ἀνόμοια ποιείται μετὰ Ε βίας αναγκαζόμενα και οκλάζει και αναγακτεί φεύγοντα απ' αλλήλων, τοις δέ συγγενέσι και οικείοις όμοπαθει κεραννύμενα και προσίεται την κοινωνίαν λείως καὶ μετ' εὐμενείας, πῶς οἶόν τε φιλίαν ἦθεσι διαφόροις ἐγγενέσθαι καὶ πάθεσιν άνομοίοις και βίοις έτέρας προαιρέσεις έχουσιν; ή μέν γάρ περί ψαλμούς και φόρμιγγας άρμονία δι' ἀντιφώνων ἕχει τὸ σύμφωνον, ὀξύτησι καὶ βαρύτησιν άμωσγέπως όμοιότητος έγγιγνομένης. τῆς δὲ φιλικῆς συμφωνίας ταύτης καὶ ἁρμονίας οὐδὲν ἀνόμοιον οὐδ᾽ ἀνώμαλον οὐδ᾽ ἄνισον εἶναι δει μέρος, αλλ' έξ απάντων δμοίως έχόντων F όμολογεῖν² καὶ όμοβουλεῖν² καὶ όμοδοξεῖν² καὶ συνομοπαθείν, ωσπερ μιας ψυχής έν πλείοσι διηρημένης σώμασι.

9. Τίς οῦν ἐστιν οῦτως ἐπίπονος καὶ μετάβολος καί παντοδαπός άνθρωπος, ώστε πολλοίς έαυτόν έξομοιοῦν καὶ προσαρμόττειν καὶ μὴ καταγελῶν του Θεόγνιδος παραινούντος πουλύποδος νόον³ ίσχε πολυχρόου,³ δς ποτὶ πέτρη, τη περ όμιλήση, τοίος ίδειν έφάνη; καίτοι τοῦ πολύποδος αί μεταβολαί βάθος οὐκ έχουσιν, άλλά περί αὐτήν γίγνονται τήν ἐπιφάνειαν, στυφότητι καὶ μανότητι τὰς ἀπορροίας τῶν 97 πλησιαζόντων ἀναλαμβάνουσαν· ai δὲ φιλίαι τὰ

 ¹ άψυχα] άλογα Wyttenbach.
 ² Hartman would read all these as indicatives, όμολογεί, etc.

³ πολύπου δργήν . . . πολυπλόκου . . . τŷ προσομιλήση, in the MSS. of Theognis and also Athenaeus, p. 317 A. The 66 being through likeness. Indeed, if even the brute beasts are made to mate with others unlike themselves only by forcible compulsion, and crouch aside, and show resentment as they try to escape from each other, while with animals of their own race and kind they consort with mutual satisfaction, and welcome the participation with a ready goodwill, how then is it possible for friendship to be engendered in differing characters, unlike feelings, and lives which hold to other principles? It is true that the harmony produced on harp and lyre gets its consonance through tones of dissonant pitch, a likeness being somehow engendered between the higher and the lower notes; but in our friendship's consonance and harmony there must be no element unlike, uneven, or unequal, but all must be alike to engender agreement in words, counsels, opinions, and feelings, and it must be as if one soul were apportioned among two or more bodies.

ON HAVING MANY FRIENDS, 96-97

9. What man is there, then, so indefatigable, so changeable, so universally adaptable, that he can assimilate and accommodate himself to many persons, without deriding the advice of Theognis^a when he says:

Copy this trait of the cuttle-fish, which changes its colour So as to seem to the eye like to the rock where it clings?

However, the changes in the cuttle-fish have no depth, but are wholly on the surface, which, owing to its closeness or looseness of texture, takes up the emanations from objects which come near to it; majority of MSS. of Plutarch have πολύφρονοs instead of πολυχρόου.

 $^{\rm e}$ Verses 215-6, cited by Plutarch also in Moralia, 916 c and 978 z.

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

(97) ήθη ζητούσι συνεξομοιούν και τα πάθη και τούς λόγους και τὰ επιτηδεύματα και τὰς διαθέσεις. Πρωτέως τινός ούκ εύτυχοῦς οὐδὲ πάνυ χρηστοῦ το έργον, άλλ' ύπο γοητείας έαυτον είς έτερον είδος έξ έτέρου μεταλλάττοντος έν ταὐτῷ πολλάκις. φιλολόγοις συναναγιγνώσκοντος και παλαισταις συγκονιομένου και φιλοθήροις συγκυνηγετούντος και φιλοπόταις συμμεθυσκομένου και πολιτικοις συναρχαιρεσιάζοντος, ίδίαν ήθους εστίαν ούκ έχονώς δε την ασχημάτιστον οι φυσικοι και TOS. Β άχρώματον ούσίαν και ύλην λέγουσιν ύποκειμένην καί τρεπομένην ύφ' αύτης νυν μέν φλέγεσθαι νυν δ' έξυνραίνεσθαι, τοτέ δ' έξαεροῦσθαι πήγνυσθαι δ' αύθις, ούτως άρα τη πολυφιλία ψυχην ύποκείσθαι δεήσει πολυπαθή και πολύτροπον και ύγραν και ραδίαν μεταβάλλειν. άλλ' ή φιλία στάσιμόν τι ζητεί και βέβαιον ήθος και άμετάπτωτον έν μια χώρα και συνηθεία. διο και σπάνιον και δυσεύρετόν έστι φίλος βέβαιος.

¹ Hartman would omit άλλ'.

and the second s

whereas friendships seek to effect a thorough-going likeness in characters, feelings, language, pursuits, and dispositions. Such varied adaptation were the task of a Proteus.ª not fortunate and not at all scrupulous, who by magic can change himself often on the very instant from one character to another, reading books with the scholarly, rolling in the dust with wrestlers, following the hunt with sportsmen, getting drunk with topers, and taking part in the canvass of politicians, possessing no firmly founded character of his own. And as the natural philosophers say of the formless and colourless substance and material which is the underlying basis of everything and of itself turns into everything, that it is now in a state of combustion, now liquefied, at another time aeriform, and then again solid, so the possession of a multitude of friends will necessarily have, as its underlying basis, a soul that is very impressionable, versatile, pliant, and readily change-But friendship seeks for a fixed and steadfast able. character which does not shift about, but continues in one place and in one intimacy. For this reason a steadfast friend is something rare and hard to find.

* Homer, Od. iv. 383 ff.; Virgil, Georgics, iv. 387 ff.

A DATE AND THE OWNER AND AND

- 030

CHANCE (DE FORTUNA)

1940 1 100 1 1 10

INTRODUCTION

In default of any information regarding Plutarch's short essay on Chance, we can only guess that it may have been delivered as a lecture, although Hartman denies such a possibility. The arguing of such subjects has always had a certain attraction for mankind until comparatively recent times, but the development of a more exact knowledge regarding psychology has in later years checked such discussions. Yet a knowledge of psychology will not detract from the interest and enjoyment of anyone who will read this essay.

ΠΕΡΙ ΤΥΧΗΣ

 Τύχη τὰ θνητῶν πράγματ', οἰκ εἰβουλία.
 πότερον οἰδὲ δικαιοσύνη τὰ θνητῶν πράγματα οἰδ' ἰσότης οἰδὲ σωφροσύνη οἰδὲ κοσμιότης, ἀλλ' ἐκ τύχης μὲν καὶ διὰ τύχην 'Αριστείδης ἐνεκαρτέρησε Τỹ πενία, πολλῶν χρημάτων κύριος γενέσθαι δυνάμενος, καὶ Σκιπίων Καρχηδόνα ἐλὼν οἰδὲν οὕτ' ἕλαβεν οὕτ' είδε τῶν λαφύρων, ἐκ τύχης δὲ καὶ διὰ τύχην Φιλοκράτης λαβὼν χρυσίον παρὰ Φιλίππου "πόρνας καὶ ἰχθῦς ἡγόραζε," καὶ Λασθένης καὶ Εἰθυκράτης ἀπώλεσαν "Ολυνθον, "τỹ γαστρὶ μετροῦντες καὶ τοῖς αἰσχίστοις τὴν εὐδαιμονίαν"; ἀπὸ τύχης δ' ὁ μὲν Φιλίππου 'Αλέξανδρος αὐτός τε τῶν αἰχμαλώτων ἀπείχετο γυναικῶν καὶ τοὺς ὑβρίζοντας ἐκόλαζεν, ὁ δὲ

Πριάμου δαίμονι κακῷ καὶ τύχῃ χρησάμενος συνεκοιμᾶτο τῇ τοῦ ξένου γυναικί, καὶ λαβῶν Ε αὐτὴν ἐνέπλησε πολέμου καὶ κακῶν τὰς δύο ἡπείρους; εἰ γὰρ ταῦτα γίγνεται διὰ τύχην, τί κωλύει

^d Demosthenes, Or. xix. (De falsa legatione), 229 (p. 412).

^a From Chaeremon: Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag. p. 782. Cf. Cicero, Tusculan Disputations, v. 9 (25).

^b Cf. Plutarch's Life of Aristides, chap. xxv. (p. 334 B).

[°] Cf. Plutarch's Moralia, 200 в.

CHANCE

Man's ways are chance and not sagacity."

Is it true also that man's ways are not justice either, or equality, or self-control, or decorum, but was it the result of chance and because of chance that Aristeides ^b persevered in his poverty when he could have made himself master of great wealth, and that Scipio,^c having captured Carthage, neither took nor saw any of the spoil? Was it the result of chance and because of chance that Philocrates,^d having received money from Philip, "proceeded to spend it on trulls and trout," and was it due to chance that Lasthenes and Euthycrates lost Olynthus, "measuring happiness by their bellies and the most shameless deeds "? " Was it the result of chance that Alexander,^f the son of Philip, forbore to touch the captive women himself and punished those who offered them insult, and, on the other hand, was it because the Alexander who was the son of Priam yielded to the dictates of an evil genius or of chance that he lay with the wife of his host, and by her abduction filled two of our three continents with war and woes? For if these things happen because

The money was the price of treason according to Demosthenes.

^e Demosthenes, Or. xviii. (De corona), 296 (p. 324). These men also Demosthenes puts in his list of traitors.

¹ Cf. Plutarch's Life of Alexander, chap. xxi. (p. 676 B ff.). 75 καὶ τὰς γαλᾶς καὶ τοὺς τράγους καὶ τοὺς πιθήκους συνέχεσθαι φάναι διὰ τύχην ταῖς λιχνείαις καὶ ταῖς ἀκρασίαις καὶ ταῖς βωμολοχίαις;

2. Εί δ' έστι σωφροσύνη και δικαιοσύνη και άνδρεία, πως λόγον έχει μη είναι φρόνησιν, εί δέ φρόνησις, πως ού και εύβουλίαν; ή γάρ σωφροσύνη φρόνησίς τίς έστιν ώς φασι, και ή δικαιοσύνη τῆς φρονήσεως δεῖται παρούσης· μᾶλλον δὲ τὴν εὐβουλίαν γέ τοι καὶ φρόνησιν ἐν μὲν ἡδοναῖς άγαθούς παρεχομένην έγκράτειαν και σωφροσύνην καλουμεν, έν δε κινδύνοις και πόνοις καρτερίαν και άνδραγαθίαν, έν δε κοινωνήμασι και πολιτείαις ευνομίαν και δικαιοσύνην. όθεν εί τα της εύβουλίας F έργα της τύχης δικαιουμεν είναι, έστω τύχης καί τά της δικαιοσύνης και τά της σωφροσύνης, και νη Δία τὸ κλέπτειν τύχης ἔστω καὶ τὸ βαλλαντιο-τομεῖν καὶ τὸ ἀκολασταίνειν, καὶ μεθέμενοι τῶν οἰκείων λογισμών είς την τύχην εαυτούς άφωμεν ώσπερ ύπο πνεύματος πολλου κονιορτόν η συρφετόν έλαυνομένους καί¹ διαφερομένους. εύβουλίας τοίνυν μή ούσης ούδε βουλήν είκος είναι περί πραγμάτων οὐδὲ σκέψιν οὐδὲ ζήτησιν τοῦ συμφέροντος, ἀλλ ἐλήρησεν εἰπών ὁ Σοφοκλῆς ὅτι > παν το ζητούμενον άλωτόν, ἐκφεύγει δὲ τἀμελούμενον

καί πάλιν αθ τὰ πράγματα διαιρών τὰ μέν διδακτὰ μανθάνω, τὰ δ' εύρετὰ ζητῶ, τὰ δ' εὐκτὰ παρὰ θεῶν ἢτησάμην. ¹ κal Wyttenbach following Xylander and Amyot: η.

98

^a Cf. Moralia, 441 A and 1034 c. ^b Oedipus Tyrannus, 110.

of chance, what is to hinder our saying that cats, goats, and apes because of chance are given over to greediness, lustfulness, and mischievous tricks?

2. If self-control, justice, and bravery exist, how is it possible to reason that intelligence does not exist: and if intelligence exists, must not sagacity exist also? For self-control is a kind of intelligence, they say, and justice requires the presence of intelligence.ª Or rather, that particular sagacity and intelligence which render men virtuous in the midst of pleasures we call continence and self-control, in perils and labours we call it perseverance and fortitude, in private dealings and in public life we call it equity and justice. Wherefore, if we impute the works of sagacity to chance, let the works of justice and of self-control be also ascribed to chance, and, by Heaven, let thieving, stealing purses, and licentious living all be ascribed to chance, and let us abandon all our reasoning processes and resign ourselves to chance, to be driven and carried, as dust or rubbish by a violent wind, hither and thither. If, then, sagacity does not exist, it is a fair inference that there can be no sagacious planning about what is to be done, and no consideration or searching for what is to the best advantage, but Sophocles^b indulged in idle talk when he said :

> Whatever is pursued May be achieved ; neglected it escapes ; and so too in another place where he tries to distinguish different classes of actions :

What can be taught I learn; what can be found I seek; but God I ask to answer prayer.^e ^c From an unknown play of Sophocles; Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Sophocles, No. 759. (98) τί γὰρ εύρετὸν ἢ τί μαθητόν ἐστιν ἀνθρώποις, εἰ πάντα περαίνεται κατὰ τύχην; ποῖον δ' οὐκ ἀναιρεῖται βουλευτήριον πόλεως ἢ ποῖον οὐ καταλύεται συνέδριον βασιλέως, εἰ ὑπὸ τῇ τύχῃ πάντ' ἐστίν, ἢν τυφλὴν λοιδοροῦμεν, ὡς τυφλοἱ περιπίπτοντες Β αὐτῇ; τί δ' οὐ μέλλομεν, ὅταν ὥσπερ ὅμματα τὴν εὐβουλίαν ἐκκόψαντες αὑτῶν τοῦ βίου τυφλὴν χειραγωγὸν λαμβάνωμεν;

3. Καίτοι φέρε λέγειν τινὰ ήμῶν ὡς τὐχη τὰ τῶν βλεπόντων πράγματα, οὐκ ὄψις οὐδ' '' ὅμματα φωσφόρα,'' φησὶ Πλάτων, καὶ τύχη τὰ τῶν ἀκουόντων, οὐ δύναμις ἀντιληπτικὴ πληγῆς ἀέρος δι' ὠτὸς καὶ ἐγκεφάλου προσφερομένης· καλὸν ἦν, ὡς ἔοικεν, εὐλαβεῖσθαι τὴν αἴσθησιν. ἀλλὰ μὴν τὴν ὄψιν καὶ ἀκοὴν καὶ γεῦσιν καὶ ὅσφρησιν καὶ τὰ λοιπὰ μέρη τοῦ σώματος τάς τε δυνάμεις¹ αὐτῶν ὑπηρεσίαν εὐβουλίας καὶ φρονήσεως ἡ C φύσις ἦνεγκεν ἡμῖν, καὶ

" νοῦς ὁρῃ καὶ νοῦς ἀκούει, τἄλλα " δὲ '' κωφὰ καὶ τυφλά."

καὶ ὥσπερ ἡλίου μὴ ὄντος ἕνεκα τῶν ἄλλων ἄστρων εὐφρόνην ἂν ἦγομεν, ὥς φησιν Ἡράκλειτος, οὕτως ἕνεκα τῶν αἰσθήσεων, εἰ μὴ νοῦν μηδὲ λόγον ὁ ἄνθρωπος ἔσχεν, οὐδὲν ἂν διέφερε τῷ βίω τῶν θηρίων. νῦν δ' οὐκ ἀπὸ τύχης οὐδ'

¹ $\tau ds \tau \epsilon \delta v \nu d \mu \epsilon \iota s$ Wyttenbach and one MS. correction: $\delta v \nu d \mu \epsilon \omega s$.

^a Cf. Kock, Com. Att. Frag. iii. p. 121, Menander, No. 417. ^b In the Timaeus, p. 45 B. ^c Cf. Plato, Timaeus, p. 67 B.

^d From Epicharmus; cited by Plutarch also in Moralia, 78 For what is there which can be found out or learned by mankind if the issue of all things is determined by chance? And what deliberative assembly of a State can there be which is not abolished, or advisory council of a king which is not dissolved, if all things are under the dominion of chance, which we reproach for being blind because we, like blind men, stumble against it?^a How can we help doing so when we pluck out sagacity, as it were our own eyes, and take as our guide in life a blind leader?

3. Yet, suppose someone among us should say that the act of seeing is chance and not vision nor the use of "light-bringing orbs," as Plato ^b calls the eyes, and that the act of hearing is chance and not a faculty apperceptive of a vibration in the air which is carried onward through ear and brain.^c If such were the case, it were well for us, as it appears, to beware of trusting our senses! But, as a matter of fact, Nature has conferred upon us sight, hearing, taste, smell, and our other members and their faculties to be ministers of sagacity and intelligence, and

Mind has sight and mind has hearing; all the rest is deaf and blind.^a Precisely as would be our case if the sun did not exist, and we, for all the other stars, should be passing our life in a continual night, as Heracleitus ^e affirms, so man, for all his senses, had he not mind and reason, would not differ at all in his life from the brutes.

336 B and 961 A. Cf. Diels, Fragmente der Vorsokratiker, i. p. 123.

⁶ Diels, Fragmente der Vorsokratiker, i. p. 97; Bywater, p. 13. A slightly different version of the saying is given by Plutarch, Moralia, 957 A. (98) αὐτομάτως περίεσμεν αὐτῶν καὶ κρατοῦμεν, ἀλλ ό Προμηθεύς, τουτέστιν ό λογισμός, αίτιος ίππων όνων τ' όγεια και ταύρων γονάς δούς αντίδουλα¹ και πόνων εκδεκτορα

D κατ' Αἰσχύλον. ἐπεὶ τύχῃ γε καὶ φύσει γενέσεως ἀμείνονι τὰ πλεῖστα τῶν ἀλόγων κέχρηται. τὰ μὲν γαρ ωπλισται κέρασι και όδουσι και κέντροις.

αὐτὰρ ἐχίνοις,² " φησὶν Ἐμπεδοκλῆς, " ὀξυβελεῖς χαῖται νώτοις ἐπιπεφρίκασι," τά δ' ύποδέδεται και ημφίεσται φολίσι και λάγναις και χηλαίς και όπλαις αποκρότοις μόνος δ' ό άνθρωπος κατά τόν Πλάτωνα "γυμνός και άνοπλος και άνυπόδετος³ και άστρωτος ' ύπο της φύσεως απολέλειπται.

άλλ' έν διδούσα πάντα μαλθάσσει τάδε. Ε τόν λογισμόν και την έπιμέλειαν και την πρόνοιαν > ή βραχύ μέν σθένος ἀνέρος· ἀλλὰ ποικιλία πραπίδων δεινά μέν φῦλα πόντου γθονίων τ' άερίων τε δάμναται βουλεύματα.

κουφότατον ίπποι και ωκύτατον, άνθρώπω δè θέουσι· μάχιμον κύων καί θυμοειδές, άλλ' άν-

¹ ἀντίδουλα from Moralia, 964 F: ἀντίδωρα.

² έχίνοις Stephanus and possibly one Ms.: έχίνος.

³ άνοπλος και άνυπόδετος] άοπλος και άνυπόδητος Plato Mss., which also have the words in different order.

4 φύλα added from Moralia, 959 D; not in Mss.

^a From the Prometheus Unbound of Aeschvlus : Nauck. Trag. Graec. Frag., Aeschylus, No. 194. The lines are again quoted by Plutarch, Moralia, 964 F. 80

But as it is, we excel them and have power over them, not from chance or accidentally, but the cause thereof is Prometheus, or, in other words, the power to think and reason,

> Which gives the foal of horse and ass, and get Of bull, to serve us and assume our tasks, as Aeschylus ^a puts it. Certainly, in so far as chance and nature's endowment at birth are concerned, the great majority of brute animals are better off than man. For some are armed with horns, or teeth, or stings, and Empedocles says,

But as for hedgehogs

Growing upon their backs sharp darts of spines stand bristling,* and still others are shod and clad with scales or hair, with claws or horny hoofs. Man alone, as Plato ° says, "naked, unarmed, with feet unshod, and with no bed to lie in," has been abandoned by Nature.

Yet by one gift all this she mitigates,^d the gift of reasoning, diligence, and forethought.

Slight, of a truth, is the strength of man; and yet By his mind's resourcefulness

Doth he subjugate the monsters

Of the deep, and the purposes

Of the denizens of earth and air."

Horses are the lightest and swiftest of foot, yet they run for man. The dog is pugnacious and ^b Diels, Fragmente der Vorsokratiker, i. p. 252.

· Protagoras, 321 c.

ė

⁴ Author unknown, but perhaps Euripides; ef. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Adespota, No. 367; cited again by Plutarch, Moralia, 959 p.

^e From the Aeolus of Euripides; Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Euripides, No. 27.

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

θρωπον φυλάττει· ήδύτατον ίχθὺς καὶ πολύσαρκον ὑς, ἀνθρώπω¹ δὲ τροφὴ καὶ ὅψον ἐστί. τί μεῖζον ἐλέφαντος ἡ φοβερώτερον ἰδεῖν; ἀλλὰ καὶ τοῦτο παίγνιον γέγονεν ἀνθρώπου καὶ θέαμα πανηγυρικόν, ὀρχήσεις τε μανθάνει καὶ χορείας καὶ προσκυνήσεις, οὐκ ἀχρήστως τῶν τοιούτων παρ-F εισαγομένων, ἀλλ' ἕνα μανθάνωμεν ποῦ τὸν ἄνθρωπον ἡ φρόνησις αἶρει καὶ τίνων ὑπεράνω ποιεῖ, καὶ πῶς³ κρατεῖ πάντων καὶ περίεστιν.

ού γὰρ πυγμάχοι εἰμὲν ἀμύμονες οὐδὲ παλαισταί, οὐδὲ³ ποσὶ κραιπνῶς θέομεν, ἀλλ' ἐν πῶσι τούτοις ἀτυχέστεροι τῶν θηρίων ἐσμέν· ἐμπειρία δὲ καὶ μνήμῃ καὶ σοφία καὶ τέχνῃ κατ' ᾿Αναξαγόραν σφῶν' τ' αὐτῶν χρώμεθα καὶ βλίττομεν καὶ ἀμέλγομεν καὶ φέρομεν καὶ ἀγομεν συλλαμβάνοντες. ὥστ' ἐνταῦθα μηδὲν τῆς τύχης ἀλλὰ πάντα τῆς εὐβουλίας εἶναι καὶ τῆς προνοίας.

99 4. ᾿Αλλὰ μὴν καὶ τὰ τεκτόνων δήπου '' πράγματα θνητῶν '' ἐστι, καὶ τὰ χαλκοτύπων καὶ οἰκοδόμων καὶ ἀνδριαντοποιῶν, ἐν οἶς οὐδὲν αὐτομάτως οὐδὶ ὡς ἔτυχε κατοβούμενον ὁρῶμεν.

1 ἀνθρώπψ Hercher: ἀνθρώποις.

² $\pi\hat{\omega}s$] $\pi\lambda\epsilon l\omega$ most MSS., perhaps corrupted from τl del.

³ άλλά Homeric Mss.

⁴ σφών] $\epsilon_{\rho\gamma\psi}$ Sauppe: $\epsilon_{\rhol\psi}$ Bernardakis; but as most Mss. read τ_i for τ ', a dative in -οντ_i (or -ωντ_i) would be in better keeping: σαρξίτ' S. A. Naber.

⁵ τούτοιs] most MSS. have σοφφ, following Epicurus as quoted by Diogenes Laertius, x. 144.

^a Plutarch has several good stories about elephants in Moralia, 968 ff.

spirited, yet it watches over man. Fish is most savoury, and the pig very fat, yet for man they are nourishing and appetizing food. What is bigger than an elephant or more terrible to behold? But even this creature has been made the plaything of man, and a spectacle at public gatherings, and it learns to posture and dance and kneel.⁴ Such presentations are not without their use; indeed, they serve a purpose in that we may learn to what heights man's intelligence raises him, above what it places him, and how he is master of all things, and in every way superior.

No, we are not invincible either in boxing or wrestling, Nor are we swift in the race.^b

Indeed, in all these matters we are not so fortunate as the animals; yet we make use of experience, memory, wisdom, and skill, as Anaxagoras c says, which are ours, and ours only, and we take their honey, and milk them, and carry and lead them at will, taking entire control over them. In all this, therefore, there is no element of chance at all, but solely and wholly sagacity and forethought.

4. Moreover, under the head of "man's ways"^d would fall, no doubt, the activities of carpenters, copper-smiths, builders, and statuaries, wherein we see nothing brought to a successful conclusion accidentally or as it chances. That chance may sometimes contribute slightly to their success,^e but ^b Adapted from Homer, Od. viii. 246.

^e Cf. Diels, Fragmente der Vorsokratiker, i. p. 409.

^d Cf. the first line of chap. i. supra.

' From Epicurus; cf. the quotation in Diogenes Laertius, x. 144.

VOL. II

83

(99) τὰ δὲ πλεῖστα καὶ μέγιστα τῶν ἔργων αἱ τέχναι συντελοῦσι δι' αὐτῶν, καὶ οὖτος ὑποδεδήλωκε βατ' εἰς όδὸν δὴ πας ὁ χειρῶναξ λεώς, οἱ τὴν Διὸς γοργῶπιν Ἐργάνην στατοῖς λίκνοισι προστρέπεσθε.

Β τήν γάρ Ἐργάνην καὶ τήν Ἀθηνῶν αἱ τέχναι πάρεδρον ου την Τύχην έχουσι. έναι μέντοι φασίν ίππον ζωγραφοῦντα τοῖς μὲν ἄλλοις κατορθοῦν εἴδεσι καὶ χρώμασι, τοῦ δ' ἀφροῦ τὴν περὶ τῷ χαλινῷ κοπτομένην χαυνότητα και το συνεκπίπτον δσθμα μή κατορθούντα γράφειν τε πολλάκις και έξαλείφειν, τέλος δ' ύπ' όργης προσβαλειν τω πίνακι τον σπόγγον ώσπερ είχε των φαρμάκων ἀνάπλεων, τὸν δέ προσπεσόντα θαυμαστῶς ἐναπο-μάξαι καὶ ποιῆσαι τὸ δέον. τοῦτ' ἔντεχνον τύχης μόνον ίστορείται. κανόσι καὶ σταθμαῖς καὶ μέτροις καί άριθμοῖς πανταχοῦ χρῶνται, ίνα μηδαμοῦ C το εἰκη και ώς έτυχε τοῖς ἔργοις ἐγγένηται. και μήν αί τέχναι μικραί τινες είναι λέγονται φρονήσεις, μαλλον δ' απόρροιαι φρονήσεως και αποτρίμματα ένδιεσπαρμένα ταις χρείαις περί τον βίον, ώσπερ αινίττεται το πῦρ ὑπο τοῦ Προμηθέως μερισθέν άλλο άλλη διασπαρήναι. και γάρ τής φρονήσεως μόρια καὶ σπάσματα μικρὰ θραυο-μένης καὶ κατακερματιζομένης εἰς τάξεις³ κεχώρηκε.

¹ ἕνα] Νεάλκη Madvig. ² τάξεις] τὰς πράξεις Nikitin and Larsen.

^a Perhaps from Sophocles; cf. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Sophocles, No. 760. 'Epyárn is an epithet applied to Athena as patron of the arts.

that the arts through themselves bring to perfection the most and greatest of their works, is plainly suggested by this poet :

> Into the highway come, all craftsmen folk, Who worship Labour, stern-eyed child of Zeus, With sacred baskets placed about.⁴

For the arts have Labour, that is Athena, and not Chance as their coadjutor. Of just one artist,^b however, it is related that in painting a horse he had succeeded in nearly every respect in the drawing and colours, but the frothy appearance of the foam from champing the bit, and the rush of the foamflecked breath, he had tried again and again to paint, but without success, and each time had wiped it out, until finally, in a rage, he threw his sponge just as it was, full of pigments, at the canvas, and this, as it struck, transferred its contents in some amazing manner to the canvas, and effected the desired result. This is the only recorded instance of a technical achievement due to chance. Rulers, weights, measures, and numbers are everywhere in use, so that the random and haphazard may find no place in any production. Indeed, the arts are said to be minor forms of intelligence, or rather offshoots of intelligence, and detached fragments of it interspersed amid life's common necessities, as it is said in the allegory regarding fire, that it was divided into portions by Prometheus and scattered some here and some there. For thus, when intelligence is finely broken and divided, small portions and fragments of it have gone to their several stations.

* Nealces, according to Pliny, Nat. Hist. xxxv. 36 (104). Dio Chrysostom (Or. lxiii. 4) says it was Apelles, and Valerius Maximus (viii. 11. 7) says "a famous painter."

85

(99) 5. Θαυμαστόν ούν έστι πως αί μέν τέχναι της τύχης ού δέονται πρός το οικείον τέλος, ή δέ πασών μεγίστη και τελειοτάτη τέχνη και το κεφάλαιον της ανθρωπίνης ευφημίας και δικαιώσεως ουδέν έστιν. άλλ' έν έπιτάσει μέν χορδών και άνέσει εύβουλία τίς έστιν ήν μουσικήν καλούσι, και περί άρτυσιν όψων ήν μαγειρικήν όνομάζομεν, και περί D πλύσιν ίματίων ην γναφικήν· τους δέ παίδας καί ύποδείσθαι και περιβάλλεσθαι διδάσκομεν και τη δεξιά λαμβάνειν του όψου τη δ' άριστερά κρατείν τον άρτον, ώς ούδε τούτων γιννομένων άπο τύχης άλλ' έπιστάσεως και προσοχής δεομένων τα δέ μέγιστα καὶ κυριώτατα πρὸς εὐδαιμονίαν οὐ παρακαλεί την φρόνησιν, οὐδὲ μετέχει τοῦ κατὰ λόγον καὶ πρόνοιαν; ἀλλὰ γῆν μὲν οὐδεὶς ὕδατι δεύσας ἀφήκεν, ὡς ἀπὸ τύχης καὶ αὐτομάτως πλίνθων έσομένων, ούδ' έρια και σκύτη κτησάμενος κάθηται τη τύχη προσευχόμενος ιμάτιον αὐτῶ καὶ ύποδήματα γενέσθαι· χρυσίον δε πολύ συμφορήσας Ε και άργύριον και πλήθος άνδραπόδων και πολυθύρους αὐλὰς περιβαλόμενος καὶ κλίνας προσθέμενος πολυτελείς και τραπέζας οίεται ταῦτα φρονήσεως αὐτῶ μή παραγενομένης εὐδαιμονίαν ἔσεσθαι καὶ βίον άλυπον και μακάριον και άμετάβλητον: 'Ηρώτα τις 'Ιφικράτην τον στρατηγόν, ώσπερ

Ηρώτα τις Ίφικράτην τον στρατηγόν, ωσπερ έξελέγχων, τίς έστιν; "οὔτε γὰρ ὅπλίτης οὔτε τοξότης οὔτε πελταστής." κἀκεῖνος "ὅ τούτοις,"

^a Cf. Moralia, 5 A and 440 A. ^b Cf. Moralia, 100 c, infra.

^c This story also in Moralia, 187 B and 440 B.

5. It is therefore amazing how, if the arts have no need of chance to accomplish their own ends, the greatest and most perfect art of all, the consummation of the high repute and esteem to which man can attain, can count for nothing ! But in the tightening and loosening of strings there is involved a certain sagacity, which men call music, and also in the preparation of food, to which we give the name of cookery, and in the cleaning of clothes, which we call fulling; and we teach our children to put on their shoes and clothes, and to take their meat with the right hand and hold their bread in the left, on the assumption that even these things do not come by chance, but require oversight and attention.^a But can it be that those things which are most important and most essential for happiness do not call for intelligence, nor have any part in the processes of reason and forethought? But nobody wets clay with water and leaves it, assuming that by chance and accidentally there will be bricks, nor after providing himself with wool and leather does he sit down with a prayer to Chance that they turn into a cloak and shoes for him; and when a man has amassed much gold and silver and a multitude of slaves, and has surrounded himself with spacious suites of rooms, and, in addition, has furnished them with costly couches and tables,^b does he imagine that these things, without the presence of intelligence in himself, will be happiness and a blissful life, free from grief and secure from change?

Somebody asked Iphicrates ^c the general, as though undertaking to expose him, who he was, since he was "neither a man-at-arms, nor archer, nor targeteer"; and he answered, "I am the man who

87

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

έφη, "πασιν ἐπιτάττων καὶ χρώμενος." (6.) οὐ F χρυσίον ἡ φρόνησίς ἐστιν οὐδ' ἀργύριον οὐδὲ δόξα οὐδὲ πλοῦτος οὐδ' ὑγίεια οὐδ' ἰσχὺς οὐδὲ κάλλος. τί οῦν ἐστι; τὸ πασι τούτοις καλῶς χρῆσθαι δυνάμενον καὶ δι' ὅ τούτων ἕκαστον ἡδὺ γίγνεται καὶ ἕνδοξον καὶ ὠφέλιμον· ἄνευ δὲ τούτου δύσχρηστα καὶ ἄκαρπα καὶ βλαβερά, καὶ βαρύνει καὶ κατ αισχύνει τὸν κεκτημένον. ἡ που καλῶς ὅ Ἡσιόδου Προμηθεὺς τῷ Ἐπιμηθεῖ παρακελεύεται

μή ποτε δώρα

δέξασθαι πὰρ Ζηνὸς ᾿Ολυμπίου ἀλλ' ἀποπέμπειν, 100 τὰ τυχηρὰ λέγων καὶ τὰ ἐκτός, ὡς εἰ παρεκελεύετο μὴ συρίζειν ἀμουσον ὅντα μηδ' ἀναγιγνώσκειν ἀγράμματον μηδ' ἱππεύειν ἀνιππον, οὕτω παρακελευόμενος αὐτῷ μὴ ἀρχειν ἀνόητον ὅντα μηδὲ πλουτεῖν ἀνελεύθερον μηδὲ γαμεῖν κρατούμενον ὑπὸ γυναικός. οὐ γὰρ μόνον '΄ τὸ εῦ πράττειν παρὰ τὴν ἀξίαν ἀφορμὴ τοῦ κακῶς φρονεῖν τοῖς ἀνοήτοις γίγνεται,'' ὡς Δημοσθένης εἶπεν, ἀλλὰ τὸ εὐτυχεῖν παρὰ τὴν ἀξίαν ἀφορμὴ τοῦ κακῶς πράττειν τοῖς μὴ φρονοῦσιν.

¹ συρίζειν] λυρίζειν Hercher.

commands and makes use of all these." (6.) Intelligence is not gold or silver or repute or wealth or health or strength or beauty. What then is it ? It is the something which is able to make good use of all these, and something through whose agency each of these is made pleasant, noteworthy, and profitable. Without it they are unserviceable, fruitless, and harmful, and they burden and disgrace their possessor. It is surely excellent advice that Hesiod's^a Prometheus gives to Epimetheus :

Never to welcome

Any gifts from Zeus of Olympus, but always return them, meaning the gifts of chance and external advantages; as if he were advising him not to play the flute if ignorant of music, nor to read if illiterate, nor to ride if unused to horses, thus advising him not to hold public office if a fool, nor to be rich if miserly, nor to marry if ruled by a woman. For not only is it true, as Demosthenes^b has said, that "undeserved success becomes a source of misconception for fools," but undeserved good fortune also becomes a source of misery for the unthinking.

In the Works and Days, 86.
 Olynthiac I. 23.

89

COLOR & CAAPE

I was a second a second a second

1.011

VIRTUE AND VICE (DE VIRTUTE ET VITIO)

BOIN CINA AUTOR

F 71500.

INTRODUCTION

PLUTARCH's essay on Virtue and Vice is an excellent sermon which has not been overlooked by Christian preachers.

(100) B

ΠΕΡΙ ΑΡΕΤΗΣ ΚΑΙ ΚΑΚΙΑΣ

1. Τὰ ίμάτια δοκεί θερμαίνειν τὸν ἄνθρωπον. ούκ αὐτὰ δήπου θερμαίνοντα καὶ προσβάλλοντα την θερμότητα (καθ' έαυτο γαρ εκαστον αυτών ψυχρόν έστιν, ή και πολλάκις καυματιζόμενοι και πυρέτ-C τοντες έξ ετέρων ετερα μεταλαμβάνουσιν), άλλ' ήν ό άνθρωπος άναδίδωσιν έξ έαυτου θερμότητα, ταύτην ή έσθής τω σώματι προσπεσούσα συνέχει καί περιστέλλει, και καθειργνυμένην είς το σώμα ούκ έα πάλιν σκεδάννυσθαι. ταὐτὸ δὴ τοῦτο τοῖς πράγμασιν ύπάρχον έξαπατά τους πολλούς, ώς, οικίας μεγάλας περιβάλωνται και πληθος äν άνδραπόδων και χρημάτων συναγάγωσιν, ήδέως βιωσομένους. το δ' ήδέως ζην και ίλαρως ούκ έξωθέν έστιν, άλλα τουναντίον ό άνθρωπος τοις περί αύτον πράγμασιν ήδονήν και χάριν ωσπερ έκ πηγής του ήθους προστίθησιν.

D αἰθομένου δὲ πυρὸς γεραρώτερος οἶκος ἰδέσθαι, καὶ πλοῦτος ἡδίων καὶ δόξα λαμπροτέρα καὶ δύναμις, ἂν τὸ ἀπὸ τῆς ψυχῆς ἔχῃ γῆθος· ὅπου καὶ πενίαν καὶ φυγὴν καὶ γῆρας ἐλαφρῶς καὶ προσηνῶς πρὸς εὐκολίαν καὶ πραότητα τρόπου φέρουσιν.

^a Cf. Moralia, 99 E, supra.

^b A dictum of Zeno's; cf. Plutarch, Moralia, 477 A, and Von Arnim, Stoicorum veterum fragmenta, i. p. 50. 94

VIRTUE AND VICE

1. CLOTHES are supposed to make a man warm, not of course by warming him themselves in the sense of adding their warmth to him, because each garment by itself is cold, and for this reason very often persons who feel hot and feverish keep changing from one set of clothes to another; but the warmth which a man gives off from his own person the clothing, closely applied to the body, confines and enwraps, and does not allow it, when thus imprisoned in the body, to be dissipated again. Now the same condition existing in human affairs deceives most people, who think that, if they surround themselves with vast houses, and get together a mass of slaves and money, they shall live pleasantly." But a pleasant and happy life comes not from external things, but, on the contrary, man draws on his own character as a source b from which to add the element of pleasure and joy to the things which surround him.

Bright with a blazing fire a house looks far more cheerful, and wealth is pleasanter, and repute and power more resplendent, if with them goes the gladness which springs from the heart; and so too men bear poverty, exile, and old age lightly and gently in proportion to the serenity and mildness of their character.

^c A verse attributed to Homer ; cf. The Contest of Homer and Hesiod, 274. Again quoted Moralia, 762 D. (100) 2. 'Ως γὰρ ἀρώματα τρίβωνας εὐώδεις καὶ ράκια ποιεῖ, τοῦ δ' 'Αγχίσου τὸ σῶμα ἰχῶρα πονηρὸν ἐξεδίδου νώτου καταστάζοντα βύσσινον φάρος, ουτώ μετ' ἀρετῆς καὶ δίαιτα πῶσα καὶ βίος ἄλυπός ἐστι καὶ ἐπιτερπής, ἡ δὲ κακία καὶ τὰ λαμπρὰ Ε φαινόμενα καὶ πολυτελῆ καὶ σεμνὰ μιγνυμένη λυπηρὰ καὶ ναυτιώδη καὶ δυσπρόσδεκτα παρέχει τοῖς κεκτημένοις.

ούτος μακάριος έν άγορά νομίζεται.

έπαν δ' ανοίξη τας θύρας, τρισάθλιος, γυνή κρατεί πάντων, έπιτάττει, μάχετ' άεί.

καίτοι γυναικός οὐ χαλεπῶς ἄν τις ἀπαλλαγείη πονηρᾶς ἀνὴρ ὤν, μὴ ἀνδράποδον· πρὸς δὲ τὴν ἑαυτοῦ κακίαν οὐκ ἔστι γραψάμενον ἀπόλειψιν ἦδη πραγμάτων ἀφεῖσθαι καὶ ἀναπαύεσθαι γενόμενον καθ' αὑτόν, ἀλλ' ἀεὶ συνοικοῦσα τοῖς σπλάγχνοις καὶ προσπεφυκυῖα νύκτωρ καὶ μεθ' ἡμέραν εύει άτερ δαλοιο¹ και ώμῷ γήραϊ δωκεν,²

F βαρεία συνέκδημος ούσα δι' ἀλαζονείαν καὶ πολυτελής σύνδειπνος ὑπὸ λιχνείας καὶ σύγκοιτος ὀδυνηρά, φροντίσι καὶ μερίμναις καὶ ζηλοτυπίαις ἐκκόπτουσα τὸν ὕπνον καὶ διαφθείρουσα. καὶ γὰρ ὅ καθεύδουσι τοῦ σώματος ὕπνος ἐστὶ καὶ ἀνάπαυσις, τῆς δὲ ψυχῆς πτοῖαι καὶ ὅνειροι καὶ ταραχαὶ διὰ δεισιδαιμονίαν.

¹ δαλοῦ most mss.

² κal έν ώμ $\hat{\varphi}$. . . $\hat{\theta}$ ηκεν Plut. Moral. 527 A. For the various MS. readings of. Rzach's Hesiod ad loc.

^a From the Laocoön of Sophocles; cf. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Sophocles, No. 344. 96

VIRTUE AND VICE, 100

2. As perfumes make coarse and ragged garments fragrant, but the body of Anchises gave off a noisome exudation,

Damping the linen robe adown his back,^a so every occupation and manner of life, if attended by virtue, is untroubled and delightful, while, on the other hand, any admixture of vice renders those things which to others seem splendid, precious, and imposing, only troublesome, sickening, and unwelcome to their possessors.

> This man is happy deemed 'mid public throng, But when he opes his door he's thrice a wretch ; His wife controls, commands, and always fights.^b

Yet it is not difficult for any man to get rid of a bad wife if he be a real man and not a slave; but against his own vice it is not possible to draw up a writing of divorcement and forthwith to be rid of troubles and to be at peace, having arranged to be by himself. No, his vice, a settled tenant of his very vitals always, both at night and by day,

Burns, but without e'er a brand, and consigns to an eld all untimely.^e

For in travelling vice is a troublesome companion because of arrogance, at dinner an expensive companion owing to gluttony, and a distressing bedfellow, since by anxieties, cares and jealousies it drives out and destroys sleep. For what slumber there may be is sleep and repose for the body only, but for the soul terrors, dreams, and agitations, because of superstition.

Perhaps from Menander; ef. Kock, Com. Attie. Frag.
iii. p. 86, and Plutarch, Moralia, 471 B.
Hesiod, Works and Days, 705.

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

όταν δε νυστάζοντά μ' ή λύπη λάβη, ἀπόλλυμ' ύπο των ενυπνίων φησί τις ουτω δε και φθόνος και φόβος και θυμός και άκολασία διατίθησι, μεθ' ήμέραν μεν γαρ έξω βλέπουσα και συσχηματιζομένη πρός 101 έτέρους ή κακία δυσωπείται και παρακαλύπτει τα πάθη, και ου παντάπασι ταις όρμαις εκδίδωσιν έαυτήν άλλ' άντιτείνει και μάχεται πολλάκις έν δέ τοις υπνοις αποφυνούσα δόξας και νόμους και πορρωτάτω γενομένη του δεδιέναι τε και αίδεισθαι, πάσαν έπιθυμίαν κινεί και έπανεγείρει το κακόηθες και ακόλαστον. "μητρί τε γαρ έπιχειρεί μίγνυσθαι," ως φησιν ό Πλάτων, καί βρώσεις αθέσμους προσφέρεται και πράξεως ούδεμιας απέχεται, απολαύουσα του παρανομείν ώς άνυστόν έστιν είδώλοις και φάσμασιν είς ούδεμίαν ήδονήν ούδε τελείωσιν του επιθυμούντος τελευτώ-Β σιν, άλλά κινειν μόνον και διαγριαίνειν τα πάθη καί τὰ νοσήματα δυναμένοις.

3. Ποῦ τοίνυν τὸ ἡδὺ τῆς κακίας ἐστίν, εἰ μηδαμοῦ τὸ ἀμέριμνον καὶ τὸ ἄλυπον μηδ' αὐτάρκεια μηδ' ἀταραξία μηδ' ἡσυχία; ταῖς μὲν γὰρ τῆς σαρκὸς ἡδοναῖς ἡ τοῦ σώματος εὐκρασία καὶ ὑγίεια χώραν καὶ γένεσιν δίδωσι· τῆ δὲ ψυχῆ οὐκ ἔστιν ἐγγενέσθαι γῆθος οὐδὲ χαρὰν βέβαιον, ἂν μὴ τὸ εὕθυμον καὶ ἄφοβον καὶ θαρραλέον ὥσπερ ἔδραν ἢ γαλήνην ἄκλυστον ὑποβάληται, ἀλλὰ κἂν ὑπομειδιάσῃ τις ἐλπὶς ἢ τέρψις, αῦτη ταχὺ φρον-98

VIRTUE AND VICE, 100-101

When grief o'ertakes me as I close my eyes, I'm murdered by my dreams."

says one man. In such a state do envy, fear, temper, and licentiousness put a man. For by day vice, looking outside of itself and conforming its attitude to others, is abashed and veils its emotions, and does not give itself up completely to its impulses, but oftentimes resists them and struggles against them ; but, in the hours of slumber, when it has escaped from opinion and law, and got away as far as possible from feeling fear or shame, it sets every desire stirring, and awakens its depravity and licentiousness. It "attempts incest," as Plato b says, partakes of forbidden meats, abstains from nothing which it wishes to do, but revels in lawlessness so far as it can, with images and visions which end in no pleasure or accomplishment of desire, but have only the power, to stir to fierce activity the emotional and morbid propensities.c

3. Where, then, is the pleasure in vice, if in no part of it is to be found freedom from care and grief, or contentment or tranquillity or calm ? For a well-, balanced and healthy condition of the body gives room for engendering the pleasures of the flesh; but in the soul lasting joy and gladness cannot possibly be engendered, unless it provide itself first with cheerfulness, fearlessness, and courageousness as a basis to rest upon, or as a calm tranquillity that no billows disturb; otherwise, even though some hope or delectation lure us with a smile, anxiety suddenly breaks

^a From some poet of the new comedy; cf. Kock, Com. Att. Frag. iii. p. 444, Adespota, No. 185.

Republic, p. 571 p.
Cf. Moralia, 83 A, supra.

- (101) τίδος ἐκραγείσης ὥσπερ ἐν εὐδία σπιλάδος συνεχύθη καὶ συνεταράχθη.
 - 4. Αθροιζε χρυσίον, σύναγε άργύριον, οίκο-C δόμει περιπάτους, έμπλησον άνδραπόδων την οικίαν καὶ χρεωστῶν τὴν πόλιν· ἂν μὴ τὰ πάθη τῆς ψυχῆς καταστορέσῃς καὶ τὴν ἀπληστίαν παύσῃς καὶ φόβων καὶ φροντίδων ἀπαλλάξῃς σαυτόν, οίνον διηθείς πυρέττοντι και χολικώ μέλι προσοίνον οίηθεις πυρεττοντι και χοποκφ μετα πρόε φέρεις καὶ σιτία καὶ ὄψα κοιλιακοῖς ἑτοιμάζεις καὶ δυσεντερικοῖς, μὴ στέγουσι μηδὲ ῥωννυμένοις ἀλλὰ προσδιαφθειρομένοις ὑπ' αὐτῶν. οὐχ ὁρậς τούς νοσοθντας ότι των βρωμάτων τα καθαριώτατα καί πολυτελέστατα δυσχεραίνουσι και διαπτύουσι D καί παραιτοῦνται προσφερόντων καὶ βιαζομένων, είτα, της κράσεως μεταβαλούσης και πνεύματος χρηστοῦ καὶ γλυκέος αίματος ἐγγενομένου καὶ θερμότητος οἰκείας, ἀναστάντες ἄρτον λιτόν ἐπὶ τυρώ και καρδάμω χαίρουσι και ασμενίζουσιν έσθίοντες¹; τοιαύτην δ λόγος ἐμποιεῖ τῆ ψυχῆ διάθεσιν. αὐτάρκης ἔσῃ, ἂν μάθῃς τί τὸ καλὸν κἀγαθόν ἐστι· τρυφήσεις ἐν πενία καὶ βασιλεύσεις καὶ τὸν ἀπράγμονα βίον καὶ ἰδιώτην οὐδὲν ἦττον άγαπήσεις η τον έπι στρατηγίαις και ήγεμονίαις. ού βιώση φιλοσοφήσας ἀηδῶς, ἀλλὰ πανταχοῦ ζην ήδέως μαθήση καὶ ἀπὸ πάντων· εὐφρανεῖ σε Ε πλοῦτος πολλοὺς εὐεργετοῦντα καὶ πενία πολλὰ μή μεριμνώντα και δόξα τιμώμενον και άδοξία μή φθονούμενον.

1 έσθίοντες Iannotius : έσθοντες.

^a Cf. Moralia, 466 D.

forth, like a hidden rock appearing in fair weather, and the soul is overwhelmed and confounded.

4. Heap up gold, amass silver, build stately promenades, fill your house with slaves and the city with your debtors ; unless you lay level the emotions of your soul, put a stop to your insatiate desires, and quit yourself of fears and anxieties, you are but decanting wine for a man in a fever, offering honey to a bilious man, and preparing tid-bits and dainties for sufferers from colic or dysentery, who cannot retain them or be strengthened by them, but are only brought nearer to death thereby. Does not your observation of sick persons teach you that they dislike and reject and decline the finest and costliest viands which their attendants offer and try to force upon them; and then later, when their whole condition has changed, and good breathing, wholesome blood, and normal temperature have returned to their bodies, they get up and have joy and satisfaction in eating plain bread with cheese and cress ? a It is such a condition that reason creates in the soul. You will be contented with your lot if you learn what the honourable and good is. You will be luxurious in poverty, and live like a king, and you will find no less satisfaction in the care-free life of a private citizen than in the life connected with high military or civic office. If you become a philosopher, you will live not unpleasantly, but you will learn to subsist pleasantly anywhere and with any resources. Wealth will give you gladness for the good you will do to many, poverty for your freedom from many cares, repute for the honours you will enjoy, and obscurity for the certainty that you shall not be envied.

NUMBER OFFICE AREAS

the spectra is a many a standard of a read More build colly me has no could a - - man to a shirt of a sector and the and their are not been been by the party and and Solow Care - The Stand Street of the shall truit of set her pitchill ment of the second at his in an are not - to dawn you all a Wanter of real the year with the second of the second sponse to be a conjunction of a second of the second LOOP.

A LETTER OF CONDOLENCE TO APOLLONIUS (CONSOLATIO AD APOLLONIUM)

AUTOLOGICO AD ADITICA

A REAL PROPERTY OF THE REAL PR

INTRODUCTION

THE Letter of Condolence to Apollonius, into which quotations from earlier authors have been emptied from the sack rather than scattered by hand, has in comparatively recent years fallen under suspicion as being perhaps not the work of Plutarch. The suspicion rests mainly on two grounds, the unusual length of the quotations, and certain incongruities of style. The latter may here be briefly dismissed with the remark that for every departure from accepted Plutarchean style a striking instance of conformity to his style may be cited, so that no very positive results are to be obtained in this way. The case is much the same with the quotations. Many of them are unusually long, although not longer than we find in other authors. Some of them, for example Euripides, Suppliants 1110 and 1112 (Plut. 110 c), show an accuracy of MS. tradition so far superior that the reading given by Plutarch is commonly adopted by editors of Euripides in preference to the traditional reading of the Mss. of Euripides. On the other hand, the quotation from Plato, Gorgias 523 A (Plut. 120 E), shows many minor variations from our text of Plato; some of these are interesting in themselves, but none of them really disturbs the meaning of the passage.

We learn from the letter almost nothing about 105

Apollonius and his departed son, and hardly more about Plutarch. It lacks the intimate touch of a similar letter which was written by Plutarch to his wife (Moralia, 608 A). Indeed we cannot be wholly sure that the boy was called Apollonius after his father, for one stroke of the pen to change the accusative to a vocative (121 E) would cause his name to disappear entirely.

The title of the letter is not found in Lamprias' list of Plutarch's works, nevertheless we have reference to it at a comparatively early date.

Some striking similarities between the letter and Cicero's Tusculan Disputations are doubtless to be explained by derivation from a common source, and this source was doubtless in large part the works of the Academic philosopher Crantor.

In the absence of actual knowledge it is convenient to assume an hypothesis (as in the realm of science one speaks of "atoms" or "ions" or of the electric "current"). If we assume that this is the original rough draft of the letter which was to be sent to Apollonius, nearly everything can be made to square with the hypothesis. In selecting some of the quotations Plutarch had put down enough of the context, so that later the lines he might finally choose to insert could be smoothly interwoven with the text, and the text itself was no doubt to be subjected to further polish.

However, we may be profoundly grateful for the collection of extracts included in the letter, and, if the hypothesis be right, we may also be grateful for this glimpse of Plutarch's methods of composition.

We must bear in mind that this particular form of literary composition had developed a style of its 106 own, the earliest example perhaps being the Axiochus (of Plato?), and we have records of many more now lost. Among the Romans also this form of composition was popular, and several examples may be found in the works of Seneca.

A LETTER TO APOLLONIUS

TECHNIC STREET

107

S CONTRACTOR OF BUILDING &

ΠΑΡΑΜΥΘΗΤΙΚΟΣ ΠΡΟΣ ΑΠΟΛΛΩΝΙΟΝ

1. Καί πάλαι σοι συνήλγησα και συνηχθέσθην, 'Απολλώνιε, ακούσας περί της του προσφιλεστάτου πασιν ήμιν υίου σου προώρου μεταλλαγής του βίου, νεανίσκου κοσμίου πάνυ και σώφρονος και διαφερόντως τά τε πρός θεούς και τα πρός γονείς 102 και φίλους όσια και δίκαια διαφυλάξαντος. τότε μέν ούν ύπό τον της τελευτής καιρόν έντυγχάνειν σοι καί παρακαλείν άνθρωπίνως φέρειν το συμβεβηκός ανοίκειον ήν, παρειμένω¹ τό τε σώμα καί τήν ψυχήν ύπο τής παραλόγου συμφοράς, καί συμπαθείν δ' ήν άναγκαίον. ούδε γαρ οι βέλτιστοι των ιατρών πρός τας αθρόας των ρευμάτων έπιφοράς εύθύς προσφέρουσι τάς διά των φαρμάκων βοηθείας, άλλ' έωσι το βαρύνον της φλεγμονής δίχα της των έξωθεν περιχρίστων επιθέσεως αυτό δι' αύτοῦ λαβείν πέψιν.

2. Ἐπειδὴ οὖν καὶ χρόνος ὅ πάντα πεπαίνειν Β εἰωθὼς ἐγγέγονε τῆ συμφορῷ καὶ ἡ περὶ σὲ διάθεσις ἀπαιτεῖν ἔοικε τὴν παρὰ τῶν φίλων βοήθειαν, καλῶς ἔχειν ὑπέλαβον τῶν παραμυθητικῶν

1 παρειμένω Wilamowitz : παρειμένον.

108

F

A TANK OF WARTEN

A LETTER OF CONDOLENCE TO APOLLONIUS

1. Even before this time, Apollonius, I felt for you in your sorrow and trouble, when I heard of the untimely passing from life of your son, who was very dear to us all-a youth who was altogether decorous and modest, and unusually observant of the demands of religion and justice both toward the gods and toward his parents and friends. In those days, close upon the time of his death, to visit you and urge you to bear your present lot as a mortal man should would have been unsuitable, when you were prostrated in both body and soul by the unexpected calamity; and, besides, I could not help sharing in your feeling. For even the best of physicians do not at once apply the remedy of medicines against acute attacks of suppurating humours, but allow the painfulness of the inflammation, without the application of external medicaments, to attain some assuagement of itself.ª

2. Now since time, which is wont to assuage all things, has intervened since the calamity, and your present condition seems to demand the aid of your friends, I have conceived it to be proper to communicate to you some words that can give comfort, for ^a Cf. Cicero, Tusculan Disputations, 29 (63), and Pliny, Letters, v. 16.

(102) σοι μεταδοῦναι λόγων πρὸς ἄνεσιν τῆς λύπης καὶ παῦλαν τῶν πενθικῶν καὶ ματαίων ὀδυρμῶν.

> "ψυχης¹" γὰρ "νοσούσης εἰσὶν ἰατροἱ λόγοι, ὅταν τις ἐν καιρῷ γε μαλθάσση κέαρ."

κατά γάρ τον σοφον Ευριπίδην άλλο δέ γ'² ἐπ' ἄλλη φάρμακον κείται νόσω. λυπουμένω μὲν μῦθος εὐμενὴς φίλων, ἄγαν δὲ μωραίνοντι νουθετήματα.

C πολλών γὰρ ὄντων ψυχικών παθών, ή λύπη τὸ χαλεπώτατον πέφυκεν είναι πάντων.

"διὰ λύπην γάρ," φασί, "καὶ μανίαν γίγνεσθαι³ πολλοῖσι⁴ καὶ νοσήματ' οὐκ ἰάσιμα, αὐτούς τ' ἀνηρήκασι διὰ λύπην τινές."

3. Τὸ μὲν οὖν ἀλγεῖν καὶ δάκνεσθαι τελευτήσαντος υίοῦ ψυσικὴν ἔχει τὴν ἀρχὴν τῆς λύπης, καὶ οὐκ ἐφ' ἡμῖν. οὐ γὰρ ἔγωγε συμφέρομαι τοῖς ὑμνοῦσι τὴν ἄγριον καὶ σκληρὰν ἀπάθειαν, ἔξω καὶ τοῦ δυνατοῦ καὶ τοῦ συμφέροντος οὖσαν· ἀφαιρήσεται γὰρ ἡμῶν αὖτη τὴν ἐκ τοῦ φιλεῖσθαι D καὶ φιλεῖν εὖνοιαν, ῆν παντὸς μᾶλλον διασψζειν ἀναγκαῖον. τὸ δὲ πέρα τοῦ μέτρου παρεκφέρεσθαι καὶ συναύξειν τὰ πένθη παρὰ φύσιν εἰναί φημι καὶ ὑπὸ τῆς ἐν ἡμῖν φαύλης γίγνεσθαι δόξης. διὸ καὶ τοῦτο μὲν ἐατέον ὡς βλαβερὸν καὶ φαῦλον

και σπουδαίοις ανδράσιν ήκιστα πρέπον, την δέ

¹ $\psi v \chi \hat{\eta} s$] $\delta \rho \gamma \hat{\eta} s$ Aeschylus Mss., but $\psi v \chi \hat{\eta} s$ was an ancient variant as attested e.g. by Cicero, Tusc. Disput. iii. 31.

² άλλο δέ γ'] άλλ' all MSS. but one.

³ Apparently adapted to fit the construction; the original, και μανία γίγνεται πολλοΐοι, is found in Stobaeus, Flor. xcix. 1. ⁴ πολλοΐοι Stobaeus; πολλοΐο.

A LETTER TO APOLLONIUS. 102

the mitigation of grief and the termination of mournful and vain lamentations. For > Words are physicians for an ailing mind, When at the fitting time one soothes the heart.^a

Since, according to the wise Euripides,^b

For divers ills are remedies diverse : The kindly speech of friends for one in grief, And admonitions when one plays the fool.

Indeed, though there are many emotions that affect the soul, yet grief, from its nature, is the most cruel of all. They say :

> To many there doth come because of grief Insanity and ills incurable, And some for grief have ended their own life.[•]

3. The pain and pang felt at the death of a son has in itself good cause to awaken grief, which is only natural, and over it we have no control. For I, for my part, cannot concur with those who extol that harsh and callous indifference, which is both impossible and unprofitable.⁴ For this will rob us of the kindly feeling which comes from mutual affection and which above all else we must conserve. But to be carried beyond all bounds and to help in exaggerating our griefs I say is contrary to nature, and results from our depraved ideas. Therefore this also must be dismissed as injurious and depraved and most unbecoming to right-minded men, but a moderate indulgence

^a Aeschylus, Prometheus Bound, 379.

^b Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Euripides, No. 962. The last two lines are cited supra 69 D.

^e From Philemon; cf. Kock, Com. Att. Frag. ii. p. 512, Philemon, No. 106, where additional lines are given.

^d Cf. Cicero, Tusculan Disputations, iii. 6 (12).

(102) μετριοπάθειαν οὐκ ἀποδοκιμαστέον. "μὴ γὰρ νοσοῖμεν" φησὶν ὁ ἀκαδημαϊκὸς Κράντωρ, "νοσήσασι δὲ παρείη τις αἴσθησις, εἶτ' οὖν τέμνοιτό τι τῶν ἡμετέρων εἴτ' ἀποσπῷτο." τὸ γὰρ ἀνώδυνον τοῦτ' οὐκ ἄνευ μεγάλων ἐγγίγνεται μισθῶν τῷ ἀνθρώπῷ· τεθηριῶσθαι γὰρ εἰκὸς ἐκεῖ μὲν σῶμα Ε τοιοῦτον ἐνταῦθα δὲ ψυγήν.

4. Οὔτ' οῦν ἀπαθεῖς ἐπὶ τῶν τοιούτων συμφορῶν ὁ λόγος ἀξιοῖ γίγνεσθαι τοὺς εῦ φρονοῦντας οὕτε δυσπαθεῖς· τὸ μὲν γὰρ ἄτεγκτον καὶ θηριῶδες, τὸ δ' ἐκλελυμένον καὶ γυναικοπρεπές. εὐλόγιστος δ' ὁ τὸν οἰκεῖον ὅρον ἔχων καὶ δυνάμενος φέρειν δεξιῶς τά τε προσηνῆ καὶ τὰ λυπηρὰ τῶν ἐν τῷ βίῷ συμβαινόντων, καὶ προειληφὼς ὅτι καθάπερ ἐν δημοκρατία κλῆρός ἐστι τῶν ἀρχῶν καὶ δεῖ λαχόντα μὲν ἄρχειν ἀπολαχόντα δὲ φέρειν ἀνεπαχθῶς τὴν τύχην, οὕτω καὶ τῆ διανομῆ τῶν πραγμάτων ἀνεγκλήτως καὶ πειθηνίως ἕπεσθαι. τοῦτο γὰρ οἱ μὴ δυνάμενοι ποιεῖν οὐδὲ τὰς εὐ-F πραγίας ἂν ἐμφρόνως φέρειν δύναιντο καὶ μετρίως. Τῶν μὲν γὰρ καλῶς λεγομένων ἐστὶν ἐν ὑποθήκης μέρει καὶ τοῦτο, > μηδ' εὐτύχημα μηδὲν ώδ' ἔστω μέγα, ὅ σ' ἐξεπαρεῖ μεῖζον ἢ χρεὼν φρονεῖν, μηδ' ἄν τι συμβῇ δυσχερές, δουλοῦ πάλιν, ἀλλ' αὑτὸς αἰεὶ μίμνε, τὴν σαυτοῦ φύσιν σῷζων βεβαίως, ὥστε χρυσὸς ἐν πυρί.

πεπαιδευμένων δ' έστι και σωφρόνων ανδρών πρός

^a Cf. Mullach, Frag. Philos. Graec. iii. p. 146; Cicero, Tusculan Disputations, iii. 6 (12). 112 in grief is not to be disapproved. "Pray that we be not ill," says Crantor ^a of the Academy, "but if we be ill, pray that sensation be left us, whether one of our members be cut off or torn out." For this insensibility to pain ^b is attained by man only at a great price; for in the former case, we may suppose, it is the body which has been brutalized into such insensibility, but in the latter case the soul.

4. Reason therefore requires that men of understanding should be neither indifferent in such calamities nor extravagantly affected; for the one course is unfeeling and brutal, the other lax and effeminate. Sensible is he who keeps within appropriate bounds and is able to bear judiciously both the agreeable and the grievous in his lot, and who has made up his mind beforehand to conform uncomplainingly and obediently to the dispensation of things; just as in a democracy there is an allotment of offices, and he who draws the lot holds office, while he who fails to do so must bear his fortune without taking offence. For those who cannot do this would be unable sensibly and soberly to abide good fortune either.

Among the felicitous utterances the following piece of advice is to the point :

Let no success be so unusual That it excite in you too great a pride, Nor abject be in turn, if ill betide ; But ever be the same ; preserve unchanged Your nature, like to gold when tried by fire.^c

It is the mark of educated and disciplined men to ^b Such Stoicism was required by the stricter Stoic school, but the philosophers of the Academy would have none of it. ^c From an unknown play of Euripides; cf. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Euripides, No. 963.

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

- 103 τε τὰς δοκούσας εὐτυχίας τὸν αὐτὸν εἶναι, καὶ πρὸς τὰς ἀτυχίας ψυλάξαι γενναίως τὸ πρέπον. τῆς γὰρ εὐλογιστίας ἔργον ἐστὶν ἢ ψυλάξασθαι τὸ κακὸν ἐπιφερόμενον ἢ διορθώσασθαι γενόμενον ἢ συστεῖλαι πρὸς τὸ βραχύτατον ἢ παρασκευάζειν αὑτῷ τὴν ὑπομονὴν ἄρρενα καὶ γενναίαν. καὶ γὰρ περὶ τἀγαθὸν ἡ φρόνησις πραγματεύεται τετραχῶς, ἢ κτωμένη τἀγαθὰ ἢ ψυλάττουσα ἢ αὕξουσα ἢ χρωμένη δεξιῶς. οῦτοι τῆς φρονήσεως καὶ τῶν ἄλλων ἀρετῶν εἰσι κανόνες, οἶς πρὸς ἀμφότερα χρηστέον.
 - B "οὐκ ἔστιν" γὰρ "ὅστις πάντ' ἀνὴρ εὐδαιμονεί" καὶ νὴ Δία τό τοι χρεών ούκ έστι μή χρεών ποιείν.

5. "Ωσπερ γὰρ ἐν φυτοῖς ποτὲ μὲν πολυκαρπίαι γίγνονται ποτὲ δ' ἀκαρπίαι, καὶ ἐν ζώοις ποτὲ μὲν πολυγονίαι ποτὲ δὲ καὶ ἀγονίαι, καὶ ἐν θαλάττη εὐδίαι τε καὶ χειμῶνες, οὕτω καὶ ἐν βίω πολλαὶ καὶ ποικίλαι περιστάσεις γιγνόμεναι πρὸς τὰς ἐναντίας περιάγουσι τοὺς ἀνθρώπους τύχας. εἰς ἅς διαβλέψας ἅν τις οὐκ ἀπεικότως εἶποι, ούκ έπι πασίν ο' έφύτευσ' άγαθοις,

C

'Αγάμεμνον, 'Ατρεύς. δεί δέ σε χαίρειν καὶ λυπεῖσθαι· θνητὸς γὰρ ἔφυς. κἂν μὴ σὺ θέλῃς, τὰ θεῶν οὕτω βουλόμεν'¹ ἔσται

καὶ τὸ ὑπὸ Μενάνδρου ῥηθέν

1 βουλόμεν' Euripides Mss.: βουλομένων.

^a From the Stheneboea of Euripides, ibid. No. 661.

^b Author unknown; ef. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Adespot. No. 368.

keep the same habit of mind toward seeming prosperity, and nobly to maintain a becoming attitude toward adversity. For it is the task of rational prudence, either to be on guard against evil as it approaches, or, if it have already happened, to rectify it or to minimize it or to provide oneself with a virile and noble patience to endure it. For wisdom deals also with the good, in a fourfold way either acquiring a store of goods, or conserving them, or adding to them, or using them judiciously. These are the laws of wisdom and of the other virtues, and they must be followed for better fortune or for worse. For and truly

No man exists who's blest in everything,"

What thou must do cannot be made " must not." •

5. For as there are in plants at one time seasons of fruitage and at another time seasons of unfruitfulness, and in animals at one time fecundity and at another time barrenness, and on the sea both fair weather and storm, so also in life many diverse circumstances occur which bring about a reversal of human fortunes. As one contemplates these reversals he might say not inappropriately :

Not for good and no ill came thy life from thy sire, Agamemnon, but joy Thou shalt find interwoven with grief; For a mortal thou art. Though against thy desire Yet the plans of the gods will so have it.^e and the words of Menander^d:

^e Euripides, Iphigenia at Aulis, 29; cf. Moralia, 33 E. ^d Cf. Kock, Com. Att. Frag. iii. p. 155, No. 531, and Allinson, Menander (in L.C.L.), p. 478.

VOL. II

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

- (103) εἰ γὰρ ἐγένου σύ, τρόφιμε, τῶν πάντων μόνος, ὅτ' ἔτικτεν ἡ μήτηρ σ', ἐφ' ῷ τε' διατελεῖν πράττων² ἃ βούλει καὶ διευτυχῶν ἀεί, καὶ τοῦτο τῶν θεῶν τις ὡμολόγησέ σοι, ὀρθῶς ἀγανακτεῖς· ἔστι γάρ σ' ἐψευσμένος, ἄτοπόν τε πεποίηκ'. εἰ δ' ἐπὶ τοῖς αὐτοῖς νόμοις ἐφ' οἶσπερ ἡμεῖς ἔσπασας τὸν ἀέρα
 - D. τόν κοινόν, ΐνα σοι καὶ τραγικώτερον λαλῶ, οἰστέον ἄμεινον ταῦτα καὶ λογιστέον.
 τὸ δὲ κεφάλαιον τῶν λόγων, ἄνθρωπος εἶ, οῦ μεταβολὴν θᾶττον πρὸς ὕψος καὶ πάλιν ταπεινότητα ζῷον οὐδὲν λαμβάνει.
 καὶ μάλα δικαίως· ἀσθενέστατον γὰρ ὄν φύσει μεγίστοις οἰκονομεῖται πράγμασιν, ὅταν πέση δέ, πλεῖστα συντρίβει καλά.
 σῦ δ' οὕθ' ὑπερβάλλοντα, τρόφιμ', ἀπώλεσας Ε ἀγαθά, τὰ νυνί⁴ τ'⁵ ἐστὶ μέτριά σοι κακά.
 - ω αγαθα, τα νυνι τ° εστι μετρια σοι κακα. ωστ' άνὰ μέσον που καὶ τὸ λοιπὸν ὄν⁶ φέρε.

άλλ' ὅμως τοιούτων ὅντων τῶν πραγμάτων ἐνιοι διὰ τὴν ἀφροσύνην ουτως εἰσὶν ἀβέλτεροι καὶ κεναυχεῖς, ὥστε μικρὸν ἐπαρθέντες ἢ διὰ χρημάτων περιουσίαν ἄφθονον ἢ διὰ μέγεθος ἀρχῆς ἢ διά τινας προεδρίας πολιτικὰς ἢ διὰ τιμὰς καὶ δόξας
F ἐπαπειλεῖν τοῖς ἥττοσι καὶ ἐξυβρίζειν, οὐκ ἐνθυμούμενοι τὸ τῆς τύχης ἄστατον καὶ ἀβέβαιον, οὐδ' ὅτι ἑραδίως τὰ ὑψηλὰ γίγνεται ταπεινὰ καὶ τὰ χθαμαλὰ πάλιν ὑψοῦται ταῖς ὀζυρρόποις μεθιστάμενα τῆς τύχης μεταβολαῖς. ζητεῖν οῦν ἐν ἀβεβαίοις βέβαιόν τι λογιζομένων ἐστὶ περὶ τῶν πραγμάτων οὐκ ὀρθῶς.

¹ τε Schaefer: γε. ² πράττων (the regular form) Kock: πράσσων.

A LETTER TO APOLLONIUS, 103

If you alone, young master, at your birth Had gained the right to do whate'er you would Throughout your life, and ever be in luck, And if some god agreed to this with you, Then you have right to feel aggrieved. He has Deceived and strangely treated you. But if Upon the selfsame terms as we, you drew The primal breath of universal life (To speak you somewhat in the tragic style), You must endure this better, and use sense. To sum up all I say, you are a man, Than which no thing that lives can swifter be Exalted high and straight brought low again. And rightly so: for though of puny frame, He vet doth handle many vast affairs, And, falling, ruins great prosperity. But you, young master, have not forfeited Surpassing good, and these your present ills But moderate are; so bear without excess What Fortune may hereafter bring to you.

But, in spite of this condition of affairs, some persons, through their foolishness, are so silly and conceited, that, when only a little exalted, either because of abundance of money, or importance of office, or petty political preferments, or because of position and repute, they threaten and insult those in lower station, not bearing in mind the uncertainty and inconstancy of fortune, nor yet the fact that the lofty is easily brought low and the humble in turn is exalted, transposed by the swift-moving changes of fortune. Therefore to try to find any constancy in what is inconstant is a trait of people who do not rightly reason about the circumstances of life. For

- ³ σ' added by Grotius.
- 4 τὰ νυνί Bentley : τὰ νῦν.
- ⁵ τ ' Hercher : δ '.

⁶ δν added by Bernardakis. Perhaps τὸ λυπηρὸν (Nauck) or τὸ νῦν λυποῦν (Grotius) would be better.

" τροχοῦ '' γὰρ '' περιστείχοντος ἄλλοθ' ἡτέρα ἁψὶς ὕπερθε γίγνετ' ἄλλοθ' ἡτέρα.''

6. Κράτιστον δὴ πρὸς ἀλυπίαν φάρμακον ὁ λόγος καὶ ἡ διὰ τούτου παρασκευὴ πρὸς πάσας τοῦ βίου τὰς μεταβολάς. χρὴ γὰρ οὐ μόνον ἐαυτὸν εἰδέναι θνητὸν ὅντα τὴν φύσιν, ἀλλὰ καὶ ὅτι θνητῷ σύγκληρός ἐστι βίω καὶ πράγμασι ἑαδίως μεθισταμένοις 101 πρὸς τοὐναντίον. ἀνθρώπων γὰρ ὅντως θνητὰ μὲν καὶ ἐφήμερα' τὰ σώματα, θνηταὶ δὲ τύχαι' καὶ πάθη καὶ πάνθ' ἑπλῶς τὰ κατὰ τὸν βίον, ὅπερ ούκ έστι φυγείν βροτόν ούδ' ύπαλύξαι

το παράπαν άλλά

Ταρτάρου πυθμην πιέζει σ' ἀφανοῦς σφυρηλάτοις ἀνάγκαις²

ώς φησι Πίνδαρος. ὅθεν ὀρθώς ὁ Φαληρεὺς Δημήτριος εἰπόντος Εὐριπίδου

ό δ' ὄλβος οὐ βέβαιος ἀλλ' ἐφήμερος καὶ ὅτι μίκρ' ἄττα τὰ³ σφάλλοντα, καὶ μί' ἡμέρα τὰ μὲν καθεῖλεν ὑψόθεν τὰ δ' ἦρ' ἄνω

Β τὰ μὲν ἄλλα καλῶς ἔφη λέγειν αὐτὸν βέλτιον δ' ἔχειν ἄν, ἐἰ μὴ μίαν ἡμέραν ἀλλὰ στιγμὴν εἶπε χρόνου.

¹ Kronenberg would read $\kappa \dot{a} \phi \dot{\eta} \mu \epsilon \rho a \dots \delta^{3}$ al $\tau \dot{\nu} \chi a \iota \tau \epsilon$, making iambic verses of $\theta \nu \eta \tau \dot{a} \dots \tau \dot{a} \theta \eta$.

² ἀνάγκαις] δεσμοῖς ἀνάγκας Bergk.

³ μίκρⁱ άττα τὰ Bernardakis: μικρότατα (ώς μικρὰ τὰ Stobaeus, Flor. ev. 1).

⁴ $ξ_{\chi \epsilon \iota \nu}$ [dν] [dν] $ξ_{\chi \epsilon \iota \nu}$ Wyttenbach, $ξ_{\chi o \nu}$ [dν] Hercher: $ε_{l\chi \epsilon \nu}$ δν (or αν).

A LETTER TO APOLLONIUS, 103-104

The wheel goes round, and of the rim now one And now another part is at the top.^a

6. Reason is the best remedy for the cure of grief, reason and the preparedness through reason for all the changes of life. For one ought to realize, not merely that he himself is mortal by nature, but also that he is allotted to a life that is mortal and to conditions which readily reverse themselves. For men's bodies are indeed mortal, lasting but a day, and mortal is all that they experience and suffer, and, in a word, everything in life; and all this

May not be escaped nor avoided by mortals *

at all, but

The depths of unseen Tartarus hold you fast by hardforged necessities, as Pindar ^{\circ} says. Whence Demetrius of Phalerum was quite right when, in reference to a saying of Euripides ^d:

Wealth is inconstant, lasting but a day, and also:

Small things may cause an overthrow; one day Puts down the mighty and exalts the low,⁴ he said that it was almost all admirably put, but it would have been better if he had said not "one day," but "one second of time."

- Author unknown; cf. Bergk, Poet. Lyr. Gr. iii. p. 740.
 ^b Homer, Il. xii. 326.
- Pindar, Frag. 207 (ed. Christ). Phoenissae, 558. • See note a on next page.

(104)

κύκλος γὰρ αὐτὸς καρπίμοις τε γῆς φυτοῖς γένει βροτῶν τε.¹ τοῖς μὲν αὖξεται βίος, τῶν δὲ φθίνει τε κἀκθερίζεται πάλιν.

ό δέ Πίνδαρος έν άλλοις

τί δέ τις; τί δ' ου τις; σκιάς όναρ ανθρωπος ἐμφαντικώς σφόδρα καὶ φιλοτέχνως ὑπερβολῆ χρησάμενος τὸν τῶν ἀνθρώπων βίον ἐδήλωσε. τί γὰρ σκιῶς ἀσθενέστερον; τὸ δὲ ταύτης ὄναρ οὐδ' C ἂν ἐκφράσαι τις ἕτερος² δυνηθείη σαφῶς. τούτοις δ' ἐπόμενος καὶ ὁ Κράντωρ παραμυθούμενος ἐπὶ τῆ τῶν τέκνων τελευτῆ τὸν Ἱπποκλέα φησί. '' ταῦτα γὰρ πᾶσα αὕτη ἡ ἀρχαία φιλοσοφία λέγει τε καὶ παρακελεύεται. ῶν εἰ δή τι ἄλλο μὴ ἀποδεχόμεθα, τό γε πολλαχῆ είναι ἐργώδη καὶ δύσκολον τὸν βίον ἄγαν ἀληθές. καὶ γὰρ εἰ μὴ φύσει τοῦτον ἔχει τὸν τρόπον, ὑπό γ' ἡμῶν εἰς τοῦτ' ἀφῖκται διαφθορῶς. ἥ τ' ἄδηλος αὕτη τύχη πόρρωθεν ἡμῖν καὶ ἔτ' ἀπ' ἀρχῆς ἡκολούθηκεν οὐδ' ἐφ' ἐνὶ ὑγιεῖ, φυομένοις τε μίγνυταί τις ἐν πῶσι κακοῦ μοῖρα· τὰ γάρ τοι σπέρματα εὐθὺς θνητὰ ὄντα ταύτης κοινωνεῖ τῆς αἰτίας, ἐξ ℌς ἀφυΐα μὲν ψυχῆς, νόσοι τε καὶ κήδεα καὶ μοῖρα θνητῶν ἐκεῖθεν ἡμῖν ἕρπει.''

D Τοῦ δἦ χάριν ἐτραπόμεθα δεῦρο; ἕν' εἰδείημεν ὅτι καινὸν ἀτυχεῖν οὐδὲν ἀνθρώπῳ ἀλλὰ πάντες

¹ θνητών τε γενεα most Mss. and Stobaeus, Flor. cv. 19.
² έτερος] έτέρως Meziriacus.

 a Both this and the preceding quotation are from the Ino 120

A LETTER TO APOLLONIUS, 104

Alike the cycle of earth's fruitful plants And mortal men. For some life grows apace, While others perish and are gathered home.^e

And elsewhere Pindar^b says :

Somebody? Nobody? Which is which? A dream of a shadow is man.

Very vividly and skilfully did he use this extravagance of expression in making clear the life of mankind. For what is feebler than a shadow? And a clear description. In similar strain Crantor, endeavouring to comfort Hippocles upon the death of his children, says : "All our ancient philosophy states this and urges it upon us; and though there be therein other things which we do not accept, yet at any rate the statement that life is oftentimes toilsome and hard is only too true. For even if it is not so by nature, yet through our own selves it has reached this state of corruption. From a distant time, yes from the beginning, this uncertain fortune has attended us and to no good end, and even at our birth there is conjoined with us a portion of evil in everything. For the very seed of our life, since it is mortal, participates in this causation, and from this there steal upon us defectiveness of soul, diseases of body, loss of friends by death, and the common portion of mortals."

For what reason have we turned our thoughts in this direction? It is that we may know that misfortune is nothing novel for man, but that we all have of Euripides; cf. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Euripides, Nos. 420 and 415, where additional lines are given.

^b Pyth. viii. 135.

· Cf. Mullach, Frag. Philos. Graec. iii. p. 147.

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

(104 ταὐτὸ πεπόνθαμεν. " ἄσκοπος γὰρ ή τύχη," φησὶν δ Θεόφραστος, " καὶ δεινὴ παρελέσθαι τὰ προπεπονημένα καὶ μεταρρῦψαι τὴν δοκοῦσαν εὐημερίαν, οὐδένα καιρὸν ἔχουσα τακτόν." ταῦτα δὲ καὶ ἄλλα τοιαῦτα καὶ καθ' ἑαυτὸν ἑκάστῳ λογίσασθαι ῥάδιον, καὶ ἄλλων ἀκοῦσαι παλαιῶν καὶ σοφῶν ἀνδρῶν· ῶν πρῶτος μέν ἐστιν ὁ θεῖος "Ομηρος, εἰπών, οὐδὲν ἀκιδνότερον γαῖα τρέφει ἀνθρώποιο. οὐ μὲν γάρ ποτέ φησι κακὸν πείσεσθαι ὀπίσσω, ὅφρ' ἀρετὴν παρέχωσι θεοὶ καὶ γούνατ' ὀρώρῃ ἀλλ' ὅτε δὴ καὶ λυγρὰ θεοὶ μάκαρες τελέουσι,' Ε καὶ τὰ φέρει ἀεκαζόμενος τετληότι θυμῷ

καί

τοίος γὰρ νόος ἐστὶν ἐπιχθονίων ἀνθρώπων, οίον ἐπ' ἡμαρ ἄγῃσι πατὴρ ἀνδρῶν τε θεῶν τε καὶ ἐν ἄλλοις

Τυδείδη μεγάθυμε, τίη γενεὴν ἐρεείνεις; οἵη περ φύλλων γενεή, τοίη δὲ καὶ ἀνδρῶν. φύλλα τὰ μέν τ' ἄνεμος ͺαμ δις χέει, ἄλλα δέ θ' ὕλη τηλεθόωσα φύει, έαρος δ' ἐπιγίγνεται ὥρη²· ὣς ἀνδρῶν γενεὴ ἡ μὲν φύει³ ἡ δ' ἀπολήγει.''

F ταύτη δ' ὅτι καλῶς ἐχρήσατο τῆ εἰκόνι τοῦ ἀνθρωπείου βίου δῆλον ἐξ ῶν ἐν ἀλλῷ τόπῷ φησὶν οῦτω,

1 τελέουσι] τελέσωσι Homer, σ 133.

² ω η] ώρη many Homeric Mss.

* ϕ ϵ_i] the original reading was undoubtedly $\phi \psi \epsilon \theta$, i.e. $\phi \psi \epsilon \tau(\alpha \iota)$.

^e Frag. 73 (ed. Wimmer). ^o Od. xviii. 130. ^o Od. xviii. 136.

A LETTER TO APOLLONIUS, 104

had the same experience of it. For Theophrastus ^a says: "Fortune is heedless, and she has a wonderful power to take away the fruits of our labours and to overturn our seeming tranquillity, and for doing this she has no fixed season." These matters, and others like them, it is easy for each man to reason out for himself, and to learn them from wise men of old besides; of whom the first is the divine Homer, who said ^b:

Nothing more wretched than man doth the earth support on its bosom,

Never, he says to himself, shall he suffer from evil hereafter, Never, so long as the gods give him strength and his knees are still nimble :

Then when the blessed gods bring upon him grievous affliction,

Still he endures his misfortune, reluctant but steadfast in spirit.

And :

Such is the mood of the men who here on the earth are abiding,

E'en as the day which the father of men and of gods brings upon them."

And in another place :

Great-hearted son of Tydeus, why do you ask of my fathers? As is the race of the leaves, such too is that of all mortals.

Some of the leaves doth the wind scatter earthward, and others the forest Budding puts forth in profusion, and springtime is coming upon us.

Thus is man's race: one enters on life, and another's life ceases.^d

That he has admirably made use of this image of human life is clear from what he says in another place, in these words :

VOL. II

βροτῶν ἕνεκα πτολεμίζειν^ι δειλῶν, οἳ φύλλοισιν ἐοικότες, ἄλλοτε μέν τε ζαφλεγέες τελέθουσιν ἀρούρης καρπὸν ἕδοντες, ἄλλοτε δὲ φθινύθουσιν ἀκήριοι, οὐδέ τις ἀλκή.[°]

105 Σιμωνίδης δ' ό των μελών ποιητής, Παυσανίου τοῦ βασιλέως των Λακεδαιμονίων μεγαλαυχουμένου συνεχώς ἐπὶ ταῖς αὐτοῦ πράξεσι καὶ κελεύοντος ἀπαγγεῖλαί τι αὐτῷ σοφὸν μετὰ χλευασμοῦ, συνεἰς αὐτοῦ τὴν ὑπερηφανίαν συνεβούλευε μεμνῆσθαι ὅτι ἄνθρωπός ἐστι.

Φίλιππος δ' ό των Μακεδόνων βασιλεύς τριών αὐτῷ προσαγγελθέντων εὐτυχημάτων ὑφ' ἕνα καιρόν, πρώτου μὲν ὅτι τεθρίππω νενίκηκεν Όλύμπια, δευτέρου δ' ὅτι Παρμενίων ὁ στρατηγὸς μάχη Β Δαρδανεῖς ἐνίκησε, τρίτου δ' ὅτι ἄρρεν αὐτῶ

Β Δαρδανεις ενικησε, τρίτου δ΄ ότι άρρεν αύτῷ παιδίον ἐκύησεν³ 'Ολυμπιάς, ἀνατείνας εἰς τὸν οὐρανὸν τὰς χεῖρας '' ὡ δαῦμον,'' εἶπε, '' μέτριόν τι τούτοις ἀντίθες ἐλάττωμα,'' εἰδὼς ὅτι τοῖς μεγάλοις εὐτυχήμασι φθονεῖν πέφυκεν ἡ τύχη. Θηραμένης δ' δ γενόμενος 'Αθήνησι τῶν τριά-

Θηραμένης δ' δ γενόμενος 'Αθήνησι τῶν τριάκοντα τυράννων, συμπεσούσης τῆς οἰκίας ἐν ἡ μετὰ πλειόνων ἐδείπνει, μόνος σωθεὶς καὶ πρὸς πάντων εὐδαιμονιζόμενος, ἀναφωνήσας μεγάλῃ τῃ φωνῇ, '' ὦ τύχη,'' εἶπεν, '' εἰς τίνα με καιρὸν ἄρα φυλάττεις; '' μετ' οὐ πολὺν δὲ χρόνον καταστρεβλωθεὶς ὑπὸ τῶν συντυράννων ἐτελεύτησεν.

¹ $\pi \tau \circ \lambda \in \mu i \xi \in v^{\gamma}$] $\pi \tau \circ \lambda \in \mu i \xi \omega$ ($\pi \tau \circ \lambda \in \mu i \xi \omega$) of Homer, Φ 463, is adapted to fit the construction.

² οὐδέ τις ἀλκή] ἀλλὰ τάχιστα κτλ. Homer.

³ ἐκύησεν] τέτοκεν ή in one MS., perhaps rightly.

^e Il. xxi. 463. ^b Cf. Aelian, Varia Historia, ix. 21. ^c Cf. Moralia 177 c and Plutarch's Life of Alexander, chap. iii. (p. 666 A).

A LETTER TO APOLLONIUS, 104-105

To fight for the sake of mortals Wretched, who like to the leaves, at the one time all ardent Come to their fitting perfection, and eat of the fruit of their acres;

Then again helpless they perish, nor is there aught that can help them.^a

Pausanias, king of the Lacedaemonians, who persistently boasted of his own exploits, mockingly urged the lyric poet Simonides to rehearse for him some wise saying, whereupon the poet, being fully cognizant of his conceit, advised him to remember that he was only human.^b

Philip, the king of the Macedonians, happened to have three pieces of good news reported to him all at once: the first, that he was victor at the Olympic games in the race of the four-horse chariots; the second, that Parmenio, his general, had vanquished the Dardanians in battle, and the third, that Olympias had borne him a male child; whereupon, stretching out his hands toward the heavens, he said: "O God, offset all this by some moderate misfortune!" For he well knew that in cases of great prosperity fortune is wont to be jealous.^o

While Theramenes, who afterwards became one of the Thirty Tyrants at Athens, was dining with several others, the house, in which they were, collapsed, and he was the only one to escape death; but as he was being congratulated by everybody, he raised his voice and exclaimed in a loud tone, "O Fortune, for what occasion are you reserving me?" And not long afterward he came to his end by torture at the hands of his fellow tyrants.⁴

^d He was condemned to drink hemlock, according to the usual tradition; cf. Xenophon, Hellenica, ii. 3. 54-56, and Aelian, Varia Historia, ix. 21.

(105) 7. Υπερφυώς δέ φαίνεται περὶ τὴν παραμυθίαν C ὁ ποιητὴς εὐδοκιμεῖν, ποιήσας τὸν ᾿Αχιλλέα λέγοντα πρὸς τὸν Πρίαμον ἦκοντα ἐπὶ λύτρα τοῦ Ἐκτορος ταυτί· > άλλ' ἄγε δὴ κατ' ἄρ' ἕζευ ἐπὶ θρόνου, ἄλγεα δ' ἕμπης ἐν θυμῷ κατακεῖσθαι ἐάσομεν ἀχνύμενοἰ περ· οὐ γάρ τις πρῆξις πέλεται κρυεροῖο γόοιο.

ῶς γὰρ ἐπεκλώσαντο θεοὶ δειλοῖσι βροτοῖσι, ζώειν ἀχνυμένοις· αὐτοὶ δέ τ' ἀκηδέες εἰσί.
δοιοὶ γάρ τε πίθοι κατακείαται ἐν Διὸς οὕδει δώρων οἶα δίδωσι, κακῶν, ἕτερος δὲ ἐἀων.
ῷ μέν κ' ἀμμείξας δώῃ Ζεὺς τερπικέραυνος,
D ἀλλοτε μέν τε κακῷ ὅ γε κύρεται ἀλλοτε δ' ό δὲ μετὰ τοῦτον καὶ τῆ δόξη καὶ τῷ χρόνω, καίτοι τῶν Μουσῶν ἀναγορεύων ἑαυτὸν μαθητὴν Ἡσίοδος, καὶ οῦτος ἐν πίθῳ καθείρξας τὰ κακά, τὴν Πανδώραν ἀνοίξασαν ἀποφαίνει σκεδάσαι τὸ πλῆθος ἐπὶ πᾶσαν γῆν καὶ θάλατταν, λέγων ὦδε.

ἀλλά γυνή χείρεσσι πίθου μέγα πῶμ' ἀφελοῦσα
 Ε ἐσκέδασ' ἀνθρώποισι δὲ μήσατο κήδεα λυγρά.

^a Homer, Il. xxiv. 522; cf. also Moralia, 20 F and 22 B.

^b Such is the meaning of the passage as here quoted from Homer; but in two other places (De audiendis poetis, 24 B, and De exilio, 600 p) Plutarch follows Plato (Republic, p. 379 p), who wrote $\kappa \eta \rho \omega r \ \delta \mu \delta r \ \delta \sigma \partial \lambda \omega r \ a \sigma r \ a \rho \ \delta \epsilon i \lambda \omega r$, thus making one urn of evil and one of good. Metrical considerations make it more than probable that the line 126

7. The Poet^a is regarded as extraordinarily successful in bestowing consolation, where he represents Achilles as speaking to Priam, who has come to ransom Hector, as follows :

Come then and rest on a seat; let us suffer our sorrows to slumber

Quietly now in our bosoms, in spite of our woeful afflictions; Nothing is ever accomplished by yielding to chill lamentation.

Thus, then, the gods have spun the fate of unhappy mortals, Ever to live in distress, but themselves are free from all trouble.

Fixed on Zeus' floor two massive urns stand for ever,

Filled with gifts of all ills that he gives, and another * of blessings;

- He on whom Zeus, god of thunder, bestows their contents commingled
- Sometimes meets with the good, and again he meets only with evil.
- Him upon whom he bestows what is baneful he makes wholly wretched;

Ravenous hunger drives him o'er the earth's goodly bosom, Hither and thither he goes, unhonoured of gods or of mortals.

Hesiod, who, although he proclaimed himself the disciple of the Muses, is nevertheless second to Homer in reputation as well as in time, also confines the evils in a great urn and represents Pandora as opening it and scattering the host of them over the whole land and sea. His words $^{\circ}$ are as follows :

Then with her hands did the woman, uplifting the urn's massive cover,

Let them go as they would ; and on men she brought woeful afflictions.

found in Plato was not taken from Homer, but it is only fair to say that these considerations could have had no weight with Plutarch.

• Works and Days, 94; cf. also Moralia, 115 A and 127 D.

μούνη δ' αὐτόθι Ἐλπὶς ἐν ἀρρήκτοισι δόμοισιν ἐνδον ἐμεινε πίθου ὑπὸ χείλεσιν, οὐδὲ θύραζε ἐξέπτη· πρόσθεν γὰρ ἐπέλλαβε' πῶμα πίθοιο. ἄλλα δὲ μυρία λυγρὰ κατ' ἀνθρώπους ἀλάληται. πλείη μὲν γὰρ γαῖα κακῶν, πλείη δὲ θάλασσα. νοῦσοι δ' ἀνθρώποισιν ἐφ' ἡμέρῃ αἱ δ' ἐπὶ νυκτὶ αὐτόματοι φοιτῶσι, κακὰ θνητοῖσι φέρουσαι σιγῇ, ἐπεὶ φωνὴν ἐξείλετο μητίετα Ζεύς.

F 8. ᾿Απηρτημένως δὲ τούτοις ὁ κωμικὸς ἐπὶ τῶν δυσπαθούντων ἐπὶ ταῖς τοιαύταις συμφοραῖς ταυτὶ λέγει· εἰ τὰ δάκρυ' ἡμῦν τῶν κακῶν ἦν φάρμακον, ἀεί² θ' ὁ κλαύσας τοῦ πονεῖν ἐπαύετο, ἡλλαττόμεσθ' ἂν δάκρυα, δόντες χρυσίον. νῦν δ' οὐ προσέχει τὰ πράγματ' οὐδ' ἀποβλέπει εἰς ταῦτα, δέσποτ', ἀλλὰ τὴν αὐτὴν ὅδόν, ἐἀν τε κλάῃς ἄν τε μή, πορεύεται.

τί οὖν πλέον ποιοῦμεν³; οὐδέν· ή λύπη δ' ἔχει 106 ὦσπερ τὰ δένδρα³ ταῦτα⁴ καρπὸν τὰ δάκρυα.³

ό δὲ παραμυθούμενος τὴν Δανάην δυσπαθοῦσαν Δίκτυς φησί δοκείς τὸν "Αιδην σῶν τι φροντίζειν γόων καὶ παίδ' ἀνήσειν τὸν σόν, εἰ θέλοις στένειν; παῦσαι· βλέπουσα δ' εἰς τὰ τῶν πέλας κακὰ ῥάων γένοι' ἄν, εἰ λογίζεσθαι θέλοις ὅσοι τε δεσμοῖς ἐκμεμόχθηνται⁶ βροτῶν,

¹ ἐπέμβαλε most Mss. of Hesiod.

² del Stobaeus, Flor. cviii. 1: alei.

³ τί δή ποιεῖς πλέον . . . τὸ δένδρον . . . τὸ δάκρυον Stobaeus eviii. 1 and exxii. 12.

4 ταῦτα F.C.B. : τοῦτο.

⁵ έκμεμόχθηνται] έμμεμόχλευνται Bentley.

Hope alone where it was, with its place of abode yet undamaged,

Under the rim of the urn still tarried; nor into the open

Winged its way forth; for before it escaped she had put on the cover.

More are the woes unnumbered among men now freely ranging.

Full is the land now of evils, and full of them too is the ocean :

Illnesses come upon men in the daytime, and others at nighttime;

Hither and thither they go, of themselves bringing evils to mortals ;

Silent they go, since the wisdom of Zeus has deprived them of voices.

8. Closely allied with this are the following words of the comic poet ^a spoken with reference to those whose grief over such calamities is excessive :

If only tears were remedy for ills, And he who weeps obtained surcease of woe, Then we should purchase tears by giving gold. But as it is, events that come to pass, My master, do not mind nor heed these things, But, whether you shed tears or not, pursue The even tenor of their way. What then Do we accomplish by our weeping ? Naught. But as the trees have fruit, grief has these tears.

And Dictys, who is trying to console Danaë in her excessive grief, says :

Think you that Hades minds your moans at all, And will send back your child if you will groan? Desist. By viewing close your neighbour's ills You might be more composed,—if you reflect How many mortals have to toil in bonds, Philemon, in the Sardius; cf. Kock, Com. Att. Frag.

 ii, p. 497, Philemon, No. 73.

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

- (106) ὅσοι τε γηράσκουσιν ὀρφανοὶ τέκνων, τούς τ' ἐκ μέγιστον¹ ὀλβίας τυραννίδος
 - Β το μηδέν όντας. ταῦτά σε σκοπεῖν χρεών.

κελεύει γὰρ αὐτὴν ἐνθυμεῖσθαι τὰ τῶν ἴσα καὶ μείζω δυστυχούντων, ὡς ἐσομένην ἐλαφροτέραν.

9. Ένταῦθα γὰρ ἄν τις ἐλκύσειε καὶ τὴν τοῦ Σωκράτους φωνήν, τὴν οἰομένην, εἰ συνεισενέγκαιμεν εἰς τὸ κοινὸν τὰς ἀτυχίας, ὥστε διελέσθαι τὸ ἴσον ἕκαστον, ἀσμένως ἂν τοὺς πλείους τὰς αὑτῶν λαβόντας ἀπελθεῖν.

Έχρήσατο δὲ τῆ τοιαύτῃ ἀγωγῆ καὶ ᾿Αντίμαχος ὅ ποιητής. ἀποθανούσης γὰρ τῆς γυναικὸς αὐτῷ Λύδης, πρὸς ἣν φιλοστόργως εἶχε, παραμύθιον τῆς λύπης αὑτῷ ἐποίησε τὴν ἐλεγείαν τὴν καλουμένην C Λύδην, ἐξαριθμησάμενος τὰς ἡρωικὰς συμφοράς, τοῖς ἀλλοτρίοις κακοῖς ἐλάττω τὴν ἑαυτοῦ ποιῶν λύπην. ὥστε καταφανές εἶναι ὅτι ὅ παραμυθούμενος τὸν λελυπημένον καὶ δεικνύων κοινὸν καὶ πολλῶν τὸ συμβεβηκὸς καὶ τῶν καὶ ἑτέροις συμβεβηκότων ἕλαττον* τὴν δόξαν τοῦ λελυπημένου μεθίστησι καὶ τοιαύτην τινὰ ποιεῖ πίστιν αὐτῷ, ὅτι ἕλαττον ἢ ἡλίκον ῷετο τὸ συμβεβηκός ἐστιν.

10. 'Ο δ' Αἰσχύλος καλῶς ἐοικεν ἐπιπλήττειν τοῖς νομίζουσι τὸν θάνατον εἶναι κακόν, λέγων ῶδε· ώς οὐ δικαίως θάνατον ἔχθουσιν βροτοί, ὅσπερ μέγιστον ῥῦμα τῶν πολλῶν κακῶν.

τοῦτον γὰρ ἀπεμιμήσατο καὶ ὁ εἰπών.

μέγιστον Elmsley: μεγίστης.
 έλαττον Reiske and one Ms.: ελάττονα.

^a From the Dictys of Euripides; cf. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Euripides, No. 332. 130

How many reft of children face old age, And others still who from a prosperous reign Sink down to nothing. This you ought to heed.^a

For he bids her to think of the lot of those who are equally unfortunate or even more unfortunate than herself, with the idea that her grief will be lightened.

9. In this connexion might be adduced the utterance of Socrates ^b which suggests that if we were all to bring our misfortunes into a common store, so that each person should receive an equal share in the distribution, the majority would be glad to take up their own and depart.

The poet Antimachus, also, employed a similar method. For after the death of his wife, Lyde, whom he loved very dearly, he composed, as a consolation for his grief, the elegy called Lyde, in which he enumerated the misfortunes of the heroes, and thus made his own grief less by means of others' ills. So it is clear that he who tries to console a person in grief, and demonstrates that the calamity is one which is common to many, and less than the calamities which have befallen others, changes the opinion of the one in grief and gives him a similar conviction that his calamity is really less than he supposed it to be.

10 Aeschylus ^c seems admirably to rebuke those who think that death is an evil. He says :

Men are not right in hating Death, which is The greatest succour from our many ills.

In imitation of Aeschylus some one else has said :

• Not original with Socrates, cf. Herodotus, vii. 152; attributed to Solon by Valerius Maximus, vii. 2, ext. 2.

^e From an unknown play ; cf. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Aeschylus, No. 353.

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

D ὦ θάνατε, παιὰν ἰατρὸς μόλοις.
(106) "λιμὴν" γὰρ ὅντως "'Aίδas ἀνιῶν."

μέγα γάρ ἐστι τὸ μετὰ πείσματος τεθαρρηκότος εἰπεῖν τίς δ' ἐστὶ δοῦλος τοῦ θανεῖν ἄφροντις ὤν; καὶ

"Αιδην δ' έχων βοηθόν ου τρέμω σκιάς.

τί γάρ το χαλεπόν έστι και το δυσανιών και έν τώ τεθνάναι; τὰ γὰρ τοῦ θανάτου μήποτε και λίαν ήμιν όντα συνήθη και συμφυή πάλιν ούκ οίδ' όπως δυσαλγή δοκεί είναι. τι γαρ θαυμαστόν εί το τμητόν τέτμηται, εί τὸ τηκτὸν τέτηκται, εί τὸ καυστὸν Ε κέκαυται, εί τὸ φθαρτὸν ἔφθαρται; πότε γὰρ ἐν ήμιν αυτοίς ουκ έστιν ό θάνατος; καί, ή φησιν Ήράκλειτος, " ταὐτό² γ' ἔνι ζῶν καὶ τεθνηκὸς καί τὸ ἐγρηγορὸς καὶ τὸ καθεῦδον καὶ νέον καὶ γηραιόν τάδε γαρ μεταπεσόντα εκεινά εστι, κακείνα πάλιν μεταπεσόντα ταῦτα." ὡς γὰρ ἐκ τοῦ αὐτοῦ πηλοῦ δύναταί τις πλάττων ζώα συγχείν και πάλιν πλάττειν και συγχείν και τοῦθ' έν παρ' έν ποιείν άδιαλείπτως, ούτω και ή φύσις έκ της αυτής ύλης F πάλαι μέν τους προγόνους ήμων ανέσχεν, είτα συνεχείς αὐτοῖς³ ἐγέννησε τοὺς πατέρας, είθ' ἡμῶς,

¹ ἀνιῶν Meziriacus: ἀν' αἶαν. ² ταὐτῷ Bernays.
³ συνεχεῖς αὐτοῖς] συγχέασ' αὐτοὐς Sauppe.

^a Somewhat similar to a line from the Philoctetes of Aeschylus; cf. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Aeschylus, No. 255.

^b Author unknown; cf. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Adespota, No. 369.

O Death, healing physician, come.⁴ For it is indeed true that A harbour from all distress is Hades.

For it is a magnificent thing to be able to say with undaunted conviction :

What man who recks not death can be a slave?• ... and

With Hades' help shadows I do not fear.

For what is there cruel or so very distressing in being dead? It may be that the phenomenon of death, from being too familiar and natural to us, seems somehow, under changed circumstances, to be painful, though I know not why. For what wonder if the separable be separated, if the soluble be dissolved, if the combustible be consumed, and the corruptible be corrupted ? For at what time is death not existent in our very selves ? As Heracleitus * says : "Living and dead are potentially the same thing, and so too waking and sleeping, and young and old; for the latter revert to the former, and the former in turn to the latter." For as one is able from the same clay to model figures of living things and to obliterate them, and again to model and obliterate, and alternately to repeat these operations without ceasing, so Nature, using the same material, a long time ago raised up our forefathers, and then in close succession to them created our fathers, and then ourselves, and

^e From an unknown play of Euripides; cf. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Euripides, No. 958, and Plutarch, Moralia, 34 B. ^d Author unknown; cf. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Adespota, No. 370.

Cf. Diels, Fragmente der Vorsokratiker, i. p. 95, No. 88.
 133

είτ' ἄλλους ἐπ' ἄλλοις ἀνακυκλήσει. καὶ ὁ τῆς γενέσεως ποταμὸς οὕτως ἐνδελεχῶς ῥέων οὕποτε στήσεται, καὶ πάλιν ὁ ἐξ ἐναντίας αὐτῷ ὁ τῆς φθορᾶς εἶτ' ᾿Αχέρων εἴτε Κωκυτὸς καλούμενος ὑπὸ τῶν ποιητῶν. ἡ πρώτη οῦν αἰτία ἡ δείξασα ἡμῶν τὸ τοῦ ἡλίου φῶς, ἡ αὐτὴ καὶ τὸν ζοφερὸν ᾿Αιδην ἄγει. καὶ μήποτε τοῦδ' εἰκῶν ῇ ὁ περὶ ἡμᾶς ἀήρ, ἐν παρ' ἐν ἡμέραν καὶ νύκτα ποιῶν, ἐπαγωγοὺς' ζωῆς τε καὶ θανάτου καὶ ὕπνου καὶ ἐγρηγόρσεως; διὸ καὶ μοιρίδιον χρέος εἶναι λέγεται τὸ ζῆν, ὡς ἀποδοθησόμενον ὅ ἐδανείσαντο 107 ἡμῶν οἱ προπάτορες. ὅ δὴ καὶ εὐκόλως καταβλητέον καὶ ἀστενάκτως, ὅταν ὁ δανείσας ἀπαιτῆ εὐγνωμονέστατοι γὰρ ἂν οὕτω φανείημεν.

11. Οίμαι δὲ καί τὴν φύσιν όρῶσαν τό τ' ἄτακτον καὶ βραχυχρόνιον τοῦ βίου ἄδηλον ποιῆσαι τὴν τοῦ θανάτου προθεσμίαν. τοῦτο γὰρ ῆν ἄμεινον· εἰ γὰρ προήδειμεν, κἂν προεξετήκοντό τινες ταῖς λύπαις καὶ πρὶν ἀποθανεῖν ἐτεθνήκεσαν. ὅρα δὲ καὶ τοῦ βίου τὸ ὀδυνηρὸν καὶ τὸ πολλαῖς φροντίσιν ἐπηντλημένον, ὡς εἰ βουλοίμεθα καταριθμεῖσθαι, λίαν ἂν αὐτοῦ καταγνοίημεν, ἐπαληθεύσαιμεν δὲ καὶ τὴν παρ' ἐνίοις κρατοῦσαν δόξαν ὡς ἅρα κρεῖττόν ἐστι τὸ τεθνάναι τοῦ ζῆν. ὅ γοῦν Σιμωνίδης, Β "ἀνθρώπων," φησίν, " ὀλίγον μεν κάρτος, ἄπρακτοι δε μεληδόνες, αἰωνι δε παύρω πόνος ἀμφὶ πόνω.

¹ $i\pi a\gamma \omega \gamma o \dot{v}s$ Emperius : $i\pi a\gamma \omega \gamma \dot{a}s$.

Bergk, Poet. Lyr. Graec. iii., Simonides, No. 39.

later will create others and still others in a neverending cycle; and the stream of generation, thus flowing onward perpetually, will never stop, and so likewise its counterpart, flowing in the opposite direction-which is the stream of destruction, whether it be designated by the poets as Acheron or as Cocytus. The same agency which at the first showed us the light of the sun brings also the darkness of Hades. May not the air surrounding us serve to symbolize this, causing as it does day and night alternately, which bring us life and death, and sleep and waking? Wherefore it is said that life is a debt to destiny, the idea being that the loan which our forefathers contracted is to be repaid by us. This debt we ought to discharge cheerfully and without bemoaning whenever the lender asks for payment; for in this way we should show ourselves to be most honourable men.

11. I imagine also that it was because Nature saw the indefiniteness and the brevity of life that she caused the time allowed us before death to be kept from us. And it is better so; for if we knew this beforehand, some persons would be utterly wasted by griefs before their time, and would be dead long before they died. Observe too the painfulness of life, and the exhaustion caused by many cares; if we should wish to enumerate all these, we should too readily condemn life, and we should confirm the opinion which now prevails in the minds of some that it is better to be dead than to live. Simonides^a at any rate says:

> Petty indeed is men's strength; All their strivings are vain; Toil upon toil in a life of no length.

(107)

ό δ' ἄφυκτος όμῶς ἐπικρέμαται θάνατος· κείνου γὰρ ἴσον λάχον μέρος οι τ' ἀγαθοί ὅστις τε κακός."

Πίνδαρος δέ.

έν παρ' ἐσθλὸν σύνδυο πήματα δαίονται¹ βροτοῖς ἀθάνατοι. τὰ μὲν ῶν οὐ δύνανται νήπιοι κόσμῳ φέρειν.

Σοφοκλής δέ.

σὺ δ' ἄνδρα θνητὸν εἰ κατέφθιτο στένεις, εἰδὼς τὸ μέλλον οὐδὲν εἰ κέρδος φέρει;

Εύριπίδης δέ.

τὰ θνητὰ πράγματ' οἶσθά γ'^{*} ην ἔχει φύσιν; C δοκῶ³ μὲν οὕ· πόθεν γάρ; ἀλλ' ἄκουέ μου. βροτοῖς ἄπασι κατθανεῖν ὀφείλεται, κοὐκ ἔστιν αὐτῶν⁴ ὅστις ἐξεπίσταται τὴν αῦριον μέλλουσαν εἰ βιώσεται.

τό της τύχης γαρ άφανές οι προβήσεται.

τοιούτου δη τοῦ βίου τῶν ἀνθρώπων ὄντος οἶον οῦτοί φασι, πῶς οὖκ εὐδαιμονίζειν μᾶλλον προσήκει τοὺς ἀπολυθέντας τῆς ἐν αὐτῷ λατρείας η κατοικτίρειν τε καὶ θρηνεῖν, ὅπερ οἱ πολλοὶ δρῶσι δι' ἀμαθίαν;

D 12. Ό δὲ Σωκράτης παραπλήσιον ἔλεγεν είναι τὸν θάνατον ἦτοι τῷ βαθυτάτῷ ὅπνῷ ἢ ἀποδημία μακρậ καὶ πολυχρονίῷ ἢ τρίτον φθορậ τινι καὶ ἀφανισμῷ τοῦ τε σώματος καὶ τῆς ψυχῆς, κατ' οὐδὲν δὲ τούτων κακὸν είναι. καὶ καθ' ἕκαστον ἐπεπορεύετο, καὶ πρῶτον τῷ πρώτῳ. εἰ γὰρ δὴ δαίονται Pindar Mss.: δαίνυνται.

 οἰσθά γ' Cod. Pal.: οἰδαs in all other Mss.

Death hovers over them all, Death which is foreordained. Equal the share by the brave is attained In death with the base.

And Pindar a says :

A pair of miseries with each good The deathless gods mete out to mortal man. The foolish cannot bear them as they should.

And Sophocles b says :

Mourn you a mortal if he's passed away, Not knowing if the future brings him gain?

And Euripides c says :

Know you the nature of this mortal world? I wot not. For whence could you? But hear me. By all mankind is owed a debt to death, And not a single man can be assured If he shall live throughout the coming day. For Fortune's movements are inscrutable.

Since, then, the life of men is such as these poets say it is, surely it is more fitting to felicitate those who have been released from their servitude in it than to pity them and bewail them, as the majority do through ignorance.

12. Socrates ^a said that death resembles either a very deep sleep or a long and distant journey, or, thirdly, a sort of destruction and extinction of both the body and the soul, but that by no one of these possibilities is it an evil. Each of these conceptions he pursued further, and the first one first. For if • Pyth. iii. 82; cf. Homer, Il. xxiv. 527, quoted supra, 105 c.

 From an unknown play; cf. Nauck, T.G.F., Sophocles, No. 761.
 Alcestis, 780.
 Plato, Apology, p. 40 c.

⁸ δοκω] οίμαι Euripides Mss.

έστιν αὐτῶν] ἔστι θνητῶν Euripides Mss.

(107) υπνος τίς έστιν ὁ θάνατος καὶ περὶ τοὺς καθεύδοντας μηδέν ἐστι κακόν, δῆλον ὡς οὐδὲ περὶ τοὺς τετελευτηκότας εἶη ἄν τι κακόν. ἀλλὰ μήν γ' ὅτι ηδιστός ἐστιν ὁ βαθύτατος τί δεῖ καὶ λέγειν; αὐτὸ γὰρ τὸ πρᾶγμα φανερόν ἐστι πᾶσιν ἀνθρώποις, μαρτυρεῖ δὲ καὶ Ὅμηρος ἐπ' αὐτοῦ λέγων.

νήγρετος ἥδιστος, θανάτῳ ἄγχιστα ἐοικώς. Ε ἀλλαχοῦ δὲ καὶ ταῦτα λέγει·

ένθ' "Υπνω ξύμβλητο, κασιγνήτω Θανάτοιο καί·

Υπνω καί Θανάτω διδυμάοσιν, όψει την όμοιότητα αὐτῶν δηλῶν· τὰ γὰρ δίδυμα την όμοιότητα μάλιστα παρεμφαίνει. πάλιν τέ πού φησι τὸν θάνατον είναι '' χάλκεον ὕπνον,'' την ἀναισθησίαν ήμῶν αἰνιττόμενος. οὐκ ἀμούσως δ' ἔδοξεν ἀποφήνασθαι οὐδ' ὁ εἰπῶν '' τὸν ὕπνον τὰ μικρὰ τοῦ θανάτου μυστήρια''· προμύησις γὰρ ὅντως ἐστὶ τοῦ θανάτου ὁ ὕπνος. πάνυ δὲ σοφῶς καὶ ὁ κυνικὸς Διογένης κατενεχθεὶς εἰς ὕπνον καὶ F μέλλων ἐκλείπειν τὸν βίον, διεγείραντος αὐτὸν τοῦ ἰατροῦ καὶ πυθομένου μή τι περὶ αὐτὸν εἶη χαλεπόν, '' οὐδέν,'' ἔφη· '' ὁ γὰρ ἀδελφὸς τὸν ἀδελφὸν προλαμβάνει.'''

13. Εί γε μήν αποδημία προσέοικεν ό θάνατος,

¹ προλαμβάνει Doehner: προλαμβάνει ο ύπνος τον θάνατον.

^a Od. xiii. 80.

^b Il. xiv. 231.

· Il. xvi. 672, 682.

^d ll. xi. 241.

^e Mnesimachus. Cf. Kock, Com. Att. Frag. ii. p. 422, Mnesimachus, No. 11. Initiation into the lesser mysteries 138 death is a sleep, and there is nothing evil in the state of those who sleep, it is evident that there is likewise nothing evil in the state of those who are dead. Nay, what need is there even to state that the deepest sleep is indeed the sweetest? For the fact is of itself patent to all men, and Homer ^a bears witness by saying regarding it :

Slumber the deepest and sweetest, and nearest to death in its semblance.

In another place ^b also he says :

Here she chanced to encounter the brother of Death, which is Slumber,

and

Slumber and Death, the twin brothers,^e thereby indicating their similarity in appearance, for twins show most similarity. And again somewhere ^d he says that death is a "brazen sleep," in allusion to our insensibility in it. And not inelegantly did the man ^e seem to put the case who called "sleep the Lesser Mysteries of death"; for sleep is really a preparatory rite for death. Very wise was the remark of the cynic Diogenes, who, when he had sunk into slumber and was about to depart this life, was roused by his physician, who inquired if anything distressed him. "Nothing," he said, "for the one brother merely forestalls the other." ^f

13. If death indeed resembles a journey, even so

(celebrated at Agrae, near Athens, in March) was required before one could be admitted to the great Eleusinian festival in September.

¹ Čf. a similar remark attributed to Gorgias of Leontini in Aelian, Varia Historia, ii. 35.

ούδ' ούτως έστι κακόν μήποτε δε και τουναντίον άγαθόν. το γαρ άδούλωτον τη σαρκί και τοις ταύτης πάθεσι διάγειν, ύφ' ών κατασπώμενος ό νοῦς τής θνητής άναπίμπλαται φλυαρίας, εύδαιμόν τι 108 καὶ μακάριον. "μυρίας μὲν γὰρ ἡμῖν," φησὶν ὅ Πλάτων, "ἀσχολίας παρέχει τὸ σῶμα διὰ τὴν ἀναγκαίαν τροφήν· ἔτι δ' ἐάν τινες νόσοι προσπέσωσιν, έμποδίζουσιν ήμιν την του όντος θήραν, ερώτων δε και επιθυμιών και φόβων και ειδώλων παντοδαπών και φλυαρίας έμπίπλησιν ήμας, ώστε το λεγόμενον ώς άληθως τῷ ὄντι ὑπ' αὐτοῦ οὐδὲ φρονῆσαι ἡμῖν ἐγγίγνεται οὐδέποτ' οὐδέν. καὶ γὰρ πολέμους καὶ στάσεις καὶ μάχας οὐδὲν ἄλλο παρέχει ἢ τὸ σῶμα καὶ αί³ τούτου ἐπιθυμίαι· διὰ γάρ την των χρημάτων κτήσιν πάντες οι πόλεμοι Β γίγνονται· τὰ δὲ χρήματα ἀναγκαζόμεθα κτᾶσθαι διὰ τὸ σῶμα, δουλεύοντες τῆ τούτου θεραπεία· και έκ τούτου ἀσχολίαν ἄγομεν φιλοσοφίας πέρι διά ταῦτα πάντα. τὸ δ' ἔσχατον πάντων, ὅτι ἐάν τις ήμιν και σχολή γένηται απ' αυτού και τραπώμεθα πρός τό σκοπείν τι, έν ταις ζητήσεσι πανταχοῦ παραπῖπτον θόρυβον παρέχει καὶ ταραχὴν καὶ έκπλήττει, ώστε μη δύνασθαι ύπ' αύτου καθοράν τάληθές. άλλα τω όντι ήμιν δέδεικται ότι εί μέλλομέν ποτε καθαρώς τι είσεσθαι, ἀπαλλακτέον αὐτοῦ καὶ αὐτῇ τῇ ψυχῇ θεατέον αὐτὰ τὰ πράγ-C ματα· καὶ τότε, ὡς ἔοικεν, ἡμῖν ἔσται οῦ ἐπι-θυμοῦμεν καὶ οῦ φαμεν ἐρᾶν (ἔστι δὲ φρόνησις), επειδάν τελευτήσωμεν, ώς ό λόγος σημαίνει, ζώσι το γάρ άδούλωτον τῆ Duebner: τοῦτο γάρ δεδούλωται.

 αί Plato MSS.: αἰ άπο. There are other minor variations from the MSS. of Plato, but none which affects the meaning of the quotation. 140 it is not an evil. On the contrary, it may even be a good. For to pass one's time unenslaved by the flesh and its emotions, by which the mind is distracted and tainted with human folly, would be a blessed piece of good fortune. "For the body," says Plato,^a " in countless ways leaves us no leisure because of its necessary care and feeding. Moreover, if any diseases invade it, they hinder our pursuit of reality, and it fills us with lusts and desires and fears and all manner of fancies and folly, so that, as the saying goes, because of it we really have no opportunity to think seriously of anything. It is a fact that wars and strifes and battles are brought about by nothing else except the body and its desires; for all wars are waged for the acquisition of property, and property we are forced to acquire because of the body, since we are slaves in its service; and the result is that, because of these things, we have no leisure for study. And the worst of all is, that even if we do gain some leisure from the demands of the body, and turn to the consideration of some subject, yet at every point in our investigation the body forces itself in, and causes tumult and confusion, and disconcerts us, so that on account of it we are unable to discern the truth. Nay, the fact has been thoroughly demonstrated to us that, if we are ever going to have any pure knowledge, we must divest ourselves of the body, and with the soul itself observe the realities. And, as it appears, we shall possess what we desire and what we profess to long for-and that is wisdom-only, as our reasoning shows, after we are dead, but not · Phaedo, p. 66 B.

- (108) δ' οὕ. εἰ γὰρ μὴ οἶόν τε μετὰ τοῦ σώματος μηδὲν καθαρῶς γνῶναι, δυοῖν θάτερον, ἢ οὐδαμοῦ ἔστι κτήσασθαι τὸ εἰδέναι ἢ τελευτήσασι· τότε γὰρ αὐτὴ καθ' αὐτὴν ἔσται ἡ ψυχὴ χωρὶς τοῦ σώματος, πρότερον δ' οὕ. καὶ ἐν ῷ ἂν ζῶμεν, οὕτως, ὡς ἔοικεν, ἐγγυτάτω ἐσόμεθα τοῦ εἰδέναι, ἐἀν ὅτι μάλιστα μηδὲν ὁμιλῶμεν τῷ σώματι μηδὲ κοινωνῶ-μεν, ὅτι μὴ πᾶσα ἀνάγκη, μηδὲ ἀναπιμπλώμεθα τῆς τούτου φύσεως, ἀλλὰ καθαρεύωμεν ἀπ' αὐτῦ, D ἕως ἂν ὁ θεὸς αὐτὸς ἀπολύσῃ ἡμᾶς. καὶ οὕτω μὲν ἀπαλλαττόμενοι¹ τῆς τοῦ σώματος ἀφροσύνης, ὡς τὸ εἰκός, μετὰ τοιούτων ἐσόμεθα, δι' ἡμῶν while we are alive. For if it is impossible in company with the body to have any pure knowledge, then one of two things is true : either it is not possible to attain knowledge anywhere, or else only after death. For then the soul will be quite by itself, separate from the body, but before that time never. And so. while we live, we shall, as it appears, be nearest to knowledge if, as far as possible, we have no association or communion with the body, except such as absolute necessity requires, and if we do not taint ourselves with its nature, but keep ourselves pure of it until such time as God himself shall release us. And thus, being rid of the irrationality of the body. we shall, in all likelihood, be in the company of others in like state, and we shall behold with our own eyes the pure and absolute, which is the truth ; since for the impure to touch the pure may well be against the divine ordinance."
 - αὐτῶν πῶν τὸ εἰλικρινὲς ὅρῶντες· τοῦτο δ' ἐστὶ τὸ ἀληθές. μὴ καθαρῷ γὰρ καθαροῦ ἐφάπτεσθαι μὴ οὐ θεμιτὸν ἦ."

⁸Ωστ' εἰ καὶ προσέοικε μετάγειν εἰς ἕτερον τόπον ό θάνατος, οὐκ ἔστι κακόν· μήποτε γὰρ καὶ τῶν ἀγαθῶν ἀναφαίνηται, καθάπερ ἀπέδειξεν ὁ Πλάτων. διὸ καὶ πάνυ δαιμονίως ὁ Σωκράτης πρὸς Ε τοὺς δικαστὰς τοιαῦτ' ἔφη· '' τὸ γὰρ δεδιέναι, ῶ ἄνδρες, τὸν θάνατον οὐδὲν ἄλλο ἐστὶν ἢ δοκεῖν σοφὸν εἶναι μὴ ὅντα· δοκεῖν γὰρ εἰδέναι ἐστὶν ἃ οὐκ οἶδεν. οἶδε μὲν γὰρ οὐδεὶς τὸν θάνατον οὐδ' εἰ τυγχάνει τῷ ἀνθρώπῳ μέγιστον πάντων ὄν τῶν ἀγαθῶν, δεδίασι δ' ὡς εῦ εἰδότες ὅτι μέγιστον τῶν κακῶν ἐστιν.'' οὐκ ἀπάδειν δ' ἔοικε τούτων οὐδ' δ εἰπών·

1 καθαροί άπαλλαττόμενοι Plato MSS.

So, even if it be likely that death transports us into another place, it is not an evil; for it may possibly prove to be a good, as Plato has shown. Wherefore very wonderful were the words which Socrates ^a uttered before his judges, to this effect: "To be afraid of death, Sirs, is nothing else than to seem to be wise when one is not; for it is to seem to know what one does not know. For in regard to death nobody knows even whether it happens to be for mankind the greatest of all good things, yet they fear it as if they knew well that it is the greatest of evils." From this view it seems that the poet does not dissent who says:

· Plato, Apology, p. 29 A.

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

μηδείς φοβείσθω θάνατον ἀπόλυσιν πόνων, άλλά καί κακών τών μεγίστων.

14. Λέγεται δὲ τούτοις μαρτυρεῖν καὶ τὸ θεῖον. πολλοὺς γὰρ παρειλήφαμεν δι' εὐσέβειαν παρὰ θεῶν ταύτης τυχόντας τῆς δωρεᾶς. ῶν τοὺς μὲν ἄλλους φειδόμενος τῆς συμμετρίας τοῦ συγγράμματος παραλείψω· μνησθήσομαι δὲ τῶν ὄντων ἐμφανεστάτων καὶ πᾶσι διὰ στόματος.

F Πρῶτα δή σοι τὰ περὶ Κλέοβιν καὶ Βίτωνα τοὺς ᾿Αργείους νεανίσκους διηγήσομαι. φασὶ γὰρ τῆς μητρὸς αὐτῶν ἱερείας οὕσης τῆς "Ηρας ἐπειδὴ τῆς εἰς τὸν νεὼν ἀναβάσεως ῆκεν ὁ καιρός, τῶν ἑλκόντων τὴν ἀπήνην ὀρέων ὑστερησάντων καὶ τῆς ὥρας ἐπειγούσης, τούτους ὑποδύντας ὑπὸ τὴν ἀπήνην ἀγαγεῖν εἰς τὸ ἱερὸν τὴν μητέρα, τὴν δ' ὑπερησθεῖσαν τῆ τῶν υἱῶν εὐσεβεία κατεύξασθαι τὸ κράτιστον αὐτοῖς παρὰ τῆς θεοῦ δοθῆναι τῶν ἐν ἀνθρώποις, τοὺς δὲ κατακοιμηθέντας μηκέτ' ἀνα στῆναι, τῆς θεοῦ τὸν θάνατον αὐτοῖς τῆς εὐσεβείας ἀμοιβὴν δωρησαμένης.
109 Καὶ περὶ ᾿Αγαμήδους δὲ καὶ Τροφωνίου φησὶ

109 Καὶ περὶ ᾿Αγαμήδους δὲ καὶ Τροφωνίου φησὶ Πίνδαρος τὸν νεών τὸν ἐν Δελφοῖς οἰκοδομήσαντας αἰτεῖν παρὰ τοῦ ᾿Απόλλωνος μισθόν, τὸν δ' αὐτοῖς ἐπαγγείλασθαι εἰς ἑβδόμην ἡμέραν ἀποδώσειν, ἐν τοσούτῷ δ' εὐωχεῖσθαι παρακελεύσασθαι· τοὺς δὲ ποιήσαντας τὸ προσταχθὲν τῆ ἑβδόμῃ νυκτὶ κατακοιμηθέντας τελευτῆσαι.

Λέγεται δε και αυτώ Πινδάρω επισκήψαντι

^a Author unknown; cf. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Adespota, No. 371. 144

Let none fear death, which is release from toils,^a

-ay, and from the greatest of evils as well. 14. It is said that the Deity also bears witness to this. For tradition tells us that many for their righteousness have gained this gift from the gods. Most of these I shall pass over, having regard to due proportion in my composition; but I shall mention the most conspicuous, whose story is on the lips of all men.

First I shall relate for you the tale of Cleobis and Biton, the Argive youths.^b They say that their mother was priestess of Hera, and when the time had come for her to go up to the temple, and the mules that always drew her wagon were late in arriving, and the hour was pressing, these young men put themselves to the wagon and drew their mother to the temple; and she, overjoyed at the devotion of her sons, prayed that the best boon that man can receive be given them by the goddess. They then lay down to sleep and never arose again, the goddess granting them death as a reward for their devotion.

Of Agamedes and Trophonius, Pindar^c says that after building the temple at Delphi they asked Apollo for a reward, and he promised them to make payment on the seventh day, bidding them in the meantime to eat, drink, and be merry. They did what was commanded, and on the evening of the seventh day lay down to sleep and their life came to an end.

It is said that Pindar himself enjoined upon the • Cf. Herodotus, i. 31, and Plutarch, Moralia, Frag. in vol. vii. p. 126 Bernardakis.

· Cf. Frag. 2 of Pindar (ed. Christ).

(109) τοῖς παρὰ τῶν Βοιωτῶν πεμφθεῖσιν εἰς θεοῦ Β πυθέσθαι "τί ἄριστόν ἐστιν ἀνθρώποις" ἀποκρίνασθαι τὴν πρόμαντιν ὅτι οὐδ' αὐτὸς ἀγνοεῖ, εἴ γε τὰ γραφέντα περὶ Τροφωνίου καὶ ᾿Αγαμήδους ἐκείνου ἐστίν· εἰ δὲ καὶ πειραθῆναι βούλεται, μετ' οὐ πολὺ ἔσεσθαι αὐτῷ πρόδηλον. καὶ οὕτω πυθόμενον τὸν Πίνδαρον ·συλλογίζεσθαι τὰ πρὸς τὸν θάνατον, διελθόντος δ' ὀλίγου χρόνου τελευτῆσαι.

Τὰ δὲ περί τὸν Ἰταλὸν Εὐθύνοον τοιαῦτά φασι γενέσθαι. είναι μέν γάρ αὐτὸν ἘΗλυσίου πατρὸς τοῦ Τεριναίου, τῶν ἐκεῖ πρώτου καὶ ἀρετῃ καὶ πλούτω και δόξη, τελευτήσαι δ' έξαπίνης αιτία τινί αδήλω. τον ούν Ηλύσιον είσελθειν όπερ ίσως καν άλλον είσηλθε, μήποτ' είη φαρμάκοις άπολω-C λώς· τοῦτον γὰρ είναι μόνον αὐτῶ ἐπ' οὐσία πολλη και χρήμασιν. απορούντα δ' ότω τρόπω βάσανον λάβοι τούτων, ἀφικέσθαι ἐπί τι ψυχομαντεῖον, προθυσάμενον δ' ώς νόμος έγκοιμασθαι και ίδειν όψιν τοιάνδε. δόξαι παραγενέσθαι τον πατέρα τον έαυτου· ίδόντα δε διεξέρχεσθαι πρός αὐτὸν περί της τύχης της κατά τον υίόν, και άντιβολείν τε καὶ δεῖσθαι συνεξευρεῖν τὸν αἴτιον τοῦ θανάτου. καὶ τὸν '' ἐπὶ τούτῳ,'' φάναι, '' ἥκω. ἀλλὰ δέξαι παρὰ τοῦδ' ἅ σοι φέρει, ἐκ γὰρ τούτων ἅπαντ' εἴσῃ ῶν πέρι λυπῇ.'' εἶναι δ' ὃν ἐσήμηνε νεανίσκον D έπόμενον αὐτῷ, ἐμφερη τε τῷ υἱῷ καὶ τὰ τοῦ χρόνου τε καί τα της ηλικίας έγγύς. έρέσθαι ουν

^a The story comes from Crantor's Consolatio, according to Cicero. 146 deputies of the Boeotians who were sent to consult the god that they should inquire. "What is the best thing for mankind?" and the prophetic priestess made answer, that he himself could not be ignorant of it if the story which had been written about Trophonius and Agamedes were his; but if he desired to learn it by experience, it should be made manifest to him within a short time. As a result of this inquiry Pindar inferred that he should expect death, and after a short time his end came.

They say that the following incident happened to the Italian Euthynoüs.^a He was the son of Elysius, of Terina, a man foremost among the people there in virtue, wealth, and repute, and Euthynoüs came to his end suddenly from some unknown cause. Now it occurred to Elvsius, as it might have occurred to anybody else, that his son had perhaps died of poisoning; for he was his only heir to a large property and estate. Being in perplexity as to how he might put his suspicions to the test, he visited a place where the spirits of the dead are conjured up, and having offered the preliminary sacrifice prescribed by custom, he lay down to sleep in the place, and had this vision. It seemed that his own father came to him, and that on seeing his father he related to him what had happened touching his son, and begged and besought his help to discover the man who was responsible for his son's death. And his father said, " It is for this that I am come. Take from this person here what he brings for you, and from this you will learn about everything over which you are now grieving." The person whom he indicated was a young man who followed him, resembling his son Euthynoüs and close to him in years and stature.

VOL. II

(109) ὄστις είη. και τον φάναι "δαίμων τοῦ υίέος σου," καὶ οὕτω δὴ ὀρέξαι οἱ γραμματείδιον. ἀνειλήσαντα ούν αύτό ίδειν έγγεγραμμένα τρία ταῦτα.

ή που¹ νηπιέησιν άλύουσιν² φρένες άνδρων.

Εύθύνοος κείται μοιριδίω θανάτω.

ούκ ήν γάρ³ ζώειν καλόν αύτω ούδέ⁴ γονεύσι.

Τοιαῦτα δή σοι καὶ τὰ τῶν διηγημάτων τῶν παρά τοις άρχαίοις άναγεγραμμένων.

15. Εί γε μήν ό θάνατος τελεία τίς έστι φθορά E και διάλυσις του τε σώματος και της ψυχης (το τρίτον γάρ ήν τοῦτο της Σωκρατικής εἰκασίας), ούδ' ούτω κακόν έστιν άναισθησία γάρ τις κατ' αὐτὸν γίγνεται καὶ πάσης ἀπαλλαγἡ λύπης καὶ φροντίδος. ὥσπερ γὰρ οὕτ' ἀγαθὸν ἡμῖν ἔπεστιν ούτως ούδε κακόν περί γάρ το όν και το ύφεστηκός καθάπερ το άγαθον πέφυκε γίγνεσθαι, τον αὐτὸν τρόπον καὶ τὸ κακόν περὶ δὲ τὸ μὴ ὄν ἀλλ' ήρμένον έκ των όντων οὐδέτερον τούτων ὑπάρχει. είς την αυτήν ουν τάξιν οι τελευτήσαντες καθ-F ίστανται τη πρό της γενέσεως. ώσπερ ούν ουδέν ην ήμιν πρό τής γενέσεως ουτ' άγαθον ουτε κακόν, ούτως οὐδὲ μετὰ τὴν τελευτήν. καὶ καθάπερ τὰ πρό ήμων οὐδέν ήν πρός ήμας, οὕτως οὐδὲ τὰ μεθ' ήμας ούδεν έσται πρός ήμας.

1 ή που Iunius : ήρου.

² νηπιέησιν άλύουσιν Hercher from Cicero: νήπιε ήλύσιε. Perhaps ή που νήπιαι, 'Ηλώσι' ήλιθίων φρένες ανδρών, partly suggested by Wyttenbach, would better account for the present Ms. reading (Wilamowitz, 'Ηλύσιε <ζώντων>).

- ³ οὐκ η̈ν γàρ] οὐ γàρ ἔην Hercher.
 ⁴ οὐδὲ Turnebus: οῦτε.

So Elysius asked who he was; and he said, "I am the ghost of your son," and with these words he handed him a paper. This Elysius opened and saw written there these three lines:

Verily somehow the minds of men in ignorance wander; Dead now Euthynoüs lies; destiny so has decreed. Not for himself was it good that he live, nor yet for his parents."

Such, you observe, is the purport of the tales recorded in ancient writers.

15. If, however, death is really a complete destruction and dissolution of both body and soul (for this was the third of Socrates' conjectures), even so it is not an evil. For, according to him, there ensues a sort of insensibility and a liberation from all pain and anxiety. For just as no good can attach to us in such a state, so also can no evil; for just as the good, from its nature, can exist only in the case of that which is and has substantiality, so it is also with the evil. But in the case of that which is not, but has been removed from the sphere of being, neither of them can have any real existence. Now those who have died return to the same state in which they were before birth; therefore, as nothing was either good or evil for us before birth, even so will it be with us after death. And just as all events before our lifetime were nothing to us, even so will all events subsequent to our lifetime be nothing to us. For in reality

^a Mullach, Frag. Philos. Graec. iii. p. 148: cf. Cicero, Tusculan Disputations, i. 48 (115). '' ἄλγος '' γὰρ ὄντως '' οὐδὲν ἅπτεται νεκροῦ.'' '' τὸ '' γὰρ '' μὴ γενέσθαι τῷ θανεῖν ἴσον λέγω.'' ή γὰρ αὐτὴ κατάστασίς ἐστι τῆ πρὸ τῆς γενέσεως ή μετὰ τὴν τελευτήν. ἀλλ' οἶει σὺ διαφορὰν εἶναι μὴ γενέσθαι' ἢ γενόμενον ἀπογενέσθαι; εἰ μὴ καὶ τῆς οἰκίας καὶ τῆς ἐσθῆτος ἡμῶν μετὰ τὴν φθορὰν ὑπολαμβάνεις τινὰ διαφορὰν εἶναι προς τὸν

110 οὐδέπω κατεσκευάσθη χρόνον. εἰ δ' ἐπὶ τούτων οὐδὲν ἔστι, δῆλον ὡς οὐδ' ἐπὶ τοῦ θανάτου πρὸς τὴν πρὸ τῆς γενέσεως κατάστασιν ἔστι διαφορά. χάριεν γὰρ τὸ τοῦ ᾿Αρκεσιλάου. " τοῦτο," φησί, " τὸ λεγόμενον κακὸν ὁ θάνατος μόνον τῶν ἄλλων τῶν νενομισμένων κακῶν παρὸν μὲν οὐδένα πώποτ' ἐλύπησεν, ἀπὸν δὲ καὶ προσδοκώμενον λυπεῖ." τῶ γὰρ ὅντι πολλοὶ διὰ τὴν οὐδένειαν καὶ τὴν πρὸς τὸν θάνατον διαβολὴν ἀποθνήσκουσιν, ἶνα μὴ ἀποθάνωσι. καλῶς οὖν ὅ Ἐπίχαρμος

''συνεκρίθη '' φησί '' καὶ διεκρίθη καὶ ἀπῆνθεν ὅθεν ἦνθε,*'' γα μέν εἰς γαν, πνεῦμ' ἄνω. τί τῶνδε χαλεπόν; οὐδέν.

Β πάλιν

ό Κρεσφόντης δέ που ό παρὰ τῷ Εὐριπίδη περὶ τοῦ Ἡρακλέους λέγων

"εἰ μὲν γὰρ οἰκεῖ," φησί, "νερτέρας ὑπὸ χθονός ἐν τοῖσιν οὐκέτ' οὖσιν, οὐδὲν ἂν σθένοι."

μη γενέσθαι Wyttenbach: η μη γενέσθαι.
 ἀπηνθεν . . . ηνθε Scaliger: ἀπηλθεν . . . ηλθε.
 πνεῦμι ἀνω Mullach: πνεῦμα δ' ἀνω.
 ϕυδέν Hartman: οὐδὲ ἕν.

^a From the Philoctetes of Aeschylus; cf. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Aeschylus, No. 255. 150

No suffering affects the dead," since

Not to be born I count the same as death.

For the condition after the end of life is the same as that before birth. But do you imagine that there is a difference between not being born at all, and being born and then passing away? Surely not, unless you assume also that there is a difference in a house or a garment of ours after its destruction, as compared with the time when it had not yet been fashioned. But if there is no difference in these cases, it is evident that there is no difference in the case of death, either, as compared with the condition before birth. Arcesilaus puts the matter neatly : "This that we call an evil, death, is the only one of the supposed evils which, when present, has never caused anybody any pain, but causes pain when it is not present but merely expected." As a matter of fact, many people, because of their utter fatuity and their false opinion regarding death, die in their effort to keep from dying.º Excellently does Epicharmus d put it :

To be and not to be hath been his fate :

once more

Gone is he whence he came, earth back to earth, The soul on high. What here is evil? Naught.

Cresphontes in some play of Euripides,^e speaking of Heracles, says:

For if he dwells beneath the depths of earth 'Mid lifeless shades, his vigour would be naught.

Euripides, Trojan Women, 636.
 Cf. 107 A supra.
 Cf. Diels, Fragmente der Vorsokratiker, i. p. 122.

. The Cresphontes; cf. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Euripides, No. 450.

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

(110) τοῦτο μεταποιήσας εἴποις ἀν· εἰ μὲν γὰρ οἰκεῖ νερτέρας ὑπὸ χθονός ἐν τοῖσιν οὐκέτ' οὖσιν, οὐδὲν ἂν πάθοι.

 γενναῖον δὲ καὶ τὸ Λακωνικόν νῦν ἀμές,¹ πρόσθ' ἄλλοι ἐθάλεον,² αὐτίκα δ' ἄλλοι, ών ἀμές¹ γενεὰν οὐκέτ' ἐποψόμεθα καί πάλιν.

C οι θάνον³ οὐ τὸ ζῆν θέμενοι καλὸν οὐδὲ τὸ θνήσκειν, άλλά τὸ ταῦτα καλῶς ἀμφότερ' ἐκτελέσαι.

πάνυ δε καλώς καὶ ὁ Εὐριπίδης ἐπὶ τῶν τὰς μακρὰς νοσηλείας ὑπομενόντων φησί· μισῶ δ' ὄσοι χρήζουσιν ἐκτείνειν βίον, βρωτοῖσι καὶ ποτοῖσι καὶ μαγεύμασι⁴ παρεκτρέποντες ὀχετὸν ὥστε μὴ θανεῖν. οῦς χρῆν, ἐπειδὰν μηδὲν ὠφελῶσι γῆν,⁵ θανόντας ἔρρειν κἀκποδὼν εἶναι νέοις.

D ή δὲ Μερόπη λόγους ἀνδρώδεις προφερομένη κινεῖ τὰ θέατρα, λέγουσα τοιαῦτα· > τεθνάσι παίδες οὐκ ἐμοὶ μόνη βροτῶν, οὐδ' ἀνδρὸς ἐστερήμεθ', ἀλλὰ μυρίαι τὸν αὐτὸν ἐξήντλησαν ὡς ἐγὼ βίον.

τούτοις γάρ οίκείως αν τις ταῦτα συνάψειε.

1 dµés Cobet: aµµes.

² έθάλεον L. Dindorf: έθάλλεον.

3 of θάνον Wyttenbach : οιδ' έθανον.

⁴ The reading of the Mss. here (supported by Marc. Antoninus, vii. 51) is preferred by nearly all editors of 152

This you might rewrite and say,

For if he dwells beneath the depths of earth 'Mid lifeless shades, his dolour would be naught.

Noble also is the Spartan song ^a:

Here now are we; before us others throve, and others still straightway,

But we shall never live to see their day ;

and again :

Those who have died and who counted no honour the living or dying,

Only to consummate both nobly were honour for them.^b Excellently does Euripides ^c say of those who patiently endure long illnesses :

I hate the men who would prolong their lives By foods and drinks and charms of magic art, Perverting nature's course to keep off death; They ought, when they no longer serve the land, To quit this life, and clear the way for youth.

And Merope^d stirs the theatres by expressing manly sentiments when she speaks the following words :

Not mine the only children who have died, Nor I the only woman robbed of spouse; Others as well as I have drunk life's dregs.

With this the following might be appropriately combined :

^a Bergk, Poet. Lyr. Graec. iii. p. 662.

^b Ibid. iii. p. 516; cf. Plutarch, Life of Pelopidas, chap. i. (p. 278 A).

^c Suppliants, 1109.

^d Referred to the Cresphontes of Euripides; cf. Nauck, Trag. Grace. Frag., Euripides, No. 454.

Euripides to that of the Euripidean MSS. νώτοισι καὶ στρώμναισι καὶ μαντεύμασιν.

⁵ ώφελώσι γην] ώφέλουν πόλιν Euripidean Mss.

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

(110)

E

ποῦ γὰρ τὰ σεμνὰ κείνα, ποῦ δὲ Λυδίας1 μέγας δυνάστης Κροΐσος η Ξέρξης βαρύν ζεύξας θαλάσσης αὐχέν' Έλλησποντίας; απαντες "Αιδην' ήλθον και Λήθης' δόμους, τών χρημάτων άμα τοις σώμασι διαφθαρέντων.

16. Νή Δί ἀλλὰ τοὺς πολλοὺς κινεῖ πρὸς τὰ πένθη καὶ τοὺς θρήνους ὁ ἄωρος θάνατος. ἀλλὰ καί ούτος ούτως έστιν εύπαραμύθητος, ώστε καί ύπό των τυχόντων ποιητών συνεωράσθαι και τετυχηκέναι παραμυθίας. θέασαι γαρ οία περί τούτου φησί των κωμικών τις πρός τον έπι τω άώρω λυπούμενον θανάτω.

είτ' εἰ μέν ήδησθ' ότιή τουτον τον βίον. ον ούκ έβίωσε, ζών διηυτύχησεν άν, ό θάνατος οὐκ εὔκαιρος· εἶ δ' ἤνεγκεν αῦ⁷ οῦτος ὁ βίος τι τῶν ἀνηκέστων, ἴσως ό θάνατος⁸ αὐτὸς σοῦ γέγονεν εὐνούστερος.

F αδήλου ούν όντος πότερον συμφερόντως ανεπαύσατο τον βίον έκλιπών και μειζόνων απολυθεις κακῶν ἢ οὖ, χρὴ μὴ φέρειν οὖτω βαρέως ὡς ἀπολωλεκότας πάνθ' ὄσων ὦήθημεν τεύξεσθαι παρ' αὐτοῦ. οὐ φαύλως γὰρ ἂν δόξειεν ὁ παρὰ τῷ ποιητή 'Αμφιάραος παραμυθείσθαι την 'Αρχεμόρου μητέρα δυσχεραίνουσαν ότι νήπιος ών ό παις και άγαν άωρος έτελεύτησε. φησί γαρ ουτως.

έφυ μέν ούδεις όστις ού πονεί βροτών. θάπτει τε τέκνα χάτερ' αῦ κταται νέα,

¹ Λυδίας: Λυδίης.

 ³ βαρύν βαθύν Wyttenbach.
 ³ ^{}Λιδην] ^{}Λιδαν.
 ⁴ Λήθης] Λάθας. The mixture of dialects in this quotation in the Mss. seems inexplicable. 154

Where now are all those things magnificent— Great Croesus, lord of Lydia? Xerxes, too, Who yoked the sullen neck of Hellespont? Gone all to Hades and Oblivion's house,^a and their wealth perished with their bodies.

16. "True," it may be said, "but an untimely death moves most people to mourning and lamentation." Yet, even for this, words of consolation are so readily found that they have been perceived by even uninspired poets, and comfort has been had from them. Observe what one of the comic poets^b says on this subject to a man who is grieving for an untimely death:

> Then if you knew that, had he lived this life, Which he did not live, Fate had favoured him, His death was not well timed; but if again This life had brought some ill incurable, Then Death perhaps were kindlier than you.

Since, then, it is uncertain whether or not it was profitable for him that he rested from his labours, forsaking this life and released from greater ills, we ought not to bear it so grievously as though we had lost all that we thought we should gain from him. Not ill considered, evidently, is the comfort which Amphiaraus in the poem offers to the mother of Archemorus, who is greatly affected because her son came to his end in his infancy long before his time. For he says:

> There is no man that does not suffer ill; Man buries children, and begets yet more,

^a Author unknown; ef. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Adespota, No. 372, and Bergk, Poet. Lyr. Graec. iii. p. 739. ^b Cf. Kock, Com. Att. Frag. iii. p. 429, Adespota, No. 116.

⁵ ÿδησθ' Herwerden: ÿδεις.
 ⁶ ότιὴ F.C.B.: ὅτι (ὅττι).
 ⁹ å dåvaτos added by Meziriacus.

VOL. II

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

αὐτός τε θνήσκει· καὶ τάδ' ἄχθονται βροτοὶ εἰς γῆν φέροντες γῆν. ἀναγκαίως δ'' ἔχει βίον θερίζειν ὥστε κάρπιμον στάχυν, καὶ τὸν μὲν εἶναι τὸν δὲ μή. τί ταῦτα δεῖ στένειν, ἅπερ δεῖ κατὰ φύσιν διεκπερᾶν; δεινὸν γὰρ οὐδὲν τῶν ἀναγκαίων βροτοῖς.

17. Καθόλου γὰρ χρὴ διανοεῖσθαι πάντα τινὰ καὶ πρὸς αὐτὸν καὶ πρὸς ἄλλον διεξιόντα μετὰ σπουδῆς ὡς οὐχ ὁ μακρότατος βίος ἄριστος ἀλλ' ὁ σπουδαιότατος. οὐδὲ γὰρ ὁ πλεῖστα κιθαρωδήσας Βἢ ῥητορεύσας ἢ κυβερνήσας ἀλλ' ὁ καλῶς ἐπαινεῖται. τὸ γὰρ καλὸν οὐκ ἐν μήκει χρόνου θετέον, ἀλλ' ἐν ἀρετῆ καὶ τῆ καιρίω συμμετρίą. τοῦτο γὰρ εὕδαιμον καὶ θεοφιλὲς εἶναι νενόμισται. διὰ τοῦτο γοῦν τοὺς ὑπεροχωτάτους τῶν ἡρώων καὶ φύντας ἀπὸ θεῶν πρὸ γήρως ἐκλιπόντας τὸν βίον οἱ ποιηταὶ παρέδοσαν ἡμῦν, ὥσπερ κἀκεῖνον δν περί κηρι φίλει Ζεύς τ' αίγίοχος και 'Απόλλων παντοίην φιλότητ', οὐδ' ἵκετο γήραος οὐδόν.

τὴν γὰρ εὐκαιρίαν μᾶλλον, οὐ τὴν εὐγηρίαν παν-C ταχοῦ θεωροῦμεν πρωτεύουσαν. καὶ γὰρ φυτῶν ẵριστα τὰ πλείστας αρπ ῦν ἐν βραχεῖ φορὰς ποιούμενα, καὶ ζῷων cφ ῶν ἐν οὐ πολλῷ χρόνῳ πολλὴν πρὸς τὸν βίον ὠφέλ ιαν ἔχομεν. τό τε πολὺ δήπουθεν ἢ μικρὸν ο.δὲν διαφέρειν δοκεῖ ¹ $\gamma \hat{\eta} \nu$. $\dot{a} \mu a \gamma \kappa a l \omega s \delta'$ Grotius from Stobaeus, cviii. 11, and Cicero, Tusc. Disp. iii. 25 (59). There are several other variations in the text which do not affect the meaning of the quotation. See Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag. p. 596.

^a From the Hypsipyle of Euripides; cf. Nauck, Trag. Graes. Frag., Euripides, No. 757.

^b Homer, Od. xv. 245.

156

And dies himself. Men are distressed at this, Committing earth to earth. But Fate decrees That life be garnered like the ripened grain, That one shall live and one shall pass from life. What need to grieve at this, which Nature says Must be the constant cycle of all life? In what must be there's naught that man need dread.⁴

17. In general everyone ought to hold the conviction, if he seriously reviews the facts both by himself and in the company of another, that not the longest life is the best, but the most efficient. For it is not the man who has played the lyre the most, or made the most speeches, or piloted the most ships, who is commended, but he who has done these things excellently. Excellence is not to be ascribed to length of time, but to worth and timely fitness. For these have come to be regarded as tokens of good fortune and of divine favour. It is for this reason, at any rate, that the poets have traditionally represented those of the heroes who were preeminent and sprung from the gods as quitting this life before old age, like him

Who to the heart of great Zeus and Apollo was held to be dearest,

Loved with exceeding great love ; but of eld he reached not the threshold.^b

For we everywhere observe that it is a happy use of opportunity, rather than a happy old age, that wins the highest place.^c For of trees and plants the best are those that in a brief time produce the most crops of fruit, and the best of animals are those from which in no long time we have the greatest service toward our livelihood. The terms "long" and "short" obviously appear to lose their difference if we fix ° Cf. Marcus Antoninus, 24. 1, and Seneca, Epist. 93. 2.

(111) πρός τόν ἄπειρον ἀφορῶσιν αἰῶνα. τὰ γὰρ χίλια καὶ τὰ μύρια κατὰ Σιμωνίδην ἔτη στιγμή τίς ἐστιν ἀόριστος, μᾶλλον δὲ μόριόν τι βραχύτατον στιγμῆς. ἐπεὶ καὶ τῶν ζώων ἐκείνων, ἅπερ ἱστοροῦσι περὶ τὸν Πόντον γιγνόμενα τὴν ζωὴν ἔχειν ἡμερησίαν, ἕωθεν μὲν γεννώμενα, μέσης δι ἡμέρας ἀκμάζοντα, δείλης δὲ γηρῶντα καὶ τελειοῦντα τὸ ζῆν, οὐχὶ κἀκείνων ἦν ἂν τὸ καθ ἡμῶς πάθος τοῦτο, εἴπερ ψυχή τις ἀνθρωπίνη καὶ λογισμὸς ἑκάστοις ἐνῆν, D καὶ ταὐτὰ δήπου γ' ἂν συνέπιπτεν, ὥστε τὰ πρὸ μέσης τῆς ἡμέρας ἐκλείποντα θρήνους παρέχειν καὶ δάκρυα, τὰ δὲ διημερεύσαντα πάντως ἂν εὐδαιμονίζεσθαι; μέτρον γὰρ τοῦ βίου τὸ καλόν, οὐ τὸ τοῦ χρόνου μῆκος.

18. Ματαίους γὰρ καὶ πολλῆς εὐηθείας ἡγητέον εἶναι τὰς τοιαύτας ἐκφωνήσεις '' ἀλλ' οὐκ ἔδει νέον ὄντα ἀναρπαγῆναι.'' τίς γὰρ ἂν εἶποι ὡς ἔδει; πολλὰ δὲ καὶ ἄλλα ἐφ' ῶν ἄν τις εἶποι ὡς '' οὐκ ἔδει πραχθῆναι '' πέπρακται καὶ πράτ-Ε τεται καὶ πραχθήσεται πολλάκις. οὐ γὰρ νομοθετήσοντες πάρεσμεν εἰς τὸν βίον, ἀλλὰ πεισόμενοι τοῖς διατεταγμένοις ὑπὸ τῶν τὰ ὅλα πρυτανευόντων θεών καὶ τοῖς τῆς εἰμαρμένης καὶ προνοίας θεσμοῖς. 19. Τί δ'; οἱ πενθοῦντες τοὺς οὕτως ἀποθανόν-

19. Πι ο; οι πενσουντες τους ουτως αποσανοντας έαυτῶν ἕνεκα πενθοῦσιν ἢ τῶν κατοιχομένων; εἰ μὲν οῦν ἑαυτῶν, ὅτι τῆς ἀπὸ τῶν τεθνεώτων ἡδονῆς ἢ χρείας ἢ γηροβοσκίας ἐστερήθησαν, φίλαυτος ἡ τῆς λύπης πρόφασις. οὐ γὰρ ἐκείνους ποθοῦντες

^a Aristotle, Hist. animal. v. 19. 3 f. (copied by Pliny, Natural History, xi. 36 (43)). Cf. Aelian, De nat. animal. v. 43; Cicero, Tusculan Disputations, i. 39 (94). 158 our gaze on eternity. For a thousand or ten thousand years, according to Simonides, are but a vague second of time, or rather the smallest fraction of a second. Take the case of those creatures which they relate exist on the shores of the Black Sea,^a and have an existence of only one day, being born in the morning, reaching the prime of life at mid-day, and toward evening growing old and ending their existence; would there not be in those creatures this same feeling which prevails with us, if each of them had within him a human soul and power to reason, and would not the same relative conditions obviously obtain there, so that those who departed this life before mid-day would cause lamentation and tears, while those who lived through the day would be accounted altogether happy? The measure of life is its excellence, not its length in years.

18. We must regard as vain and foolish such exclamations as these: "But he ought not to have been snatched away while young!" For who may say what ought to be? Many other things, of which one may say "they ought not to have been done," have been done, and are done, and will be done over and over again. For we have come into this world, not to make laws for its governance, but to obey the commandments of the gods who preside over the universe, and the decrees of Fate or Providence.

19. But do those who mourn for the untimely dead, mourn on their own account or on account of the departed? If on their own account, because they have been cut off from some gratification or profit or comfort in old age, which they might have expected from the dead, then is their excuse for grieving wholly ἀλλὰ τὰς ἀπ' αὐτῶν ὡφελείας φανήσονται. εἰ δὲ τῶν τεθνεώτων ἕνεκα πενθοῦσιν, ἐπιστήσαντες ὅτι F ἐν οὐδενὶ κακῷ τυγχάνουσιν ὅντες, ἀπαλλαγήσονται τῆς λύπης, ἀρχαίω καὶ σοφῷ πεισθέντες λόγῳ τῷ παραινοῦντι τὰ μὲν ἀγαθὰ ποιεῖν ὡς μέγιστα, τὰ δὲ κακὰ συστέλλειν καὶ ταπεινοῦν. εἰ μὲν οὖν τὸ πένθος ἐστὶν ἀγαθόν, δεῖ ποιεῖν αὐτὸ ὡς πλεῖστον καὶ μέγιστον· εἰ δ', ὥσπερ ἡ ἀλήθεια ἔχει, κακὸν αὐτὸ ὁμολογοῦμεν εἶναι, συστέλλειν καὶ ποιεῖν ὡς ἐλάχιστον καὶ ἐξαλείφειν εἰς τὸ δυνατόν.

^{(Ω}s δè τοῦτο ῥάδιον, καταφανès ἐκ τῆς τοιαύτης παραμυθίας. φασὶ γάρ τινα τῶν ἀρχαίων φιλοσόφων εἰσιόντα πρòς ^{(A}ρσινόην τὴν βασίλισσαν 112 πενθοῦσαν τὸν υἱὸν τοιούτῳ χρήσασθαι λόγῳ, φάμενον ὅτι καθ ὅν χρόνον ὁ Ζεὺς ἐνεμε τοῖς δαίμοσι τὰς τιμάς, οὐκ ἔτυχε παρὸν τὸ Πένθος, ἤδη δὲ νενεμημένων ἦλθεν ὕστερον. τὸν οῦν Δία, ὡς ἠξίου καὶ αὑτῷ τιμὴν δοθῆναι, ἀποροῦντα διὰ τὸ ἤδη κατηναλῶσθαι πάσας τοῖς ἄλλοις, ταύτην αὐτῷ δοῦναι τὴν ἐπὶ τοῖς τελευτήσασι γιγνομένην, οἱον δάκρυα καὶ λύπας. ὥσπερ οὖν τοὺς ἄλλους δαίμονας, ὑφ' ῶν τιμῶνται, τούτους ἀγαπῶν, τὸν Β αὐτὸν τρόπον καὶ τὸ Πένθος. " ἐὰν μὲν οὖν αὐτὸ ἀτιμάσῃς, ῶ γύναι, οὐ προσελεύσεταί σοι· ἐὰν δὲ τιματι ὑπὸ σοῦ ἐπιμελῶς ταῖς δοθείσαις αὐτῷ τιμαῖς, λύπαις καὶ θρήνοις, ἀγαπήσει σε καὶ ἀεί τί σοι παρέσται τοιοῦτον ἐφ' ῷ τιμηθήσεται συνεχῶς ὑπὸ σοῦ." θαυμασίως δὴ φαίνεται τῷ λόγῳ πείσας οὖτος παρελέσθαι τῆς ἀνθρώπου τὸ πένθος καὶ τοὺς θρήνους.

 a Cf. Moralia 609 r, where the idea is attributed to Aesop. 160 selfish; for it will be plain that they mourn, not for them, but for their services. But if they mourn on account of the dead, then if they will fix their attention on the fact that the dead are in no evil state, they will rid themselves of grief by following that wise and ancient admonition to magnify the good and to minimize and lessen the evil. If, then, mourning is a good, we ought to enlarge and magnify it in every way. But if, as the truth is, we admit it to be an evil, we ought to minimize and reduce it, and as far as possible to efface it.

That this is easy is plainly to be seen from the following sort of consolation. They say that one of the ancient philosophers visited Arsinoë, the queen, who was mourning for her son, and made use of this story," saying that at the time Zeus was distributing to the deities their honours, Mourning did not happen to be present, but arrived after the distribution had been made. But when she said it was only right that some honour be given to her also, Zeus, being perplexed, since all the honours had been used up, finally gave her that honour which is paid in the case of those who have died-tears and griefs. Just as the other deities, therefore, are fond of those by whom they are honoured, so also is Mourning. "Therefore, Madame, if you treat her with disrespect, she will not come near you; but if she is strictly honoured by you with the honours which were conceded to her, namely griefs and lamentations, she will love you and affectionately will be ever with you, provided only she be constantly honoured by you." Admirably, it appears, he succeeded, by this story, in convincing the woman and in alleviating her mourning and lamentations.

- (112) 20. Τὸ δ' ὅλον εἶποι τις ἂν πρὸς τὸν πενθοῦντα "πότερα παύση ποτὲ δυσφορῶν ἢ ἀεὶ δεῖν οἰήση λυπεῖσθαι καὶ παρ' ὅλον τὸν βίον; εἰ μὲν γὰρ ἀεἰ μενεῖς ἐπὶ τῆ δυσπαθεία ταύτη, τελείαν ἀθλιότητα C σεαυτῷ παρέξεις καὶ πικροτάτην κακοδαιμονίαν διὰ ψυχῆς ἀγέννειαν καὶ μαλακίαν· εἰ δὲ μεταθήση ποτέ, τί οὐκ ἦδη μετατίθεσαι καὶ σεαυτὸν ἀνέλκεις ἐκ τῆς ἀτυχίας; οἶς γὰρ λόγοις τοῦ χρόνου προϊόντος χρησάμενος ἀπολυθήση, τούτοις νῦν προσσχὼν ἀπαλλάγηθι τῆς κακουχίας· καὶ γὰρ ἐπὶ τῶν σωματικῶν παθημάτων ἡ ταχίστη τῆς ἀπαλλαγῆς ὅδὸς ἀμείνων. ὅ οῦν μέλλεις τῷ χρόνω χαρίζεσθαι, τοῦτο τῷ λόγῳ χάρισαι καὶ τῆ παιδεία, καὶ σεαυτὸν ἕκλυσαι τῶν κακῶν.
 - 21. " ᾿Αλλ' οὐ γὰρ ἤλπιζον," ψησί, " ταῦτα D πείσεσθαι, οὐδὲ προσεδόκων." ἀλλ' ἐχρῆν σε προσδοκῶν καὶ προκατακεκρικέναι τῶν ἀνθρωπείων τὴν ἀδηλότητα καὶ οὐδένειαν, καὶ οὐκ ἂν νῦν ἀπαράσκευος ὥσπερ ὑπὸ πολεμίων ἐξαίψτης ἐπελθόντων ἐλήφθης. καλῶς γὰρ ὁ παρὰ τῷ Εὐριπίδη Θησεὺς παρεσκευάσθαι ψαίνεται πρὸς τὰ τοιαῦτα· ἐκεῖνος γάρ ψησιν.

έγώ δὲ ταῦτα¹ παρὰ σοφοῦ τινος μαθών εἰς φροντίδας νοῦν συμφοράς τ² ἐβαλλόμην, φυγάς τ' ἐμαυτῷ προστιθεὶς πάτρας ἐμῆς θανάτους τ' ἀώρους καὶ κακῶν ἄλλας ὅδούς,

¹ ταῦτα added from Cicero.

² νοῦν συμφοράς τ' Galen, vol. v. p. 151 Chart., p. 418 Kühn.: εἰς συμφορὰς.

^a In an unknown play; cf. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., 162

A LETTER TO APOLLONIUS, 112

20. In general one might say to the man who mourns, "Shall you at some time cease to take this to heart, or shall you feel that you must grieve always every day of your life? For if you purpose to remain always in this extreme state of affliction, you will bring complete wretchedness and the most bitter misery upon yourself by the ignobleness and cowardice of your soul. But if you intend some time to change your attitude, why do you not change it at once and extricate yourself from this misfortune? Give attention now to those arguments by the use of which, as time goes on, your release shall be accomplished, and relieve yourself now of your sad condition. For in the case of bodily afflictions the quickest way of relief is the better. Therefore concede now to reason and education what you surely will later concede to time, and release yourself from your troubles."

21. "But I cannot," he says, "for I never expected or looked for this experience." But you ought to have looked for it, and to have previously pronounced judgement on human affairs for their uncertainty and fatuity, and then you would not now have been taken off your guard as by enemies suddenly come upon you. Admirably does Theseus in Euripides ^a appear to have prepared himself for such crises, for he says:

> But I have learned this from a certain sage, And on these cares and troubles set my mind, And on myself laid exile from my land And early deaths and other forms of ills, Euripides, No. 964 D; cf. the translation by Cicero, Tusculan Disputations, iii. 14 (29).

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

ιν' ει τι πάσχοιμ' ῶν ἐδόξαζον φρενί, Ε μή μοι νεῶρες¹ προσπεσον μᾶλλον δάκοι.*

οί δ' ἀγεννέστεροι καὶ ἀνασκήτως διακείμενοι οὐδ' ἀναστροφὴν ἐνίοτε λαμβάνουσι προς το βουλεύσασθαί τι τῶν εὐσχημόνων καὶ συμφερόντων, ἀλλ' ἐκτρέπονται προς τὰς ἐσχάτας ταλαιπωρίας, το μηδὲν αἴτιον σῶμα τιμωρούμενοι καὶ τὰ μὴ νοσοῦντα κατὰ τὸν ᾿Αχαιὸν συναλγεῖν ἀναγκάζοντες.

22. Διό καὶ πάνυ καλῶς ὁ Πλάτων ἔοικε παραινεῖν ἐν " ταῖς" τοιαύταις " συμφοραῖς ήσυχίαν ἔχειν, ὡς οὖτε ὅήλου ὅντος τοῦ κακοῦ καὶ τοῦ F ἀγαθοῦ, οὔτ εἰς τὸ πρόσθεν οὐδὲν προβαῖνον τῷ χαλεπῶς φέροντι· ἐμποδῶν γὰρ γίγνεσθαι τὸ λυπεῖσθαι τῷ βουλεύεσθαι περὶ τοῦ γεγονότος³ καὶ ὥσπερ ἐν πτώσει κύβων πρὸς τὰ πεπτωκότα τίθεσθαι τὰ ἑαυτοῦ πράγματα, ὅπῃ ὁ λόγος⁴ αἱρεῖ βέλτιστ ἂι⁶ ἔχειν. οὐ δεῖν οῦν προσπταίσαντας καθάπερ παῖδας ἐχομένους τοῦ πληγέντος βοῶν, ἀλλ' ἐθίζειν τὴν ψυχὴν ὅτι τάχιστα γίγνεσθαι περὶ τὸ ἰᾶσθαί τε καὶ ἐπανορθοῦν τὸ πεσόν τε καὶ νοσῆσαν, ἰατρικῆ θρηνωδίαν ἀφανίζοντας." Τὸν τῶν Λυκίων⁸ νομοθέτην φαοὶ προστάξαι τοῖς

Τὸν τῶν Λυκίων⁶ νομοθέτην φασὶ προστάξαι τοῖς αύτοῦ πολίταις, ἐπὰν πενθῶσι, γυναικείαν ἀμφιεσαμένους ἐσθῆτα πενθεῖν, ἐμφαίνειν βουληθέντα ὅτι 113 γυναικῶδες τὸ πάθος καὶ οὐχ ἁρμόττον ἀνδράσι κοσμίοις καὶ παιδείας ἐλευθερίου⁷ μεταπεποιημένοις. θῆλυ γὰρ ὄντως καὶ ἀσθενὲς καὶ ἀγεννὲς τὸ νεῶρες Musgrave: νεαρδν.

 δάκοι Galen, ibid.: δάκχ.
 τὸ γεγονδς Plato Mss.
 δ βέλτιστ ἀν Plato Mss.: βέλτιστα.
 Δικίων] Λοκρῶν Hartman.
 čλευθερίου Hertlin: ἐλευθέρου.

A LETTER TO APOLLONIUS, 112–113

That if I suffer aught my fancy saw, It should not, coming newly, hurt the more.

But the more ignoble and untutored sometimes cannot even recall themselves to the consideration of anything seemly and profitable, but go out of their way to find extremes of wretchedness, even to punishing their innocent body and to forcing the unafflicted, as Achaeus^a says, to join in their grief.

22. Wherefore very excellently Plato ^b appears to advise us "in" such "misfortunes to maintain a calm demeanour, since neither the evil nor the good in them is at all plain, and since no advance is made by the man who takes things much to heart. For grief stands in the way of sane counsel-about an event and prevents one from arranging his affairs with relation to what has befallen, as a player does at a throw of the dice, in whatever way reason may convince him would be best. We ought not, therefore, when we have fallen to act like children and hold on to the injured place and scream, but we should accustom our soul speedily to concern itself with curing the injury and raising up the fallen, and we should put away lamentation by remedial art."

They say that the lawgiver of the Lycians ^c ordered his citizens, whenever they mourned, to clothe themselves first in women's garments and then to mourn, wishing to make it clear that mourning is womanish and unbecoming to decorous men who lay claim to the education of the free-born. Yes, mourning is verily feminine, and weak, and ignoble, since Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag. p. 757, Achaeus, No. 45.

 Adapted from the Republic, p. 604 B.
 Cf. Valerius Maximus, ii. 6. 13.

(113) πενθείν· γυναίκες γὰρ ἀνδρῶν εἰσι φιλοπενθέστεραι καὶ οἱ βάρβαροι τῶν Ἐλλήνων καὶ οἱ χείρους ἀνδρες τῶν ἀμεινόνων, καὶ αὐτῶν δὲ τῶν βαρβάρων οὐχ οἱ γενναιότατοι, Κελτοὶ καὶ Γαλάται καὶ πάντες οἱ φρονήματος ἀνδρειοτέρου πεφυκότες ἕμπλεϣ, μᾶλλον δ', εἴπερ ἄρα, Αἰγύπτιοἱ τε καὶ Σύροι καὶ Λυδοὶ καὶ πάντες ὅσοι τούτοις παρα-Β πλήσιοι. τούτων γὰρ τοὺς μὲν εἰς βόθρους τινὰς καταδύντας ἱστοροῦσιν ἐπὶ πλείους ἡμέρας μένειν, μηδὲ τὸ τοῦ ἡλίου φῶς ὁρῶν βουλομένους, ἐπειδὴ καὶ ὁ τετελευτηκῶς ἀπεστέρηται τούτου. «Ἰων γοῦν ὁ τραγικὸς ποιητής, οὐκ ἀνήκοος ῶν τῆς τούτων εὐηθείας,¹ πεποίηκέ τινα λέγουσαν· > έξηλθον ύμων ίκέτις ήβώντων³ τροφός παίδων, βόθρους λιποῦσα πενθητηρίους.

τινές δὲ τῶν βαρβάρων καὶ μέρη τοῦ σώματος ἀποτέμνουσι, ῥῖνας καὶ ὧτα, καὶ τὸ ἄλλο σῶμα καταικίζοντες, δοκοῦντές τι χαρίζεσθαι τοῖς τετελευτηκόσιν ἀπαρτώμενοι τῆς κατὰ φύσιν ἐν τοῖς τοιούτοις μετριοπαθείας.

C 23. 'Αλλὰ νη Δία τινὲς ὑποτυγχάνοντες οὐκ ἐπὶ παντὶ θανάτῷ τὰ πένθη δεῖν οἴονται γίγνεσθαι, ἀλλ' ἐπὶ τοῦς ἀώροις, διὰ τὸ μηδενὸς τετυχηκέναι τῶν ἐν τῷ βίῷ νενομισμένων ἀγαθῶν, οἶον γάμου παιδείας τελειότητος πολιτείας ἀρχῶν (ταῦτα γὰρ εἶναι τὰ λυποῦντα μάλιστα τοὺς ἐπὶ τοῦς ἀώροις ἀτυχοῦντας, διὰ τὸ ἀφηρῆσθαι πρὸ τοῦ δέοντος τῆς ἐλπίδος), ἀγνοοῦντες ὅτι ὅ ἄωρος θάνατος ὡς πρὸς τὴν τῶν ἀνθρώπων φύσιν οὐδὲν διαφέρει.

1 εύηθείας] συνηθείας Hartman.

² The reading $\dot{\upsilon}\mu\omega\nu$. . $\dot{\eta}\beta\omega\nu\tau\omega\nu$ is found only in one MS. (B); the rest give nothing intelligible. 166 women are more given to it than men, and barbarians more than Greeks, and inferior men more than better men; and of the barbarians themselves, not the most noble, Celts and Galatians, and all who by nature are filled with a more manly spirit, but rather, if such there are, the Egyptians and Syrians and Lydians and all those who are like them. For it is recorded that some of these go down into pits and remain there for several days, not desiring even to behold the light of the sun since the deceased also is bereft of it. At any rate the tragic poet Ion,^a who was not without knowledge of the foolishness of these peoples, has represented a woman as saying :

A LETTER TO APOLLONIUS, 113

> The nurse of lusty children I have come, To supplicate you, from the mourning pits.

And some of the barbarians even cut off parts of their bodies, their noses and ears, and mutilate other portions of their bodies also, thinking to gratify the dead by abandoning that moderation of feeling which Nature enjoins in such cases.

23. But I dare say that, in answer to this, some may assert their belief that there need not be mourning for every death, but only for untimely deaths, because of the failure of the dead to gain what are commonly held to be the advantages of life, such as marriage, education, manhood, citizenship, or public office (for these are the considerations, they say, which most cause grief to those who suffer misfortune through untimely deaths, since they are robbed of their hope out of due time); but they do not realize that the untimely death shows no disparity if it be considered with reference to the • Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag. p. 743, Ion, No. 54.

(113) καθάπερ γαρ της είς καινήν πατρίδα πορείας προκειμένης πασιν άναγκαίας και άπαραιτήτου οί μεν προπορεύονται οί δ' έπακολουθοῦσι, πάντες δ' έπι ταυτόν έρχονται, τόν αυτόν τρόπον των είς τό χρεών όδευόντων ούδεν πλέον έχοντες τυγχά-D νουσιν οί βραδύτερον αφικνούμενοι των θάττον παραγιγνομένων. εἶ γε μὴν δ ἄωρος θάνατος κακόν ἐστιν, ἀωρότατος ἂν εἶη ὁ τῶν νηπίων καὶ παίδων καὶ ἔτι μᾶλλον ὁ τῶν ἄρτι γεγονότων. άλλά τούς τούτων θανάτους ραδίως φέρομεν καί εύθύμως, τούς δε των ήδη προβεβηκότων δυσχερώς καί πενθικώς διά τον έκ ματαίων έλπίδων άναπλασμόν, ήδη νομιζόντων ήμῶν βεβαίαν ἔχειν τὴν τῶν τηλικούτων διαμονήν. εἰ δ' ὁ τῆς ζωῆς τῶν ἀνθρώπων χρόνος εἰκοσαέτης ἦν, τὸν πεντεκαιδεκαέτη ἀπογενόμενον ἐνομίζομεν ἂν μηκέτ άωρον τελευταν άλλ' ήδη μέτρον ήλικίας έχοντα Ε ίκανόν τον δε την των είκοσιν ετών προθεσμίαν έκπληρώσαντα η τόν έγγυς γενόμενον τοῦ τῶν εἴκοσιν ἐτῶν ἀριθμοῦ πάντως ἂν ἐμακαρίζομεν ὡς εύδαιμονέστατον και τελειότατον διαπεράσαντα βίον. εί δε διακοσίων ετών ήν, τον εκατον ετών τελευτήσαντα πάντως αν αωρον νομίζοντες είναι πρός όδυρμούς και θρήνους έτραπόμεθα.

24. Δηλον οῦν ὅτι καὶ ὁ λεγόμενος ἄωρος θάνατος εὐπαραμύθητός ἐστι διά τε ταῦτα καὶ τὰ προειρημένα ἐν τοῦς ἔμπροσθεν. μεῖον γὰρ ὅντως F ἐδάκρυσε Τρωίλος η Πρίαμος· οὐδ' οῦτος,² εἰ καινήν F.C.B. : κοινήν.

 οὐδ' οῦτος F.C.B. : οῦτος οτ αὐτός.

• A saying of Callimachus; cf. Cicero, Tusculan Disputations, i. 93 (39); Plutarch, Moralia, 211 A. 168 common lot of man. For just as when it has been decided to migrate to a new fatherland, and the journey is compulsory for all, and none by entreaty can escape it, some go on ahead and others follow after, but all come to the same place; in the same manner, of all who are journeying toward Destiny those who come more tardily have no advantage over those who arrive earlier. If it be true that untimely death is an evil, the most untimely would be that of infants and children, and still more that of the newly born. But such deaths we bear easily and cheerfully, but the deaths of those who have already lived some time with distress and mourning because of our fanciful notion, born of vain hopes, since we have come to feel quite assured of the continued tarrying with us of persons who have lived so long. But if the years of man's life were but twenty, we should feel that he who passed away at fifteen had not died untimely, but that he had already attained an adequate measure of age, while the man who had completed the prescribed period of twenty years, or who had come close to the count of twenty years, we should assuredly deem happy as having lived through a most blessed and perfect life. But if the length of life were two hundred years, we should certainly feel that he who came to his end at one hundred was cut off untimely, and we should betake ourselves to wailing and lamentation.

24. It is evident, therefore, that even the death which we call untimely readily admits of consolation, both for these reasons and for those previously given. For in fact Troilus shed fewer tears than did Priam; a προετελεύτησεν ἔτ' ἀκμαζούσης αὐτῷ τῆς βασιλείας καὶ τῆς τοσαύτης τύχης, ἂν' ἐθρήνει οἶα γοῦν πρὸς τὸν ἑαυτοῦ διελέχθη υἱὸν Ἐκτορα, παραινῶν ἀναχωρεῖν ἀπὸ τῆς πρὸς τὸν Ἐκτορα, μάχης, ἐν οἶς φησιν·

ἀλλ' εἰσέρχεο τεῖχος, ἐμὸν τέκος, ὅφρα σαώσης Τρῶας καὶ Τρῳάς,³ μηδὲ μέγα κῦδος ὀρέξης Πηλείδη, αὐτὸς δὲ φίλης αἰῶνος ἀμερθῆς 114 πρὸς δ' ἐμὲ τὸν δύστηνον ἔτι φρονέοντ' ἐλέησον, δύσμορον, ὅν ῥα πατὴρ Κρονίδης ἐπὶ γήραος οὐδῷ αἶσῃ ἐν ἀργαλέῃ φθίσει, κακὰ πόλλ' ἐπιδόντα, υἶάς τ' ὀλλυμένους, ἑλκηθείσας τε θύγατρας, καὶ θαλάμους κεραϊζομένους, καὶ νήπια τέκνα βαλλόμενα ποτὶ γαίῃ, ἐν αἰνῃ δηϊοτῆτι, εἰλκομένας τε νυοὺς ὀλοῆς ὑπὸ χερσὶν 'Αχαιῶν.' αὐτὸν δ' ἂν πύματόν με κύνες πρώτῃσι θύρῃσι ἀμησταὶ ἐρύωσιν,^{*} ἐπεί κέ τις ὀξέι χαλκῷ
Β τύψας ἠὲ βαλὼν ῥεθέων ἐκ θυμὸν ἕληται.

Β τύψας ή βαλών ρέθέων ἐκ θυμόν ἕληται. ἀλλ' ὅτε δὴ πολιόν τε κάρη πολιόν τε γένειον αἰδῶ τ' αἰσχύνωσι κύνες κταμένοιο γέροντος, τοῦτο δὴ οἴκτιστον πέλεται δειλοῦσι βροτοῦσιν. ἡ ρ' ὁ γέρων· πολιὰς δ' ắρ' ἀνὰ τρίχας ἕλκετο χερσί, τίλλων έκ κεφαλής, οὐδ' Έκτορι θυμον ἔπειθεν.

Οντων ούν σοι παμπόλλων παραδειγμάτων περί

1 dv F.C.B. : ήσσον av Madvig : ήν or ήs.

² Τρψάs Homer, X 56: τρωϊάδαs.

³ $\delta \lambda \kappa o \mu \delta \nu r a \dots \lambda \chi a \iota \omega \nu$] this verse is omitted in most MSS. of Plutarch.

⁴ ἐρύωσιν (or ἐρύσωσιν)] ἐρύουσιν Homer and one MS.

• Homer, Il. xxii. 56.

A LETTER TO APOLLONIUS, 113-114

and if Priam had died earlier, while his kingdom and his great prosperity were at their height, he would not have used such sad words as he did in his conversation with his own son Hector, when he advised him to withdraw from the battle with Achilles; he says:^a

- Come then within the walled city, my son, so to save from destruction
- All of the men and the women of Troy, nor afford a great triumph
- Unto the offspring of Peleus, and forfeit the years of your lifetime.
- Also for me have compassion, ill-starred, while yet I have feeling;
- Hapless I am; on the threshold of eld will the Father, descended from Cronus,
- Make me to perish in pitiful doom, after visions of evils,
- Sons being slain and our daughters as well being dragged to be captives,
- Chambers of treasure all wantonly plundered and poor little children
- Dashed to the earth in the terrible strife by the merciless foeman,
- Wives of my sons being dragged by the ravishing hands of Achaeans.
- Me, last of all, at the very front doors shall the dogs tear to pieces,
- Ravening, eager for blood, when a foeman wielding his weapon,
- Keen-edged of bronze, by a stroke or a throw, takes the life from my body.
- Yet when the dogs bring defilement on hair and on beard that is hoary,
- And on the body as well of an old man slain by the foeman, This is the saddest of sights ever seen by us unhappy mortals."
- Thus did the old man speak, and his hoary locks plucked by the handful,
- Tearing his hair from his head, but he moved not the spirit of Hector.

Since you have, then, so very many examples 171

(114) τούτων έννοήθητι τον θάνατον ουκ ολίγους άπαλ-λάττειν μεγάλων και χαλεπών κακών, ών, εί C επεβίωσαν, πάντως αν επειράθησαν. α φειδόμενος της τοῦ λόγου συμμετρίας παρέλιπον, ἀρκεσθεὶς τοῖς εἰρημένοις πρὸς τὸ μὴ δεῖν πέρα τοῦ φυσικοῦ καὶ μετρίου πρὸς ἄπρακτα πένθη καὶ θρήνους άγεννεις έκτρέπεσθαι.

25. Το γάρ μή δι' αύτον κακώς πράττειν ό μέν Κράντωρ φησίν ου μικρόν είναι κούφισμα πρός τάς τύχας, έγω δ' αν είποιμι φάρμακον άλυπίας είναι μέγιστον. το δε φιλεῖν τον μεταλλάξαντα καὶ στέργειν οὐκ ἐν τῷ λυπεῖν ἑαυτούς ἐστιν, ἀλλ' ἐν τῷ τὸν ἀγαπώμενον ὠφελεῖν ὡψέλεια δ' ἐστὶ τοῖς D ἀφηρημένοις ἡ διὰ τῆς ἀγαθῆς μνήμης τιμή. οὐδεὶς γὰρ ἀγαθὸς ἄξιος θρήνων ἀλλ' ὕμνων καὶ παιάνων, ' οὐδὲ πένθους ἀλλὰ μνήμης εὐκλεοῦς, ούδε δακρύων επωδύνων άλλά θυσιών² άπαρχών, εί γ' ό μετηλλαχώς θειότερόν τινα βίον μετείληφεν, άπαλλαγείς της του σώματος λατρείας και των άτρύτων τούτων φροντίδων τε καί συμφορών, ας άνάγκη τους είληχότας τον θνητον βίον υπομένειν, έως ἂν ἐκπλήσωσι τὸν ἐπικλωσθέντα τῆς ζωῆς βίον,³ δν έδωκεν ήμιν ή φύσις ούκ είς απαντα τον χρόνον, αλλά καθ έκαστον απένειμε τον μερι-σθέντα κατά τους της είμαρμένης νόμους.

Ε 26. Διό τούς εῦ φρονοῦντας ἐπὶ τοῖς ἀποθνησκουσιν ού χρή πέρα τοῦ φυσικοῦ καὶ μετρίου τῆς περί την ψυχην λύπης είς απρακτα και βαρβαρικά παιάνων Lennep: ἐπαίνων.

 ἀλλὰ θυσιῶν F.C.B.: ἀλλὰ θείων Pierson: ἀλλ' ἐτείων Reiske: ἀλλ' ἀστείων.
 βίον] μίτον Hercher, κλῆρον Paton.

[&]quot; Mullach, Frag. Philos. Graec. iii. p. 149.

regarding the matter, bear in mind the fact that death relieves not a few persons from great and grievous ills which, if they had lived on, they would surely have experienced. But, out of regard for the due proportions of my argument, I omit these, contenting myself with what has been said touching the wrongfulness of being carried away beyond natural and moderate bounds to futile mourning and ignoble lamentation.

25. Crantor a says that not being to blame for one's unhappy state is no small alleviation for misfortunes ; but I should say that it surpasses all others as a remedy for the cure of grief. But affection and love for the departed does not consist in distressing ourselves, but in benefiting the beloved one; and a benefit for those who have been taken away is the honour paid to them through keeping their memory green. For no good man, after he is dead, is deserving of lamentations, but of hymns and songs of joy ; not of mourning, but of an honourable memory ; not of sorrowing tears, but of offerings of sacrifice,---if the departed one is now a partaker in some life more divine, relieved of servitude to the body, and of these everlasting cares and misfortunes which those who have received a mortal life as their portion are constrained to undergo until such time as they shall complete their allotted earthly existence, which Nature has not given to us for eternity; but she has distributed to us severally the apportioned amount in accordance with the laws of fate.

26. Wherefore, over those who die men of good sense ought not to be carried away by sorrow beyond the natural and moderate limit of grief, which so affects the soul, into useless and barbarian πένθη παρεκτρέπεσθαι καὶ τοῦθ' ὅπερ πολλοῖς ἤδη συνέβη περιμένειν, ὥστε πρὶν ἀπώσασθαι τὰ πένθη κακουχουμένους τελευτῆσαι τὸν βίον καὶ ἐν τοῖς πενθίμοις τῆς κακοδαίμονος ταφῆς μεταλαβεῖν, ἅμα τῶν τε ἀνιαρῶν καὶ τῶν ἐκ τῆς ἀλογιστίας κακῶν συγκηδευομένων αὐτοῖς, ὥστ' ἐπιφθέγξασθαι τὸ ὑΩμηρικόν μυρομένοισι δε τοισι μέλας επί εσπερος ήλθε.

Διό και πολλάκις αύτοις προσδιαλέγεσθαι χρή, F "τί δέ; παυσόμεθά ποτε λυπούμενοι η άκαταπαύστω συμφορά συνεσόμεθα μέχρι παντός τοῦ βίου: "το γαρ δη ατελεύτητον νομίζειν το πένθος άνοίας έστιν έσχάτης, καίτοι γ' όρωντας ώς καί οί βαρυλυπότατοι και πολυπενθέστατοι πραότατοι γίγνονται πολλάκις ύπο του χρόνου, και έν οίς έδυσχέραινον σφόδρα μνήμασιν ανοιμώζοντες καί στερνοτυπούμενοι λαμπράς εύωχίας συνίστανται μετά μουσουργών και της άλλης διαχύσεως. μεμηνότος ούν έστι το ούτως ύπολαμβάνειν παρά-115 μονον έξειν το πένθος. άλλ' ει λογίζοινθ' ότι παύσεταί τινος γενομένου, προσαναλογίσαιντ' αν γρόνου δηλαδή τι ποιήσαντος. το μέν γάρ γεγενημένον ούδε θεώ δυνατόν έστι ποιήσαι άγένητον. ούκοῦν τὸ νῦν παρ' ἐλπίδα συμβεβηκὸς καὶ παρὰ την ημετέραν δόξαν έδειξε το είωθος περί πολλούς

¹ νομίζειν] νομίζειν τι in many Mss.

^a Combined from Il. xxiii. 109, and Od. i. 423 (= Od. xviii. 306). 174 mourning, and they ought not to wait for that outcome which has already been the lot of many in the past, the result of which is that they terminate their own lives in misery before they have put off their mourning, and gain nothing but a forlorn burial in their garments of sorrow, as their woes and the ills born of their unreasonableness follow them to the grave, so that one might utter over them the verse of Homer : ^a While they were weeping and wailing black darkness descended upon them.

We should therefore often hold converse with ourselves after this fashion and say : "What? Shall we some day cease grieving, or shall we consort with unceasing misery to the very end of our life?" For to regard our mourning as unending is the mark of the most extreme foolishness, especially when we observe how those who have been in the deepest grief and greatest mourning often become most cheerful under the influence of time, and at the very tombs where they gave violent expression to their grief by wailing and beating their breasts, they arrange most elaborate banquets with musicians and all the other forms of diversion. It is accordingly the mark of a madman thus to assume that he shall keep his mourning permanently. If, however, men should reason that mourning will come to an end after some particular event, they might go on and reason that it will come to an end when time, forsooth, has produced some effect; for not even God can undo what has been done. So, then, that which in the present instance has come to pass contrary to our expectation and contrary to our opinion has only demonstrated what is wont, through 175 (115) γίγνεσθαι δι' αὐτῶν τῶν ἔργων. τί οὖν; ἀρά γ' ἡμεῖς τοῦτο διὰ τοῦ λόγου μαθεῖν οὐ δυνάμεθα οὐδ' ἐπιλογίσασθαι ὅτι > πλείη μὲν γαῖα κακῶν πλείη δὲ θάλασσα καὶ τά· τοιάδε θνητοΐσι κακά κακών

ἀμφί τε κῆρες εἰλεῦνται, κενεὴ δ' εἴσδυσις οὐδ' αἰθέρι;

27. Πολλοΐς γάρ και σοφοΐς άνδράσιν, ώς φησι Κράντωρ, οὐ νῦν ἀλλὰ πάλαι κέκλαυσται τἀνθρώπινα, τιμωρίαν ήγουμένοις είναι τον βίον και άρχην το γενέσθαι άνθρωπον συμφοράν την μεγίστην. τοῦτο δέ φησιν 'Αριστοτέλης και τον Σειληνόν συλληφθέντα τῷ Μίδα ἀποφήνασθαι. βέλτιον δ' αὐτὰς τας τοῦ φιλοσόφου λέξεις παραθέσθαι. φησί δη έν τῷ Εὐδήμω ἐπιγραφομένω η Περί ψυχής ταυτί. "διόπερ, ὦ κράτιστε πάντων και μακαριστότατε, πρός τω μακαρίους και ευδαίμονας είναι τους τετε-Ο λευτηκότας νομίζειν και το ψεύσασθαί τι κατ' αυτων καί το βλασφημείν ούχ όσιον ώς κατά βελτιόνων ήγούμεθα και κρειττόνων ήδη γεγονότων. και ταῦθ' οὕτως ἀρχαῖα καὶ παλαιὰ¹ παρ' ἡμῖν, ὥστε τό παράπαν ούδεις οίδεν ούτε του χρόνου την άρχην ούτε τον θέντα πρώτον, άλλά τον απειρον αίωνα διατελεί² νενομισμένα. πρός δε δή τούτοις

¹ παλαιά Sauppe: παλαιά διατελεῖ νενομισμένα.

² διατέλει Sauppe: $\tau v \gamma \chi \acute{a} v o v \sigma i$ διὰ τέλους οῦτω. The chance is remote that such emendations can be right, but they do not affect the sense.

^a Hesiod, Works and Days, 101; cf. 105 E supra.

B

the very course of events, to happen in the case of many men. What then? Are we unable, through reason, to learn this fact and draw the conclusion, that Full is the earth now of evils, and full of them too is the ocean, * and also this :

Such woes of woes for mortal men, And round about the Fates throng close : There is no vacant pathway for the air ? •

27. Not merely now, but long ago, as Crantor ° says, the lot of man has been bewailed by many wise men, who have felt that life is a punishment and that for man to be born at all is the greatest calamity. Aristotle^d says that Silenus when he was captured declared this to Midas. It is better to quote the very words of the philosopher. He says, in the work which is entitled Eudemus, or Of the Soul, the following : "' Wherefore, O best and blessedest of all, in addition to believing that those who have ended this life are blessed and happy, we also think that to say anything false or slanderous against them is impious, from our feeling that it is directed against those who have already become our betters and superiors. And this is such an old and ancient belief with us that no one knows at all either the beginning of the time or the name of the person who first promulgated it, but it continues to be a fixed belief for all time.

^b From an unknown lyric poet; cf. Bergk, Poet. Lyr. Graec. iii. p. 689.

^c Mullach, Frag. Philos. Graec. iii. p. 149.

⁴ Cf. Cicero, Tusculan Disputations, i. 48 (114), and Aristotle, Frag. No. 44 Rose.

· Cf. Sophocles, Antigone, 466.

(115) τοι δια στόματος ον² τοις ανθρώποις όρας ώς έκ πολλών ἐτών περιφέρεται θρυλούμενον." "τί τοῦτ'; " ἔφη. κἀκεῖνος ὑπολαβών " ὡς ἄρα μὴ γενέσθαι[®] μέν," ἔφη, " ἄριστον πάντων, τὸ δὲ D τεθνάναι τοῦ ζῆν ἐστι κρεῖττον. καὶ πολλοῖς οὕτω παρά τοῦ δαιμονίου μεμαρτύρηται. τοῦτο μέν έκείνω τω Μίδα λέγουσι δήπου μετά την θήραν ώς έλαβε τον Σειληνόν διερωτώντι και πυνθανομένω τί ποτ' έστι το βέλτιστον τοις ανθρώποις και τί το πάντων αίρετώτατον, το μέν πρωτον οὐδέν έθέλειν είπεῖν ἀλλὰ σιωπῶν ἀρρήτως· ἐπειδὴ δέ ποτε μόγις πασαν μηχανήν μηχανώμενος προσ-ηγάγετο φθέγξασθαί τι πρός αὐτόν, οὕτως ἀναγκαζόμενον είπειν, 'δαίμονος επιπόνου και τύχης χαλεπης έφήμερον σπέρμα, τί με βιάζεσθε λέγειν α ύμιν Ε άρειον μή γνωναι; μετ' άγνοίας γάρ των οἰκείων κακών άλυπότατος ό βίος. άνθρώποις δε πάμπαν ούκ έστι γενέσθαι το πάντων άριστον ούδε μετα-σχείν της του βελτίστου φύσεως (αριστον γαρ πασι και πάσαις το μη γενέσθαι). το μέντοι μετα τοῦτο καὶ πρῶτον τῶν ἀνθρώπῳ ἀνυστῶν, δεύτερον δέ, το γενομένους αποθανειν ώς τάχιστα.' δηλον ούν ώς ούσης κρείττονος της έν τω τεθνάναι διαγωγης η της έν τῷ ζην, ουτως ἀπεφήνατο." μυρία δ' ἐπὶ μυρίοις αν τις έχοι τοιαθτα παρατίθεσθαι πρός ταύτό κεφάλαιον· άλλ' ούκ άναγκαῖον μακρηγορείν.

¹ $\tau \delta$ added by Kronenberg.

2 öv Halm : ev.

3 γενέσθαι Bernardakis: γίνεσθαι.

 ⁴ βέλτιστον Meziriacus : βέλτιον.
 ⁵ ἀνθρώπψ ἀνυστῶν Reiske (a harmless emendation): ἄλλων άνυστόν.

A LETTER TO APOLLONIUS, 115

And in addition to this you observe how the saying, which is on the lips of all men, has been passed from mouth to mouth for many years.' 'What is this?' said he. And the other, again taking up the discourse, said : 'That not to be born is the best of all, and that to be dead is better than to live. And the proof that this is so has been given to many men by the deity. So, for example, they say that Silenus, after the hunt in which Midas of yore had captured him, when Midas questioned and inquired of him what is the best thing for mankind and what is the most preferable of all things, was at first unwilling to tell, but maintained a stubborn silence. But when at last, by employing every device, Midas induced him to say something to him, Silenus, forced to speak, said : "Ephemeral offspring of a travailing genius and of harsh fortune, why do you force me to speak what it were better for you men not to know? For a life spent in ignorance of one's own woes is most free from grief. But for men it is utterly impossible that they should obtain the best thing of all, or even have any share in its nature (for the best thing for all men and women is not to be born); however, the next best thing to this, and the first of those to which man can attain, but nevertheless only the second best, is, after being born, to die as quickly as possible." a It is evident, therefore, that he made this declaration with the conviction that the existence after death is better than that in life.'" One might cite thousands and thousands of examples under this same head, but there is no need to be prolix.

 Cf. Theognis, 425; Bacchylides, v. 160; Sophocles, Oed. Col. 1225; Cicero, Tusculan Disputations, i. 48 (115).
 VOL. II
 G 179

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

F 28. Οὐ χρὴ οὖν τοὺς ἀποθνήσκοντας νέους θρηνεῖν ὅτι τῶν ἐν τῷ μακρῷ βίῳ νομιζομένων ἀγαθῶν ἀπεστέρηνται· τοῦτο γὰρ ἄδηλον, ὡς πολλάκις εἶπομεν, εἶτ' ἀγαθῶν ἀπεστερημένοι τυγχάνουσιν εἶτε κακῶν· πολλῷ γὰρ πλείονα τὰ κακά. καὶ τὰ μὲν μόγις καὶ διὰ πολλῶν φροντίδων κτώμεθα, τὰ δὲ κακὰ πάνυ ῥαδίως· στρογγύλα γὰρ εἶναί φασι ταῦτα καὶ συνεχῆ καὶ πρὸς ἄλληλα φερόμενα κατὰ πολλὰς αἰτίας, τὰ δ' ἀγαθὰ διεχῆ τε καὶ δυσκόλως συνερχόμενα πρὸς αὐτοῖς τοῦ βίου τοῖς τέρμασιν. 116 ἐπιλελησμένοις οῦν ἐοίκαμεν ὅτι οὐ μόνον, ὡς φησιν Εὐριπίδης,

"τὰ χρήματα" οὐκ "ἴδια κέκτηνται βροτοί," ἀλλ' ἁπλῶς τῶν ἀνθρωπίνων οὐδέν. διὸ καὶ ἐπὶ πάντων λέγειν χρή τά των θεων δ' έχοντες επιμελούμεθα. ὅταν δε χρήζωσ', αυτ' άφαιροῦνται πάλιν.

οὐ δεῖ οὖν δυσφορεῖν, ἐἀν ἅ ἔχρησαν ἡμῖν πρὸς ὀλίγον, ταῦτ' ἀπαιτῶσιν· οὐδὲ γὰρ οἱ τραπεζῖται, καθάπερ εἰώθαμεν λέγειν πολλάκις, ἀπαιτούμενοι τὰ θέματα δυσχεραίνουσιν ἐπὶ τῆ ἀποδόσει, ἐἀνπερ εὐγνωμονῶσι. πρὸς γὰρ τοὺς οὐκ εὐμαρῶς ἀπο-Β διδόντας εἰκότως ἄν τις εἴποι '' ἐπελάθου ὅτι ταῦτ' ἕλαβες ἐπὶ τῷ ἀποδοῦναι; '' τοῦτο δὴ τοῖς θνητοῖς ἅπασι συμβέβηκεν. ἔχομεν γὰρ τὸ ζῆν ὥσπερ παρακαταθεμένοις θεοῖς ἐξ ἀνάγκης, ' καὶ τούτου χρόνος οὐδείς ἐστιν ὡρισμένος τῆς ἀποδόσεως, ¹ ἀνάγκης] ἀνάγκης ἀποδώσοντες Wyttenbach.

^a Adapted from the Phoenissae, 555. ^b Ibid. 556. ^c Cf. Cebes, Tabula, xxxi., and Cicero, Tusculan Disputations, i. 39 (93). 180

A LETTER TO APOLLONIUS, 115-116

28. We ought not, therefore, to lament those who die young on the ground that they have been deprived of those things which in a long life are accounted good; for this is uncertain, as we have often said—whether the things of which they have been deprived are good or evil; for the evils are much the more numerous. And whereas we acquire the good things only with difficulty and at the expense of many anxieties, the evils we acquire very easily For they say that the latter are compact and conjoined, and are brought together by many influences, while the good things are disjoined, and hardly manage to unite towards the very end of life. We therefore resemble men who have forgotten, not merely, as Euripides ^a says, that

Mortals are not the owners of their wealth, but also that they do not own a single one of human possessions. Wherefore we must say in regard to all things that

We keep and care for that which is the gods',

And when they will they take it back again."

We ought not, therefore, to bear it with bad grace if the gods make demand upon us for what they have loaned us for a short time.^c For even the bankers, as we are in the habit of saying frequently, when demand is made upon them for the return of deposits, do not chafe at the repayment, if they be honourable men. To those who do not make repayment with good grace one might fairly say, "Have you forgotten that you accepted this on condition that you should return it?" Quite parallel is the lot of all mortals. For we hold our life, as it were, on deposit from the gods, who have compelled us to accept the account, and there is no fixed time for 181 (116) ώσπερ οὐδὲ τοῖς τραπεζίταις τῆς τῶν θεμάτων, ἀλλ' ἄδηλον πόθ' ὁ δοὺς ἀπαιτήσει. ὁ οὖν ἢ αὐτὸς μέλλων ἀποθνήσκειν ἢ τέκνων ἀποθανόντων ὑπεραγανακτῶν πῶς οὐ καταφανῶς ἐπιλέλησται ὅτι καὶ αὐτὸς ἄνθρωπός ἐστι καὶ τὰ τέκνα θνητὰ ἐγέννησεν; οὐ γάρ ἐστι φρένας ἔχοντος ἀνθρώπου ἀγνοεῖν ὅτι ὁ ἄνθρωπος ζῷόν ἐστι θνητόν, οὐδ' ὅτι γέγονεν εἰς C τὸ ἀποθανεῖν. εἰ γοῦν ἡ Νιόβη κατὰ τοὺς μύθους πρόχειρον εἶχε τὴν ὑπόληψιν ταύτην ὅτι καὶ ἡ > θαλέθοντι βίω βλάσταις τε τέκνων βριθομένα γλυκερον φάος δρώσα τελευτήσει, ούκ ἂν οὕτως ἐδυσχέραινεν ὡς καὶ τὸ ζῆν ἐθέλειν ἐκλιπεῖν διὰ τὸ μέγεθος τῆς συμφορᾶς, καὶ τοὺς θεοὺς ἐπικαλεῖσθαι ἀνάρπαστον αὐτὴν γενέσθαι πρὸς ἀπώλειαν τὴν χαλεπωτάτην.

Δύ' ἐστὶ τῶν Δελφικῶν γραμμάτων τὰ μάλιστ' ἀναγκαιότατα πρὸς τὸν βίον, τὸ '' γνῶθι σαυτὸν '' D καὶ τὸ '' μηδὲν ἄγαν ''· ἐκ τούτων γὰρ ἤρτηται καὶ τἄλλα πάντα. ταῦτα γάρ ἐστιν ἀλλήλοις συνϣδὰ καὶ σύμφωνα, καὶ διὰ θατέρου θάτερον ἔοικε δηλοῦσθαι κατὰ δύναμιν. ἔν τε γὰρ τῷ γιγνώσκειν ἑαυτὸν περιέχεται τὸ μηδὲν ἄγαν, καὶ ἐν τούτῷ τὸ γιγνώσκειν ἑαυτόν. διὸ καὶ περὶ μὲν τούτου φησὶν ὁ ^{*}Ιων οὕτως· > τό '' γνωθι σαυτόν '' τοῦτ' ἔπος μὲν οὐ μέγα, ἔργον δ' ὅσον Ζεὐς μόνος ἐπίσταται θεῶν,

^a From an unknown poet; cf. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Adespota, No. 373, and Bergk, Poet. Lyr. Graec. iii. p. 720. ^b Cf. Plato, Protagoras, p. 343 B, and Charmides, p. 165 Δ; 182 its return, just as with the bankers and their deposits, but it is uncertain when the depositor will demand payment. If a man, therefore, is exceedingly indignant, either when he himself is about to die, or when his children have died, must he not manifestly have forgotten that he is but human and the father of children who are mortal? For it is not characteristic of a man of sense to be unaware of the fact that man is a mortal creature, and that he is born to die. At any rate, if Niobe of the fable had had this conception ready at hand, that even the woman who, > Laden with the happy burden Of sweet life and growing children, Looks upon the pleasant sunlight,^a must die, she would not have been so resentful as to wish to abandon life on account of the magnitude of her misfortune, and to implore the gods that she herself might be hurried to the most awful perdition.

There are two of the inscriptions at Delphi^{b} which are most indispensable to living. These are : "Know thyself" and "Avoid extremes," for on these two commandments hang all the rest. These two are in harmony and agreement with each other, and the one seems to be made as clear as possible through the other. For in self-knowledge is included the avoidance of extremes, and in the latter is included selfknowledge. Therefore Ion ^c speaks of the former as follows :

> Not much to say is "Know thyself"; to do This, Zeus alone of gods doth understand.

Aristotle, Rhetoric, ii. 12, 14; Pausanias, x. 24, 1; Plutarch, Moralia, 167 B, 385 D, and 511 B, and De vita et poesi Homeri. 151.

· Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag. p. 743, Ion, No. 55.

(116) δ δέ Πίνδαρος.

"σοφοὶ δέ," φησί, " καὶ τὸ ' μηδὲν ἄγαν' ἔπος αἴνεσσαν περισσῶς."

29. Ταῦτ' οὖν ἐν διανοία τις ἔχων ὡς πυθό-Ε χρηστα παραγγέλματα πρὸς πάντα τὰ τοῦ βίου πράγματα ἑαδίως ἐφαρμόζειν δυνήσεται καὶ φέρειν αὐτὰ δεξιῶς, εἴς τε τὴν αὑτοῦ φύσιν ἀφορῶν καὶ εἰς τὸ μὴ πέρα τοῦ προσήκοντος ἐν τοῖς προσπίπτουσιν ἢ διαίρεσθαι πρὸς ἀλαζονείαν ἢ ταπεινοῦσθαι καὶ καταπίπτειν πρὸς οἴκτους καὶ ὀλοφυρμοὺς διὰ τὴν τῆς ψυχῆς ἀσθένειαν καὶ τὸν ἐμφυόμενον ἡμῶν τοῦ θανάτου φόβον παρὰ τὴν ἄγνοιαν τῶν εἰωθότων ἐν τῷ βίω συμβαίνειν κατὰ τὴν τῆς ἀνάγκης ἢ πεπρωμένης μοῦραν. καλῶς δ' οἱ Πυθαγόρειοι παρεκελεύσαντο λέγοντες.

οσσα δὲ δαιμονίησι τύχαις βροτοὶ ἄλγε' ἔχουσιν, F η̂ν ἂν μοῦραν ἔχης, ταύτην ἔχε μηδ' ἀγανάκτει, και ό τραγικός Αισχύλος.

ανδρών γάρ έστιν ένδίκων τε καὶ σοφών καν τοῖσι δεινοῖς¹ μὴ τεθυμῶσθαι θεοῖς, καί ό Εύριπίδης.

οστις δ' ἀνάγκῃ συγκεχώρηκεν βροτῶν σοφὸς παρ' ἡμῖν καὶ τὰ θεῖ' ἐπίσταται, καὶ ἐν ἄλλοις·

¹ κάν τοΐσι δεινοΐς Stobaeus, Flor. cviii. 43: έν τοΐς κακοΐσι οr έν τοΐς κακίστοις.

^a Frag. 216 (Christ).
^b Carmina Aurea, 17.
^c Attributed to Euripides by Stobaeus, Florilegium, cviii.
43; cf. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Euripides, No. 1078.
184

A LETTER TO APOLLONIUS, 116

And, of the other, Pindar a says :

The wise have lauded with exceeding praise the words "Avoid extremes."

29. If, then, one keeps these in mind as god-given injunctions, he will be able easily to adapt them to all the circumstances of life, and to bear with such circumstances intelligently, by being heedful of his own nature, and heedful, in whatever may befall him, not to go beyond the limit of propriety, either in being elated to boastfulness or in being humbled and cast down to wailings and lamentations, through weakness of the spirit and the fear of death which is implanted in us as a result of our ignorance of what is wont to happen in life in accordance with the decree of necessity or destiny. Excellent is the advice which the Pythagoreans^b gave, saying :

Whatsoe'er woes by the gods' dispensation all mortals must suffer,

What be the fate you must bear, you should bear it and - not be indignant.

And the tragic poet Aeschylus c says :

It is the mark of just and knowing men In woes to feel no anger at the gods;

and Euripides d :

Of mortals he who yields to fate we think Is wise and knows the ways of Providence :

and in another place ^e he says :

⁶ From an unknown play: cf. Nauck, ibid., Euripides, No. 965.

^e From the Melanippe; cf. Nauck, ibid., Euripides, No. 505.

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

τὰ προσπεσόντα δ' ὄστις εὖ φέρει βροτῶν, 117 ἄριστος εἶναι σωφρονεῖν τέ μοι δοκεῖ.

30. Οἱ δὲ πολλοὶ πάντα καταμέμφονται καὶ πάντα τὰ παρὰ τὰς ἐλπίδας αὐτοῖς συμβεβηκότα ἐξ ἐπηρείας τύχης καὶ δαιμόνων γενέσθαι' νομίζουσι. διὸ καὶ ἐπὶ πᾶσιν ὀδύρονται, στένοντες καὶ τὴν ἑαυτῶν ἀτυχίαν αἰτιώμενοι. πρὸς οῦς ὑποτυχών ἄν τις εἴποι.

θεὸς δέ σοι πῆμ' οὐδὲν ἀλλ' αὐτὸς² σὺ σοί, καὶ ἡ διὰ τὴν ἀπαιδευσίαν ἄνοια καὶ παραφροσύνη. διὰ ταύτην γοῦν τὴν διηπατημένην καὶ ψευδῆ δόξαν πάντα καταμέμφονται θάνατον. ἐἀν μὲν Β γὰρ ἐν ἀποδημία τις ῶν ἀποθάνῃ, στένουσιν ἐπιλέγοντες· δύσμορος, οὐδ' ắρα τῷ γε³ πατὴρ καὶ πότνια μήτηρ ὄσσε καθαιρήσουσιν ἐἀν δ' ἐπὶ τῆς οἰκείας πατρίδος παρόντων τῶν γονέων, ὀδύρονται ὡς ἐξαρπασθέντος ἐκ τῶν χειρῶν καὶ τὴν ἐν ὀφθαλμοῖς ὀδύνην αὐτοῖς ἀφέντος. ἐἀν δ' ἄφωνος μηδὲν προσειπὼν περὶ μηδενός, κλαίοντες λέγουσιν.

ούδέ τί μοι είπας πυκινόν έπος, οῦ τέ κεν αἰεί C μεμνήμην.

ἐἀν προσομιλήσας τι, τοῦτ' ἀεὶ πρόχειρον ἔχουσιν ὥσπερ ὑπέκκαυμα τῆς λύπης. ἐἀν ταχέως, ὀδύρονται λέγοντες '' ἀνηρπάσθη.'' ἐἀν μακρῶς, μέμ-

1 γενέσθαι Hercher: γίνεσθαι.

2 aυτόs Soph. Oed. Rex, 379: αυτώ.

 3 dús mores, oùd' ara $\tau\hat{\psi}$ $\gamma\epsilon]$ à deil', où mér sol $\gamma\epsilon$ the mss. of Homer.

A LETTER TO APOLLONIUS, 116-117

Of mortals he who bears his lot aright To me seems noblest and of soundest sense.

30. Most people grumble about everything, and have a feeling that everything which happens to them contrary to their expectations is brought about through the spite of Fortune and the divine powers. Therefore they wail at everything, and groan, and curse their luck. To them one might say in retort:

God is no bane to you ; 'tis you yourself," you and your foolish and distorted notions due to your lack of education. It is because of this fallacious and deluded notion that men cry out against any sort of death. If a man die while on a journey, they groan over him and say:

Wretched his fate; not for him shall his father or much revered mother Close his dear eyelids in death.»

But if he die in his own land with his parents at his bedside, they deplore his being snatched from their arms and leaving them the memory of the painful sight. If he die in silence without uttering a word about anything, they say amid their tears :

No, not a word did you say to me, which for the weight of its meaning Ever might dwell in my mind.

But if he talked a little at the time of his death, they keep his words always before their mind as a sort of kindling for their grief. If he die suddenly, they deplore his death, saying, "He was snatched away";

Sophocles, Oedipus Tyrannus, 379.
 Homer, Il. xi. 452.
 Homer, Il. xxiv. 744.
 VOL. II
 G 2
 187

(117) φονται ὅτι καταφθινήσας καὶ τιμωρηθεὶς¹ ἀπέθανε. πᾶσα πρόφασις ἱκανὴ πρὸς τὸ τὰς λύπας καὶ τοὺς θρήνους συνεγείρειν. ταῦτα δ' ἐκίνησαν οἱ ποιηταί, καὶ μάλιστα τούτων ὁ πρῶτος Ὅμηρος λέγων.

> ώς δὲ πατήρ οῦ παιδὸς ὀδύρεται ὀστέα καίων, νυμφίου, ὅς τε θανών δειλοὺς ἀκάχησε τοκῆας. . ἄρρητον² δὲ τοκεῦσι γόον καὶ πένθος ἔθηκε, μοῦνος τηλύγετος πολλοῖσιν ἐπὶ κτεάτεσσι.

D καὶ ταῦτα μèν οὖπω δῆλον εἰ δικαίως ὀδύρεται, ἀλλ' ὅρα τὸ ἑξῆς.

(31) τίς γὰρ οἶδεν, εἰ ὁ θεὸς πατρικῶς³ κηδόμενος τοῦ ἀνθρωπείου γένους καὶ προορώμενος τὰ μέλλοντα συμβήσεσθαι προεξάγει τινὰς ἐκ τοῦ ζῆν ἀώρους; ὅθεν οὐδὲν φευκτὸν νομιστέον αὐτοὺς πάσχειν

(δεινόν γάρ ούδεν των άναγκαίων βροτοίς οὔτε τῶν κατὰ προηγούμενον λόγον συμβαινόντων Ε οὔτε τῶν κατ' ἐπακολούθησιν), καὶ ὅτι οἱ πλεῖστοι θάνατοι πρὸ ἄλλων δυσχερῶν μειζόνων γίγνονται, καὶ ὅτι τοῖς μὲν οὐδὲ γενέσθαι συνέφερε, τοῖς δ' ἅμα τῷ γενέσθαι ἀποθανεῖν, τοῖς δὲ προελθοῦσιν ἐπὶ μικρὸν, τοῖς δ' ἀκμάζουσι. πρὸς πάντας δὴ τούτους τοὺς θανάτους ἐλαφρῶς ἑκτέον, εἰδότας

¹ τιμωρηθείs] ταλαιπωρηθείs ? Bernardakis: καταμαρανθείs Michael and Kronenberg. ² ἄρητον "exsecrabilem" is an ancient variant reading, ² $a_{\rho\eta\tau\sigma\nu}$ "exsecrabilem" is an ancient variant reading, which is kept by several editors of Homer. See Papyr. Hib. p. 73.

³ πατρικώς] πατρικώς προεστώς (for προειδώς of several MSS.) Paton.

⁴ δεινόν γὰρ οὐδὲν Clemens, Strom. iv. p. 587, and supra, 111 Λ (Nauck, p. 596): οὐδὲν γὰρ δεινόν.
 188

but if he lingered long, they complain that he wasted away and suffered before he died. Any pretext is sufficient to arouse grief and lamentations. This movement the poets initiated, and especially the first of them, Homer,ª who says :

- E'en as a father laments as the pyre of his dead son he kindles.
- Wedded not long; by his death he brought woe to his unhappy parents. Not to be told is the mourning and grief that he caused
- for his parents.

And yet so far it is not evident that the father is justified in bewailing thus. But note this next line:

Only and darlingest son, who is heir to his many possessions.

(31) For who knows but that God, having a fatherly care for the human race, and foreseeing future events, early removes some persons from life untimely? Wherefore we must believe that they undergo nothing that should be avoided. (For

In what must be, there's naught that men need dread," nor in any of those events which come to pass in accordance with the postulates or the logical deductions of reason), both because the great majority of deaths forestall other and greater troubles and because it were better for some not to be born even, for others to die at the very moment of birth, for others after they have gone on in life a little way, and for still others while they are in their full vigour. Toward all such deaths we should maintain a cheerful frame of mind, since we know that we cannot escape

^a Il. xxiii. 222, and xvii. 37.

· Il. ix. 482.

* From the Hypsipyle of Euripides, quoted supra, 110 F. 189 ότι τὴν μοῦραν οἰκ ἔστιν ἐκφυγεῖν (πεπαιδευμένων δ' ἐστὶν ἀνθρώπων προσειληφέναι¹ ὅτι βραχὺν χρόνον προειλήφασιν ήμᾶς οἱ δοκοῦντες ἄωροι τοῦ ζῆν ἐστερῆσθαι· καὶ γὰρ ὁ μακρότατος βίος ὀλίγος ἐστὶ καὶ στιγμαῖος πρὸς τὸν ἄπειρον αἰῶνα)
F καὶ ὅτι πολλοὶ τῶν ἐπὶ πλέον πενθησάντων μετ' οὐ πολὺ τοῦς ὑπ' αὐτῶν κατοδυρθεῖσιν ἐπηκολούθησαν, οὐδὲν ἐκ τοῦ πένθους ὄφελος περιποιησάμενοι, μάτην δ' ἑαυτοὺς καταικισάμενοι ταῖς κακουχίαις.

Βραχυτάτου δὲ τοῦ τῆς ἐπιδημίας ὄντος ἐν τῷ βίῳ χρόνου, οὐκ ἐν ταῖς αὐχμηραῖς λύπαις οὐδ' ἐν τῷ κακοδαιμονεστάτῳ πένθει διαφθείρειν ἑαυτοὺς δεῖ ταῖς ὀδύναις καὶ ταῖς τοῦ σώματος αἰκίαις παρατεινομένους, ἀλλὰ μεταβάλλειν ἐπὶ τὸ κρεῖττον καὶ ἀνθρωπικώτερον, πειρωμένους καὶ σπουδάζοντας ἐντυγχάνειν ἀνδράσι μὴ τοῖς συλλυπουμένοις καὶ διεγείρουσι τὰ πένθη διὰ 118 κολακείαν, ἀλλὰ τοῖς ἀφαιρουμένοις τὰς λύπας διὰ τῆς γενναίας καὶ σεμιῆς παρηγορίας, ἐπακούοντας καὶ ἔχοντας ἐν νῷ τὸ Ὁμηρικὸν τοῦτ ἔπος, ὅπερ ὅ Ἐκτωρ πρὸς τὴν ᾿Ανδρομάχην ἀντιπαρηγορῶν αὐτὴν εἶπεν ὡδι· δαιμονίη, μή μοί τι λίην ἀκαχίζεο θυμῷ· οὐ γάρ τίς μ' ὑπὲρ αἶσαν ἀνὴρ "Αιδι προϊάψει, μοῖραν δ' οὕ τινά φημι πεφυγμένον ἔμμεναι ἀνδρῶν, οὐ κακঌ৾ν οὐδὲ μὲν ἐσθλόν, ἐπὴν τὰ πρῶτα γένηται. ταύτην δὲ τὴν μοῖραν ἐν ἄλλοις ὁ ποιητής φησι· Β γεινομένῷ ἐπένησε λίνῷ, ὅτε μιν τέκε μήτηρ.

¹ προστειληφέναι F.C.B.: προειληφέναι.

A LETTER TO APOLLONIUS, 117-118

destiny. It is the mark of educated men to take it for granted that those who seem to have been deprived of life untimely have but forestalled us for a brief time; for the longest life is short and momentary in comparison with eternity. And we know, too, that many who have protracted their period of mourning have, after no long time, followed their lamented friends, without having gained any advantage from their mourning, but only useless torment by their misery.

Since the time of sojourn in life is very brief, we ought not, in unkempt grief and utterly wretched mourning, to ruin our lives by racking ourselves with mental anguish and bodily torments, but to turn to the better and more human course, by striving earnestly to converse with men who will not, for flattery, grieve with us and arouse our sorrows, but will endeavour to dispel our griefs through noble and dignified consolation. We should hearken to Homer and keep in mind those lines of his ^a which Hector spoke to Andromache, endeavouring, in his turn, to comfort her :

- Dearest, you seem much excited; be not overtroubled in spirit;
- No man beyond what is fated shall send me in death unto Hades.
- For not a man among mortals, I say, has escaped what is destined,
- Neither the base nor the noble, when once he has entered life's pathway.

Of this destiny the poet elsewhere ^b says :

When from his mother he came, in the thread of his life Fate entwined it.

^b Homer, Il. xx. 128.

[·] Il. vi. 486.

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

(118) 32. Ταῦτα πρό διανοίας λαβόντες της ἀπράκτου καί κενής απαλλαγησόμεθα βαρυπενθείας, όλίγου δη παντάπασι τοῦ μεταξὺ χρόνου τῆς ζωῆς ὄντος. φειστέον οὖν, ὅπως εὔθυμόν τε καὶ ἀπαρενόχλητον τοῦτον ταῖς πενθικαῖς λύπαις διαγάγωμεν, τὰ τοῦ πένθους παράσημα μεθέμενοι και της του σώματος έπιμελείας φροντίσαντες και της των συμβιούντων ήμῖν σωτηρίας. καλὸν δὲ καὶ μεμνῆσθαι τῶν λόγων, οἱς κατὰ τὸ εἰκὸς ἐχρησάμεθά ποτε πρὸς συγγενείς η φίλους έν ταις παραπλησίοις γενο-C μένους συμφοραίς, παραμυθούμενοι και πείθοντες τὰ κοινὰ τοῦ βίου συμπτώματα κοινῶς φέρειν καί τὰ ἀνθρώπινα ἀνθρωπίνως, καὶ μή τοῖς μέν άλλοις έπαρκείν πρός άλυπίαν δύνασθαι, έαυτοίς δέ μηδέν όφελος είναι την τούτων υπόμνησιν, δι' ών δει το άλγουν της ψυχης άποθεραπεύειν " παιωνίοις λόγου φαρμάκοις," ώς πάντων μαλλον ή άλυπίας άναβολήν δει ποιεισθαι. καίτοι γε τον έν ότωοῦν '' ἀμβολιεργον ἄταις,'' φησί, '΄ παλαίειν,'' τὸ κυκλούμενον τοῦτο παρὰ πᾶσιν D ἔπος· πολὺ δ' οἶμαι μᾶλλον τὸν ὑπερτιθέμενον τὰ της ψυχης άχθεινα πάθη και δυσάντητα πρός τον έπιόντα χρόνον.

33. ᾿Αποβλέπειν δὲ καὶ πρὸς τοὺς εὐγενῶς καὶ μεγαλοφρόνως τοὺς ἐπὶ τοῖς υἱοῖς γενομένους θανάτους καὶ πράως ὑποστάντας, ᾿Αναξαγόραν τὸν Κλαζομένιον καὶ Δημοσθένην τὸν ᾿Αθηναῖον καὶ Δίωνα τὸν Συρακόσιον καὶ τὸν βασιλέα

¹ θανάτους καl Wyttenbach: θανάτους.

Cf. Cicero, Tusculan Disputations, iii. 29-30 (71-74).
 192

A LETTER TO APOLLONIUS, 118

32. Keeping these things before our mind, we shall rid ourselves of the useless and vain extremes of mourning, since the time remaining of our life is altogether short. We must therefore be chary of it, so that we may live it in cheerfulness of spirit and without the disturbance of mournful griefs, by giving up the outward signs of sorrow and by bethinking ourselves of the care of our bodies and the welfare of those who live with us. It is a good thing also to call to mind the arguments which most likely we have sometimes employed with relatives or friends^a who found themselves in similar calamities, when we tried to comfort them and to persuade them to bear the usual happenings of life in the usual way and a man's lot like a man; and it is a good thing, too, not to put ourselves in the position of being able to help others to find relief from grief, but ourselves to have no profit in recalling the means through which we must cure the soul's distress-" by healing remedies of reason "b-since we should postpone anything else rather than the putting aside of grief. And yet one poet " says that the man who in any matter "puts off till to-morrow" is "wrestling with destruction "-a proverb which is repeated among all men. Much more, I think, is this true of the man who puts over to a future time the experiences which his soul finds so troublesome and so hard to face.

33. It is a good thing, too, to contemplate those men who nobly and high-mindedly and calmly have been resigned to the deaths which have befallen their sons—Anaxagoras of Clazomenae, Demosthenes of Athens, Dion of Syracuse, King Antigonus, and very > ^b Cf. Aeschylus, Agamemnon, 848. ^c Hesiod, Works and Days, 414.

(118) 'Αντίγονον, και συχνούς άλλους των τε παλαιών καί των καθ' ήμας.

Τούτων γὰρ ἀναξαγήραν παρειλήφαμεν, ὥς φασι, φυσιολογοῦντα καὶ διαλεγόμενον τοῖς γνωρίμοις, ακούσαντα παρά τινος των αναγγειλάντων αὐτῷ τὴν περί τὸν υίὸν τελευτήν, μικρὸν ἐπισχόντα k πρός τούς παρόντας είπειν "ήδειν ότι θνητόν έγέννησα υίόν.

Περικλέα δε τον Ολύμπιον προσαγορευθέντα διά τήν περί τον λόγον και τήν σύνεσιν ύπερβεβλημένην δύναμιν, πυθόμενον αμφοτέρους αύτοῦ τούς υίούς μετηλλαχέναι τον βίον, Πάραλόν τε καί Ξάνθιππον, ως φησι Πρωταγόρας, είπων' ουτως. "των γαρ υίέων νεηνιέων² έόντων³ και καλών, έν όκτω δε τησι πάσησιν ήμερησι αποθανόντων νηπενθέως ἀνέτλη· εὐδίης γὰρ εἴχετο, ἐξ ῆς πολλὸν ὤνητο κατὰ πᾶσαν ἡμέρην εἰς εὐποτμίην και άνωδυνίην και την έν τοισι⁵ πολλοισι δόξαν. F πας γάρ τίς μιν δρέων⁶ τα έωυτοῦ⁷ πένθεα έρρωμένως φέροντα, μεγαλόφρονά τε και ανδρήιον έδόκεε⁸ είναι καὶ ἑωυτοῦ κρέσσω,⁹ κάρτα εἰδὼς τὴν ἑωυτοῦ⁷ ἐν τοισίδε πρήγμασι¹⁰ ἀμηχανίην. τοῦτον γὰρ εὐθὺς μετὰ τὴν προσαγγελίαν ἀμφοτέρων των υίέων ούδεν ήττον εστεφανωμένον κατά το πάτριον έθος και λευχειμονούντα δημηγορείν

¹ $\epsilon l\pi \omega \nu$] a very early correction : $\epsilon l\pi \epsilon i \nu$.

² The following corrections by Bernardakis (B), Hatzidakis (Ha) and Hercher (H) are merely restorations of the regular Ionic forms: νεηνιέων Η: νεηνιών. ³ έόντων Β: δντων. ⁴ τησι Η: ταΐs. ⁵ τοΐσι Η: τοΐs. ⁶ όρέων Η: όρῶν.

⁷ έωυτοῦ Β: ἐαυτοῦ. 8 ανδρήιον έδόκεε Η: ανδρείον έδόκει.

· κρέσσω B: κρείσσω.

10 τοισίδε πρήγμασι Ha: τοιοίσδε πράγμασι.

many others among men both of earlier times and of our own day.

Of these, Anaxagoras,^a according to the traditional story, was talking about natural philosophy in conversation with his friends, when he heard from one of the messengers, who were sent to bring him the news, of the end which had befallen his son. He stopped for a moment and then said to those present, "I knew that I had begotten a son who was mortal."

Pericles,^b who was called "the Olympian" because of his surpassing power of reasoning and of understanding, learned that both his sons, Paralus and Xanthippus, had passed from life. Protagoras describes his conduct in these words : "His sons were comely youths, but though they died within seven days of each other, he bore their deaths without repining. For he continued to hold to that serenity from which day by day he added greatly to his credit of being blest by Fortune and untroubled by sorrow, and to his high repute with the people at large. For each and every man, as he beheld Pericles bearing his sorrows so stoutly, felt that he was high-minded and manful and his own superior, being only too well aware of what would be his own helplessness under such circumstances. For Pericles, immediately after the tidings about his two sons, none the less placed the garland upon his head, according to the time-honoured custom at Athens, and, clad in garb of white, harangued the people,

^a Cf. Aelian, Varia Historia, iii. 2; Galen, v. p. 418 (ed. Kuhn): Cicero, Tusculan Disputations, iii. 14 (30) and 24 (58); Valerius Maximus, v 10. ext. 3.

^b Cf. Plutarch, Life of Pericles, chap. xxxvi. (p. 172 c); Aelian, Varia Historia, ix. 6; Valerius Maximus, v. 10, ext. 1. 195

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

' βουλάς τ' ἐξάρχοντ' ἀγαθὰς' πρός τε τὸν πόλεμον ἐπιπαρορμῶντα τοὺς ᾿Αθηναίους.''

Ξενοφῶντα δέ τὸν Σωκρατικὸν θύοντά ποτε, παρὰ τῶν ἀγγέλων τῶν ἀπὸ τοῦ πολέμου πυθόμενον ὅτι ὁ υίὸς αὐτοῦ Γρύλλος ἀγωνιζόμενος 119 ἐτελεύτησε, περιελόμενον τὸν στέφανον ἐξετάζειν τίνα τρόπον ἐτελεύτησε. τῶν δὲ ἀπαγγειλάντων ὅτι γενναίως ἀριστεύων καὶ πολλοὺς τῶν πολεμίων κατακτείνας, μικρὸν παντελῶς διασιωπήσαντα¹ χρόνον καὶ τῷ λογισμῷ τὸ πάθος παρακατασχόντα, ἐπιθέμενον πάλιν τὸν στέφανον ἐπιτελεῖν τὴν θυσίαν, καὶ πρὸς τοὺς ἀγγέλους εἰπεῖν ὅτι '' θεοῖς ηὐξάμην οὐκ ἀθάνατον οὐδὲ πολυχρόνιον γενέσθαι μοι τὸν υἱόν (τὸ γὰρ τοιοῦτον ἄδηλον εί² συμφέρει), ἀγαθὸν δὲ καὶ φιλόπατριν, ὅ δὴ καὶ γέγονεν.''

Β Δίωνα δὲ τὸν Συρακόσιον συνεδρεύοντα μετὰ τῶν φίλων, κατὰ τὴν οἰκίαν θορύβου γενομένου καὶ μεγάλης κραυγῆς, πυθόμενον τὴν αἰτίαν καὶ τὸ συμβεβηκὸς ἀκούσαντα ὅτι ὁ υἰὸς αὐτοῦ καταπεσῶν ἀπὸ τοῦ στέγους ἐτελεύτησεν, οὐδὲν ἐκπλαγέντα τὸ μὲν σωμάτιον κελεῦσαι τοῦ μεταλλάξαντος ταῖς γυναιξὶ παραδοῦναι πρὸς τὴν νόμιμον ταφήν, αὐτὸν δὲ περὶ ῶν διεσκέπτετο μὴ παραλιπεῖν.

Τοῦτον ζηλῶσαι λέγεται καὶ Δημοσθένην τὸν ῥήτορα, τὴν μόνην καὶ ἀγαπητὴν ἀπολέσαντα θυγατέρα, περὶ ἦς φησιν Αἰσχίνης, κατηγορεῖν διασιωπήσαντα Bernardakis: διαστήσαντα.

 ² el Hercher: ὅτι.

^a Adapted from Homer, Il. ii. 273.

^b Cf. Aelian, Varia Historia, iii. 3; Diogenes Laertius, ii. 54; Valerius Maximus, v. 10, ext. 2.
 196

A LETTER TO APOLLONIUS, 118-119

'taking lead in good counsel,' a and inspiriting the Athenians to war."

Xenophon,^b the follower of Socrates, was once offering sacrifice when he learned from the messengers who had come from the field of battle that his son Gryllus had met his death while fighting. He took the garland from his head and questioned them as to how he had died. When the messengers reported that he died nobly, displaying the greatest valour and after slaving many of the enemy, Xeno-phon was completely silent for a few moments while mastering his emotion by the power of reason, and then, replacing the garland, he completed the sacrifice, remarking to the messengers, "I prayed to the gods, not that my son should be immortal or even long of life (for it is not clear whether it be of advantage so), but that he should be brave and patriotic; and so it has come to pass."

Dion ° of Syracuse was sitting in consultation with his friends, when there arose in the house a commotion and a great screaming, and upon inquiring the cause and hearing what had happened-that his son had fallen from the roof and been killed-he was not at all disconcerted, but commanded the corpse to be given over to the women for the usual preparation for burial, and he himself did not leave off the discussion in which he was engaged.

His example, they say, Demosthenes^d the orator emulated when he lost his only and much-loved daughter, of whom Aeschines, thinking to reproach · Cf. Plutarch, Life of Dion, chap. lv. (p. 982 c): Aelian, Varia Historia, iii. 4.

Cf. Plutarch, Life of Demosthenes, chap. xxii. (p. 855 D), and Cicero, Tusculan Disputations, iii. 26 (63).
 Or. iii. (Against Ctesiphon) 77 (p. 64).

(119) αὐτοῦ δόξας, ταυτί· '' ἑβδόμην δ' ἡμέραν τῆς C θυγατρὸς αὐτῷ τετελευτηκυίας, πρὶν πενθῆσαι καὶ τὰ νομιζόμενα ποιῆσαι, στεφανωσάμενος καὶ λευκὴν ἐσθῆτα ἀναλαβῶν ἐβουθύτει καὶ παρενόμει,¹ τὴν μόνην ὁ δείλαιος καὶ πρώτην αὐτὸν πατέρα προσειποῦσαν ἀπολέσας.'' οῦτος μὲν οῦν ἑητορικῶς προθέμενος αὐτοῦ κατηγορῆσαι ταῦτα διεξῆλθεν, ἀγνοῶν ὅτι διὰ τούτων αὐτὸν ἐπαινεῖ τὸ πενθεῖν παρωσάμενον καὶ τὸ φιλόπατρι πρὸ τῆς τῶν ἀναγκαίων συμπαθείας ἐπιδειξάμενον.

'Αντίγονον δε τον βασιλέα πυθόμενον την 'Αλκυονέως τοῦ υίοῦ τελευτην ἐν παρατάξει γενομένην μεγαλοφρόνως τε προς τοὺς ἀπαγγείλαντας αὐτῷ την συμφορὰν ἀπιδεῖν καὶ μικρον ἐπισχόντα καὶ κατηφιάσαντα προσειπεῖν '' ὦ D'Αλκυονεῦ, ὀψίτερον μετήλλαξας τον βίον, οὕτως ἀφειδῶς ἐξορμῶν προς τοὺς πολεμίους καὶ οὕτε τῆς σαυτοῦ² σωτηρίας οὕτε τῶν ἐμῶν παραινέσεων φροντίζων.''

Τούτους δη τους άνδρας θαυμάζουσι μέν της μεγαλοφροσύνης πάντες καὶ ἄγανται, μιμεῖσθαι δ' ἐπὶ τῶν ἔργων οὐ δύνανται διὰ την ἐκ της ἀπαιδευσίας ἀσθένειαν της ψυχης. πλην πολλῶν ὄντων παραδειγμάτων τῶν διὰ της ἱστορίας ἡμῖν παραδιδομένων της τε Ἑλληνικης καὶ της Ῥωμαϊκης τῶν γενναίως καὶ καλῶς ἐν ταῖς τῶν ἀναγκαίων τελευταῖς διαγενομένων ἀποχρήσει τὰ εἰρημένα πρὸς την ἀπόθεσιν τοῦ πάντων³ ἀνιαροτάτου παρενόμει Aeschines, Adv. Ctesiph. 77 (p. 61): παρηνόμει.

 ² σαυτοῦ F.C.B.: σεαυτοῦ οι ἐαυτοῦ.
 ³ πάντων Reiske: παντός.

Demosthenes, speaks as follows: "On the seventh day after his daughter's death, before he had mourned for her or performed the customary rites, putting on a garland and resuming his white apparel, he offered a sacrifice in public and violated all custom, when he had lost, poor wretch, his only daughter, who was the first child to address him as father." So then Aeschines, purposing, after the manner of the political speaker, to reproach him, rehearsed these facts, being quite unaware that thereby he was really commending Demosthenes, who put aside his grief, and displayed his patriotism in preference to his feelings for his kindred.

Antigonus^a the king, on learning of the death of his son Alcyoneus, which had occurred in the line of battle, gazed proudly upon the messengers who had brought news of the calamity, and, after waiting for a moment, said, bowing his head, "Not so very early, Alcyoneus, have you departed this life, since you always rushed so recklessly against the enemy without a thought either of your own safety or of my counsels."

The whole world wonders at these men and admires them for their nobility of mind, but others have not the ability to imitate them in practice because of that weakness of spirit which results from lack of education. But although there are so many examples, which have been handed down to us through both Greek and Roman history, of men who have behaved nobly and honourably at the deaths of their relatives, yet what has been said will suffice to induce you to put aside mourning, which is the most distressing of all things, and also the fruit-

^a Antigonus Gonatas; cf. Aelian, Varia Historia, iii. 5.

Ε πένθους καὶ τῆς ἐν τούτῷ πρός οὐδὲν χρήσιμον (119) ματαιοπονίας.

34. Ότι γὰρ οἱ ταῖς ἀρεταῖς διενεγκόντες ὡς θεοφιλεῖς νέοι μετέστησαν πρὸς τὸ χρεών καὶ πάλαι μὲν διὰ τῶν πρόσθεν ὑπέμνησα λόγων, καὶ νῦν δὲ πειράσομαι διὰ βραχυτάτων ἐπιδραμεῖν, προσμαρτυρήσας τῷ καλῶς ὑπὸ Μενάνδρου ῥηθέντι τούτῳ· δν οί θεοί φιλουσιν αποθνήσκει νέος.

ἀλλ' ἴσως ὑποτυχών ἂν φαίης, ᾿Απολλώνιε φίλτατε, σφόδρ' ἦν ἐπιτεταγμένος ὁ νεανίσκος ᾿Απόλλωνι F καὶ Μοίραις, ' καὶ σὲ ἔδει ὑπ' ἐκείνου τελείου γενομένου κηδευθῆναι μεταλλάξαντα τὸν βίον· τοῦτο γὰρ εἶναι κατὰ φύσιν. τὴν ἡμετέραν δηλονότι καὶ τὴν ἀνθρωπίνην, ἀλλ' οὐ κατὰ τὴν τῶν ὅλων πρόνοιαν καὶ τὴν κοσμικὴν διάταξιν. ἐκείνῷ δὲ τῷ μακαρισθέντι οὐκ ἦν κατὰ φύσιν περαιτέρω τοῦ ἀπονεμηθέντος αὐτῷ χρόνου πρὸς τὸν ἐνθάδε βίον περιμένειν, ἀλλ' εὐτάκτως τοῦτον ἐκπλήσαντι πρὸς τὴν είμαρμένην ἐπανάγειν πορείαν, καλούσης αὐτῆς, φησίν, ἤδη πρὸς ἑαυτήν. '' ἀλλ' ἄωρος^{*} ἐτελεύτησεν.'' οὐκοῦν εὐποτμότερος διὰ τοῦτο καὶ κακῶν ἀπείρατός ἐστιν· ὅ a 111 B supro.

¹ ἐπιτεταγμένοs Bernardakis: ἐπιγεγευμένος . . 'Απολλώνιος εύμοιρίας Paton: ἐπιτετευγμένος (Οr ἐπιτετευμένος) . . . ἀπολλώνιος ἐν μοίραις most MSS.

³ awpos Duebner and one MS. : awpws.

^b From the Double Deceiver; cf. Kock, Com. Att. Frag. iii. p. 36, Menander, No. 125, and Allinson's Menander (L.C.L.), p. 345. The sentiment is found many times in other writers; cf. Plautus, Bacch. iv. 7. 18 "quem di diligunt adulescens moritur."

less pain, which serves no useful purpose, involved in mourning.

34. The fact that those who excel in virtues pass on to their fate while young, as though beloved of the gods, I have already called to your attention in an earlier part a of my letter, and I shall endeavour at this time to touch upon it very briefly, merely adding my testimony to that which has been so well said by Menander b:

Whom the gods love dies young.

But perhaps, my dearest Apollonius, you would say in retort that your young son had been placed under the special care of Apollo and the Fates, and that it should have been you who, on departing this life, received the last offices from him, after he had come to full manhood ; for this, you say, is in accordance with nature. Yes, in accordance with your nature, no doubt, and mine, and that of mankind in general, but not in accordance with the Providence which presides over all or with the universal dispensation. But for that boy, now among the blessed, it was not in accordance with nature that he should tarry beyond the time allotted to him for life on this earth, but that, after fulfilling this term with due obedience, he should set forth to meet his fate, which was already (to use his own words ^c) summoning him to himself. "But he died untimely." Yes, but for this very reason his lot is happier, and he is spared many evils; for Euripides d says:

i.e. his dying words, "Fate summons me"; cf. the dying words of Alcestis, "Charon summons me," Euripides, Alcestis, 254, and Plato, Phaedo, 115 A.
 ^d In an unknown play; cf. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Euripides, No. 966.

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

120 "βίος γάρ," φησιν Εὐριπίδης, "ὄνομ' ἔχει μόνον¹ πόνος γεγώς.²" οῦτος δ' ἐπὶ τῆς εὐανθεστάτης ἡλικίας προαπεφοίτησεν ὅλόκληρος ἠίθεος, ζηλωτὸς καὶ περίβλεπτος πᾶσι τοῖς συνήθεσιν αὐτῷ, φιλοπάτωρ γενόμενος καὶ φιλομήτωρ καὶ φιλοίκειος καὶ φιλόφιλος,^{*} τὸ δὲ σύμπαν εἰπεῖν φιλάνθρωπος, αἰδούμενος μὲν τοὺς πρεσβυτέρους τῶν φίλων ὥσπερ πατέρας, στέργων δὲ τοὺς ὅμήλικας καὶ συνήθεις, τιμητικὸς δὲ τῶν καθηγησαμένων, ξένοις δὲ καὶ ἀστοῖς Β πραότατος, πᾶσι δὲ μείλιχος καὶ φίλος διά τε τὴν ἐξ ὄψεως χάριν καὶ τὴν εὐπροσήγορον φιλανθρωπίαν.

Αλλά γαρ έκείνος μέν της τε σης εύσεβείας και της έαυτοῦ την πρέπουσαν εὐφημίαν ἔχων πρὸς τὸν ἀεὶ χρόνον προαπεφοίτησε τοῦ θνητοῦ βίου, καθάπερ ἔκ του⁴ συμποσίου, πρὶν εἶς τινα παροινίαν ἐκπεσεῖν την τῷ μακρῷ γήρα παρεπομένην. εἰ δ' ὁ τῶν παλαιῶν ποιητῶν τε καὶ φιλοσόφων λόγος ἐστὶν ἀληθης ὥσπερ εἰκὸς ἔχειν, οὕτω καὶ τοῦς εὐσεβέσι τῶν μεταλλαξάντων ἔστι τις τιμη καὶ προεδρία καθάπερ λέγεται, καὶ χῶρός τις ἀποτεταγ-C μένος ἐν ῷ διατρίβουσιν αἱ τοῦτων ψυχαί, καλὰς ἐλπίδας ἔχειν σε δεῖ περὶ τοῦ μακαρίτου υίέος σου, ὅτι τοῦτοις συγκαταριθμηθεὸς συνέσται.

35. Λέγεται δ' ύπο μεν τοῦ μελικοῦ Πινδάρου ταυτί περί τῶν εὐσεβῶν ἐν κιδου· τοῖσι λάμπει μὲν μένος ἀελίου τὰν ἐνθάδε νύκτα κάτω,

¹ μόνον added by Sauppe. ² γεγώς Nauck: έγώ σ'. ³ φιλόφιλος Michael: φιλόσοφος.

A LETTER TO APOLLONIUS, 120

Life bears the name of life, being but toil.

But he, in the most blooming period of his years, has departed early, a perfect youth, envied and admired by all who knew him. He was fond of his father and mother and his relatives and friends, or, to put it in a word, he loved his fellow men; he respected the elderly among his friends as fathers, he was affectionate towards his companions and familiar friends, he honoured his teachers, and was most kind toward strangers and citizens, gentle with all and beloved of all, both because of his charm of appearance and because of his affable kindliness.

Ah well, but he, bearing with him the fair and fitting fame of your righteousness and his own conjoined, has departed early to eternity from out this mortal life, as from an evening party, before falling into any such grossness of conduct as is wont to be the concomitant of a long old age. And if the account of the ancient poets and philosophers is true, as it most likely is, and so there is for those of the departed who have been righteous a certain honour and preferment, as is said, and a place set apart in which their souls pass their existence, then you ought to be of good hope for your dear departed son that he will be reckoned among their number and will be with them.

35. These are the words of the melic poet Pindar ^a regarding the righteous in the other world :

For them doth the strength of the sun shine below, While night all the earth doth overstrow.

^a Frag. 129 (ed. Christ); cf. also the two lines quoted in Moralia, 17 c, and the amplification of these lines which Plutarch gives in Moralia, 1130 c.

⁴ ἕκ του Bernardakis : ἐκ τοῦ.

- (120) φοινικορόδοις τ'' έν λειμώνεσσι προάστιον αὐτῶν καὶ λιβάνῷ σκιαρὸν καὶ χρυσοκάρποισι βεβριθός. καὶ τοὶ μὲν ἶπποις γυμνασίοις τε, τοὶ δὲ πεσσοῖς, τοὶ δὲ φορμίγγεσι τέρπονται, παρὰ δέ σφισιν εὐανθὴς ἅπας τέθαλεν ὅλβος, ὀδμὰ δ' ἐρατὸν κατὰ χῶρον κίδναται αἰεὶ θύα[®] μιγνύντων πυρὶ τηλεφανεῖ παντοῖα θεῶν ἐπὶ βωμοῖς.
 - D καὶ μικρὸν προελθών ἐν ἄλλῷ θρήνῷ περὶ ψυχῆς λέγων φησίν όλβία δ' ἄπαντες αἴσα λυσίπονον τελευτάν. καὶ σῶμα μὲν πάντων ἔπεται θανάτῳ περισθενεῖ, ζωὸν δ' ἔτι' λείπεται αἰῶνος εἴδωλον· τὸ γάρ ἐστι μόνον⁸

έκ θεών. εὕδει δὲ πρασσόντων μελέων, ἀτὰρ εῦδόντεσσιν ἐν πολλοῖς ὀνείροις δείκνυσι τερπνών έφέρποισαν⁹ χαλεπών τε κρίσιν.¹⁰

36. Ό δὲ θεῖος Πλάτων πολλὰ μὲν ἐν τῷ Περὶ ψυχῆς περὶ¹¹ τῆς ἀθανασίας αὐτῆς εἴρηκεν, οὐκ Ε ὀλίγα δ' ἐν τῆ Πολιτεία καὶ τῷ Μένωνι καὶ τῷ Γοργία καὶ σποράδην ἐν τοῖς ἄλλοις διαλόγοις. ἀλλὰ τὰ μὲν ἐν τῷ Περὶ ψυχῆς διαλόγῳ ῥηθέντα κατ' ἰδίαν ὑπομνηματισάμενός σοι παρέζομαι, ὡς ἐβουλήθης· τάδε δέ¹² πρὸς τὸ παρὸν καίρια καὶ

- ¹ τ ' added from Moralia, 1130 c.
- ² προάστιον G. Hermann : προάστειον. ³ χρυσέοις καρποΐς Boeckh.
- ⁶ βεβριθόs Reiske: βέβριθέ.
 ⁵ τε Hermann.
 ⁶ θύα Hermann: θύματα.
 - ' ζωδν δ' έτι Life of Romulus, c. xxviii. : ζων δέ.
 - ⁸ έστι μόνον ibid.: μόνον έστί.
 - ⁹ έφέρποισαν Boeckh: έφέρπουσαν.

A LETTER TO APOLLONIUS, 120

In meadows of roses their suburbs lie, Roses all tinged with a crimson dye. They are shaded by trees that incense bear, And trees with golden fruit so fair. Some with horses and sports of might, Others in music and draughts delight. Happiness there grows ever apace, Perfumes are wafted o'er the loved place, As the incense they strew where the gods' altars are And the fire that consumes it is seen from afar.

And a little farther on, in another lament for the dead, speaking of the soul, he says ^a:

In happy fate they all ^b Were freed by death from labour's thrall. Man's body follows at the beck of death O'ermastering. Alive is left The image of the stature that he gained, Since this alone is from the gods obtained. It sleeps while limbs move to and fro, But, while we sleep, in dreams doth show The choice we cannot disregard Between the pleasant and the hard.

36. The divine Plato has said a good deal in his treatise On the Soul about its immortality, and not a little also in the Republic and Meno and Gorgias, and here and there in his other dialogues. What is said in the dialogue On the Soul I will copy, with comments, and send you separately, as you desired. But for the present occasion these words, which were spoken ^e Frag. 131 (ed. Christ); cf. also Plutarch, Life of Romulus, xxviii. (p. 35 D).

^b The line is incomplete, lacking a finite verb.

¹⁰ For the numerous conjectural emendations of this and the preceding quotation cf. Schroeder's revision of vol. i. of Bergk's Poet. Lyr. Graec. p. 442.

12 ráde de F.C.B. and Paton: rà de.

¹¹ περl Reiske: περί τε.

χρήσιμα, τὰ λεχθέντα πρὸς Καλλικλέα¹ τὸν ᾿Αθηναῖον, ἑταῖρον δὲ καὶ μαθητὴν Γοργίου τοῦ ῥήτορος. φησὶ γὰρ ὁ παρὰ τῷ Πλάτωνι Σωκρά-της²· '' ἄκουε δή,'' φασί,³ '' μάλα καλοῦ λόγου, δν σύ μέν ήγήση, ώς έγω οίμαι, μῦθον, έγω δέ λόγον. ώς άληθη γάρ όντα σοι λέξω & μέλλω λέγειν. ώσπερ γάρ "Όμηρος λέγει, διενείμαντο την άρχην δ Ζεύς και δ Ποσειδών και δ Πλούτων, επειδη F παρά τοῦ πατρός παρέλαβον· ην οῦν νόμος ὄδέ περί άνθρώπων και έπι Κρόνου, και άει και νυν έτ' έστιν έν θεοίς, των άνθρώπων τον μέν δικαίως διελθόντα τον βίον και όσίως, επειδάν τελευτήση, είς μακάρων νήσους απιόντα οικείν έν πάση εύδαιμονία έκτος κακών, τόν δ' άδίκως και άθέως 121 είς το της δίκης τε και τίσεως δεσμωτήριον, ο δή Τάρταρον καλοῦσιν, ἰέναι. τούτων δ' οι δικασταί έπι Κρόνου και έτι νεωστί του Διός την άρχην έχοντος ζώντες ήσαν ζώντων, ἐκείνη τῃ ἡμέρα δικάζοντες ή μέλλοιεν τελευτάν. έπειτα αί δίκαι πως ού καλώς έκρίνοντο. ό τ' ούν Πλούτων καί οί ἐπιμεληταί οί ἐκ μακάρων νήσων ἰόντες ἔλεγον πρός τόν Δία ότι φοιτῶέν σφισιν ἄνθρωποι έκατέμρος τον Για στο φοιτιφερ σφιστι ανορωποι σκατε ρωσε ἀνάξιοι. εἶπεν οῦν ὁ Ζεύς, ἀλλ' ἐγώ, ἔφη, 'παύσω τοῦτο γιγνόμενον. νῦν μὲν γὰρ Β κακῶς αἱ δίκαι δικάζονται. ἀμπεχόμενοι γάρ,' ἔφη, 'οἱ κρινόμενοι κρίνονται· ζῶντες γὰρ κρίνον-ται. πολλοὶ οῦν Ἱσως,' ἢ δ' ὅς, 'πονηρὰς ψυχὰς

¹ Καλλικλέα added by Xylander from 121 D infra.

² In the quotation from Plato (Gorg. p. 523 c) the text has been corrected to accord with the text of Plato, but it is quite likely that some of these readings stood in Plutarch's copy of Plato, and are not errors of the 335. of Plutarch.

³ φασί Plato: φησί.

A LETTER TO APOLLONIUS, 120-121

to Callicles the Athenian, the friend and disciple of Gorgias the orator, are timely and profitable. They say that Socrates, according to Plato's account,^a says : " Listen to a very beautiful story, which you, I imagine, will regard as a myth, but which I regard as a story; for what I am going to say I shall relate as true. As Homer^b tells the tale, Zeus, Poseidon, and Pluto divided the kingdom when they received it from their father. Now this was the custom regarding men even in the time of Cronus, and it has persisted among the gods to this day-that the man who has passed through life justly and in holiness shall, at his death, depart to the Islands of the Blest and dwell in all happiness beyond the reach of evil, while he who has lived an unjust and godless life shall go to the prison-house of justice and punishment, which they call Tartarus. The judges of these men, in the time of Cronus and in the early days of Zeus's dominion, were living, and judged the living, giving judgement on the day when the men were about to die. As time went on, for some reason the cases were not decided well. Accordingly Pluto and the supervisors in the Islands of the Blest went to Zeus and said to him that there kept coming to them at both places inadmissible persons. 'Very well,' said Zeus, 'then I shall put a stop to this proceeding. The judgements are now rendered poorly; for,' said he, 'those who are judged are judged with a covering on them, since they are judged while alive, and so,' he continued, 'a good

^a Gorgias, p. 523 A. ^b Iliad, xv. 187.

⁴ ώσπερ... λέγει Plato: omitted in the MSS. of Plutarch. ⁵ πολλοί οῦν Plato: πολλοί μὲν οῦν.

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

(121) έχοντες ήμφιεσμένοι είσι σώματά τε καλά και γένη και πλούτους, και επειδάν ή κρίσις ή, ερχονται αὐτοῖς πολλοὶ μαρτυρήσοντες ὡς δικαίως βεβιώκασιν. οἱ οὖν δικασταὶ ὑπό τε τοὑτων έκπλήττονται, καί¹ αμα καί αὐτοὶ ἀμπεχόμενοι δικάζουσι, πρό της ψυχής της έαυτων οφθαλμούς τε καί ωτα καί όλον το σώμα προκεκαλυμμένοι. ταῦτα δὴ αὐτοῖς πάντ' ἐπίπροσθεν² γίγνεται, καὶ τὰ αύτῶν ἀμφιέσματα καὶ τὰ τῶν κρινομένων. C πρώτον μέν ούν παυστέον έστι προειδότας αύτούς τόν θάνατον·νῦν³ γάρ προΐσασι. τοῦτο μέν οὖν καὶ δή ειρηται τω Προμηθεί, όπως αν παύση αυτό. έπειτα γυμνούς κριτέον άπάντων τούτων. τεθνεώτας γάρ δεί κρίνεσθαι. και τον κριτήν δεί γυμνόν είναι, τεθνεώτα, αὐτῆ τῆ ψυχῃ αὐτὴν τὴν ψυχὴν θεωρούντα έξαίφνης αποθανόντος εκάστου, έρημον άπάντων των συγγενών, καί⁵ καταλιπόντα έπι της γής πάντα έκεινον τον κόσμον, ίνα δικαία ή κρίσις ή. έγὼ οῦν ταῦτ' έγνωκὼς πρότερος' ή ὑμεῖς έποιησάμην δικαστὰς υίεῖς ἐμαυτοῦ, δύο μὲν ἐκ τῆς ᾿Ασίας, Μίνω τε καὶ ˁΡαδάμανθυν, ἕνα δ' ἐκ D της Ευρώπης, Αιακόν. ουτοι ούν επειδάν τελευτήσωσι, δικάσουσιν έν τω λειμωνι, έν τη τριόδω έξ ής φέρετον τω⁸ όδώ, ή μεν είς μακάρων νήσους, ή δ' εἰς Τάρταρον. καὶ τοὺς μὲν ἐκ τῆς ᾿Ασίας Ῥαδάμανθυς κρινεῖ, τοὺς δ' ἐκ τῆς Εὐρώπης Λἰακός· Μίνω δὲ πρεσβεῖα δώσω ἐπιδιακρίνειν έαν απορητόν τι τω έτέρω, "ιν' ώς δικαιοτάτη ή¹⁰

1 έκπλήττονται και Plato: έκπλήττονται.

- ² έπίπροσθεν Plato: έπιπρόσθησις.
- νῦν Plato: νῦν μèν.
 ⁴ aὐτδ] aὐτῶν Plato.
 ⁶ συγγενῶν καὶ Plato: συγγενῶν.
 - 6 δικαία ή κρίσις Plato: ή κρίσις δικαία.

many perhaps who have base souls are clad with beautiful bodies and ancestry and riches, and, when the judgement takes place, many come to testify for them that they have lived righteously. So not only are the judges disconcerted by these things, but at the same time they themselves sit in judgement with a covering on them, having before their own souls, like a veil, their eyes and ears and their whole body. All these things come between, both their own covering and that of those who are being judged. In the first place, then, all their foreknowledge of death must be ended; for now they have foreknowledge of it. So Prometheus has been told to put an end to this. Secondly, they must be judged divested of all these things; for they must be judged after they have died. The judge also must be naked, and dead, that he may view with his very soul the very soul of every man instantly after he has died, and isolated from all his kin, having left behind on earth all earthly adornments, so that his judgement may be just. I, therefore, realizing this situation sooner than you, have made my own sons judges, two from Asia-Minos and Rhadamanthys-and one from Europe-Aeacus. These, then, as soon as they have died, shall sit in judgement in the meadow at the parting of the ways whence the two roads lead, the one to the Islands of the Blest and the other to Tartarus. The people of Asia shall Rhadamanthys judge, while Aeacus shall judge the people of Europe; and to Minos I shall give the prerogative of pronouncing final judgement in case the other 10 n Plato.

 ⁷ πρότερος Plato: πρότερον.
 ⁸ τώ Plato: τἀ.
 ⁹ ἀπορῆτόν τι τὰ ἐτέρω Plato: ἀπόρρητόν τι ỹ τῷ ἐτέρω.

κρίσις ἦ περὶ τῆς πορείας τοῖς ἀνθρώποις.' ταῦτ' ἐστίν, ὦ Καλλίκλεις, ἃ ἐγὼ ἀκηκοὼς πιστεύω ἀληθῆ εἶναι· καὶ ἐκ τούτων τῶν λόγων τοιόνδε¹ τι λογίζομαι συμβαίνειν, ὅτι² ὁ θάνατος τυγχάνει ὤν, ὡς ἐμοὶ δοκεῖ, οὐδὲν ἄλλο ἢ δυοῖν πραγμάτοιν διά-Ε λυσις, τῆς ψυχῆς καὶ τοῦ σώματος ἀπ' ἀλλήλοιν."

37 Ταῦτά σοι συναγαγών, ᾿Απολλώνιε φίλτατε, καὶ συνθεὶς μετὰ πολλῆς ἐπιμελείας ἀπειργασάμην τὸν παραμυθητικόν σοι λόγον, ἀναγκαιότατον όντα σοι πρός τε τὴν τῆς παρούσης λύπης ἀπαλ-λαγὴν καὶ τοῦ πάντων ἀνιαροτάτου πένθους παθλαν. περιέχει δε και την πρός τον θεοφιλέστατον υίόν σου 'Απολλώνιον πρέπουσαν τιμήν, ποθεινοτάτην ούσαν τοις άφιερωθείσι, την διά τῆς ἀγαθῆς μνήμης καὶ τῆς ἀδιαλείπτου πρὸς τὸν ἀεὶ χρόνον εὐφημίας. καλῶς οὖν ποιήσεις καὶ τῷ λόγῳ πεισθείς και τῷ μακαρίτη σου υίῷ τῷ λογῷ πεισθείς και τῷ μακαρίτη σου διῷ Γ χαρισάμενος καὶ μεταβαλών ἐκ τῆς ἀνωφελοῦς περὶ τὸ σῶμα καὶ τὴν ψυχὴν κακώσεως καὶ καταφθορᾶς ἐπὶ τὴν συνήθη σοι καὶ κατὰ φύσιν διαγωγὴν ἐλθεῖν. ὡς γὰρ οὐδὲ συμβιῶν ἡμῖν ἡδέως ἑώρα κατηφεῖς ὅντας οὖτε σὲ οὖτε τὴν μητέρα, οὕτως οὐδὲ νῦν μετὰ θεῶν ῶν καὶ τούτοις συνεστιώμενος εὐαρεστήσειεν ἂν τῆ τοιαύτῃ ὑμῶν διαγωγή. ἀνδρός οῦν ἀγαθοῦ καὶ γενναίου καὶ 122 φιλοτέκνου φρόνημα ἀναλαβών σεαυτόν τε καὶ τὴν μητέρα τοῦ νεανίσκου καὶ τοὺς συγγενεῖς καὶ φίλους ἕκλυσαι τῆς τοιαύτης κακοδαιμονίας, εἰς γαληνότερον μετελθών βίου σχήμα και προσφιλέστατον τῷ τε υίῷ σου καὶ πᾶσιν ἡμῖν τοῖς κηδομένοις σου κατὰ τὸ προσῆκον.

¹ τοιόνδε Plato: τοιόν (sic). ² ότι not in Plato. 210 two be in any doubt, in order that the decision in regard to the route which men must take shall be as just as possible.' This, Callicles, is what I have heard, and believe to be true; and from these words I draw the following inference—that death is, as it seems to me, nothing else than the severing of two things, soul and body, from each other."

37. Having collected and put together these extracts, my dearest Apollonius, with great diligence, I have completed this letter of condolence to you, which is most needful to enable you to put aside your present grief and to put an end to mourning, which is the most distressing of all things. In it is included also for your son, Apollonius, a youth so very dear to the gods, a fitting tribute, which is much coveted by the sanctified—a tribute due to his honourable memory and to his fair fame, which will endure for time eternal. You will do well, therefore, to be persuaded by reason, and, as a favour to your dear departed son, to turn from your unprofitable distress and desolation, which affect both body and soul, and to go back to your accustomed and natural course of life. Forasmuch as your son, while he was living among us, was sorry to see either you or his mother downcast, even so, now that he is with the gods and is feasting with them, he would not be well satisfied with your present course of life. Resume, therefore, the spirit of a brave-hearted and high-minded man who loves his offspring, and set free from all this wretchedness both yourself, the mother of the youth, and your relatives and friends, as you may do by pursuing a more tranquil form of life, which will be most gratifying both to your son and to all of us who are concerned for you, as we rightly should be.

VOL. II

THE PARTY OF A DESCRIPTION OF A DESCRIPTION OF A

the support of the second seco and the second production of the second part of the had a first of such and a set Contraction of the second s and the state of the state of the the rest of the second se adding the Cardination of the second second

ADVICE ABOUT KEEPING WELL (DE TUENDA SANITATE PRAECEPTA)

INTRODUCTION

PLUTARCH had more than a casual interest in medicine, for, besides this essay on keeping well, his other works abound in references to the behaviour of the sick and their treatment, and the medical practices of his day. Long before the time of Plutarch the art of medicine, always empirical, had been put on a solid foundation, and the acute observations of Hippocrates and his school had been set down in writing; and this body of Hippocratic medical writings, along with others, was in circulation, and had undoubtedly been read by Plutarch.

That medicine has made very great advances since Plutarch's time is, of course, self-evident ; " aseptic," "antiseptic," and "sterilize" are now household words, and the germ theory of disease has, in recent times, shed light on much which before was dark. But Plutarch is not dealing with the technical side of medicine; he is only giving some common-sense advice on rational living, and much that he has to say in regard to rest, exercise, and diet is in accord with the best medical practice of the present day. In fact, it is doubtful if any physician would take exception to anything that Plutarch advises (his advice is meant for men whose work is done with their heads rather than their hands), and one might name men in public life to-day, well on in years, who have followed many of his suggestions, unwittingly, no doubt, but to their own advantage. 214

ADVICE ABOUT KEEPING WELL

The essay seems, at the first glance, to be put in the form of a dialogue, but it is about as much of a dialogue as Quiller-Couch's Foe-Farrell. The dialogue form is merely a literary subterfuge to present an essay in a slightly more attractive form, and the third person of the dialogue, only occasionally recalled to the reader by the parsimonious interjection of "he said," may be presumed to be Plutarch, the author. The two speakers in the brief dialogue at the beginning of the essay are Moschion, a physician, whom Plutarch introduces also into the Symposiacs (Moralia, 658 A), and Zeuxippus, a friend of Plutarch's, who is introduced also as a speaking character in two other essays of Plutarch's (Moralia, 748 E and 1086 c), besides being mentioned several times in other essays.

That the essay was written some time after A.D. 81 is clear from the reference to the death of the Roman Emperor Titus (123 D).

The title of the essay is included in Lamprias' list of Plutarch's works, and Stobaeus, in his Florilegium, has several quotations from it, sometimes with a slightly different reading, but none of these readings changes the meaning of the passage at all, and rarely is one to be preferred to the reading found in the mss. of Plutarch (see Vol. I. Introd. p. xxi).

Indeed, the text of this essay has suffered more at the hands of modern editors than from the ancient copyists, for a glance at the foot-notes in Bernardakis's edition will show that the gratuitous and unnecessary changes introduced into the text by modern editors outnumber their corrections of the minor errors in spelling, and the like, made by the ancient copyists. STATION STATE OF THE STATE

(122) B

ΥΓΙΕΙΝΑ ΠΑΡΑΓΓΕΛΜΑΤΑ

 ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ. Σὐ δὴ Γλαῦκον χθές, ὡ Ζεύξιππε, τὸν ἰατρὸν ἀπετρίψω¹ συμφιλοσοφεῖν ὑμῖν βουλόμενον.

ZETΞΙΠΠΟΣ. Οὔτ' ἀπετριψάμην,¹ ὡ φίλε Μοσχίων, οὕτ' ἐβούλετο συμφιλοσοφεῖν ἐκεῖνος, ἀλλ' C ἔφυγον καὶ ἐφοβήθην λαβὴν φιλομαχοῦντι παρασχεῖν. ἐν μὲν γὰρ ἰατρικῆ καθ' Ὅμηρον ὁ ἀνὴρ πολλών άντάξιος άλλων, ούκ εύμενης δέ προς φιλοσοφίαν, αλλ' αεί τι τραχύ και δύσκολον έχων έν τοῖς λόγοις. και νῦν ἐναντίος ἐφ' ήμᾶς ἐχώρει, βοῶν ἔτι πρόσωθεν οὐ μικρον οὐδ' ἐπιεικες ἔργον ήμῖν σύγχυσιν ὅρων τετολμησθαι διαλεχθεῖσι περι διαίτης ὑγιεινῆς. " χωρίς '' γὰρ ἔφη τὰ φιλοσόφων και ἰατρῶν ὥσπερ τινῶν '' Μυσῶν και Φρυγῶν ὅρίσματα,'' καί τινα τῶν οὐ μετὰ σπουδης, οὐ μὴν ἀχρήστως, D εἰρημένων παρ' ήμῶν διὰ στόματος ἔχων ἐσπάραττεν.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ. 'Αλλά καὶ τούτων ἔγωγε καὶ τῶν ¹ ἀπετρίψω...ἀπετριψάμην Cobet and L. Dindorf: ἀπετρέψω ...ἀπετρεψάμην.

^a Homer, Il. xi. 514.

^b Proverbial; cf. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Adespota, No. 560.

ADVICE ABOUT KEEPING WELL

1. MOSCHION. So, Zeuxippus, yesterday you drove away Glaucus, the physician, when he wished to join in your philosophical discussions.

ZEUXIPPUS. No, my dear Moschion, I did not drive him away, nor did he wish to join in philosophical discussion, but I avoided him and feared giving an opening to a man fond of contention. In medicine the man is, as Homer ^a puts it,

Worth many others together, but he is not kindly disposed towards philosophy, and there is always a certain harshness and ill-nature inherent in his remarks. And just then he was coming at us full tilt, crying out, even before he came near us, that it was no small or suitable task, amounting in fact to a confusion of all bounds, which had been boldly assumed by us in discussing a healthful manner of living. For he asserted that the subjects of philosophy and medicine are as "far remote" from each other as "are the boundaries of" any "Mysians and Phrygians"^b; and thereupon, as he had at the tip of his tongue some statements of ours, which, though not very carefully formulated, are certainly not without utility, he proceeded to tear them to pieces.

MOSCHION. Well, in this and in other matters,

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

(122) άλλων, & Ζεύξιππε, πρόθυμος ἀκροατὴς ἡδέως αν γενοίμην.

ΖΕΥΞΙΠΠΟΣ. Φιλόσοφος γὰρ εἶ τὴν φύσιν, ῶ Μοσχίων, καὶ τῷ μὴ φιλιατροῦντι χαλεπαίνεις φιλοσόφῳ, καὶ ἀγανακτεῖς εἰ μᾶλλον αὐτὸν οἶεται προσήκειν γεωμετρίας καὶ διαλεκτικῆς καὶ μουσικῆς ὅρᾶσθαι μεταποιούμενον ἢ ζητεῖν καὶ μανθάνειν βουλόμενον δττι τοι ἐν μεγάροισι κακόν τ' ἀγαθόν τε τέ τυκται τῷ σώματι. καίτοι πλείους ἂν ὕδοις ἐκεῖ θεατάς, ὅπου θεωρικόν τι νέμεται τοῖς συνιοῦσιν, ὥσπερ Ε ᾿Αθήνησι· τῶν ἐλευθερίων δὲ τεχνῶν ἰατρικὴ τὸ μὲν γλαφυρὸν καὶ περιττὸν καὶ ἐπιτερπὲς οὐδεμιᾶς ἐνδεέστερον ἔχει, θεωρικὸν δὲ μέγα τοῖς φιλομαθοῦσι τὴν σωτηρίαν καὶ τὴν ὑγίειαν ἐπιδίδωσιν. ὅστ' οὐ παράβασιν ὅρων ἐπικαλεῖν δεῖ τοῖς περὶ ὑγιεινῶν διαλεγομένοις φιλοσόφοις, ἀλλ' εἰ μὴ παντάπασιν ἀνελόντες οἴονται δεῖν τοὺς ὅρους ὥσπερ ἐν μιῷ χώρῷ κοινῶς ἐμφιλοκαλεῖν, ἅμα τὸ ἡδὺ τῷ λόγῷ καὶ τὸ ἀναγκαῖον διώκοντες.

ΜΟΣΧΙΩΝ. 'Αλλά Γλαῦκον μὲν ἐῶμεν, ὡ Ζεύξιππε, ὑπὸ σεμνότητος αὐτοτελῆ βουλόμενον εἶναι καὶ ἀπροσδεῆ φιλοσοφίας, σὺ δὲ τοὺς λόγους F ἡμῖν δίελθε πάντας εἰ δὲ βούλει, πρώτους ἐκείνους 218 Zeuxippus, I should be very glad to be your attentive listener.

ZEUXIPPUS. That is because you, Moschion, have a natural gift for philosophy, and you feel incensed at the philosopher who does not take an interest in medicine, and you are indignant that such a man should imagine it more becoming for him, in the eyes of mankind, to profess some knowledge of geometry, logical discussion, and music, than to desire to seek out and know which is his own body. And yet you will see a larger number of spectators in the theatres where money to pay for admission is distributed to those who gather together, as at Athens; and of the liberal arts medicine is inferior to none in elegance, distinction, and the satisfaction which it yields, and it gives to its students admission to something of very great importance-the preservation of their life and health. Consequently, the charge of trespass ought not to lie against philosophers if they discuss matters of health, but rather should they be blamed if they do not consider it their duty to abolish all boundarylines altogether, and to make a single field, as it were, of all honourable studies, and therein to cultivate them in common, thus aiming in their discussion at both the pleasant and the essential.

All that of evil and good may have chanced to betide in the dwelling "

MOSCHION. Well, Zeuxippus, let us say no more about Glaucus, who is so self-important that he wants to be a law unto himself, needing no help from philosophy; but do you tell us in detail the whole discussion; or, if you prefer, just those statements

" Homer, Od. iv. 392.

VOL. II

ών ἔφης οὐ πάνυ μετὰ σπουδῆς εἰρημένων ἐπιλαμβάνεσθαι τὸν Γλαῦκον.

2. ΖΕΤΞΙΠΠΟΣ. "Εφη τοινυν ό έταῖρος ήμῶν ἀκοῦσαί τινος λέγοντος ὡς τὸ τὰς χεῖρας ἀεἰ θερμὰς ἔχειν καὶ μὴ περιορῶν ψυχομένας οὐ 123 μικρὸν εἴη πρὸς ὑγίειαν, καὶ τοὐναντίον ἡ τῶν ἄκρων περίψυξις εἰς τὰ μέσα συνελαύνουσα τὸ θερμὸν ὥσπερ τινὰ συνήθειαν ἢ μελέτην ἐμποιεῖ πυρετοῦ· τὸ δ' ἔξω στρέφοντα μετὰ τῆς θερμότητος ἕλκειν ἐπὶ πάντα καὶ διανέμειν τὴν ὕλην ὑγιεινόν. ἂν μὲν οῦν' ἐνεργοῦντές τι ταῖς χερσὶ καὶ χρώμενοι τυγχάνωμεν, αὐτὴν τὴν κίνησιν ἐπάγειν ἐνταῦθα καὶ συνέχειν τὸ θερμόν· ἔργων δὲ τοιούτων σχολὴν ἄγοντας ῆκιστα δεῖν προσδέχεσθαι τοῖς ἄκροις τὸ ψυχρόν.

3. "Εν μέν οῦν τοῦτο τῶν γελασθέντων ἦν δεύτερον δ' οἶμαι τὸ περὶ τὰς τροφὰς ὡς προσ-Β φέρετε τοῖς κάμνουσιν. ὅπτεσθαι γὰρ αὐτῶν διὰ χρόνου παρήνει καὶ γεύεσθαι, συνεθίζοντας αὐτοὺς ἐν τῷ ὑγιαίνειν καὶ μὴ τρέμοντας ὥσπερ τὰ παιδάρια μηδὲ μισοῦντας ἐκείνην τὴν δίαιταν, ἀλλὰ ποιουμένους ἀτρέμα χειροήθη ταῖς ὀρέξεσι καὶ σύντροφον, ὅπως ἐν τῷ νοσεῖν μὴ δυσχεραίνωμεν ὡς φάρμακα τὰ σιτία μηδ' ἀσχάλλωμεν ἁπλοῦν τι καὶ ἄνοψον καὶ ὅκνισον λαμβάνοντες. ὅθεν οὐδ' ἀλούτους ποτὲ φευκτέον ἐλθεῖν ἐπὶ τροφὴν οὐδ' ὕδωρ πιεῖν οἶνου παρόντος οὐδὲ θερμὸν ἐν θέρει, χιόνος παρακειμένης, τὰς μὲν

1 ouv added by Meziriacus.

^a Plutarch himself presumably.

• Cf. Moralia, 635 с. • Сf. Moralia, 661 в. 220

ADVICE ABOUT KEEPING WELL, 122-123

which you first referred to as not altogether carefully formulated, which you say Glaucus seized upon.

2. ZEUXIPPUS. Well, our companion a asserted that he had heard somebody say that keeping the hands always warm, and never allowing them to get cold, is in no small measure conducive to health, and, conversely, the chilling of the extremities, by concentrating the warmth in the interior of the body, creates, as it were, a habit or a predisposition towards feverishness ; and for a man to divert the substances in his body toward the surface, and to conduct and distribute them, along with the warmth, to all parts of his body, is healthful.^b If therefore we happen to be doing something with our hands and using them, the motion itself brings the warmth to these parts, and keeps it there; but when not engaged in such activities we must by no means allow the cold to find lodgement in our extremities.

3. This, then, was one of the things ridiculed. The second, I think, concerned the food which you people serve to the sick. For he urged that we should partake of it and taste it from time to time, and get ourselves used to it in time of health, and not abhor and detest such a regimen, like little children, but gradually make it familiar and congenial to our appetites, so that in sickness we may not be disaffected over our fare as if it were so much medicine, and may not show impatience at receiving something simple, unappetising, and savourless.^c For this reason, too, omitting the bath now and then before going to a meal is not a thing to be avoided, nor drinking only water when wine is at hand, nor drinking anything lukewarm in the summer-time when there is snow on the table; and while dismissing

(123) ἐπιδεικτικὰς καὶ σοφιστικὰς χαίρειν ἐῶντας ἀπο-C σχέσεις τῶν τοιούτων καὶ μεγαλαυχίας ἐπὶ ταῖς ἀποσχέσεοιν, αὐτοὺς δὲ καθ' ἑαυτοὺς σιωπῆ τήν τε ὅρεξιν ἅμα τοῦ συμφέροντος ὑπήκοον ἐθίζοντας εἶναι μετ' εὐκολίας, καὶ τῆς ψυχῆς ἀφαιροῦντας πόρρωθεν ἔτι τὴν περὶ ταῦτα μικρολογίαν ἐν ταῖς νόσοις καὶ τὸ ἐπιθρηνεῖν, ἀνοδυρομένης ὡς ἐξ ἡδονῶν μεγάλων καὶ ἀγαπητῶν εἰς ἀγεννῆ καὶ ταπεινὴν ἀπελήλαται δίαιταν.

Εύ γὰρ εἰρημένον τὸ '' ἐλοῦ βίον τὸν ἄριστον, ἡδὺν δ' αὐτὸν ἡ συνήθεια ποιήσει,'' καὶ κατὰ μέρος ὡς ἕκαστα πειρωμένω χρήσιμόν ἐστι, μάλιστα δὲ τῶν περὶ τὸ σῶμα διαιτημάτων, ἐν τοῖς ὑγιεινοτάτοις ἐπάγοντα τὴν συνήθειαν, εὐμενῆ καὶ γνώριμα τῇ φύσει καὶ οἰκεῖα παρασκευάζειν, D μεμνημένον â πάσχουσιν ἔνιοι καὶ ποιοῦσιν ἐν ταῖς ἀρρωστίαις, χαλεπαίνοντες καὶ δυσανασχετοῦντες ὕδατος θερμοῦ προσφερομένου καὶ ῥοφήματος ἢ ἄρτου, μιαρὰ μὲν ταῦτα καὶ ἀηδῆ μιαροὺς δὲ καὶ χαλεποὺς τοὺς ἀναγκάζοντας ἀποκαλοῦντες. πολλοὺς δὲ καὶ λουτρὸν ἀπώλεσεν, οὐδὲν ἐν ἀρχῃ μέγα κακὸν ἔχοντας ἀλλ' ἢ τὸ μὴ δύνασθαι μηδ' ὑπομένειν γεύσασθαι τροφῆς ἀλούτους· ὡν καὶ Τίτος ἦν ὁ αὐτοκράτωρ, ὡς φασιν οί νοσηλεύσαντες. 4. Έτι τοίνυν ἐλέχθη τοιοῦτον, ὡς ἀεἰ μὲν ὑγιεινότερα σώματι τὰ εὐτελέστερα, μάλιστα δὲ Εφυλακτέον πλησμονὰς καὶ μέθας καὶ ἡδυπαθείας

A precept of Pythagoras according to Plutarch, Moralia, 466 F, and other writers who quote it; cf. also Moralia, 602 B.
 Cf. Plato, Laws, p. 797 E.
 There are varying accounts regarding the manner of Titus's death, poisoning or drowning being also alleged. 2222

once for all time the ostentatious and studied abstinence from such things and the bragging over it, we should silently, by our own selves, habituate the appetite to be obedient to expediency with all serenity, and long beforehand we must rid our soul of its squeamishness in times of sickness about such trifles, and its lamentation thereat, as it deplores how it has been driven away from great and fond pleasures to an ignoble and humiliating way of living.

Well has it been said, " Choose the life that is best, and constant habit will make it pleasant," a and, in particular, it is profitable for a man, experimenting with each several department of life and especially with those which have to do with the practices which affect the body, to inculcate a fixed habit during periods of soundest health, so thus to make these things agreeable, familiar, and congenial to his nature,^b bearing in mind how some men feel and act in times of sickness, being angry and fretful when hot water and gruel, or plain bread, is served to them, calling these things abominable and unpleasant, and abominable and hard-hearted also those who would force such things upon them. A bath has proved to be the death of many men who at the outset had not much the matter with them, save only that they could not and would not bear to taste food unless they had first had their bath; of whom Titus the Emperor ^c was one, as those who attended him in his illness affirm.

4. Something, moreover, was said to this effect, that, while the less expensive things are always more healthful for the body, we ought especially to guard against excess in eating and drinking, and against έορτήν τινα μέλλουσαν η φίλων ύποδοχην έι χερσίν έχοντας η προσδοκώντας έστίασιν βασιλικήν καὶ ἡγεμονικὴν καὶ συμπεριφορὰν ἀπαραίτητον, οΐον επιόντος ανέμου και κύματος εύσταλές το σῶμα καὶ κοῦφον ἐν εὐδία παρασκευάζοντας. ἔργον γάρ ἐστιν ἐν συνουσίαις καὶ φιλοφροσύναις αύτον έπι των μετρίων και των συνήθων φυλάξαι μή πασι μετ' άηδίας δεινής έπαχθή φανέντα καί φορτικόν. ίν' οὖν μὴ πῦρ ἐπὶ πυρί, ὥς φασι, πλησμονή τις έπι πλησμονή και άκρατος έπ F ακράτω γένηται, το παιχθέν αστείως υπό Φιλίππου μετά σπουδής μιμητέον. ήν δε τοιούτον. άνθρωπος αύτον έπι χώρας ώς σύν όλίγοις όντα δειπνήσαι παρεκάλεσεν, είθ' όρων πολλούς άγοντα παρεσκευασμένων ου πολλών έταράττετο. συναισθόμενος οὖν ὁ Φίλιππος ὑπέπεμπε τῶν φίλων ἐκάστῷ 124 κελεύων πλακοῦντι καταλιπεῖν χώραν, οἱ δὲ πειθόμενοι καὶ προσδοκῶντες ἐφείδοντο τῶν παρκειμένων. ήρκεσεν ούν απασι το δειπνον. ούτω δή προπαρασκευαστέον αύτούς των άναγκαίων συμπεριφορῶν, καὶ ὄψῷ καὶ πέμματι καὶ νὴ Δία μέθη χώραν φυλάττοντας ἐν τῷ σώματι, καὶ πρόσφατον ἐπὶ ταῦτα καὶ βουλομένην τὴν ὄρεξιν άνοντας.

5. "Αν δε τοιαῦταί τινες ἄφνω βαρεῖς ὄντας ἡμῶς καὶ διακειμένους φαύλως ἀνάγκαι καταλάβωσιν ἡγεμόνων καλούντων ἢ ξένων ἐπιφανέντων ὑπ'

¹ ταῦτα και Reiske: ταῦτα.

^a The proverb may be found in Plato's Laws, p. 666 A, and often repeated in other writers.

^b The story is repeated by Plutarch, Moralia, 178 D, and referred to, Moralia, 707 B. 224

ADVICE ABOUT KEEPING WELL, 123-124

all self-indulgence when we have immediately on hand some festival or a visit from friends, or when we are expecting an entertainment of some king or high official with its unavoidable social engagements ; and thus we should, as it were, in fair weather make our body trim and buoyant against the oncoming wind and wave. It is indeed a hard task, in the midst of company and good cheer, to keep to moderation and one's habits and at the same time to avoid the extreme disagreeableness which makes one appear offensive and tiresome to the whole company. Therefore, to avoid adding fire to fire (as the proverb has it)," and gorging to gorging, and strong drink to strong drink, we ought with all seriousness to imitate the polite joke of Philip. It was in this wise b: A man had invited Philip to dinner in the country, assuming that he had but a few with him, but when later the host saw Philip bringing a great company, no great preparations having been made, he was much perturbed. Philip, becoming aware of the situation, sent word privately to each of his friends to "leave room for cake." They, following the advice, and looking for more to come, ate sparingly of what was before them, and so the dinner was ample for all. In this manner, then, we ought to prepare ourselves in anticipation of our imperative round of social engagements by keeping room in the body for elaborate dishes and pastry, and, I dare to say it, for indulgence in strong drink also, by bringing to these things an appetite fresh and willing.

5. If, however, such imperative occasions suddenly confront us when we are overloaded and in no condition for taking part—if, for instance, we receive an invitation from a high official, or guests appear, so

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

(124) αίδοῦς βαδίζειν εἰς ταὐτὸ τοῖς ἱκανῶς ἔχουσι καὶ Β συμπίνειν, ἐνταῦθα μάλιστα δεῖ παρατετάχθαι πρὸς " τὴν μέγα σινομένην ἄνδρας αἰδῶ" καὶ δυσωπίαν, τὰ τοῦ τραγικοῦ Κρέοντος λέγοντος > κρεῖσσον δέ μοι νῦν πρός σ' ἀπέχθεσθαι, ξένε, ἢ μαλθακισθένθ' ὕστερον μέγα στένειν.

τό γάρ άγροικίας φοβηθέντα δόξαν είς πλευρίτιν η φρενίτιν εμβάλλειν εαυτόν αγροίκου τινός ώς άληθώς έστι καί νοῦν οὐκ ἔχοντος οὐδὲ λόγον ἄνευ κύλικος καὶ κνίσης ἀνθρώποις ἐπιστάμενον ὁμιλεῖν. η τε γαρ παραίτησις αν το επιδεξιον και το άστειον έχη, ούχ ήττον έσται κεχαρισμένη της συμπερι-C φοράς· αν τέ τις παρέχων έστίασιν ωσπερ θυσίαν άγευστον αὐτὸς ἀπέχηται, παρά τε τῆ κύλικι καὶ τῆ τραπέζη μετὰ προθυμίας καὶ φιλοφροσύνης ἄμα τι παίζων και λέγων είς εαυτόν, ήδίων φανείται τοῦ συμμεθυσκομένου καὶ συνοψοφαγοῦντος. ἐμνήσθη δέ των μέν παλαιών 'Αλεξάνδρου μετά πότον πολύν αίσχυνθέντος άντειπειν Μηδίω παρακαλούντι. καὶ κατάβαλόντος¹ αῦθις ἐξ ἀρχῆς αὐτὸν² εἰς ἄκρατον ἀφ' οῦ διεφθάρη, τῶν δὲ καθ' ἡμᾶς Ρήγλου τοῦ παγκρατιαστοῦ. καλοῦντος γὰρ ἐπὶ τό λουτρόν αμ' ήμέρα Τίτου Καίσαρος ήκε καί καταβαλόντοs Bernardakis: καταβάλλοντι.

 ² αὐτὸν Hercher: αὐτὸν.

^a The reference may be to Homer, Il. xxiv. 45 (cf. Hesiod, Works and Days, 318).

^b Euripides, Medea, 290, quoted also in Moralia, 530 c.

° Cf. Moralia, 612 F.

^d Presumably Plutarch again.

that we are constrained by a false sense of shame to join company with men who are in fit condition and to drink with them—then especially, in order to combat "shame which works mischief for men"." (or rather I would call it shamefacedness), we should summon to our defence the words which Creon speaks ^b in the tragedy:

> 'Twere better, friend, to gain your hatred now Than be soft-hearted and lament anon.

For to be so afraid of being thought ill-bred as to plunge oneself into a pleurisy or brain-fever is proof that one is in very truth ill-bred, possessed of neither sense nor the reason which knows how to consort with men without the wine-glass and the savour of food.^c For a request to be excused, if characterized by cleverness and wit, is no less agreeable than joining in the round of gaiety; and if a man provides a banquet in the same spirit in which he provides a burnt-offering which it is forbidden to taste, and personally abstains when the wine-cup and the table are before him, at the same time volunteering cheerfully some playful allusion to himself, he will create a pleasanter impression than the man who gets drunk and gormandizes for company. Of the men of earlier times he d mentioned Alexander, who, after a prolonged debauch, was ashamed to say no to the challenges of Medius, and abandoned himself to a fresh round of hard drinking, which cost him his life; and of the men of our time he mentioned Regulus the prize-fighter. For when Titus Caesar called him to the bath at daybreak, ^e Cf. Plutarch's Life of Alexander, chap. lxxv. (p. 706 c); Diodorus, xvii. 117; Athenaeus, 434 c; Arrian, Anabasis, vii. 25. 1; Quintus Curtius, x. 4; Justin, xii. 13.

227:

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

D συνελούσατο, καὶ πιὼν ẵπαξ, ὡς φασιν, ἀποπληξίας (124) καταλαβούσης εὐθὺς ἀπέθανε.

Ταῦθ' ἡμῖν ὁ Γλαῦκος ἐν γέλωτι προύφερεν ὡς παιδαγωγικά· τῶν δ' ἄλλων οὐ πάνυ πρόθυμος ἦν ἀκούειν, οὐδ' ἡμεῖς ἐκείνῷ διηγεῖσθαι. σὺ δ' ἐπισκόπει τῶν λεχθέντων ἕκαστον.

6. Πρώτος μέν ό Σωκράτης παρακελευόμενος φυλάττεσθαι τῶν βρωμάτων ὅσα μὴ πεινῶντας εσθίειν ἀναπείθει, καὶ τῶν πωμάτων ὅσα πίνειν μὴ διψῶντας, οὐχ ἁπλῶς τὸ χρῆσθαι τούτοις ἀπ-Ε ηγόρευσεν, άλλα χρησθαι δεομένους εδίδασκε και το ήδυ κατατάττοντας αυτών είς το άναγκαῖον, ώσπερ οί τὰ θεωρικά ποιοῦντες έν ταῖς πόλεσι στρατιωτικά. τὸ γὰρ ἡδὺ τῃ φύσει μέχρι ἂν ῃ μέρος τοῦ τρέφοντος οἰκεῖόν ἐστι, καὶ δεῖ πεινῶντας ἔτι τῶν άναγκαίων άπολαύειν η των ήδέων, ιδία δέ μή κινείν ετέρας δρέξεις των κοινών απηλλαγμένους. ώσπερ γάρ αθ τώ¹ Σωκράτει γυμνάσιον ήν ούκ άηδές ή όρχησις, ούτως ώτινι το πέμμα και το τράγημα δειπνόν έστι και σιτίον, ήττον βλάπτεται. το δ' απέχοντα τη φύσει το μέτριον και πεπληρωμένον επιδράττεσθαι των τοιούτων φυλακτέον έν F τοῖς μάλιστα. φυλακτέον δὲ τῆς περὶ ταῦτα φιληδονίας και γαστριμαργίας ούδεν ήττον απειροκαλίαν και φιλοτιμίαν και γαρ αυται πολλάκις 1 að τŵ Wyttenbach: aὐτŵ.

⁶ Xenophon, Memorabilia, i. 3. 6; cf. Plutarch, Moralia, 513 c, 521 F, and 661 F.

^b Perhaps a reference to Demosthenes, fix. 4, which says that in time of war all surplus funds are to be devoted to the army.

^e Xenophon, Symposium, ii. 17-20; again referred to infra, 130 E, and Moralia 711 E. 228 he came and bathed with him, took but one drink, they say, and died immediately from a stroke of apoplexy.

These are the teachings which Glaucus in derision quoted aggressively to us as pedantic. The rest he was not eager to hear, nor we to tell him. But I beg that you will examine each of the several statements.

6. First there is Socrates,^a who, in urging us to be on our guard against such things to eat as persuade us to eat when we are not hungry, and such things to drink as persuade us to drink when we are not thirsty, did not absolutely forbid the use of these things ; but he was instructing us to use them only if we needed them, and to make the pleasure in them serve our necessity, just as our statesmen do who turn to military uses their funds for amusements.^b For that which is pleasant, in so far as it is a nutritive element, is congenial to our nature, and it is by remaining still hungry that we ought to get enjoyment from the necessary or the pleasant foods; but we should not stir up in ourselves a second and separate set of appetites after we have appeased the usual ones. And here is another consideration. Just as Socrates ° found dancing a not unpleasant exercise, so the man for whom pastry and sweets serve as a meal and as food suffers less injury. But when a man has satisfied the moderate demands of his nature, and has had his fill, he ought to exercise the very greatest vigilance against helping himself to such things. And in such matters, while we should be on guard against love of pleasure and gluttony, yet we should be no less on guard against vulgarity and love of notoriety. For these latter often help to persuade people to eat συναναπείθουσι μή πεινώντας έσθίειν ένια καί πίνειν μὴ διψῶντας, ἀνελευθέρους κομιδῆ καὶ φορτικὰς ὑποβάλλουσαι φαντασίας, ὡς ἄτοπόν έστι πράγματος σπανίου και πολυτελοῦς μη άπολαῦσαι παρόντος, οἶον οὕθατος η μυκήτων Ίταλικών η Σαμίου πλακούντος η χιόνος έν Αιγύπτω. ταῦτα γὰρ δήπου προάγεται πολλάκις χρησθαι τοῖς περιβοήτοις καὶ σπανίοις, ὥσπερ ὑπὸ κνίσης 125 της κενής δόξης άγομένους και το σώμα κοινωνείν μηδέν δεόμενον άναγκάζοντας, όπως έχωσιν έτέροις διηγεισθαι, ζηλούμενοι της απολαύσεως των ούτω δυσπορίστων καὶ περιττῶν. ὅμοια δὲ καὶ πρὸς γυναῖκας ἐνδόξους πάσχουσιν. ἰδίαις μὲν γὰρ ἔστιν ότε καί καλαίς και άγαπώσαις συναναπαυόμενοι την ήσυχίαν άγουσι, Φρύνη δε τελέσαντες άργύριον

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

η Λαίδι και το σώμα φαύλως και προς συνουσίαν άργως έχουτες διακείμενον έγείρουσιν άμα καὶ παρακαλοῦσι τὸ ἀκόλαστον ἐπὶ τὴν ἡδονὴν ὑπὸ τῆς κενῆς δόξης. αὐτὴ γοῦν ἔλεγεν ἡ Φρύνη πρεσβυ-Β τέρα γεγενημένη τὴν τρύγα πλείονος πωλεῖν διὰ την δόξαν.

7. "Εστι δε μέγα και θαυμαστόν, αν όσον ή φύσις δεομένη δέχεται των ήδονων προσιέμενοι τώ σώματι, μαλλον δ' αν τὰ πολλὰ παρὰ τὰς ὀρέξεις αὐτῷ διαμαχόμενοι καὶ ἀναβαλλόμενοι καὶ μόλις πάνυ ταις άναγκαίαις χρηματίζοντες η, ως φησιν ό Πλάτων, και δάκνοντος και κατατείνοντος ένδιδόντες άβλαβεις άπαλλάττωμεν. τας δ' άνάπαλιν

^a Supra, 124 D.

^b For the cruelties practised in the preparation of this highly esteemed delicacy see Plutarch, Moralia, 997 A. ^c The quotation does not appear in Plato, but Plutarch is something when they are not hungry, and to drink when they are not thirsty,^a by suggesting utterly sordid and cheap conceits-that it is absurd not to take advantage of the presence of some rare and expensive thing, as, for example, sow's udder,^b Italian mushrooms, Samian cake, or snow in Egypt. For things of this sort do indeed often induce people to use what is renowned and rare, since they are led on by empty repute as by an attractive savour, and compel their body to do its share, although it feels no need, so that they may have a tale to tell to others, and may be envied for their enjoyment of things so hard to obtain and so uncommon. Quite similar is their behaviour toward notorious women. There are times when they repose in quiet with their own wives who are both lovely and loving, but when they have paid money to a Phryne or a Laïs, although their body is in sorry state and is inclined to shirk its task, they rouse it forthwith to action, and call in licentiousness to minister to pleasure, all because of empty repute. In fact, Phrvne herself, in her advancing years, said that she got a better price for her remnants because of her repute.

ADVICE ABOUT KEEPING WELL, 124-125

7. It is a great marvel if we get off unscathed, when we concede to the body only as much of pleasures as Nature in her need finds a place for, but still more so when we battle with it vigorously to thwart its appetites, and keep putting them off, and finally consent to some negotiation with such as will not be denied, or, as Plato $^{\circ}$ says, "yield when the body bites and strains." But when the case is reversed, probably summing up from memory an account of a contest with the passions such as may be found, for example, in the Phaedrus, pp. 254 ff.

- (125) ἐκ τῆς ψυχῆς ἐπὶ τὸ σῶμα κατιούσας ἐπιθυμίας καὶ καταβιαζομένας τοῖς ἐκείνης ὑπηρετεῖν καὶ
 - C συνεξανίστασθαι πάθεσιν οὐδεμία μηχανή το μή σφοδροτάτας βλάβας και μεγίστας έφ' ήδοναις άσθενέσι καὶ ἀμαυραῖς ἐναπολιπεῖν. ἡκιστα δὲ ψυχῆς ἐπιθυμία σῶμα πρὸς ἡδονὰς κινητέον· ἡ γὰρ ἀρχὴ παρὰ φύσιν γίγνεται. καὶ καθάπερ αἱ τῶν μασχαλῶν ψηλαφήσεις οὐκ ἴδιον οὐδὲ πρᾶον ούδ' ίλεων γέλωτα τη ψυχη παρέχουσιν άλλ' έοικότα σπασμώ και χαλεπόν, ούτω πάλιν όσας τό σώμα νυττόμενον ύπό της ψυχης ήδονας ίσχει καί ταραττόμενον, έκστατικαί και ταρακτικαί αύται και άλλότριαι της φύσεώς είσιν. όταν ούν D τι των σπανίων απολαυσμάτων η ενδόξων παραγένηται, φιλοτιμητέον ταῖς ἀποσχέσεσι μᾶλλον η ταῖς ἀπολαύσεσι, μεμνημένους ὅτι καθάπερ ὁ Σιμωνίδης ἕλεγε μηδέποτ' αὐτῷ μεταμελῆσαι σιγήσαντι, φθεγξαμένῳ δὲ πολλάκις, οὕτως ἡμῖν ούτ' όψον παρωσαμένοις μετεμέλησεν ούθ' ύδωρ άντι Φαλερίνου πιοῦσιν, ἀλλὰ τοὐναντίον· οὐ μόνον ού προσβιαστέον έστι την φύσιν, άλλα καν δεομένη προσφέρηταί τι των τοιούτων, ἐπὶ τὰ λιτὰ καὶ συνήθη πολλάκις αποτρεπτέον έθους ένεκα καί μελέτης την ὄρεξιν.

είπερ γάρ άδικειν χρή,

Εφησίν ό Θηβαίος οὐκ ὀρθῶς λέγων, τυραννίδος πέρι

κάλλιστον άδικείν

^a Repeated in more or less similar form, Moralia, 10 F and 514 F.

ADVICE ABOUT KEEPING WELL, 125

and the desires descend from the mind to the body and force it to be subservient to the mind's emotions. and to join in their excitements, there is no way to prevent their leaving as a residue the most violent and serious injuries as the aftermath of feeble and evanescent pleasures. Least of all ought the body to be stirred to pleasures by the mind's desire, since such an origin is unnatural. Just as tickling the arm-pits so affects the mind as to produce laughter which is not natural, or even mild or happy, but convulsive and harsh, so whatsoever pleasures the body achieves through being prodded and disturbed by the mind are deranging and disturbing and foreign to Nature. Whenever, then, someone of those rare and notorious means of enjoyment is afforded us, we ought to take more pride in abstinence than in enjoyment, remembering that just as Simonides a used to say that he had never been sorry for having kept silent, but many a time for having spoken, so we have never been sorry either for having put a dainty to one side, or for having drunk water instead of Falernian wine, but the opposite; not only ought Nature not to be forced, but if anything of this sort is offered her even when she has need of it, the appetite ought to be often diverted from it towards the plain and familiar food for the sake of habituation and training.

If one must needs do wrong, are the words of the Theban,^b who is not correct in saying, far best it were

To do it for a kingdom's sake.

• Eteocles in the Phoenissae of Euripides, i. 524; quoted by Plutarch also in Moralia, 18 p.

ήμεις δὲ βέλτιον ὡς, εἶπερ φιλοδοξεῖν πρὸς τὰ τοιαῦτα, ἐγκρατεία¹ κάλλιστον ὑπὲρ ὑγιείας. οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ καὶ μικρολογία καὶ γλισχρότης ἐνίους ἀναγκάζει πιέζοντας οἶκοι τὰς ἐπιθυμίας καὶ κατισχναίνοντας ἐμπίπλασθαι παρ' ἑτέροις τῶν πολυτελῶν καὶ ἀπολαύειν, καθάπερ ἐκ πολεμίας ἀφειδῶς ἐπισιτιζομένους· εἶτα κακῶς διατεθέντες ἀπίασιν, εἰς τὴν ὑστεραίαν ἐφόδιον τῆς ἀπληστίας τὴν ἀπεψίαν ἔχον-F τες. ὅ μὲν οῦν Κράτης διὰ τρυφὴν καὶ πολυτέλειαν οἰόμενος οὐχ ῆκιστα τὰς στάσεις καὶ τὰς τυραννίδας ἐμφύεσθαι ταῖς πόλεσι, μετὰ παιδιᾶς παρήνει > μη προ φακης λοπάδ' αυξων αιεί ε'ς στάσιν άμμε βάλης.

αὐτὸς δέ τις ἑαυτῷ παρακελευέσθω " μὴ πρὸ φακῆς λοπάδ' αὕξων αἰεὶ" μηδὲ πάντως ὑπερβαίνων τὴν καρδαμίδα καὶ τὴν ἐλαίαν ἐπὶ τὸ θρῖον καὶ τὸν ἰχθὺν εἰς στάσιν ἐκ πλησμονῆς τὸ σῶμα καὶ ταραχὰς ἐμβάλλειν καὶ διαρροίας. τὰ γὰρ εὐτελῆ κρατεῖ τὴν ὅρεξιν ἐπὶ τῶν φυσικῶν μέτρων, 126 ὀψοποιῶν δὲ τέχναι καὶ δημιουργῶν καὶ τὰ πανοῦργα ταῦτ' ὀψάρια χύποτρίμματα κατὰ τὸν κωμικὸν ἀεὶ τοὺς ὅρους τῆς ἡδονῆς μετατίθησιν εἰς τοὕμπροσθεν καὶ παραλλάττει τὸ συμφέρον. οὐκ οἶδα δ' ὅντινα τρόπον, ἡμῶν τὰς γυναῖκας ὅσαι φίλτρα μηχανῶνται καὶ γοητείας ἐπὶ τοὺς ἄνδρας βδελυττομένων καὶ δυσχεραινόντων, μισθω-

¹ έγκρατεία Wyttenbach: έγκράτεια.
 ² alel és F.C.B.: els Athenaeus, iv. p. 158 b: áel és.

^a Cf. Bergk, Poet. Lyr. Gr. ii. p. 670, Crates, No. 10 or Diels, Poet. Phil. Frag. p. 219, Crates, No. 6.

Author unknown; cf. Kock, Com. Att. Frag. iii. p. 435.
 234

But we can improve on this by saying that if we must needs seek repute in such matters as food and drink, "far best it were" by continence for the sake of health. Nevertheless stinginess and greediness constrain some persons, who repress and reduce their desires in their own homes, to stuff themselves and enjoy themselves with expensive things at others' houses as though they were engaged in ruthless foraging in an enemy's country; then they go away much indisposed, and for the next day they have an attack of indigestion to pay for their insatiable appetite. So Crates,^a thinking that luxury and extravagance were as much to blame as anything for the growth of civil discords and the rule of despots in states, humorously advised :

Do not, by always making our fare more ample than lentils,

Throw us all into discord.

And let everybody exhort himself " not to make his fare always more ample than lentils," and by all means not to proceed beyond cress and olives to croquettes and fish, and by overeating throw " his body into discord," that is to say, into derangements and diarrhoeas. For the inexpensive things keep the appetite to its natural limits of moderation, but the arts of the chefs and their trained helpers, and, in the words of the comic poet,^b

These knavish dainties and these complex foods, are constantly advancing and enlarging the bounds of enjoyment, and altering our ideas of what is good for us. I do not know how it is that, while we loathe and detest women who contrive philters and magic to use upon their husbands, we entrust

235

(126) τοῖς τε καὶ δούλοις προϊέμεθα τὰ σιτία καὶ τὰ ὄψα μονονού μαγγανεύειν και φαρμάττειν. εί τοίνυν και πικρότερον φανείται το τοῦ ᾿Αρκεσιλάου προs τούς μοιχικούς και άκολάστους ειρημένον, " μηδέν διαφέρειν ὅπισθέν τινα η̈ ἔμπροσθεν εἶναι κίναιδον," Βούκ άνάρμοστόν έστι τοις ύποκειμένοις. τί γαρ ώς άληθως διαφέρει σατύρια προσάγοντα κινείν καί παροξύνειν το ακόλαστον επί τας ήδονάς, η την γεύσιν όσμαις και καρυκείαις ερεθίζειν ωσπερ τα ψωριώντα κνησμών άει δείσθαι και γαργαλισμών; 8. "Αλλοτε μέν ούν πρός τάς ήδονάς λεκτέον ίσως, τό καλόν και σεμνόν έφ' έαυτοῦ της έγκρατείας οδόν έστι δεικνύοντας ό δε νυν λόγος ύπερ πολλών ήδονών καὶ μεγάλων ἐστίν. οὖτε γὰρ πρά-ξεις οὖτ' ἐλπίδας οὖτ' ἀποδημίας οὖτε διαγωγὰς αἱ νόσοι τοσαύτας ὄσας ήδονὰς ήμων ἀφαιροῦνται καὶ C διαφθείρουσιν. όθεν ήκιστα λυσιτελεί καταφρονείν της ύγιείας τοις μάλιστα την ήδονην διώκουσι. και γάρ φιλοσοφείν άρρωστίαι πολλοίς¹ παρέχουσι καὶ στρατηγεῖν νὴ Δία καὶ βασιλεύειν, ἡδοναὶ δὲ σωματικαὶ καὶ ἀπολαύσεις ἔνιαι μὲν οὐδ' ὅλως γένεσιν έν νόσω λαμβάνουσιν, αί δε λαμβάνουσαι βραχύ το οίκεῖον και οὐ καθαρον ἀλλά συμπεφυρμένον πολλώ τω άλλοτρίω και μεμωλωπισμένον ώσπερ έκ ζάλης και χειμώνος άναφέρουσιν. ου yàp έν πλησμοναίς Κύπρις, άλλὰ μᾶλλον ἐν εὐδία σαρκὸς καὶ γαλήνη καὶ ¹ πολλοῖς Meziriacus: πολλούς.

^a Repeated by Plutarch, Moralia, 705 E, in a slightly different form. Cf. Aulus Gellius, iii. 5.

^b The sentiment is probably taken from Euripides; ef. 236

our food and provisions to hirelings and slaves to be all but bewitched and drugged. If the saying of Arcesilaus ^a addressed to the adulterous and licentious appears too bitter, to the effect that 'it makes no difference whether a man practises lewdness in the front parlour or in the back hall,' yet it is not without its application to our subject. For in very truth, what difference does it make whether a man employ aphrodisiacs to stir and excite licentiousness for the purposes of pleasure, or whether he stimulate his taste by odours and sauces to require, like the itch, continual scratchings and ticklings ?

8. At some other time, then, it may be that we shall have to speak against pleasures, and show what an intrinsic beauty and dignity belongs to continence; but the present discourse is on the side of many pleasures and great. For diseases do not take from us and spoil for us so many of our enterprises or hopes or travels or pastimes as they do of our pleasures. Hence contempt for health is least profitable for those who make pleasure their chief aim. For infirmities allow many persons to be philosophers, or actually even generals or kings, but the pleasures and enjoyments of the body in some cases do not come to life at all in time of disease, and those that come to life yield but a brief part of what they properly should, and even that is not pure, but contaminated with much that is foreign, and marked, as it were, by the beatings of surge and storm. For it is not true that but rather in serenity and calmness of the flesh does Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Euripides, No. 895, and Plutarch, Moralia, 917 B.

In well-gorged bodies Love resides,»

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

(126) Κύπρις είς ήδονήν τελευτά και βρώσις και πόσις.

D ή δ' ύγίεια ταις ήδοναις ώσπερ ή γαλήνη ταις άλ-κυόσιν ἀσφαλή καὶ καλην γένεσιν καὶ λοχείαν ἐν-δίδωσι. κομψῶς γὰρ ἔσικεν ὁ Πρόδικος εἰπεῖν ὅτι των ήδυσμάτων ἄριστόν έστι τὸ πῦρ· ἀληθέστερον δ' άν τις είποι την ύγίειαν ήδυσμα θειότατον είναι καὶ προσηνέστατον· ἑφθὰ μὲν γὰρ καὶ ὀπτὰ καὶ πεπτά βρώματα νοσοῦσιν η κραιπαλωσιν η ναυτιωσιν οὐδεμίαν ήδονην οὐδε χάριν ἀποδίδωσι, καθαρὰ δέ και ακραιφνής δρεξις ύγιαίνοντι σώματι παν ήδυ ποιεί και " άρπαλέον," ώς Όμηρος έφη, και πρόσφορον.

9. Ἐπεὶ δ' ѽσπερ ὁ Δημάδης πολεμικούς ἀ-Ε καίρως τοὺς ᾿Αθηναίους ὄντας ἔλεγε μηδέποτε χειροτονεῖν εἰρήνην ἄνευ μελάνων ἱματίων, οὕτω και ήμεις ουδέποτε μεμνήμεθα λιτής διαίτης και σώφρονος άνευ κλύσεων³ και καταπλασμάτων. έν τε τούτοις γενόμενοι⁴ πιέζομεν σφόδρα τας άμαρτίας, έναπερειδόμενοι τῆ μνήμη καί, καθάπερ οί πολλοί νῦν μέν ἀέρας νῦν δὲ χώρας ἐπιμεμφόμενοι νοσώδεις αποδημίας δεδιέναι λέγουσι, έξαιρούμενοι της αίτίας την άκρασίαν και φιληδονίαν. άλλ' ώσπερ ό Αυσίμαχος έν Γέταις συσχεθείς δίψη καὶ παραδούς ἑαυτὸν μετὰ τοῦ στρατεύματος F αίχμάλωτον είτα πιών ὕδωρ ψυχρόν, " ὦ θεοί," είπεν. "ώς βραχείας ήδονης ένεκα μεγάλην

1 άληθέστερον Stobaeus, ci. 3: άληθέστατον, probably from 2 δ' Meziriacus : γàρ. the following superlatives.

⁸ κλύσεων F.C.B.: λύσεων Kronenberg: καύσεων.

4 γενόμενοι F.C.B. : γιγνόμενοι.

5 δεδιέναι F.C.B. : τέ τινας.

^a Cf. Aristotle, Historia animalium, v. 8; Plutarch, Moralia, 982 F. 238 love find its end in pleasure, as also do eating and drinking; and health affords to pleasures, as calm weather to the halcyons,^a a safe and lovely nesting and hatching of their young. Prodicus seems to have put the matter very neatly in saying that fire is the best of sauces ^b; but one might more truly speak of health as being the most divine and agreeable sauce. For boiled, baked, or fried foods afford no proper pleasure or even gratification to those who are suffering from disease, debauch, or nausea, while a clean and unspoiled appetite makes everything, to a sound body, pleasant and "eagerly craved," as Homer has said,^c—that is, agreeable.

9. As Demades used to say that the Athenians, who were for making war in season and out of season. never voted for peace save when wearing black, so we never give a thought to a plain and restrained way of living except when using enemas and poultices. But when we find ourselves in this plight we try hard to stifle the thought of our wrongdoings, setting ourselves against their remembrance, and, as is the way of most people who object to this or that air or this or that locality as insalubrious when they say that they dread travelling, we exclude our intemperance and self-indulgence from the cause of our illness. Nay, we should recall how Lysimachus d among the Getae was constrained by thirst to surrender himself and the army with him as prisoners of war, and afterwards as he drank cold water exclaimed, "My God, for what a brief pleasure have I thrown ευδαιμονίαν απεβαλόμην," ουτως ανοιστέον έν ταῖς ἀρρωστίαις πρὸς αύτοὺς ὡς διὰ ψυχροποσίαν η λουτρόν ἄκαιρον η συμπεριφοράν πολλάς μέν αύτων διεφθείραμεν¹ ήδονάς, καλάς δέ² πράξεις ἐπιτερπεῖς τε διαγωγὰς ἀπωλέσαμεν. ὁ γὰρ ἐκ τῶν τοιούτων ἀναλογισμῶν δηγμὸς αἰμάσσει τὴν μνήμην, ὥστε οἶον οὐλὴν παραμένουσαν ἐν τῷ ύγιαίνειν εύλαβεστέρους ποιείν περί την δίαιταν. 127 οὐδὲ γὰρ ἄγαν τὸ ὑγιαῖνον σῶμα φύσει μεγάλας έπιθυμίας ούδε δυσπειθείς ούδ' άσυνήθεις ούδε δυσεκβιάστους, άλλα δεί θαρρείν³ πρός τας όρέξεις έκφερομένας και έπιπηδώσας ταις απολαύσεσιν, ώς έλαφρον και παιδικόν έχούσας το μεμψιμοιρούν και κλαυθμυριζόμενον, είτα παυομένας άρθείσης της τραπέζης και μηδέν έγκαλούσας μηδ' άδικουμένας, άλλα τουναντίον καθαράς και ίλαράς και οὐ βαρείας οὐδὲ ναυτιώδεις περιμενούσας τὴν αὔριον. ὥσπερ ἀμέλει καὶ Τιμόθεος εἶπε τῆ Β προτεραία δεδειπνηκώς έν 'Ακαδημεία παρά Πλάτωνι μουσικόν και λιτόν δειπνον, ώς οι παρά Πλάτωνι δειπνήσαντες και είς αύριον ήδέως γίγνονται. λέγεται δὲ καὶ ᾿Αλέξανδρος εἰπεῖν τοὺς τῆς Ἄδας ὀψοποιοὺς ἀποπεμψάμενος ὡς έχει βελτίονας άγειν άει σύν αύτω, πρός μεν τό άριστον τήν νυκτοπορίαν, πρός δε το δείπνον τήν όλιγαριστίαν.

^b Attributed to Evenus in Moralia, 50 A, 697 D, and 1010 c.

° Od. viii. 164. Cf. also 101 c supra.

^d 292 B.C.; cf. also Moralia, 183 E and 555 D. Lysimachus was one of the successors of Alexander the Great.

10. Οὐκ ἀγνοῶ δ' ὅτι καὶ διὰ κόπους πυρέττου-διεφθείραμεν Reiske: διαφθείρομεν.

 2 δέ Wyttenbach: τε.

³ θαρρεῖν] θαρροῦντας μάχεσθαι Stobaeus, Florilegium, ci. 7. ⁴ βελτίονας ἄγειν] βελτίονας Stobaeus, Florilegium, ci. 8.

^a That this story had acquired almost a fixed phraseology in the source from which Plutarch took it may be seen 240 away great prosperity !" And in the same way we ought in our attacks of illness to remember that for a cold drink, an ill-timed bath, or a social party, we have spoiled many of our pleasures and have ruined many an honourable enterprise and delightful recreation. For the sting caused by such reflections keeps the memory raw, so that, like a scar that remains when the body is in health, it makes us more circumspect about our way of living. For the healthy body will not, to any immoderate extent, breed desires that are vehement, intractable, unwonted, and hard to dispossess; nay, we can boldly and confidently oppose the appetites which would fain go beyond all bounds and assault our enjoyments, knowing that their whining and whimpering is a trivial and childish manifestation, and that later, when the table is removed, they will cease repining and make no complaint nor feel themselves aggrieved, but, on the contrary, untainted and cheerful rather than dulled and nauseated by over-indulgence, await the morrow. The remark which Timotheus a made, the day after he had dined with Plato at the Academy on the simple fare of the scholar, is in point here: "Those who dine with Plato," he said, "get on pleasantly the next day also." And it is reported that Alexander said ^b when he discharged the chefs of Ada that he had better ones always to take with him-his night marches for breakfast, and for dinner his frugal breakfast.

10. I am not unaware that men contract fevers by comparing this passage and Plutarch, Moralia, 686 A, Aelian, Varia Historia, ii. 18, Athenaeus, p. 419 d, and Cicero, Tusculan Disputations, v. 35 (100).

^b Cf. Plutarch, Moralia, 180 л, 1099 с, and Life of Alexander, chap. xxii. (р. 677 в). (127) σιν άνθρωποι και δι' έγκαύσεις και δια περιψύξεις. άλλ' ώσπερ αι των άνθέων όσμαι καθ' έαυτας άσθενεῖς εἰσι, μιχθεῖσαι δὲ τῷ ἐλαίῳ ῥώμην ίσχουσι καὶ τόνον, οὕτω ταῖς ἔξωθεν αἰτίαις καὶ C άρχαις οίον ούσίαν και σώμα παρέχει το πλήθος ύποκείμενον. άνευ δε τούτου,¹ τούτων χαλεπόν ούδέν, άλλ' έξαμαυροῦνται καὶ διαχέονται ἑαδίως, αίματος λεπτοῦ καὶ πνεύματος καθαροῦ δεχομένου τήν κίνησιν έν δε πλήθει και περιττώματι οίον ίλὺς ἀναταραττομένη μιαρὰ ποιεῖ πάντα καὶ δυσχερή και δυσαπάλλακτα. διὸ δεῖ μὴ καθάπερ οί ἀγαστοί² ναύκληροι πολλά δι' ἀπληστίαν έμβαλόμενοι, τούντεῦθεν ήδη διατελοῦσιν άντλουντες και ύπεξερώντες³ την θάλατταν, ούτως έμπλήσαντας το σώμα και βαρύναντας υποκαθαίρειν D αῦθις καὶ ὑποκλύζειν, ἀλλὰ διατηρεῖν εὐσταλές, όπως, καν πιεσθή ποτε, φελλού δίκην υπό κουφότητος άναφέρηται.

11. Μάλιστα δέ προφυλακτέον έν ταις προπαθείαις καὶ προαισθήσεσιν. οὐ γὰρ ἄπασαι κατὰ τον Ησίοδον επιφοιτωσιν αι νόσοι σιγή, ἐπεί φωνήν έξείλετο μητίετα Ζεύς, άλλ' αί πλεῖσται καθάπερ προαγγέλους καὶ προδρόμους καὶ κήρυκας ἔχουσιν ἀπεψίας καὶ δυσ-κινησίας. ΄΄ βαρύτητες καὶ κόποι,'' φησὶν Ἱπποκράτης, '' αὐτόματοι νοῦσον φράζουσι,'' διὰ πληθος ύπεξερώντεs Kronenberg (cf. Moralia, 52 B): ὑπεξαιροῦντες.

¹ roúrov added by Capps. ² $\dot{\alpha}\gamma \alpha \sigma \tau ol$ F.C.B.: $\dot{\alpha}\gamma \alpha \theta ol$. The bit of irony escaped the copyist.

because of fatigue and extremes of heat and cold; but just as the scents of flowers are weak by themselves, whereas, when they are mixed with oil, they acquire strength and intensity, so a great mass of food to start with provides substance and body, as it were, for the causes and sources of disease that come from the outside. Without such material none of these things would cause any trouble, but they would readily fade away and be dissipated, if clear blood and an unpolluted spirit are at hand to meet the disturbance; but in a mass of superfluous food a sort of turbulent sediment, as it were, is stirred up, which makes everything foul and hard to manage and hard to get rid of. Therefore we must not act like those much admired (!) ship-masters who for greed take on a big cargo, and thenceforth are continually engaged in baling out the sea-water. So we must not stuff and overload our body, and afterwards employ purgatives and injections, but rather keep it all the time trim, so that, if ever it suffer depression, it shall, owing to its buoyancy, bob up again like a cork.

11. We ought to take special precautions in the case of premonitory symptoms and sensations. For what Hesiod has said a of the illnesses that go hither and thither assailing mankind is not true of all, that

Silent they go, since the wisdom of Zeus has deprived them of voices, but most of them have as their harbingers, forerunners, and heralds, attacks of indigestion and lassitude. "Feelings of heaviness or of fatigue," says Hippocrates,^b "when due to no external cause,

Works and Days, 104, quoted more fully supra, 105 E.
 Aphorisms, ii. 5 (ed. Chartier, 38, 43, Kühn, iii. p. 712).

VOL. II 243

ώς έοικεν έντος διάτασιν και σφήνωσιν του περί Ε τὰ νεῦρα πνεύματος ἔχοντος. ἀλλ' ὅμως αὐτοῦ μονονουχί τοῦ σώματος ἀντιτείνοντος καὶ κατασπῶντος ἐπὶ τὸ κλινίδιον καὶ τὴν ἡσυχίαν οἱ μὲν ὑπὸ λαιμαργίας καὶ φιληδονίας ἐμβάλλουσιν ἑαυ-τοὺς ἐπὶ τὰ βαλανεῖα καὶ σπεύδουσιν ἐπὶ τὰς προπόσεις, ώσπερ είς πολιορκίαν επισιτιζόμενοι καὶ δεδιότες μη φθάση καταλαβών αὐτοὺς δ πυρετός ἀναρίστους, οἱ δὲ κομψότεροι ταύτη μὲν ούχ άλίσκονται, πάνυ δ' ἀβελτέρως αἰσχυνόμενοι κραιπάλην η ἀπεψίαν δμολογεῖν καὶ διημερεύειν έν ίματίοις, έτέρων είς το γυμνάσιον βαδιζόντων καί παρακαλούντων, άναστάντες συναποδύονται F καί ταὐτὰ πράττουσι τοῖς ὑγιαίνουσι. τοὺς δέ πλείους ἀκρασία καὶ μαλακία¹ συνήγορον ἔχουσα παροιμίαν ἐλπὶς ἀναπείθει καὶ προάγεται βαδίζειν άναστάντας ίταμως έπι την συνήθειαν, ώς οίνω δή τον οίνον κραιπάλη δε την κραιπάλην² έξελώντας καὶ διαφορήσοντας.³ πρὸς μὲν οὖν ταύτην τὴν ϵλπίδα την τοῦ Κάτωνος εὐλάβειαν ἀντιτακτέον 128 ην φησιν ἐκείνος ὁ ἀνηρ '' τὰ μὲν μεγάλα μικρὰ ποιείν τὰ δὲ μικρὰ παντελῶς ἀναιρεῖν,'' καὶ ὅτι κρείττον ένδειαν ύπομειναι δια κενής και ήσυχίαν ή διακυβεύσαι πρός λουτρόν ώσαμένους καί

1 ἀκρασία και μαλακία F.C.B.: ἀκρασίας και μαλακίας Erasmus: ἀκρασία και μαλακία.

² Kock, Comic. Att. Frag. iii, p. 494, extracts an iambic trimeter from the words of this proverb.

³ έξελῶντας και διαφορήσοντας Wyttenbach, and one ms. correction: έξελόντας και διαφορήσαντας.

^a "Similia similibus curentur." The proverb has not been handed down in this form, but Plutarch may have in mind the proverb found in Pollux, ix. 120 (see Kock, Com. 244 indicate disease," since, presumably, the spirit about the nerves is subjected to tension and pressure owing to fullness within the body. Nevertheless, some men. although their body itself all but resists and would fain drag them to their beds and their rest, are led by gluttony and self-indulgence to rush off to the baths and eagerly to join in the drinking-bouts, as if they were laying in provisions for a siege and were fearful lest the fever seize them before they have had luncheon. Others, less gross than these, are not indeed caught in this folly, but very stupidly, just because they are ashamed to admit having a headache or indigestion, and to keep their clothes on all day, when a crowd on their way to the gymnasium invite them to come along, they get up and go, strip with the others, and go through the same exercises as do those who are in sound health. But as for the majority, Hope, backed by a proverb which well accords with incontinence and weakness of purpose, persuades and induces them to get up and go recklessly to their accustomed haunts, thinking to expel and dispel wine with wine, and headache with headache.^a Against this hope should be set Cato's caution which that grand old man phrased in this way b: "Make the great small, and abolish the small altogether"; also the thought that it is better to submit patiently to fasting and resting with nothing to show for it, rather than to take any chances by rushing pell-mell to a bath or a dinner. For if there Att. Frag. iii. p. 500, and his notes, especially the reference to Athenaeus, 44 a): "Nail with nail and peg with peg" (a man drives out). Slightly different versions may be found in Leutsch and Schneidewin, Paroemiographi Graeci, ii. pp. 116 and 171.

• Cf. Moralia, 825 D.

(128) δείπνον. εἰ μέν γὰρ ἔστι τι, βλάψει τὸ μὴ φυλάξασθαι μηδ' ἐπισχεῖν· εἰ δὲ μηδέν, οὐ βλάψει τὸ συσταλῆναι τῷ σώματι καὶ γενέσθαι καθαρώτερον. ὁ δὲ παιδαριώδης ἐκεῖνος καὶ τοῖς φίλοις δεδιὼς καὶ τοῖς οἰκέταις φανερὸς γενέσθαι διακείμενος ἐκ πλησμονῆς ἢ κραιπάλης ἀηδῶς, αἰσχυνόμενος ἀπεψίαν ὁμολογῆσαι τήμερον, αὕριον ὁμολογήσει κατάρροιαν ἢ πυρετὸν ἢ στρόφον· αἰσχυνόμενος αἴσχιστα πενίαν α̈ν' φέροις,

Β πολύ δ' αισχιον ἀπεψίαν καὶ βαρύτητα καὶ πλησμονὴν σώματος εἰς βαλανεῖον ἐλκομένου καθάπερ εἰς θάλατταν σαθροῦ πλοίου καὶ μὴ στέγοντος. ὥσπερ γὰρ ἀμέλει πλέοντες ἔνιοι χειμῶνος ὄντος αἰδοῦνται διατρίβειν ἐπ' ἀκτῆς, εἶτ' ἀναχθέντες αισχιστα διάκεινται βοῶντες καὶ ναυτιῶντες, οὕτως ἐν ὑποψία καὶ προπαθεία σώματος ἀγεννἐς ἡγούμενοι μίαν ἡμέραν ἐν κλίνῃ διάγειν καὶ μὴ παραθέσθαι τράπεζαν, αισχιστα πολλὰς ἡμέρας κεῖνται καθαιρόμενοι καὶ καταπλαττόμενοι καὶ θωπεύοντες ἰατροὺς καὶ θεραπεύοντες, οἶνον αἰτοῦντες ἢ ψυχρὸν ὕδωρ, ἀτοπα C καὶ ἀγεννῆ πολλὰ ποιεῖν καὶ φθέγγεσθαι διὰ τὸν πόνον καὶ τὸν φόβον ὑπομένουτες.

Καὶ μὴν τούς γε διὰ τὰς ἡδονὰς μὴ κρατοῦντας ἑαυτῶν ἀλλ' ἐγκλίνοντας ἢ φερομένους ὑπὸ τῶν ἐπιθυμιῶν καλῶς ἔχει διδάσκειν καὶ ἀναμιμνήσκειν ὅτι πλεῖστον ἐκ τοῦ σώματος αἱ ἡδοναὶ λαμβάνουσι· (12) καὶ καθάπερ οἱ Λάκωνες ὅξος καὶ ἅλας is anything the matter with us, failure to take proper precaution and to put a check on ourselves will do us harm ; and if nothing is the matter, it will do no harm for the body to be subjected to some restrictions and cleared of some of its encumbrances. But that childish person who is afraid to let his friends and servants discover that he is in a state of discomfort from excessive eating or drinking, will, if he is ashamed to admit having indigestion to-day, tomorrow admit having diarrhoea or fever or gripes.

¹ $a\nu$ added by Porson.

The shame of want makes want a shame to bear." but much more is it a shame to bear indigestion, overloading, and overfullness in a body which is dragged to the bath like a rotten and leaky boat into the sea. For just exactly as some persons, when they are voyaging and a storm is raging, are ashamed to tarry on shore, and so they put out to sea, and then are in most shameful case, shrieking and sea-sick, so those who regard it as ignoble, amidst suspicious premonitory symptoms of their body, to spend one day in bed, and not to take their meals at table, keep to their bed most shamefully for many days, under purging and poulticing, servile and attentive to physicians, asking for wine or cold water, and suffering themselves to do and to utter many extravagant and ignoble things because of their distress and fear.

Moreover, it is well that those who because of pleasures fail in self-control, and give way to their desires or are carried away by them, should be instructed and reminded that pleasures derive most of their satisfaction from the body; (12) and as the Spartans give to the cook vinegar and salt only, ^a From an unknown play of Menander; cf. Kock, Com.

Att. Frag. iii. p. 220.

- (128) διδόντες τῷ μαγείρῳ τὰ λοιπὰ κελεύουσιν ἐν τῷ ίερείῳ ζητεῖν, οῦτως ἐν τῷ σώματι τοῦ προσφερομένου τὰ κάλλιστα τῶν ἡδυσμάτων ἐστίν, ἄνπερ ὑγιαίνοντι καὶ καθαρῷ προσφέρηται. γλυκὰ μὲν γὰρ ἢ πολυτελὲς ἔξω καὶ καθ' αὐτὸ τῶν τοιούτων ἕκαστόν ἐστιν, ἡδὰ δὲ πέφυκεν ἐν τῷ ἡδομένῳ καὶ μετὰ τοῦ ἡδομένου γίγνεσθαι κατὰ φύσιν
 - D έχοντος· ἐν δὲ δυσαρέστοις καὶ κραιπαλῶσι καὶ φαύλως διακειμένοις πάντα τὴν αὐτῶν χάριν καὶ ὥραν ἀπόλλυσι. διὸ δεῦ μὴ σκοπεῖν τὸν ἰχθὺν εἰ πρόσφατος, μηδὲ τὸν ἅρτον εἰ καθαρός, μηδὲ τὸ βαλανεῖον εἰ θερμόν, μηδὲ τὴν ἑταίραν εἰ εῦμορφος, ἀλλ' αὐτὸν εἰ μὴ ναυτιώδης μηδὲ θολερὸς μηδ' ἕωλος μηδὲ τεταραγμένος. εἰ δὲ μή, καθάπερ εἰς οἰκίαν πενθοῦσαν ἐμβαλόντες ἐπίκωμοι μεθύοντες οὐ φιλοφροσύνην παρέσχον οὐδ' ἡδονὴν ἀλλὰ κλαυθμοὺς καὶ ὀδυρμοὺς¹ Ε ἐποίησαν, οὕτω καὶ ἀφροδίσια καὶ ὄψα καὶ βαλανεῖα καὶ οἶνος ἐν σώματι κακῶς καὶ παρὰ φύσιν ἔχοντι μιγνύμενα τοῖς μὴ καθεστῶσι καὶ διεφθορόσι φλέγμα καὶ χολὴν κινεῖ καὶ ταράττει καὶ προσεξίστησιν, ἡδὺ δ' οὐδὲν ἀξιολόγως οὐδ' ἀπολαυστικὸν οὐδὲν οἶον προσεδοκήσαμεν ἀποδίδωσιν.

13. 'Η μέν οὖν ἀκριβὴς σφόδρα καὶ δι' ὄνυχος λεγομένη δίαιτα τό τε σῶμα κομιδῃ ψοφοδεἐς παρέχεται καὶ σφαλερόν, αὐτῆς τε^{*} τῆς ψυχῆς τὸ γαῦρον κολούει πάντα πράγματα καὶ πᾶσαν οὐχ ἦττον bidding him seek whatever else he needs in the slaughtered animal itself,^a so in the body are the best of sauces for whatever is served, if so be that it is served to a body which is healthy and clean. For everything of this sort is "sweet" or "costly" irrespectively of the user and by itself, but Nature decrees that it becomes "pleasant" only in and in connexion with the person that is pleased and is in harmony with Nature; but in those who are captious or suffering from a debauch, or are in a bad way, all things lose their intrinsic agreeableness and freshness. Therefore there is no need to look to see whether the fish be fresh, the bread white, the bath warm, or the girl shapely, but a man should look to himself to see whether he be not nauseated, feculent, stale, or in any way upset. Otherwise, just as drunken revellers who force their way into a house of mourning provide no cheerfulness or pleasure, but only cause weeping and wailing, so in a body that is in a bad condition and out of harmony with Nature, the pleasures of love, elaborate food, baths and wine, when combined with such elements in the body as are unsettled and tainted, set up phlegm and bile and bring on an upset, besides being unduly exciting, while they yield no pleasure to speak of, nor any enjoyment like what we expected.

¹ κλαυθμούς καὶ όδυρμούς Stobaeus, Florilegium, ci. 9: κλαυθμούς. ² τε Stobaeus, Florilegium, ci. 10: δὲ. 248

13. The very exact mode of living, "exact to a hair's breadth," to use the popular expression,^b puts the body in a timorous and precarious state, and abridges the self-respect of the soul itself, so that it comes to look askance at every activity, and to no less

^a A humorous turn is given to this custom in the anecdote related by Plutarch, Moralia, 995 B.

• See the note on 86 A in Vol. I.

έν ήδοναῖς καὶ πόνοις διατριβὴν καὶ πρᾶξιν ὑφορωμένης καὶ πρὸς μηδὲν ἰταμῶς καὶ θαρραλέως F βαδιζούσης. δεῖ δ' ὥσπερ ἱστίον τὸ σῶμα μήτε συστέλλειν εὐδίας οὕσης καὶ πιέζειν σφόδρα, μήτ' ἀνειμένως χρῆσθαί τε καὶ καταφρονεῖν ἐν ὑποψία γενόμενον.' ἀλλ' ἐνδιδόναι καὶ ποιεῖν ἐλαφρὸν ὥσπερ εἴρηται, καὶ μὴ περιμένειν ἀπεψίας καὶ διαρροίας μηδὲ θερμασίας μηδὲ νάρκας, ὑφ' ῶν ἔνιοι μόλις ὥσπερ ὑπ' ἀγγέλων ἢ κλητόρων, πυρετοῦ 129 περὶ θύρας ὅντος ἤδη, θορυβούμενοι συστέλλουσιν ἑαυτούς, ἀλλὰ πόρρωθεν ἐξευλαβεῖσθαι > πρό χείματος, ωστ' ἀνὰ ποντίαν ἄκραν βορέα[°] πνέοντος.

14. "Ατοπον γάρ έστι κοράκων μέν λαρυγγισμοῖς καὶ κλωσμοῖς ἀλεκτορίδων καὶ '' συσὶν ἐπὶ φορυτῷ μαργαινούσαις,'' ὡς ἔφη Δημόκριτος, ἐπιμελῶς προσέχειν, σημεῖα ποιουμένους πνευμάτων καὶ ὅμβρων, τὰ δὲ τοῦ σώματος κινήματσ καὶ σάλους καὶ προπαθείας μὴ προλαμβάνειν μηδὲ προφυλάττειν, μηδ' ἔχειν σημεῖα χειμῶνος ἐν ἑαυτῷ γενησομένου καὶ μέλλοντος. ὅθεν οὐ περὶ τροφὴν μόνον οὐδὲ γυμνάσια δεῖ φυλάττειν τὸ σῶμα μὴ παρὰ τὸ Β εἰωθὸς ἅπτεται τούτων ὀκνηρῶς καὶ ἀπροθύμως ἢ πάλιν διψῶδές ἐστι καὶ πειναλέον ὡς οὐ πέφυκεν, ἀλλὰ καὶ τῶν ὅπνων τὸ μὴ συνεχὲς μηδὲ λεῖου γενόμενον Stobaeus, ibid.: γινόμενον.

 ² βορέα Bergk: βορρά.

^a Author unknown; cf. Bergk, Poet. Lyr. Graec. iii. p. 721. Cf. also Moralia, 455 A, and 503 A.

Theophrastus, Designis, 49, lists this phenomenon among the signs of a coming storm. 250 a degree at spending any time or participating at all in pleasures or labours, and goes at no undertaking with readiness and confidence. A man ought to handle his body like the sail of a ship, and neither lower and reduce it much when no cloud is in sight, nor be slack and careless in managing it when he comes to suspect something is wrong, but he should rather ease the body off and lighten its load, as has already been said, and not wait for indigestions and diarrhoeas, nor heightened temperatures nor fits of drowsiness. And yet some people wait until a fever is already at their doors and then, being as excited as if a message or a summons to court had come, just manage to restrict themselves; whereas they ought, while these things are still afar off, to be cautious

Before the storm, as though along the strand The North wind blew.⁴

14. For it is absurd to give careful heed to the croaking of ravens, the clucking of hens, and "swine in their wild excitement over bedding," ^b as Democritus oput it, making signs of winds and rains out of these, and at the same time not to forestall nor take precaution against the stirrings, the ups and downs, and the premonitory symptoms in the body, and not to hold these to be signs of a storm that is going to take place in one's self, and is just about to break. Wherefore not merely in the matter of food and exercise do we need to keep watch of our body, to see whether, contrary to its habits, it takes to these reluctantly and without zest, or at another time is thirsty and hungry in an unnatural way, but also, in the matter of sleep, to beware of lack of

• Diels, Fragmente der Vorsokratiker, ii. p. 88. 19

VOL. H

(129) ἀλλ' ἀνωμαλίας ἔχον καὶ διασπασμοὺς εἰλαβεῖσθαι, καὶ τῶν ἐνυπνίων τὴν ἀτοπίαν, ἄνπερ ῶσι μὴ νόμιμοι μηδὲ συνήθεις αἱ φαντασίαι, πλῆθος ἢ πάχος ὑγρῶν ἢ πνεύματοςἱ ταραχὴν ἐντὸς κατηγοροῦσαν. ἤδη δὲ καὶ τὰ τῆς ψυχῆς κινήματα τὸ σῶμα μηνύει πρὸς νόσον ἐπισφαλῶς ἔχειν. ἄλογοι γὰρ ἴσχουσιν ἀθυμίαι καὶ φόβοι πολλάκις ἀπ' C οὐδενὸς φανεροῦ, τὰς ἐλπίδας ἄφνω κατασβεννύουσαι γίγνονται δὲ καὶ ταῖς ὀργαῖς ἐπίχολοι καὶ ἀξέεῖς καὶ μικρόλυποι, καὶ δακρυρροῦσι καὶ ἀδημονοῦσιν ὅταν ἀτμοὶ πονηροὶ καὶ ἀναθυμιάσεις πικραὶ συνιστάμεναι '' ταῖς τῆς ψυχῆς,'' ῶς φησιν ὁ Πλάτων, ἀνακραθῶσι '' περιόδοις.'' διὸ δεῦ σκοπεῖν οἶς ἂν ταῦτα συμπίπτη καὶ μνημονεύειν, ἂν μηδὲν ῇ πνευματικόν, ὅτι σωματικόν ἐστιν αἶτιον ὑποστολῆς τινος ἢ κατακράσεως δεόμενον.

15. Χρήσιμον δὲ πάνυ καὶ τὸ τοὺς φίλους ἐπι-D σκεπτόμενον ἀσθενοῦντας ἐκπυνθάνεσθαι τὰς αἰτίας, μὴ σοφιστικῶς μηδὲ περιέργως ἐνστάσεις καὶ παρεμπτώσεις καὶ κοινότητας λαλοῦντα καὶ παρεπιδεικνύμενον ἰατρικῶν ὀνομάτων καὶ γραμμάτων ἐμπειρίαν, ἀλλὰ ταυτὶ τὰ φαῦλα καὶ κοινὰ μὴ παρέργως ἀκούοντα, πλῆθος ἡλίωσιν κόπον ἀγρυπνίαν, μάλιστα δὲ δίαιταν ή χρώμενος ἐπύρεξεν. εἶθ' ὥσπερ ὁ Πλάτων ἐπὶ τοῖς ἀλλοτρίοις ἁμαρτήμασιν εἰώθει λέγειν ἀπιών '' μὴ που ἄρα καὶ ἐγὼ τοιοῦτος; '' οὕτω τὰ περὶ αῦτὸν ἐν τοῖς πλησίον εῦ τίθεσθαι, καὶ ψυλάττεσθαι καὶ μνημουνεύειν ὅπως continuity and of evenness, marked by irregularities and sharp interruptions, and to beware also of the abnormal in dreams, which, if so be that our visions are improper or unwonted, argues an over-abundance or concretion of humours, or a disturbance of spirit within us. And also the emotions of the soul have often given warning that the body is perilously near disease. For instance, irrational discouragements and fears take possession of people oftentimes from no apparent cause, and suddenly extinguish their hopes; in temper they become irascible, sharp, and pained at trifles, and they are tearful and dismayed whenever bad vapours and bitter exhalations encounter and unite with the "rotations of the soul," as Plato a has it. Therefore those to whom such things happen have need to consider and to remember that, if the cause is not one which concerns the spirit, it is one which concerns the body, and that it needs reducing or toning down.

> ¹ πνεύματος Stobacus, Florilegium, ci. 11: πνευμάτων. ² ήλίωσιν Erasmus: ή λείωσιν.

15. It is very profitable when visiting sick friends to inquire of them the causes of their illness, not by talking pedantically and officiously about stoppages, irruptions, and trite generalities, and incidentally displaying some acquaintance with medical terminology and literature, but by listening in no perfunctory way to these homely and common details of overeating, exposure to the sun, fatigue, sleeplessness, and especially the manner of living which the man was following when he fell sick of the fever. Then, like Plato, who, on his way home, was accustomed to say on the subject of others' faults, "Am not I too possibly like them?" ^b a man ought to correct in himself the faults he observes in his neighbours, and be watchful and mindful not to become involved in

Ε ού περιπεσείται τοις αύτοις ούδ' αύτος είς την κλίνην καταπεσών ύμνήσει ποθών την πολυτίμητον ύγίειαν, άλλ' έτέρου πάσχοντος ένσημανειται πρός έαυτον ώς άξιον πολλού το ύγιαίνειν και δεί τουτο διατηρείν αύτῷ προσέχοντα καὶ φειδόμενον. οὐ χεῖρον δὲ καὶ τὴν ἑαυτῶν παρεπισκοπεῖν δίαιταν. ἂν γὰρ ἐν πόσεσι καὶ προσφοραῖς ἤ τισι πόνοις και άταξίαις έτέραις τυγχάνωμεν γεγονότες, το δέ σώμα μηδεμίαν ύποψίαν παρέχη μηδε προαίσθησιν, όμως αύτους δει φυλάττεσθαι και προκαταλαμβάνειν ἐκ μὲν ἀφροδισίων καὶ κόπων ὄντας ἀναπαύσει καὶ ἡσυχία, μετὰ δ' οἴνωσιν καὶ συμπερι-F φοράν ύδροποσία, μάλιστα δε τροφαίς κεχρημένους έμβριθέσι και κρεώδεσιν η ποικίλαις όλιγοσιτειν και μηδέν υπολείπειν περιττώματος πληθος έν τω σώματι. καὶ γὰρ αὐτὰ ταῦτα δι' αὐτὰ πολλῶν aἴτια νόσων ἐστί, καὶ προστίθησι ταῖς ἄλλαις aἰτίαις ὕλην καὶ δύναμιν. ὅθεν ἄριστα λέλεκται ΄ τροφής άκορίην και πόνων άσκνίην και σπέρματος 130 οὐσίης συντήρησιν ὑγιεινότατα εἶναι." καὶ γὰρ ή περί τὰς συνουσίας ἀκρασία τῷ μάλιστα τὴν δύναμιν ἐκλύειν ὑφ' ἧς ἡ τροφὴ διαπονεῖται, πλέον περίττωμα ποιεί και πληθος.

16. Αύθις ούν ἀναλαβόντες ἐξ ἀρχῆς περὶ ἑκάστου, πρῶτον δὲ περὶ γυμνασίων φιλολόγοις ἁρμοζόντων λέγωμεν ὅτι ὥσπερ ὁ φήσας μηδὲν γράφειν παραθαλαττίοις περὶ ὅλκάδων¹ ἐδίδαξε τὴν χρείαν,

1 όλκάδων F.C.B.: τριοδόντων ? Bernardakis: όψων Sieveking: όδόντων.

^a Cf. Moralia, 732 E.

^b Probably based on Hippocrates: cf. Hippocrates, Epidemics, vi. 4. 20 (ed. Chartier, 9, 500, Kühn, iii. p. 605). 254 the same difficulties, and be himself compelled to take to his bed, and there give voice to his yearnings for precious health, but rather, when another is undergoing this experience, he will impress upon himself how valuable a thing is health, and that he ought to try to preserve this by giving heed to himself, and by being frugal. It is not a bad thing, either, to take a look at our own way of living ; for if we have been engaged in a bout of drinking and eating, or in some hardships and other irregularities, and the body presents no suspicious or premonitory symptoms, nevertheless we ought to be watchful of ourselves and forestall any trouble by means of rest and quiet when fresh from the pleasures of love, or when fatigued; also by drinking water after the free use of wine and after social gaiety, and especially, after indulging in a heavy diet of meat or multifarious foods, to eat lightly, and leave no mass of superfluous residue in the body. For these very things are of themselves the causes of many diseases, and they add material and potency to the other causes.^a Wherefore it has been very well said, "Eating not unto satiety, labouring not unto weariness, and observance of chastity, are the most healthful things."^b For incontinence, by undermining especially the powers by which the food is assimilated, causes further superfluity and overcrowding.

16. Let us now take up each topic anew once more; and in the first place, on the subject of exercises suitable for scholars, we beg to remark that one might follow the example of the man who, by saying that he had nothing to write for people dwelling by the sea on the subject of ships, showed clearly that they were in use; and so in the same way one (130) οὕτω καὶ φιλολόγοις φαίη τις ἂν μὴ γράφειν περὶ γυμνασίων. ἡ γὰρ καθ' ἡμέραν τοῦ λόγου χρεία γυμνασιών. η γαρ καυ ημεραν του Λογου χρεια διά φωνης περαινομένη θαυμαστόν οΐόν έστι γυμνά-σιον οὐ μόνον πρός ὑγίειαν ἀλλὰ καὶ πρός ἰσχύν, Β οὐ παλαιστικὴν οὐδὲ σαρκοῦσαν καὶ πυκνοῦσαν τὰ ἐκτὸς ὥσπερ οἰκοδομήματος, ἀλλὰ τοῖς ζωτικω-τάτοις καὶ κυριωτάτοις μέρεσι ῥώμην ἐνδιάθετον καὶ τόνον ἀληθινὸν ἐμποιοῦσαν. ὅτι μὲν γὰρ ἰσχὺν ένδίδωσι¹ τὸ πνεῦμα, δηλοῦσιν οἱ ἀλεῖπται, τοὺς ἀθλητὰς κελεύοντες ἀντερείδειν ταῖς τρίψεσι καὶ παρεγκόπτειν² τείνοντας³ ἀεὶ τὰ πλαττόμενα μέρη καὶ ψηλαφώμενα τοῦ σώματος· ἡ δὲ φωνή, τοῦ πνεύματος οὖσα κίνησις, οὐκ ἐπιπολαίως ἀλλ' ώσπερ έν πηγαΐς περί τὰ σπλάγχνα βωννυμένη, τὸ θερμὸν αὔξει καὶ λεπτύνει τὸ αίμα, καὶ πᾶσαν μὲν Ο ερμον αυζεί και πεπτυνεί το αίμα, και πασαν μεν C έκκαθαίρει φλέβα, πασαν δ' ἀρτηρίαν ἀνοίγει, σύστασιν δὲ καὶ πῆξιν ὑγρότητος οὐκ ἐậ περιττω-ματικῆς ὥσπερ ὑποστάθμην ἐγγενέσθαι τοῖς τὴν τροφὴν παραλαμβάνουσι καὶ κατεργαζομένοις ἀγ-γείοις. διὸ δεῖ μάλιστα ποιεῖν ἑαυτοὺς τούτῳ τῷ γυμνασίω συνήθεις και συντρόφους ένδελεχως λέγουνασιώ ου ηρείς και συν μοφοίς ενοικίχως γοντας, αν δ' ή τις ύποψία τοῦ σώματος ἐνδεέστε-ρον η κοπωδέστερον ἔχοντος, ἀναγιγνώσκοντας η ἀναφωνοῦντας. ὅπερ γὰρ αἰώρα πρὸς γυμνάσιόν ἐστι, τοῦτο πρὸς διάλεξιν ἀνάγνωσις, ὥσπερ ἐπ' διαφορούσα πρός στακεςτε αναγνωσις, ωσπερ επ διαφορούσα πράως την φωνήν. ή δε διάλεξις άγωνα και σφοδρότητα προστίθησιν, αμα της D ψυχής τώ σώματι συνεπιτιθεμένης. κραυγάς μέντοι περιπαθείς και σπαραγμώδεις ευλαβητέον αί might say that he was not writing for scholars on the subject of exercise. For it is wonderful what an exercise is the daily use of the voice in speaking aloud, conducing, not only to health, but also to strength-not the strength of the wrestler which lays on flesh and makes the exterior solid like the walls of a building, but a strength which engenders an all-pervasive vigour and a real energy in the most vital and dominant parts. That breathing gives strength the athletic trainers make clear in telling the athletes to brace themselves against the rubbing and stop their breath meantime, and keep tense the portions of the body that are being kneaded and massaged. Now the voice is a movement of the breath, and if it be given vigour, not in the throat, but, as it were, at its source in the lungs, it increases the warmth, tones down the blood, clears out every vein, opens every artery, and does not permit of any concretion or solidifying of superfluous fluid like a sediment to take place in the containing organs which take over and digest the food. For this reason we ought especially to make ourselves habituated and used to this exercise by continual speaking, or, if there be any suspicion that our body is not quite up to the mark or is somewhat fatigued, then by reading aloud or declaiming. For reading stands in the same relation to discussion as riding in a carriage to active exercise, and as though upon the vehicle of another's words it moves softly, and carries the voice gently this way and that. But discussion adds contention and vehemence, as the mind joins in the encounter along with the body. We must, however, be cautious about passionate and convulsive vociferations. For

¹ Ισχύν Meziriacus, ένδίδωσι F.C.B.: Ισχύειν δίδωσι.
² παρεγκόπτειν] παρεγκάπτειν Madvig.

256

³ relvortas Meziriacus : τηρούντας.

(130) γὰρ ἀνώμαλοι προβολαὶ¹ καὶ διατάσεις τοῦ πνεύματος ῥήγματα καὶ σπάσματα ποιοῦσιν.

Αναγνόντα δ' η διαλεχθέντα λιπαρά και άλεεινη τρίψει χρηστέον πρό τοῦ περιπάτου καὶ μαλάξει τῆς σαρκός, ὡς ἀνυστόν² ἐστι, τῶν σπλάγχνων ποιούμενον άφην και τό πνεθμα πράως διομαλύνοντα καί διαχέοντα μέχρι των ακρων. μέτρον δέ τοῦ πλήθους τῆς τρίψεως ἔστω τὸ προσφιλές τῆ Ε ιίσθήσει και άλυπον. ό γαρ ούτω καταστήσας τήν έν βάθει ταραχήν και διάτασιν του πνεύματος, ἀλύπῳ τε χρῆται τῷ περιττώματι, κἂν ἀκαιρία τις η χρεία κωλύση τὸν περίπατον, οὐδέν ἐστι πράγμα· το γάρ οἰκεῖον ή φύσις ἀπείληφεν. δθεν ούτε πλούν ποιητέον ούτε καταγωγήν έν πανδοκείω σιγής πρόφασιν, ούδ' αν πάντες καταγελώσιν. όπου γάρ ούκ αίσχρόν τό φαγείν, ούδε τό γυμνάζεσθαι δήπουθεν αίσχρόν άλλ' αισχιον το δεδοικέναι και δυσωπείσθαι ναύτας και όρεωκόμους καί πανδοκείς καταγελώντας ού του σφαιρίζοντος F καί σκιαμαχοῦντος ἀλλὰ τοῦ λέγοντος, αν άμα διδάσκη τι καὶ ζητῆ καὶ μανθάνη καὶ ἀναμιμνήσκηται γυμναζόμενος. ό μέν γάρ Σωκράτης έλεγεν ότι τώ κινοῦντι δι' ὀρχήσεως αύτον ἐπτάκλινος οἶκος ίκανός έστιν έγγυμνάζεσθαι, τω δε δι' ώδης η λόγου γυμναζομένω γυμνάσιον αποχρών και έστωτι και κατακειμένω πας τόπος παρέχει. μόνον έκεινο φυλακτέον, όπως μήτε πλησμονήν μήτε λαγνείαν

1 προβολαl Salmasius : προσβολαl.

² άνυστόν Stephanus: άνοιστόν.

³ γυμναζομένψ γυμνάσιον ἀποχρῶν Wyttenbach: γυμνάσιον ἀπόχρη γυμναζομένψ. spasmodic expulsion and straining of the breath produces ruptures and sprains.

After reading or discussion, before going to walk, one should make use of rubbing with oil in a warm room to render the flesh supple, extending the massage so far as practicable to the inward parts, and gently equalizing the vital spirit and diffusing it into the extremities. Let the limits of the amount of this rubbing be what is agreeable to the senses and not discomforting. For the man who thus composes the inward disquiet and tension in his vital spirit manages the superfluous in his body without discomfort, and if unfavourable weather or some engagement prevent his going to walk, it does not matter, for Nature has received her proper due. Wherefore neither travelling nor stopping at an inn ought to be made an excuse for silence, nor even if everybody there deride one. For where it is not disgraceful to eat it is certainly not disgraceful to take exercise; nay, it is more disgraceful to feel timid and embarrassed before sailors, muleteers, and innkeepers, who do not deride the man who plays ball and goes through the movements of sparring alone, but the man who speaks, even though in his exercises he instruct, question, learn, and use his memory. Socrates said a that for a man's movements in dancing a room that would accommodate seven persons at dinner was large enough to take exercise in, but for a man who takes his exercise through singing or speaking every place affords him adequate room for this exercise both when standing up and when lying down. But we must observe this one caution-not to strain our voices too hard μήτε κόπον έαυτοῖς συνειδότες ἐντεινώμεθα τῆ 131 φωνῆ τραχύτερον, ὃ πάσχουσι πολλοὶ τῶν ῥητόρων καὶ τῶν σοφιστῶν, οἱ μὲν ὑπὸ δόξης καὶ φιλοτιμίας, οἱ δὲ διὰ μισθοὺς ἢ πολιτικὰς ἁμίλλας ἐξαγόμενοι παρὰ τὸ συμφέρον ἀγωνίζεσθαι. Νίγρος δ' ὁ ἡμέτερος ἐν Γαλατία σοφιστεύων ἄκανθαν ἐτύγχανεν ἰχθύος καταπεπωκώς. ἐτέρου δ' ἐπιφανέντος ἔξωθεν σοφιστοῦ καὶ μελετῶντος, ὀρρωδῶν ὑφειμένου δόξαν παρασχεῖν, ἔτι τῆς ἀκάνθης ἐνισχομένης ἐμελέτησε· μεγάλης δὲ φλεγμονῆς καὶ σκληρῶς γενομένης, τὸν πόνον οὐ φέρων ἀνεδέξατο Β τομὴν ἔξωθεν βαθεῖαν. ἡ μὲν οῦν ἄκανθα διὰ τοῦ τραύματος ἐξηρέθη, τὸ δὲ τραῦμα χαλεπὸν γενόμενον καὶ ῥευματικὸν ἀνεῖλεν αὐτόν. ἀλλὰ ταῦτα μὲν ἄν τις ὕστερον εὐκαίρως ὑπομνήσειε.

· Xenophon, Symposium, 2. 18.

17. Λουτρῷ δὲ χρῆσθαι γυμνασαμένους ψυχρῷ μὲν ἐπιδεικτικὸν καὶ νεανικὸν μᾶλλον ἢ ὑγιεινόν ἐστιν. ἢν γὰρ δοκεῖ ποιεῖν δυσπάθειαν πρὸς τὰ ἔξω καὶ σκληρότητα τοῦ σώματος, αὕτη μεῖζον ἀπεργάζεται περὶ τὰ ἐντὸς κακόν, ἐνισταμένη τοῖς πόροις καὶ τὰ ὑγρὰ συνάγουσα καὶ πηγνύουσα τὰς ἀναθυμιάσεις ἀεὶ χαλᾶσθαι καὶ διαφορεῖσθαι βουλομένας. ἔτι δ' ἀνάγκη τοὺς ψυχρολουτοῦντας εἰς C ἐκείνην αῦθις μεταβαίνειν ἢν φεύγομεν ἀκριβῆ καὶ τεταγμένην ἀποτόμως δίαιταν, ἀεὶ προσέχοντας αῦτοῖς μὴ παραβαίνειν ταύτην, ὡς εὐθὺς ἐξεελεγχομένου πικρῶς παντὸς ἁμαρτήματος. ἡ δὲ θερμολουσία δίδωσι πολλὴν¹ συγγνώμην. οὐ γὰρ τοσοῦτον εὐτονίας ὑφαιρεῖ καὶ ῥώμης, ὅσον ὠφελεί

¹ πολλήν Reiske: πολλώ.

^a Perhaps infra, 135 D.

260

when we are conscious of a fullness, venery, or fatigue. This is the experience of many of the public speakers and sophists, some of whom are led on by repute and ambition, others on account of emoluments or political rivalries, to competition in excess of what is best for them. Our Niger, when he was giving public lectures in Galatia, happened to swallow a fish bone. But, as another sophist from abroad had made his appearance and was lecturing, Niger, dreading to give the impression that he had yielded to his rival, still lectured although the bone was sticking in his throat; unable to bear the distress from the great and stubborn inflammation that arose, he submitted to a deep incision from the outside, and through the opening the bone was removed ; but the place grew sore and purulent and caused his death. But comment on these matters may well be postponed to a later occasion.^a

17. To take a cold bath after exercising is ostentatious and juvenile rather than healthful. For the power of resistance to external influences and the hardiness which it seems to create in the body really produces a more evil effect on the inward parts by stopping up the pores, causing the fluids to collect together, and condensing the exudations which are always wanting to be released and dispersed. Besides, those who insist upon taking cold baths have to make a further change into that exact and strictly ordered way of living which we are trying to avoid, and they have to be always taking heed not to transgress this, since every shortcoming is at once bitterly brought to book. On the other hand, warm baths have much to offer by way of excuse. For they do not detract so much from vigour and strength as

- (131) πρός ὑγίειαν, ἐνδόσιμα τῆ πέψει καὶ μαλακὰ παρέχουσα, τοῖς δὲ τὴν πέψιν διαφεύγουσιν, ἄν γε δὴ μὴ παντάπασιν ὠμὰ καὶ μετέωρα μείνῃ, διαχύσεις ἀλύπους παρασκευάζουσα καὶ κόπους ἐκλεαίνουσα
 - D λανθάνοντας. οὐ μὴν ἀλλ' ὅταν ἡ φύσις παρέχῃ μετρίως διακειμένου καὶ ἱκανῶς τοῦ σώματος αἰσθησιν, ἐατέον τὸ βαλανεῖον. ἄλειμμα δὲ τὸ πρὸς πυρὶ βέλτιον, ἂν ἀλέας δέηται τὸ σῶμα, ταμιεύεται γὰρ αὐτῷ τῆς θερμότητος. ὁ δ' ἥλιος οὕτε μᾶλλον οὕθ' ἦττον ἀλλ' ὡς κέκραται πρὸς τὸν ἀέρα κεχρῆσθαι δίδωσι. ταῦτα μὲν οὖν ἱκανὰ περὶ γυμνασίων.

18. Ἐπὶ δὲ τροφήν παραγενομένους, αν μέν ή τι των πρόσθεν όφελος λόγων οίς τας ορέξεις κηλουμεν και καταπραύνομεν, άλλο τι χρή παραινείν των έφεξης. αν δ' ώσπερ έκ δεσμών λελυ-Εμένη χαλεπόν ή χρήσθαι και φιλονεικείν πρός γαστέρα ώτα μή έχουσαν, ώς έλεγε Κάτων, διαμηχανητέον τη ποιότητι της τροφής έλαφρότερον ποιείν το πλήθος. και τα μέν στερεά και πολύτροφα των σιτίων, οίον τὰ κρεώδη καὶ τυρώδη και σύκων τὰ ξηρὰ και ώων τὰ έφθά, προσφέρεσθαι πεφυλαγμένως ἁπτόμενον (ἔργον γὰρ ἀεὶ παραιτεῖσθαι), τοῖς δὲ λεπτοῖς ἐμφύεσθαι καί κούφοις, οία τὰ πολλὰ τῶν λαχάνων και τὰ πτηνὰ καὶ τῶν ἰχθύων οἱ μὴ πίονες. ἔστι γὰρ F τὰ τοιαῦτα προσφερόμενον καὶ χαρίζεσθαι ταῖς ορέξεσι και το σώμα μη πιέζειν. μάλιστα δέ they help towards health by rendering the food yielding and soft for the digestion, and by providing for the painless dispersion of whatever escapes digestion, at least if it do not remain altogether crude and high up, and soothing any latent feelings of fatigue. However, when Nature affords us a sense of a moderate and comfortable condition in our body, the bath had better be left alone. A gentle rubbing with oil beside a fire is better, if the body require warming, for it can take for itself the requisite amount of such warmth ; but the sun permits the use of its warmth at neither higher nor lower temperature than is determined by the temperature of the air. So much will suffice in regard to exercise.

^a The same remark is found in Moralia, 198 D, 996 D, and Life of M. Cato, chap. viii. (p. 340 A). 262

18. Coming now to the subject of food, if there be anything helpful in my earlier suggestions as to how we may beguile and pacify our appetites, we must give some further advice regarding what comes next; but if it be difficult to manage a belly that has been set free, as it were from bondage, and to wrangle with it when it has no ears to hear, as Cato a used to say, we must contrive by means of the character of our food to make the quantity less burdensome ; and of the solid and very nourishing foods, things, for example, like meat and cheese, dried figs and boiled eggs, one may partake if he helps himself cautiously (for it is hard work to decline all the time), but should stick to the thin and light things, such as most of the garden stuff, birds, and such fish as have not much fat. For it is possible by partaking of these things both to gratify the appetites and not oppress the body. Especially to be feared are indigestions 263 τὰς ἀπὸ κρεῶν φοβητέον ἀπεψίας· καὶ γὰρ εὐθὺς σφόδρα καὶ βαρύνουσι, καὶ λείψανον εἰσαῦθις πονηρὸν ἀπ' αὐτῶν παραμένει. καὶ κράτιστον μὲν ἐθίσαι τὸ σῶμα μηδεμιῶς προσδεῖσθαι σαρκοφαγίας· πολλὰ γὰρ οὐ μόνον πρὸς διατροφὴν ἄφθονα ἀλλὰ καὶ πρὸς εὐπάθειαν καὶ ἀπόλαυσιν ἀναδίδωσιν ἡ γῆ, τοῖς μὲν αὐτόθεν ἀπραγμόνως χρῆσθαι παρέχουσα, τὰ δὲ μιγνύμενα παντοδαπῶς 132 καὶ σκευαζόμενα συνηδύνειν. ἐπεὶ δὲ τὸ ἔθος τρόπον τινὰ φύσις τοῦ παρὰ φύσιν γέγονεν, οὐ δεῖ χρῆσθαι κρεοφαγία πρὸς ἀποπλήρωσιν ὀρέξεως, ῶσπερ λύκους ἢ λέοντας, ἀλλ' οἶον ὑπέρεισμα καὶ διάζωμα τῆς τροφῆς ἐμβαλλομένους ἐτέροις σιτίοις χρῆσθαι καὶ ὄψοις, ὣ καὶ τῷ σώματι μᾶλλόν ἐστι κατὰ φύσιν, καὶ τῆς ψυχῆς ἦττον ἀμβλύνει τὸ λογικόν, ὥσπερ ἐκ λιτῆς καὶ ἐλαφρῶς ῦλης ἀναπτόμενον.

 Των δ' ύγρων γάλακτι μέν ούχ ώς ποτῷ χρηστέον, ἀλλ' ὡς σιτίῳ δύναμιν ἐμβριθῆ καὶ Β πολύτροφον ἔχοντι. πρὸς δὲ τὸν οἶνον ἄπερ Εὐριπίδης πρὸς τὴν ᾿Αφροδίτην διαλεκτέον είης μοι, μέτριος¹ δέ πωςείης, μηδ' ἀπολείποις.

καὶ γὰρ ποτῶν ὠφελιμώτατόν ἐστι καὶ φαρμάκων ἥδιστον καὶ ὄψων ἀσικχότατον, ἂν τύχῃ τῆς πρὸς τὸν καιρὸν εὐκρασίας μᾶλλον ἢ τῆς πρὸς τὸ ὕδωρ. ὕδωρ δ' οὐ μόνον τὸ μιγνύμενον πρὸς οἶνον, ἀλλὰ

1 μέτριος Heath : μέτριον.

^a It is worth while to compare Plutarch's essays on eating meat, Moralia, 993 д-999 в. 264 arising from meats a; for they are depressing at the outset, and a pernicious residue from them remains behind. It is best to accustom the body not to require meat in addition to other food. For the earth yields in abundance many things not only for nourishment but also for comfort and enjoyment, some of which it grants to our use just as they are with no trouble on our part, while others we may make savoury by all sorts of combination and preparation. But since custom has become a sort of unnatural second nature, our use of meat should not be for the satisfaction of appetite, as is the case with wolves or lions; but while we may put it in as a sort of prop and support of our diet, we should use other foods and relishes which for the body are more in accord with nature and less dulling to the reasoning faculty, which, as it were, is kindled from plain and light substances.

19. Of the liquids milk ought not to be used as a beverage but as a food possessing solid and nourishing power. With regard to wine we ought to talk as does Euripides b with regard to Love :

Mayest thou be mine, but moderate be, I pray, yet ne'er abandon me.

For wine is the most beneficial of beverages, the pleasantest of medicines, and the least cloying of appetizing things, provided that there is a happy combination of it with the occasion as well as with water. Water, not only the water that is mixed with ^b From an unknown play: cf. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag., Euripides, No. 967. The sentiment is a favourite one with Euripides; cf., for example, Iphigeneia at Aulis, 543-557; Medea, 627-634; Helena, 1105.

- (132) καὶ τὸ καθ' ἑαυτὸ τοῦ κεκραμένου μεταξῦ πινόμε-νον ἀβλαβέστερον ποιεῖ τὸ κεκραμένον. ἐθιστέον οῦν παρὰ τὴν καθ' ἡμέραν δίαιταν ὕδατος προσ-φέρεσθαι καὶ δύο καὶ τρία ποτήρια, τήν τε δύναμιν C τοῦ οἶνου ποιοῦντα μαλακωτέραν καὶ τοῦ σώματος
 - συνήθη την ύδροποσίαν, ὅπως, ὅταν ἐν χρεία γένηται, μη ξενοπαθή μηδ' ἀπαναίνηται. συμ-βαίνει γὰρ ἐνίους φέρεσθαι μάλιστα προς τον οίνον όταν μάλιστα χρείαν ύδροποσίας έχωσι. και γαρ ήλιωθέντες και ριγώσαντες πάλιν και σφοδρότερον εἰπόντες καὶ συντονώτερον φροντίσαντες και όλως μετά τούς κόπους και τούς άγωνας οιονται ποτέον είναι τον οίνον, ώς καί
 - άγώνας οιονται ποτεον είναι τον οινον, ως και της φύσεως απαιτούσης ευπάθειάν τινα τῷ σώματι D καὶ μεταβολὴν ἐκ τῶν πόνων, ἡ δὲ φύσις εὐ-πάθειαν μέν, εἶ τις εὐπάθειαν καλεῖ τὴν ἡδυπάθειαν, οὐκ ἀπαιτεῖ, μεταβολὴν δ' ἀπαιτεῖ τὴν εἰς τὸ μέσον ἡδονῆς καὶ πόνου καθιστᾶσαν. διὸ καὶ τροφῆς ὑφαιρετέον ἐν τούτοις, καὶ τὸν οἶνον η παντελῶς ἀφαιρετέον ἢ προσοιστέον πολλῆ κατα-κεραννύμενον διὰ μέσου καὶ κατακλυζόμενον ὑδροποσία. πλήκτης γαρ ών και όξυς επιτείνει τας ποσια. πληκτης γαρ ων και οξυς επιτεινει τας τοῦ σώματος ταραχάς, καὶ τραχύτερα ποιεῖ καὶ παροξύνει τὰ πεπληγμένα,¹ παρηγορίας δεόμενα καὶ λειότητος, α̂s³ μάλιστα τὸ ὕδωρ ἐνδίδωσι. καὶ γὰρ ἂν οὐ διψῶντες, ἄλλως δὲ θερμὸν ὕδωρ Ε πίωμεν μετὰ τοὺς κόπους καὶ τὰς διατάσεις καὶ τὰ καύματα, χαλάσματος καὶ μαλακότητος αἰ-σθανόμεθα περὶ τὰ ἐντός ἤπιος γὰρ ἡ τοῦ ὕδατος ὑγρότης καὶ ἂσφυκτος, ἡ δὲ τοῦ οἴνου φορὰν ἔχει πεφλεγμένα (?).

 2 ås Reiske: oïas Wyttenbach: oïs.

266

the wine, but that which is drunk by itself in the interim between the draughts of the mixture, makes the mixture more innocent. One ought to accustom oneself, therefore, in the course of the daily routine to partake of two or three glasses of water, thus both making the potency of the wine milder, and making the drinking of water habitual with the body, so that, whenever it comes to be in need of water, it may not feel strange towards the drink, and refuse it. For the fact is that some people feel most impelled towards wine when the drink which they most need is water. For after being exposed to the sun, and again when chilled, and after speaking more earnestly and thinking more intently than usual, and, in general, after exertions and strivings, they think they ought to drink wine, feeling that Nature requires for the body some comfort and change after labours. But Nature does not require comfort, if comfort is only a name for self-indulgence, but she does require a change, a change which puts the body in a state midway between pleasure and pain. Therefore in such circumstances there should not only be some reduction in food, but wine should be either altogether eliminated or else partaken of between times very diluted and practically engulfed by the drinking of water. For wine, being truculent and keen, intensifies the disturbances of the body, and exacerbates and irritates the contused parts, which are in need of the comfort and alleviation that water best supplies. For if, in spite of the fact that we are not thirsty, we drink hot water after undergoing exertion, strain, or heat, we are sensible of a relaxing and soothing effect within us; for the aqueous fluid is mild and does not quicken the pulse.

πολλήν καὶ δύναμιν οὐκ εὐμενῆ τοῖς προσφάτοις πάθεσιν οὐδὲ φιλάνθρωπον. καὶ γὰρ ἂς λέγουσιν ἔνιοι τῷ σώματι τὴν ἀσιτίαν δριμύτητας ἐγγεννῶν καὶ πικρότητας εἴ τις δέδιεν ἢ καθάπερ οἱ παίδες δεινὸν ἡγεῖται πρὸ τοῦ πυρέττειν μὴ παρατίθεσθαι τράπεζαν ἐν ὑποψία γεγονώς, εὐάρμοστον ἡ ὑδροποσία μεθόριον. καὶ γὰρ αὐτῷ τῷ Διονύσῳ πολλάκις νηφάλια θύομεν, ἐθιζόμενοι καλῶς μὴ F ζητεῖν ἀεὶ τὸν ἄκρατον. ὁ δὲ Μίνως καὶ τὸν αὐλὸν ἀφεῖλε τῆς θυσίας καὶ τὸν στέφανον ὑπὸ λύπης. καίτοι λυπουμένην ψυχὴν ἴσμεν οὕθ' ὑπὸ στεφάνων οὕθ' ὑπ' αὐλῶν παθοῦσαν· σῶμα δ' οὐδὲν οὕτως ἰσχυρόν ἐστιν, ῷ τεταραγμένῳ καὶ φλεγμαίνοντι προσπεσὼν οἶνος οὐκ ἡδίκησε.

20. Τούς μέν οῦν Λυδούς ἐν τῷ λιμῷ λέγουσι διαγαγεῖν ἡμέραν παρ' ἡμέραν πρεφομένους, εἶτα παίζοντας καὶ κυβεύοντας φιλόλογον δ' ἄνδρα καὶ φιλόμουσον ἐν καιρῷ δεομένωι βραδυτέρου
133 δείπνου διάγραμμα παρακείμενον ἤ τι βιβλίδιον ἢ λύριον οὐ προΐενται τῆ γαστρὶ λεηλατούμενον, ἀλλ' ἀποστρέφων συνεχῶς καὶ μεταφέρων ἐπὶ ταῦτα τὴν διάνοιαν ἀπὸ τῆς τραπέζης ὥσπερ 'Αρπυίας τὰς ὀρέξεις διασοβήσει ταῖς Μούσαις. οὐ γὰρ ὅ μὲν Σκύθης, ὅταν πίνη, πολλάκις ἐφάπτεται τοῦ τόξου καὶ παραψάλλει τὴν νευράν, ἐκλυόμενον ὑπὸ τῆς μέθης ἀνακαλούμενος τὸν θυμόν, ἕλλην δ' ἀνὴρ φοβήσεται τοὺς καταγελῶντας αὐτοῦ, γράμμασι καὶ βιβλίοις ἀγνώμονα καὶ δυσπαραίτητον

1 δεομένω Meziriacus: δεόμενον.

• Cf. Plutarch, Life of Demetrius, chap. xix. (p. 897 c). 268

[•] Cf. Apollodorus, Bibliotheca, iii. 15. 7. • Herodotus, i. 94.

whereas that of wine has great impetuosity and a potency that is not kindly or humanely disposed toward recent affections. As for the acerbities and bitterness which some say fasting engenders in the body, if anybody fears them, or if, childlike, he thinks it a dreadful thing not to have a meal served before the fever which he suspects is coming, the drinking of water is a very fitting middle course. In fact we frequently make to Dionysus himself offerings which include no wine, thus habituating ourselves quite properly not to be always looking for strong drink. Minos, too, because of grief, abolished the flute and garland from the sacrifice.ª Yet we know that a grieving soul is not affected either by garlands or by flute. But no one's body is so strong that wine, thrust upon it when it is disturbed and feverish, does it no harm.

20. The Lydians, they say,^b in a time of famine, alternately spent one day in regaling themselves with food, and the next in jollity and games of chance. But in the case of a scholarly and cultivated man, on an occasion which requires a later dinner than usual, a mathematical problem on hand, or some pamphlet or musical instrument, will not permit him to be harried by his belly; on the contrary, he will steadily turn away and transfer his thoughts from the table to these other things, and scare away his appetites, like Harpies, by means of the Muses. Does not the Scythian, while he is drinking, ofttimes put his hand to his bow, and twang the string, thus summoning back his senses which are being unstrung by the liquor; and shall a Greek man be afraid of those who deride him when by letters and books he endeavours quietly to ease and relax an unfeeling

269

(133) ἐπιθυμίαν ἀνιέντος ἀτρέμα καὶ χαλῶντος; τῶν Β μὲν γὰρ παρὰ τῷ Μενάνδρῳ νεανίσκων ὑπὸ τοῦ πορνοβοσκοῦ παρὰ πότον ἐπιβουλευομένων καλὰς καὶ πολυτελεῖς εἰσάγοντος ἑταίρας ἕκαστος, ῶς φησι, κύψας καθ' αύτον των τραγημάτων έφλα, φυλαττόμενος και φοβούμενος εμβλέπειν οι δε φιλόλογοι πολλάς και καλάς και ήδείας απόψεις και αποστροφάς έχουσιν, άνπερ άλλως μή δύνωνται τὸ κυνικὸν καὶ θηριῶδες τῶν ὀρέξεων κατέχειν παρακειμένης τραπέζης. ἀλειπτῶν δὲ φωνὰς καὶ παιδοτριβών λόγους έκάστοτε λεγόντων ώς το παρὰ δεῖπνον φιλολογεῖν τὴν τροφὴν διαφθείρει καὶ βαρύνει τὴν κεφαλὴν τότε φοβητέον, ὅταν C τὸν Ἰνδὸν ἀναλύειν ἢ διαλέγεσθαι περὶ τοῦ Kυριεύοντος ἐν δείπνῷ μέλλωμεν. τὸν μὲν γὰρ ἐγκέφαλον τοῦ φοίνικος, γλυκὺν ὅντα, σφόδρα κεφαλαλγῆ³ λέγουσιν εἶναι· διαλεκτικὴ δὲ '' τρω-γάλιον'' ἐπὶ δείπνῷ '' γλυκὺ'' μὲν οὐδαμῶς κεφαλαλγές δέ και κοπώδες ισχυρώς έστιν. αν δ' ήμας μη άλλο τι ζητειν η φιλοσοφειν η αναγιγνώσκειν παρα δειπνον έωσι των έν τῷ καλῷ καὶ ὠφελίμῷ τὸ ἐπαγωγὸν ὑφ' ήδονης και γλυκύ μόριον έχόντων, κελεύσομεν αύτους D μή ένοχλειν, άλλ' άπιόντας έν τῷ ξυστῷ ταῦτα καί ταις παλαίστραις διαλέγεσθαι τοις άθληταις, ¹ καθ' Wyttenbach from Moralia, 706 B: és. ² κεφαλαλγή] κεφαλαλγόν MSS.

^a From an unknown play; cf. Kock, Com. Att. Frag. iii. p 183, No. 607. Cf. also Plutarch, Moralia, 706 B. ^b These are both thought to be logical fallacies of the type of Achilles and the tortoise, or the "Liar." Cf. also Moralia, 1070 c.

270

ADVICE ABOUT KEEPING WELL, 133

and inexorable desire? When the young men described by Menander a were, as they were drinking, insidiously beset by the pimp, who introduced some handsome and high-priced concubines, each one of them (as he says),

Bent down his head and munched his own dessert, being on his guard and afraid to look at them. But scholars have many fair and pleasant outlooks and diversions, if so be they can in no other way keep under control the canine and bestial element in their appetites when at table. The utterances of athletic trainers and the talk of teachers of gymnastics, who assert on every occasion that scholarly conversation at dinner spoils the food and makes the head heavy, are to be feared only when we propose to solve the Indian problem or to discuss determinants b during dinner. The leaf-bud at the top of the date-palm is sweet, but they say that it brings on a violent headache c; and an exercise in logic is by no means a "sweet morsel"^d to top off a dinner, but, on the contrary, it is quite likely to bring on a headache, and is extremely fatiguing as well. But if they will not allow us to start any other inquiry or scholarly discussion," or to read while at dinner any of those things which, besides being beautiful and useful, contain also the element of pleasurable allurement and sweetness, we shall bid them not to bother us, but to take themselves off, and in the training grounds and buildings to engage in such talk with the athletes, whom they have torn from their books, · Cf. Xenophon, Anabasis, ii. 3. 15.

^d From Pindar, Frag. 124 (ed. Christ).

• Cf. Moralia, 612 F, where this topic is treated more fully. 271

- (133) οῦς τῶν βιβλίων ἐξελόντες καίι διημερεύειν ἐν σκώμμασι και βωμολοχίαις εθίζοντες, ώς ό κομψός 'Αρίστων έλεγε, τοις έν γυμνασίω κίοσιν όμοίως λιπαρούς πεποιήκασι και λιθίνους. αύτοι δέ πειθόμενοι τοῖς ἰατροῖς παραινοῦσιν ἀεὶ τοῦ δείπνου καὶ τοῦ ῦπνου λαμβάνειν μεθόριον καὶ μή συμφορήσαντας είς τὸ σῶμα τὰ σιτία καὶ τὸ πνεῦμα καταθλίψαντας εὐθὺς² ὠμῆ καὶ ζεούση τῆ τροφῆ βαρύνειν τὴν πέψιν ἀλλ' ἀναπνοὴν καὶ χάλασμα παρέχειν, δοσπερ οι τα σώματα κινείν Ε μετά δείπνον άξιοῦντες οὐ δρόμοις οὐδὲ παγκρατίοις τοῦτο ποιοῦσιν ἀλλὰ βληχροῖς⁴ περιπάτοις καὶ χορείαις έμμελέσιν, ούτως ήμεις οιησόμεθα δειν τάς ψυχάς διαφέρειν μετά το δείπνον μήτε πράγμασι μήτε φροντίσι μήτε σοφιστικοîs άγωσι πρός αμιλλαν έπιδεικτικήν ή κινητικήν⁵ περαινομένοις. άλλά πολλά μέν έστι των φυσικών προβλημάτων ἐλαφρὰ καὶ πιθανά, πολλαὶ δὲ διηγήσεις ἠθικὰς⁶ σκέψεις ἔχουσαι καὶ τοῦτο⁷ δὴ τὸ '΄ μενοεικές,'' ὡς Ὅμηρος ἔφη, καὶ μὴ ἀντίτυπον. τὰς δ' ἐν⁸ ἱστορικαῖς καὶ ποιητικαῖς ζητήσεσι διατριβάς ούκ άηδως ένιοι δευτέρας τραπέζας ἀνδράσι φιλολόγοις καὶ φιλομούσοις προσείπον. είσι δε και διηγήσεις άλυποι και F μυθολογίαι, καὶ τὸ περὶ αὐλοῦ τι καὶ λύρας άκοῦσαι καὶ εἰπεῖν ἐλαφρότερον η λύρας αὐτης
 - ¹ κal Capps: del. ² εὐθὐs Xylander: μη εὐθὐs.
 - ³ παρέχειν Benseler: έχειν.
 - άλλά βληχροῖς L. Dindorf. : άλλ' ἀβληχροῖς.

⁶ κινητικήν Wyttenbach: φιλονεικητικήν Duebner: νικητικήν Bernardakis: the MS. reading could not be learned from 272

ADVICE ABOUT KEEPING WELL, 133

and by accustoming them to spend the whole day in jesting and scurrility, have, as the clever Ariston said, made them as glossy and blockish as the pillars in a gymnasium. But as for ourselves, we shall follow the advice of the physicians who recommend always to let some time intervene between dinner and sleep, and not, after jumbling our victuals into our body and oppressing our spirit, to hinder our digestion at once with the food that is still unassimilated and fermenting, but rather to provide for it some respite and relaxation; just as those who think it is the right thing to keep their bodies moving after dinner do not do this by means of foot-races and strenuous boxing and wrestling, but by gentle walking and decorous dancing, so we shall hold that we ought not to distract our minds after dinner either with business or cares or pseudo-learned disputations, which have as their goal an ostentatious or stirring rivalry. But many of the problems of natural science are light and enticing, and there are many stories which contain ethical considerations and the "soul's satisfaction," as Homer has phrased this, and nothing repellent. The spending of time over questions of history and poetry some persons, not unpleasingly, have called a second repast a for men of scholarship and culture. There are also inoffensive stories and fables, and it is less onerous to exchange opinions about a flute and a lyre than to listen to the sound of the lyre and the

· Cf. Moralia, 672 E.

the earlier editors, but according to the Teubner edition of 1925 the MSS. are divided between $\kappa_{\mu}\gamma_{\nu}\kappa_{\mu}\gamma_{\nu}$ and $\nu_{\mu}\kappa_{\mu}\gamma_{\nu}\kappa_{\mu}\gamma_{\nu}$.

- ήθικàs Duebner: ήθη καl.
- 7 και τοῦτο Bernardakis: τοῦτο.
- * τàs δ' έν Xylander and Meziriacus : ταîs δέ.

φθεγγομένης ἀκούειν καὶ αὐλοῦ. μέτρον δὲ τοῦ καιροῦ τὸ τῆς τροφῆς καθισταμένης ἀτρέμα καὶ συμπνεούσης τὴν πέψιν ἐγκρατῆ γενέσθαι καὶ ὑπερδέξιον.

21. Ἐπεὶ δ' Ἀριστοτέλης οἴεται τῶν δεδειπνηκότων τὸν μὲν περίπατον ἀναρριπίζειν τὸ θερμόν, τὸν δ' ὕπνον, ἂν εὐθὺς καθεύδωσι, κακαπνίγειν, ἕτεροι δὲ τὴν μὲν ἡσυχίαν οἴονται τὰς πέψεις βελτίονας ποιεῖν, τὴν δὲ κίνησιν ταράττειν τὰς 134 ἀναδόσεις, καὶ τοῦτο τοὺς μὲν περιπατεῖν εὐθὺς ἀπὸ δείπνου τοὺς δ' ἀτρεμεῖν πέπεικεν, ἀμφοτέρων ἂν οἰκείως ἐφάπτεσθαι δόξειεν ὅ τὸ μὲν σῶμα συνθάλπων καὶ συνέχων μετὰ τὸ δεῖπνον, τὴν δὲ διάνοιαν μὴ καταφερόμενος μηδ' ἀργῶν εὐθὺς ἀλλ' ὥσπερ εἴρηται διαφορῶν ἐλαφρῶς τὸ πνεῦμα καὶ λεπτύνων τῷ λαλεῖν τι καὶ ἀκούειν τῶν προσηνῶν καὶ μὴ δακνόντων μηδὲ βαρυνόντων.

22. Ἐμέτους δἐ καὶ κοιλίας καθάρσεις ὑπὸ φαρμάκων, μιαρὰ '' παραμύθια πλησμονῆς,'' ἄνευ Β μεγάλης ἀνάγκης οὐ κινητέον, ὥσπερ οἱ πολλοὶ κενώσεως ἕνεκα πληροῦντες τὸ σῶμα καὶ πάλιν πληρώσεως κενοῦντες παρὰ φύσιν, ταῖς πλησμοναῖς οὐχ ῆττον ἢ ταῖς ἐνδείαις ἀνιώμενοι, μᾶλλον δ' ὅλως τὴν μὲν πλήρωσιν ὡς κώλυσιν ἀπολαύσεως βαρυνόμενοι, τὴν δ' ἔνδειαν ὡς χώραν ἀεὶ ταῖς ἡδοναῖς παρασκευάζοντες. τὸ γὰρ βλαβερὸν ἐν τούτοις προῦπτόν ἐστι· ταραχάς τε γὰρ ἀμφότερα τῷ σώματι παρέχεται καὶ Frag. 224 (233 in Rose's edition).

 ^b Supra, 130 A-E.
 ^c Plato, Critias, p. 115 B.

ADVICE ABOUT KEEPING WELL, 133-134

flute itself. The length of time for this is such as the digestion needs to assert itself and gain the upper hand over the food as it is gradually absorbed and begins to agree with us.

21. Aristotle holds ^a that walking about on the part of those who have just dined revives the bodily warmth, while sleep, if they go to sleep at once, smothers it; but others hold that quiet improves the digestive faculties, while movement disturbs the processes of assimilation; and this has persuaded some to walk about immediately after dinner, and others to remain quiet. In view of the two opinions a man might appear properly to attain both results who after dinner keeps his body warm and quiet, and does not let his mind sink at once into sleep and idleness, but, as has been previously suggested,^b lightly diverts and enlivens his spirits by talking himself and listening to another on one of the numerous topics which are agreeable and not acrimonious or depressing.

22. The use of emetics and cathartics, abominable "comforts for an overloaded stomach," ^c ought never, except under the stress of great necessity, to be inaugurated, as is the way of most people, who fill up their bodies for the sake of emptying them, and then empty them for the sake of filling them up again, thus transgressing against nature, and are vexed no less at their fullness than at their emptiness—or, better, they are utterly depressed over their fullness, as being a hindrance to enjoyment, but set about bringing on emptiness with the idea of making room always for pleasures. The harmfulness in all this is manifest; for both procedures give rise to disorders and convulsive movements in the

VOL. II

(134) σπαραγμούς. ἴδιον δὲ τῷ μὲν ἐμέτω κακὸν πρόσεστι τὸ τὴν ἀπληστίαν αὔξειν τε καἱ τρέφειν· γίγνονται γὰρ αἱ πεῖναι καθάπερ τὰ κοπτόμενα C ρέεθρα τραχέιαι και χαραδρώδεις, και βία την τροφήν ελκουσιν αεί λυττωσαι, ούκ ορέξεσιν έοικυΐαι σιτίων δεομέναις ἀλλὰ φλεγμοναῖς φαρ-μάκων καὶ καταπλασμάτων. ὅθεν ἡδοναὶ μὲν ὀξεῖαι καὶ ἀτελεῖς καὶ πολὺν ἔχουσαι σφυγμὸν καί οίστρον έν ταῖς ἀπολαύσεσι λαμβάνουσιν αὐτούς, διατάσεις δὲ καὶ πληγαὶ πόρων καὶ πνευμάτων έναπολήψεις διαδέχονται, μή περιμένουσαι τὰς κατὰ φύσιν ἐξαγωγάς, ἀλλ' ἐπιπολάζουσαι τοῖς σώμασιν ὥσπερ ὑπεράντλοις σκάφεσι, φορτίων έκβολης ου περιττωμάτων δεομένοις. αί δε περί την κάτω κοιλίαν εκταράξεις διὰ φαρμακείας φθείρουσαι καὶ τήκουσαι τὰ ύποκείμενα πλείονα ποιούσι περίττωσιν η έξ-D άγουσιν. ὦσπερ οὖν, εἴ τις Ἑλλήνων ὄχλον ἐν πόλει βαρυνόμενος σύνοικον, ᾿Αράβων ἐμπλήσειε καὶ Σκυθῶν τὴν πόλιν ἐπηλύδων, οὖτως ἔνιοι τοῦ παντὸς διαμαρτάνουσιν ἐπ' ἐκβολη περιττωμάτων συνήθων και συντρόφων εμβάλλοντες ἔξωθεν εἰς τὸ σῶμα κόκκους τίνὰς Κνίδίους καὶ σκαμωνίαν καὶ δυνάμεις ἄλλας ἀσυγκράτους² καὶ ἀγρίας καὶ καθαρμοῦ δεομένας μᾶλλον ἢ καθῆραι την φύσιν δυναμένας. άριστον μέν ουν το μετρία διαίτη και σώφρονι το σώμα ποιείν περί τε πληρώσεις και κενώσεις αὐτοτελές ἀεί και σύμμετρον.

Εί δ' ἀνάγκη ποτέ καταλάβοι, τοὺς μέν ἐμέτους λυττώσαι Bernardakis : λυττώσαν or λυποῦντας.

 ² ἀσυγκράτους Meziriacus : ἀσυγκρίτους.

ADVICE ABOUT KEEPING WELL, 134

body. What is peculiarly bad in the use of an emetic is that it increases and fosters an insatiate greediness. For the feelings of hunger become rough and turbulent, like rivers that are interrupted in their course, and they gulp the food down violently, always ravening and resembling not appetites that need victuals, but inflammations that need medicines and poultices. For this reason the pleasures that lay hold upon such persons are swift in their action and imperfect, and attended by much palpitation and agitation while being experienced, and these are succeeded by distensions and sharp pains in the passages, and retention of gases, which cannot wait for the natural movements, but stay in the upper part of the body as in water-logged ships which require the jettisoning of their cargo, not merely of their surplus. The violent disturbances lower down in the bowels resulting from medication, by decomposing and liquefying the existing contents, increase rather than relieve the overcrowding. Just imagine that anybody, feeling much troubled at the crowd of Greeks living in his city, should fill up the city with Arab and Scythian immigrants! Yet it is just this radical mistake that some people make in connexion with the expulsion of the surplus of habitual and familiar foods, when they introduce into the body from the outside Cnidian berries, scammony, or other incongruous and drastic agents, which have more need of being purged away than power of purging our nature. It is best, therefore, by moderate and temperate living to make the body constantly selfsufficient and well adjusted as regards filling the stomach and emptying it.

If ever absolute necessity befall us, vomiting

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

ποιητέον άνευ φαρμακείας και περιεργίας, μηδέν Ε έκταράττοντας άλλ' όσον απεψίαν διαφυγείν αυτόθεν αφιέντας απραγμόνως τω πλεονάζοντι την άπέρασιν. ώς γὰρ τὰ ὀθόνια ῥύμμασι καὶ χαλα-στραίοις πλυνόμενα μαλλον ἐκτρίβεται¹ τῶν ὑδατο-κλύστων, οὕτως οἱ μετὰ φαρμάκων ἔμετοι λυμαίνονται τῶ σώματι καὶ διαφθείρουσιν. ὑφισταμένης δε κοιλίας οὐδεν φάρμακον οἶα τῶν σιτίων ένια μαλακάς ένδιδόντα προθυμίας και διαλύοντα πράως, ῶν ἢ τε πεῖρα πῶσι συνήθης καὶ ἡ χρῆσις F ἄλυπος. ἂν δὲ τούτοις ἀπειθῆ, πλείονας ἡμέρας ὑδροποσίαν ἢ ἀσιτίαν ἢ κλυστῆρα προσδεκτέον μαλλον η ταρακτικάς και φθαρτικάς φαρμακείας, έφ' ας οι πολλοί φέρονται προχείρως, καθάπερ ακόλαστοι γυναῖκες, ἐκβολίοις χρώμεναι καὶ φθορίοις ὑπὲρ τοῦ πάλιν πληροῦσθαι καὶ ἡδυπαθεῖν.
23. ᾿Αλλὰ τούτους μὲν ἐατέον· οἱ δ᾽ ἄγαν αῦ πάλιν ἀκριβεῖς καὶ τεταγμένας τινὰς ἐκ περιόδου 135 κριτικής² έμβάλλοντες ασιτίας ούκ όρθως την φύσιν μή δεομένην διδάσκουσι δεισθαι συστολής και ποιείν ἀναγκαίαν τὴν οὐκ ἀναγκαίαν ὑφαίρεσιν ἐν καιρῷ ζητούμενον ἔθος ἀπαιτοῦντι. βέλτιον γὰρ ἐλευθέροις τοῖς τοιούτοις χρῆσθαι κολασμοῖς εἰς τό σώμα, μηδεμιάς δε προαισθήσεως ούσης μηδ' ύποψίας και την άλλην δίαιταν, ωσπερ είρηται, πρός το συντυγχάνον ἀεὶ ταῖς μεταβολαῖς ὑπήκοον ἔχειν, μὴ καταδεδουλωμένην μηδ' ἐνδεδεμένην ἑνὶ σχήματι βίου πρός τινας καιροὺς ἢ ἀριθμοὺς ἢ

¹ ἐκτρίβεται Bernardakis: ἐντρίβεται, or ἐκπλύνεται, "lose their colours."

² κριτικήs suggested by Wyttenbach : κριτικάs.

^a Supra, 128 E.

ADVICE ABOUT KEEPING WELL, 134-135

should be induced without medication and a great ado, and without causing any disturbance beyond merely avoiding indigestion by at once allowing the excess to be peacefully ejected. Just as linen cleansed with lye and washing powders wears out faster than that washed in plenty of water, so vomitings with drugs maltreat and ruin the body. If the bowels are getting sluggish, there is no medicine like some sorts of food that afford a mild stimulus to the inclinations and gently dissolve the cause of trouble. Experience with these is familiar to all, and their use is not attended by discomfort. But if it will not yield to these, the drinking of water for several days, or fasting, or an enema, should be tried next rather than disturbing and pernicious dosing to which most people hurriedly resort, after the manner of licentious women who employ drugs and instruments to produce abortion for the sake of the enjoyment of conceiving again.

23. But we need say no more about this class of persons. However, to speak once again of those too exact persons who interject set periods of fasting according to a fixed schedule, they are wrong in teaching their nature to feel a need of restraint when not in need of it, and in making necessary the unnecessary retrenchment at a time which makes demand for what is customarily required. It is better to apply such discipline to the body with a certain freedom, and, if there be no premonitory or suspicious symptoms, to keep, as has been already suggested,⁴ our general mode of life responsive to changes so as to meet whatever may befall it, and not to let it be enslaved or bound to one formula of life, which has trained itself to be guided by certain

B περιόδους άγεσθαι μεμελετηκότος. ου γαρ ασφαλές (135) οὐδὲ ῥάδιον οὐδὲ πολιτικὸν οὐδ' ἀνθρωπικὸν ἀλλ' όστρέου τινός ζωή προσεοικός ή στελέχους τό ἀμετάστατον τοῦτο καὶ κατηναγκασμένον ἐν τρο-φαῖς καὶ ἀποχαῖς καὶ κινήσεσι καὶ ἡσυχίαις εἰς ἐπίσκιόν τινα βίον καὶ σχολαστὴν καὶ μονότροπόν τινα και αφιλον και αδοξον απωτάτω πολιτείας καθίσασιν έαυτούς και συστείλασιν ου "κατά γε την $\dot{\epsilon}$ μήν, $\ddot{\epsilon}$ $\dot{\epsilon}$ φη, $\ddot{\epsilon}$ γνώμην. (24) ου γαρ $\dot{\epsilon}$ ργίας ώνιον ή ύγίεια καὶ ἀπραξίας, ἅ γε δὴ μέγιστα κακῶν ταῖς νόσοις πρόσεστι, καὶ οὐδὲν διαφέρει Ο τοῦ τὰ ὅμματα τῷ μὴ διαβλέπειν καὶ τὴν φωνὴν τω μη φθέγγεσθαι φυλάττοντος ό την ύγίειαν άχρηστία και ήσυχία σώζειν οἰόμενος προς οὐδὲν γὰρ ἐαυτῷ χρήσαιτ' ἄν τις ὑγιαίνοντι κρεῖττον ἢ¹ προς πολλὰς και^ν φιλανθρώπους πράξεις. ἥκιστα δὴ τὴν ἀργίαν ὑγιεινὸν ὑποληπτέον, εἰ τὸ τῆς ύγιείας τέλος απόλλυσι, και ούδ' αληθές έστι το μαλλον ύγιαίνειν τους ήσυχίαν άγοντας. ουτε γαρ Ξενοκράτης μαλλον διυγίαινε Φωκίωνος ούτε Δημητρίου Θεόφραστος, Επίκουρόν τε και τους περί 'Επίκουρον οὐδέν ώνησε πρός την ύμνουμένην σαρκός εὐστάθειαν ή πάσης φιλοτιμίαν έχούσης Τράξεως ἀπόδρασις. ἀλλὰ καὶ ἐτέραις ἐπιμελείαις διασωστέον έστι τῶ σώματι την κατα φύσιν έξιν, ώς παντός βίου και νόσον δεχομένου και ύγίειαν.

Ού μήν άλλά και τοις πολιτικοις έφη παραινετέον είναι τουναντίον ου Πλάτων παρήνει τοις νέοις.

1 κρείττον ή Meziriacus: κρείττονι.

² καl F.C.B.: και οὐ φιλανθρώπους or καl ἀφιλανθρώπους, due probably to the corruption κρείττονι. 280 seasons, or numbers, or schedules. For it is not safe, nor easy, nor befitting a citizen or a man, but like the life of an oyster or the trunk of a tree-this immutability and forced compliance in the matter of food and abstinence, movement and rest; it is fitting only for men who have reduced and restricted themselves to a retired, idle, solitary, friendless, and inglorious life, far removed from the duties of citizenship. "No," said he, " it fits not with my opinion." a (24) For health is not to be purchased by idleness and inactivity, which are the greatest evils attendant on sickness, and the man who thinks to conserve his health by uselessness and ease does not differ from him who guards his eyes by not seeing, and his voice by not speaking. For a man in good health could not devote himself to any better object than to numerous humane activities. Least of all is it to be assumed that laziness is healthful, if it destroys what health aims at; and it is not true either that inactive people are more healthy. For Xenocrates did not keep in better health than Phocion, nor Theophrastus than Demetrius, and the running away from every activity that smacked of ambition did not help Epicurus and his followers at all to attain their much-talked-of condition of perfect bodily health. But we ought, by attention to other details, to preserve the natural constitution of our bodies, recognizing that every life has room for both disease and health.

ADVICE ABOUT KEEPING WELL, 135

However, our friend said that to men in public life should be given advice opposite to that which Plato^b

• A paraphrase of Homer, Il. ix. 108.

^b Not extant in Plato's writings, but a faint suggestion of the idea may be found in Laws, p. 643 B.

(135) ἐκείνος μέν γάρ λέγειν ἐκ τῆς διατριβῆς ἀπαλλαττόμενος εἰώθει, '' ἄγε, ὅπως εἰς καλόν τι κατα-θήσεσθε τὴν σχολήν, ὦ παῖδες''· ἡμεῖς δ' ἂν τοῖς πολιτευομένοις παραινέσαιμεν είς τα καλα χρήσθαι τοις πόνοις και άναγκαια, μη μικρών ένεκα μηδέ Ε φαύλων το σώμα παρατείνοντας, ώσπερ οι πολλοί κακοπαθούσιν έπι τοις τυχούσιν, αποκναίοντες έαυτούς άγρυπνίαις και πλάναις και περιδρομαίς είς ούδεν χρηστον ούδ' άστειον, άλλ' έπηρεάζοντες έτέροις η φθονούντες η φιλονεικούντες η δόξας άκάρπους και κενάς διώκοντες. πρός τούτους γάρ οίμαι μάλιστα τον Δημόκριτον είπειν ώς εί το σώμα δικάσαιτο τη ψυχη κακώσεως, ούκ αν αὐτὴν ἀποφυγεῖν. ἴσως μέν γάρ τι καὶ Θεόφραστος άληθές είπεν, είπων έν μεταφορά πολύ τω σώματι τελείν ένοίκιον την ψυχήν. πλείονα μέντοι το σώμα της ψυχης απολαύει κακά μή κατά λόγον αὐτῷ χρωμένης μηδ' ὡς προσήκει θεραπευόμενον· ὅταν γὰρ ἐν πάθεσιν ἰδίοις γένηται καὶ ἀγῶσι καὶ F σπουδαίς, αφειδεί του σώματος. ό μεν ουν Ιάσων ούκ οίδ' ό τι παθών, "τα μικρά δείν άδικειν," έλεγεν, " ένεκεν τοῦ τὰ μεγάλα δικαιοπραγείν." ήμεις δ' αν ευλόγως τῷ πολιτικῷ παραινέσαιμεν τὰ μικρὰ ραθυμεῖν καὶ σχολάζειν καὶ ἀναπαύειν

^a Mullach, Frag. Philos. Graec. i. p. 342; cf. also Diels, Fragmente der Vorsokratiker, ii.¹ p. 91.

^b This and the preceding quotation are given in greatly amplified form in Fragment i. 2 of De anima (vol. vii. p. 2 of Bernardakis's edition of the Moralia).

^c Despot of Pherae; cf. the note supra on 89 c. Cf. also for the sentiment Plutarch, Moralia, 817 F, and Aristotle, 282 used to give to the young men. For the philosopher, as he took his leave after the exercise, was in the habit of saying, "Be sure, my boys, that you store up the lesson of this hour of leisure for some good end." But we would advise those who take part in the government to employ their active labours for good and necessary ends, and not subject their bodies to stress on account of small and paltry matters, as is the way of most people, who make themselves miserable over incidental things, and wear themselves out with loss of sleep, going to this place and that place, and running about, all for no useful or decent purpose, but only from a spirit of insolence, envy, or rivalry against others, or in the pursuit of unprofitable and empty repute. It was in special reference to such people, as I think, that Democritus said, that, if the body were to enter suit against the soul for cruel and abusive treatment, the soul would not be acquitted. Perhaps, too, there is some truth in what Theophrastus said,^b in his metaphorical statement, that the soul pays a high rental to the body. At any rate, the body reaps the fruit of more evils from the soul than the soul from the body, inasmuch as the soul uses the body unreasonably, and the body does not get the care that it deserves. For whenever the soul is occupied with its own emotions, strivings, and concerns, it is prodigal of the body. I do not know what possessed Jason c to say : "We must do wrong in small ways for the sake of doing right in large ways." But we, with good reason, would advise the man in public life to be indifferent to small things, and to take his ease and give himself Rhetoric, i. 12; also The Epistle to the Romans, iii. 8 and vi. 1.

ADVICE ABOUT KEEPING WELL, 135

VOL. II

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

αύτὸν ἐν ἐκείνοις, εἰ βούλεται πρὸς τὰς καλὰς πράξεις καὶ μεγάλας μὴ διάπονον ἔχειν τὸ σῶμα 136 μηδ' ἀμβλὺ μηδ' ἀπαγορεῦον ἀλλ' ὥσπερ ἐν νεωλκία τῇ σχολῇ τεθεραπευμένον, ὅπως αὖθις ἐπὶ τὰς χρείας τῆς ψυχῆς ἀγούσης άθηλος ιππω πώλος ώς άμα τρέχη.

25. Διό των πραγμάτων διδόντων άναληπτέον έαυτούς μήθ' υπνου φθονοῦντας τῷ σώματι μήτ' ἀρίστου μήτε ῥαστώνης τοῦ μέσου¹ ἡδυπαθείας καὶ κακοπαθείας, μηδέ³ φυλάττοντας³ ὅρον οἶον⁴ οἱ πολλοὶ φυλάττοντες ἐπιτρίβουσι τὸ σῶμα ταῖς μεταβολαίς, ώσπερ τον βαπτόμενον σίδηρον, όταν ένταθή και πιεσθή σφόδρα τοις πόνοις, αύθις έν B ήδοναις τηκόμενον αμέτρως και λειβόμενον, είτα πάλιν έξ ἀφροδισίων καὶ οἶνου διάλυτον καὶ μαλακόν είς άγοραν η αύλην ή τινα πραγματείαν διαπύρου και συντόνου δεομένην σπουδής έλαυνόμενον. Ηράκλειτος μέν γαρ ύδρωπιάσας έκέλευσεν '' αὐχμὸν ἐξ ἐπομβρίας '' ποιῆσαι τὸν ίατρόν οι δέ πολλοί τοῦ παντὸς ἁμαρτάνουσιν, όταν έν κόποις και πόνοις και ένδείαις γένωνται, μάλιστα ταις ήδοναις έξυγραίνειν και άνατήκειν τὰ σώματα παραδιδόντες, αὖθις δὲ μετὰ τὰς ήδονὰς οΐον επιστρεφοντες και κατατείνοντες. ή γαρ φυλάττοντας Wyttenbach: φυλάττοντες οι φυλαττούσης.

> ¹ τοῦ μέσου F.C.B.: τὸν μέσον Salmasius: τὸ μέσον. ² μηδὲ F.C.B.: μήτε.

 ⁴ οἶον] δν Salmasius.

5 λειβόμενον Wyttenbach: θλιβόμενον.

^a Bergk, Poet. Lyr. Gr. ii. p. 738, Simonides of Amorgus, No. 5; repeated in Moralia, 84 D, 446 E, 790 F, and in a fragment quoted by Stobaeus, Florilegium, cxv. 18. 284

ADVICE ABOUT KEEPING WELL, 135-136

plenty of rest while attending to them, if, when he comes to honourable and important activities, he wishes to have his body not worn by drudging, nor dull, nor on the point of giving out, but refreshed by quiet, like a ship in the dock; so that when the soul again points the way to needful activities, it May run like weanling colt beside its dam."

25. Therefore, when circumstances afford us opportunity, we should give ourselves a chance to recuperate, and to this end we should not grudge to our body either sleep or luncheon or ease, which is the mean between indulgence and discomfort,^b nor observe the sort of limit that most people observe whereby they wear out their body, like steel that is being tempered, by the changes to which they subject it; whenever the body has been strained and oppressed by much hard work, it is once more softened and relaxed immoderately in pleasures, and again, as the next step, while it is still flaccid and relaxed from venery and wine, it is coerced into going to the Forum or to Court or into some business requiring fervent and intense application. Heracleitus, suffering from dropsy, bade his physician to "bring on a drought to follow the wet spell"; but most people are completely in error, inasmuch as, when they are in the midst of exertions, labours, and deprivations, they are most inclined to surrender their bodies to pleasures to be made languid and relaxed, and then, after their pleasures, bending them, as it were, into place, and stretching them tight again.

 An adumbration of the Aristotelian doctrine that virtue is a mean.

^c Cf. Diels, Fragmente der Vorsokratiker, i. pp. 67-68.

(136) φύσις οὐ ζητεί τοιαύτην ἀνταπόδοσιν τοῦ σώματος. C αλλά της ψυχής το ακόλαστον και ανελεύθερον έκ τών έπιπόνων ώσπερ οί ναῦται πρὸς ἡδονὰς καὶ ἀπολαύσεις ὕβρει φερόμενον καὶ μετὰ τὰς ἡδονὰς πάλιν ἐπ' ἐργασίας καὶ πορισμοὺς ὠθούμενον οὐκ έξ λαβείν την φύσιν ής μάλιστα δείται καταστάσεως και γαλήνης, άλλ' έξίστησι και ταράττει δια την άνωμαλίαν. οι δέ νουν έχοντες ηκιστα μέν ήδονας πονοῦντι τῷ σώματι προσφέρουσιν. οὐ γὰρ δέονται τό παράπαν οὐδέ μέμνηνται των τοιούτων πρός τώ D καλώ της πράξεως την διάνοιαν έχοντες, και τώ χαίροντι της ψυχης η σπουδάζοντι τας άλλας έξαμαυροῦντες ἐπιθυμίας.1 ὅπερ γάρ φασιν εἰπεῖν τόν Ἐπαμεινώνδαν μετά παιδιας, ἀνδρός ἀγαθοῦ περὶ τὰ Λευκτρικὰ νόσω τελευτήσαντος, "ῶ Ἡράκλεις, πῶς ἐσχόλασεν ἁνὴρ ἀποθανεῖν ἐν τοσούτοις πράγμασι," τοῦτ' ἀληθῶς ἔστιν εἰπεῖν τοσουτοις πραγμασι, του απηρως του φρον-επ' ανδρος η πολιτικήν πραξιν η φιλόσοφον φρον-τίδα δια χειρος έχοντος, "τίς δε σχολή τῷ ανδρὶ " τούτω νῦν ἀπεπτεῖν ἢ μεθύειν ἢ λαγνεύειν;' γενόμενοι δε πάλιν από των πράξεων έν ήσυχία κατατίθενται το σώμα και διαναπαύουσι, τών τε Ε πόνων τους άχρήστους και μαλλον έτι των ήδονων τάς ούκ άναγκαίας ώς τη φύσει πολεμίας φυλαττόμενοι καί φεύγοντες.

26. "Ηκουσα² Τιβέριόν ποτε Καίσαρα εἰπεῖν ὡς ἀνὴρ ὑπὲρ ἐξήκοντα γεγονὼς ἔτη καὶ προτείνων ἰατρῷ χεῖρα καταγέλαστός ἐστιν. ἐμοὶ δὲ τοῦτο τàs ἄλλας... ἐπιθυμίας Xylander: ταῖς ἄλλαις... ἐπιθυμίαις.

 ² ήκουσα Wyttenbach: ήκουσα τοίνυν.

° Cf. Moralia, 794 в; Tacitus, Annals, vi. 46.

ADVICE ABOUT KEEPING WELL, 136

For Nature does not require any such form of compensation in the case of the body. But, on the other hand, in the soul the licentious and unmannerly element, immediately after undergoing hardships, is carried away, as sailors are, by wantonness to pleasures and enjoyments, and, after the pleasures, it is again coerced to tasks and business; and the result is that it does not allow Nature to attain the composure and calm which she needs most, but deranges and disturbs her because of this irregularity. But people who have sense are least given to proffering pleasures to the body when it is busied with labours. For they have absolutely no need, nor even recollection, of such things, inasmuch as they are keeping their thoughts intent on the good to be accomplished by their activity; and by the joy or earnestness in their souls they completely dwarf their other desires. There is a jocose remark attributed to Epameinondas in regard to a good man who fell ill and died about the time of the battle of Leuctra : "Great Heavens! How did he find time to die when there was so much going on?" This may be repeated with truth in the case of a man who has in hand some public activity or philosophic meditation: "What time has this man now for indigestion or drunkenness or carnal desires ?" But when such men find themselves again at leisure following upon their activities, they compose and rest their bodies, guarding against and avoiding useless toils, and more especially unnecessary pleasures, on the ground that they are inimical to Nature.

26. I have heard that Tiberius Caesar once said that a man over sixty who holds out his hand to a physician is ridiculous.^a To me that seems a pretty μέν εἰρῆσθαι δοκεῖ σοβαρώτερον, ἐκεῖνο δ' ἀληθὲς εἶναι, τὸ δεῖν ἕκαστον αύτοῦ μήτε σφυγμῶν ἰδιότητος εἶναι ἄπειρον (πολλαὶ γὰρ ai καθ' ἕκαστον διαφοραί) μήτε κρᾶσιν ἀγνοεῖν ἢν ἔχει τὸ σῶμα θερμότητος καὶ ξηρότητος, μήθ' οἶς ὠφελεῖσθαι χρώμενον ἢ βλάπτεσθαι πέφυκεν. aὑτοῦ γὰρ ἀναίσθητός ἐστιν καὶ τυφλὸς ἐνοικεῖ τῷ σώματι F καὶ κωφὸς ὁ ταῦτα μανθάνων παρ' ἐτέρου καὶ πυνθανόμενος τοῦ ἰατροῦ πότερον μᾶλλον θέρους ἢ χειμῶνος ὑγιαίνει, καὶ πότερον τὰ ὑγρὰ ῥậον ἢ τὰ ξηρὰ προσδέχεται, καὶ πότερον φύσει πυκνὸν ἔχει τὸν σφυγμὸν ἢ μανόν· καὶ γὰρ ὠφέλιμον εἰδέναι τὰ τοιαῦτα καὶ ῥάδιον, ἀεί γε δὴ πειρωμένους καὶ συνόντας.

Βρωμάτων δὲ καὶ πωμάτων τὰ χρήσιμα μαλλον ἢ τὰ ἡδέα γιγνώσκειν προσήκει, καὶ μαλλον ἔμπειρον είναι τῶν εὐστομάχων ἢ τῶν εὐστόμων, καὶ 137 τῶν τὴν πέψιν μὴ ταραττόντων ἢ τῶν τὴν γεῦσιν strong statement, but this does seem to be true, that each person ought neither to be unacquainted with the peculiarities of his own pulse (for there are many individual diversities), nor ignorant of any idiosynerasy which his body has in regard to temperature and dryness,^a and what things in actual practice have proved to be beneficial or detrimental to it. For the man has no perception regarding himself, and is but a blind and deaf tenant in his own body, who gets his knowledge of these matters from another, and must inquire of his physician whether his health is better in summer or winter, whether he can more easily tolerate liquid or solid foods, and whether his pulse is naturally fast or slow. For it is useful and easy for us to know things of this sort, since we have daily experience and association with them.

137 τῶν τὴν πέψιν μὴ ταραττόντων ἢ τῶν τὴν γεῦσιν σφόδρα γαργαλιζόντων. τὸ γὰρ παρ' ἰατροῦ πυνθάνεσθαι τί δύσπεπτον ἢ εὖπεπτον αὐτῷ καὶ τἰ δυσκοίλιον ἢ εὐκοίλιον οὐχ ἦττον αἰσχρόν ἐστιν ἢ τὸ πυνθάνεσθαι τί γλυκὺ καὶ τί πικρὸν καὶ αὐστηρόν. νῦν δὲ τοὺς μὲν ὀψοποιοὺς ἐπανορθοῦσιν, ἐμπείρως διαισθανόμενοι ποῦ πλέον τὸ γλυκὺ τοῦ προσήκοντος ἢ τὸ ἁλμυρὸν ἢ τὸ αὐστηρὸν ἔνεστιν, αὐτοὶ δ' ἀγνοοῦσι τί τῷ σώματι μιχθὲν ἐλαφρὸν καὶ ἄλυπον ἔσται καὶ χρήσιμον. ὅθεν ζωμοῦ μὲν ἄρτυσις οὐ πολλάκις ἁμαρτάνεται παρ' αὐτοῖς, Β αύτοὺς δὲ φαύλως ὅμοῦ καὶ κακῶς ἀρτύοντες ὅσημέραι πολλὰ παρέχουσι πράγματα τοῦς ἰατροῖς.

^a Cf. Moralia, 735 F.

ADVICE ABOUT KEEPING WELL, 136-137

In regard to food and drink it is expedient to note what kinds are wholesome rather than what are pleasant, and to be better acquainted with those that are good in the stomach rather than in the mouth. and those that do not disturb the digestion rather than those that greatly tickle the palate. For to inquire of a physician what is hard or easy for oneself to digest, and what is constipating or laxative, is no less disgraceful than to inquire what is sweet and what is bitter and what is sour. But nowadays people correct the chefs, being expert at detecting what dish has in it more sweetening or salt or sourness than is proper; but they do not themselves know what, when taken into their own bodies, will be light and painless and beneficial. Therefore, a mistake is not often made in seasoning a soup at their houses, but by their vile and pernicious seasoning of themselves every day they provide a plentiful business for the physicians. Now such persons do not regard the sweetest soup as the best, but they mix in also bitter and pungent flavourings; on the other hand, they inject into the body numerous cloying pleasures, partly from ignorance, and partly because they do not remember that to whatever is healthful and beneficial nature adds a pleasure which causes neither pain nor repentance. But we must keep in mind both those things that are congenial and suitable to the body, and, conversely, as changes attendant on the season occur and different circumstances arise, we should, in full knowledge of the facts, suitably adjust our mode of living to each.

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

(137) ζωμόν μέν γάρ ούκ άριστον ήγοῦνται τον γλυκύτατον, άλλά και πικρά και δριμέα συμμιγνύουσιν. εἰς δὲ τὸ σῶμα πολλὰς καὶ κατακόρους ἐμβάλλουσιν ήδονάς, τὰ μέν άγνοοῦντες τὰ δ' οὐ μνημονεύοντες ότι τοις ύγιεινοις και ώφελίμοις ή φύσις ήδονήν άλυπον και άμεταμέλητον προστίθησιν. άλλά και ταῦτα δεῖ μνημονεύειν, τὰ σύμφυλα καὶ πρόσφορα τώ σώματι, και τουναντίον έν ταις καθ' ώραν μεταβολαίς και ταις άλλαις περιστάσεσιν είδότας οίκείως προσαρμόττειν έκάστη¹ την δίαιταν. C 27. Όσα μέν γαρ μικρολογίας και ανελευθερίας προσκρούματα λαμβάνουσιν οι πολλοι περί τε συγκομιδάς καρπών και τηρήσεις επιπόνους, άγρυπνίαις και περιδρομαίς έξελέγχοντες τα σαθρά και υπουλα του σώματος, οὐκ ἄξιόν ἐστι δεδιέναι μή πάθωσιν άνδρες φιλόλογοι και πολιτικοί, προς ούς ένέστηκεν ήμιν ό λόγος άλλ' έτέραν τινά φυλακτέον έστι τούτοις δριμυτέραν έν γράμμασι και μαθήμασι μικρολογίαν, ύφ' ής ἀφειδεῖν καὶ ἀμελεῖν τοῦ σώματος άναγκάζονται, πολλάκις άπαγορεύοντος ούκ D ένδιδόντες άλλα προσβιαζόμενοι θνητον άθανάτω καί γηγενές 'Ολυμπίω συναμιλλάσθαι καί συνεξανύτειν. είθ' ώς ό βους πρός την όμόδουλον έλεγε κάμηλον, έπικουφίσαι του φορτίου μή βουλομένην. " ἀλλὰ κάμὲ καὶ ταῦτα πάντα μετὰ μικρὸν οἴσεις,"

¹ έκάστη F.C.B. : έκάστω.

27. Now as to various difficulties, due to observance of petty detail and to lack of freedom, which most men encounter-men who are engaged in the toilsome business of harvesting and caring for their crops and by sleepless nights and running hither and thither bring to light the latent infirmities of their bodies-there is no good reason to fear that such will be experienced by scholars and men in public life, with reference to whom our discussion has taken its present form; but these must guard against another and more subtle kind of pettiness that inheres in letters and learning, an influence which compels them to be unsparing and careless of their body, so that they oftentimes, when the body is ready to succumb, will not surrender, but will force the mortal to be partner with the immortal, and the earth-born with the celestial, in rivalry and achievement. Then later, to quote the words of the ox to his fellow-servant the camel, who was unwilling to lighten his burden : "Well, before long you will be carrying me as well as all this load " (as actually (137) δ καί συνέβη τελευτήσαντος αὐτοῦ, οὕτω συμβαίνει τῆ ψυχῆ· μικρὰ χαλάσαι καὶ παρεῖναι μὴ βουλομένη πονοῦντι καὶ δεομένω, μετ' ὀλίγον πυρετοῦ τινος ἢ σκοτώματος ἐμπεσόντος ἀφεῖσα τὰ βιβλία καὶ τοὺς λόγους καὶ τὰς διατριβὰς ἀναγκάζεται Ε συννοσεῖν ἐκείνω καὶ συγκάμνειν. ὀρθῶς οῦν ὁ Πλάτων παρήνεσε μήτε σῶμα κινεῖν ἄνευ ψυχῆς μήτε ψυχὴν ἄνευ σώματος, ἀλλ' οἶόν τινα ξυνωρίδος ἰσορροπίαν διαφυλάττειν, ὅτε μάλιστα τῆ ψυχῆ συνεργεῖ τὸ σῶμα καὶ συγκάμνει, πλείστην ἐπιμέλειαν αὐτῷ καὶ θεραπείαν ἀποδιδόντας καὶ τὴν καλὴν καὶ ἐράσμιον ὑγίειαν' ῶν δίδωσιν ἀγαθῶν κάλλιστον ἡγουμένους διδόναι τὸ πρὸς κτῆσιν ἀρετῆς καὶ χρῆσιν ἕν τε λόγοις καὶ πράξεσιν ἀκώλυτον αὐτῶν.

1 ύγίειαν Reiske : ύγίειαν ἀποδιδόντας.

ADVICE ABOUT KEEPING WELL, 137

resulted when the ox fell dead).^a And this is just what happens to the mind : if it is unwilling to relax a little and give up to the body in distress and need. a little later a fever or a vertigo attacks it, and it is compelled to give up its books and discussions and studies, and share with the body its sickness and weariness. Plato ^b was right, therefore, in advising that there should be no movement of the body without the mind or of the mind without the body. but that we should preserve, as it were, the even balance of a well-matched team; when the body shares most in the work and weariness of the mind we should repay it by giving it the most care and attention, and we should feel that of the good gifts which fair and lovely Health bestows the fairest is the unhampered opportunity to get and to use virtue both in words and in deeds.

· Cf. Aesop's Fables, No. 125. · Timaeus, p. 88 B.

This a second at the second

ADVICE TO BRIDE AND GROOM (CONIUGALIA PRAECEPTA)

ADVITE TO BRIDE VAL

INTRODUCTION

THE modern bride will undoubtedly turn up her nose and shake her independent head in disapproval of Plutarch's suggestions about subordinating herself to her husband, and nobody will attempt to deny that the status of women has changed materially since Plutarch's time; but, apart from this, she will find in Plutarch's short essay many suggestions regarding whole-souled co-operation and cheerful intellectual companionship with her husband, which mutatis mutandis hold as good to-day as they did when they were written, nearly two thousand years ago. Nor is the husband neglected; he can find much sound advice regarding his attitude towards his wife and the respect and consideration that is always due to her.

Plutarch was no mere theorist in these matters. He himself was happily married, and anyone who doubts this should read his letter to his wife (Moralia, 608 A).

The essay is included in the catalogue of Lamprias (see Vol. I. Introd. p. xviii) and is not infrequently quoted or referred to by later writers, Stobaeus, for example, in his Florilegium, especially lxxiv., and Hieronymus (St. Jerome), Adversus Iovinianum, i. ad fin. It is well worth while, in this connexion, to read Jeremy Taylor's sermon, The Marriage Ring, to see how a famous preacher served up many of the ideas of a heathen philosopher to a Christian congregation.

ΓΑΜΙΚΑ ΠΑΡΑΓΓΕΛΜΑΤΑ

πλογταρχός πολλιανώι και ετργδικήι εγ πραττείν

Β Μετὰ τὸν πάτριον θεσμόν, ὃν ὑμῶν ἡ τῆς Δήμητρος ἱέρεια συνειργνυμένοις ἐφήρμοσεν, οἶμαι καὶ τὸν λόγον ὁμοῦ συνεφαπτόμενον ὑμῶν καὶ συνυμεναιοῦντα χρήσιμον ἄν τι ποιῆσαι καὶ τῷ νόμῷ προσφδόν.

Έν μέν γὰρ τοῖς μουσικοῖς ἕνα τῶν αὐλητικῶν νόμων ἱππόθορον ἐκάλουν, μέλος τι τοῖς ὅπποις ὅρμῆς ἐπεγερτικὸν ὡς ἔοικεν ἐνδιδόν τεἰ περὶ τὰς ὀχείας· φιλοσοφία δὲ πολλῶν λόγων καὶ καλῶν C ἐνόντων, οὐδενὸς ἦττον ἄζιος σπουδῆς ὅ γαμήλιός ἐστιν οῦτος, ῷ κατάδουσα τοὺς ἐπὶ βίου κοινωνία συνιόντας εἰς ταὐτὸ πράους τε παρέχει καὶ χειροήθεις ἀλλήλοις. ὡν οῦν ἀκηκόατε πολλάκις ἐν φιλοσοφία παρατρεφόμενοι κεφάλαια συντάξας ἕν τισιν ὅμοιότησι βραχείαις, ὡς εὐμνημόνευτα μᾶλλον εἶη, κοινὸν ἀμφοτέροις πέμπω δῶρον, εὐχόμενος τῆ

1 ένδιδόν τε F.C.B.: έπάδοντες Sauppe: ένδιδόντα.

^a Cf. O. Gruppe, Griechische Mythologie und Religionsgeschichte, p. 1176. A few references are given regarding marriage rites and customs which are here touched upon, but anyone interested in these matters will consult some book like Westermarck, The History of Human Marriage (5th ed. 1922). ^b Cf. Plutarch, Moralia, 704 F. 298

A 14 CLOW 18 11 FBY 2 7 10 1

ADVICE TO BRIDE AND GROOM

From Plutarch to Pollianus and Eurydice, health and prosperity.

Following close upon the time-honoured rites which the priestess of Demeter ^a applied to you when you were retiring together to the bridal chamber, a discourse which equally touches both of you and swells the nuptial song will, I think, have a useful effect which will also accord with convention.

In music they used to call one of the conventional themes for the flute the "Horse Rampant," b a strain which, as it seems, aroused an ardent desire in horses and imparted it to them at the time of mating. Of the many admirable themes contained in philosophy, that which deals with marriage deserves no less serious attention than any other, for by means of it philosophy weaves a spell over those who are entering together into a lifelong partnership, and renders them gentle and amiable toward each other. I have therefore drawn up a compendium of what you, who have been brought up in the atmosphere of philosophy, have often heard, putting it in the form of brief comparisons that it may be more easily remembered, and I am sending it as a gift for you both to possess in common; and at the same time I pray that the 299

(138) 'Αφροδίτῃ τὰς Μούσας παρεῖναι καὶ συνεργεῖν, ὡς μήτε λύραν τινὰ μήτε κιθάραν μᾶλλον αὐταῖς ἢ τὴν περὶ γάμον καὶ οἶκον ἐμμέλειαν ἡρμοσμένην παρέχειν διὰ λόγου καὶ ἁρμονίας καὶ φιλοσοφίας προσῆκον. καὶ γὰρ οἱ παλαιοὶ τῇ 'Αφροδίτῃ τὸν Έρμῆν συγκαθίδρυσαν, ὡς τῆς περὶ τὸν γάμον D ἡδονῆς μάλιστα λόγου δεομένης, τήν τε Πειθὼ καὶ τὰς Χάριτας, ἕνα πείθοντες διαπράττωνται παρ' ἀλλήλων ἅ βούλονται, μὴ μαχόμενοι μηδὲ φιλονεικοῦντες.

 Ο Σόλων ἐκέλευε τὴν νύμφην τῷ νυμφίῷ συγκατακλίνεσθαι μήλου κυδωνίου κατατραγοῦσαν, αἰνιττόμενος ὡς ἔοικεν ὅτι δεῖ τὴν ἀπὸ στόματος καὶ φωνῆς χάριν εὐάρμοστον εἶναι πρῶτον καὶ ἡδεῖαν.

2. Έν Βοιωτία τὴν νύμφην κατακαλύψαντες ἀσφαραγωνιậ¹ στεφανοῦσιν· ἐκείνη τε γὰρ ἥδιστον ἐκ τραχυτάτης ἀκάνθης καρπὸν ἀναδίδωσιν, ἥ τε νύμφη τῷ μὴ φυγόντι μηδέ² δυσχεράναντι τὴν πρώτην χαλεπότητα καὶ ἀηδίαν αὐτῆς ἥμερον καὶ Ε γλυκεῖαν παρέξει συμβίωσιν. οἱ δὲ τὰς πρώτας τῶν παρθένων διαφορὰς μὴ ὑπομείναντες οὐδὲν ἀπολείπουσι τῶν διὰ τὸν ὅμφακα τὴν σταφυλὴν ἑτέ-ροις προϊεμένων. πολλαὶ δὲ καὶ τῶν νεογάμων δυσχεράνασαι διὰ τὰ πρῶτα τοὺς νυμφίους ὅμοιον

¹ άσφαραγιών ταινία?
 ² μηδέ Sauppe: μήτε.

^a Hermes as the patron of arts and sciences, including 300

ADVICE TO BRIDE AND GROOM, 138

Muses may lend their presence and co-operation to Aphrodite, and may feel that it is no more fitting for them to provide a lyre or lute well attuned than it is to provide that the harmony which concerns marriage and the household shall be well attuned through reason, concord, and philosophy. Indeed, the ancients gave Hermes ^a a place at the side of Aphrodite, in the conviction that the pleasure in marriage stands especially in need of reason; and they also assigned a place there to Persuasion and the Graces, so that married people should succeed in attaining their mutual desires by persuasion and not by fighting and quarrelling.

1. Solon ^b directed that the bride should nibble a chose to quince before getting into bed, intimating, presumably, that the delight from lips and speech should the form be harmonious and pleasant at the outset.

2. In Boeotia, after veiling the bride, they put on her head a chaplet of asparagus; for this plant yields the finest flavoured fruit from the roughest thorns, and so the bride will provide for him who does not run away or feel annoyed at her first display of peevishness and unpleasantness a docile and sweet life together. Those who do not patiently put up with the early girlish disagreements are on a par with those who on account of the sourness of green grapes abandon the ripe clusters to others. Again, many of the newly married women because of their first experiences get annoyed at their husbands, and find speaking and writing ; cf., for example, the familiar instance in Acts xiv. 12.

^b Plutarch mentions this again in Moralia, 279 F, and in his Life of Solon, chap. xx. (p. 89 c).

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

ἔπαθον πάθος τοῖς τὴν μὲν πληγὴν τῆς μελίττης ὑπομείνασι, τὸ δὲ κηρίον προεμένοις.

3. 'Έν ἀρχῆ μάλιστα δεῖ τὰς διαφορὰς καὶ τὰς προσκρούσεις φυλάττεσθαι τοὺς γεγαμηκότας, ὅρῶντας ὅτι καὶ τὰ συναρμοσθέντα τῶν σκευῶν κατ' ἀρχὰς μὲν ὑπὸ τῆς τυχούσης ῥαδίως διασπᾶται προ-F φάσεως, χρόνῷ δὲ τῶν ἑρμῶν σύμπηξιν λαβόντων μόλις ὑπὸ πυρὸς καὶ σιδήρου διαλύεται.

4. ⁶Ωσπερ τὸ πῦρ ἐξάπτεται μὲν εὐχερῶς ἐν ἀχύροις καὶ θρυαλλίδι καὶ θριξὶ λαγῷαις, σβέννυται δὲ τάχιον ἂν μή τινος ἑτέρου δυναμένου στέγειν ἅμα καὶ τρέφειν ἐπιλάβηται, ¹ οὕτω τὸν ἀπὸ σώματος καὶ ὥρας ὀξὺν ἔρωτα τῶν νεογάμων ἀναφλεγόμενον δεῖ μὴ διαρκῆ μηδὲ βέβαιον νομίζειν, ἂν μὴ περὶ τὸ ἦθος ἱδρυθεὶς καὶ τοῦ φρονοῦντος ἁψάμενος ἔμψυχον λάβῃ διάθεσιν.

139 5. 'Η διὰ τῶν φαρμάκων θήρα ταχὺ μὲν αἰρεῖ καὶ λαμβάνει ἑαδίως τὸν ἰχθύν, ἄβρωτον δὲ ποιεῖ καὶ φαῦλον· οὕτως αἱ φίλτρα τινὰ καὶ γοητείας ἐπιτεχνώμεναι τοῖς ἀνδράσι καὶ χειρούμεναι δι' ήδονῆς αὐτοὺς ἐμπλήκτοις καὶ ἀνοήτοις καὶ διεφθαρμένοις συμβιοῦσιν. οὐδὲ γὰρ τὴν Κίρκην ὤνησαν οἱ καταφαρμακευθέντες, οὐδ' ἐχρήσατο πρὸς οὐδὲν αὐτοῖς ὑσὶ καὶ ὄνοις γενομένοις, τὸν δ' 'Οδυσσέα νοῦν ἔχοντα καὶ συνόντα φρονίμως ὑπερηγάπησεν.

6. Αἱ βουλόμεναι μᾶλλον ἀνοήτων κρατεῖν ἀνδρῶν ἢ φρονίμων ἀκούειν ἐοίκασι τοῖς ἐν όδῷ ¹ Cf. Moralia, 454 E.

themselves in like predicament with those who patiently submit to the bees' stings, but abandon the honeycomb.

3. In the beginning, especially, married people ought to be on their guard against disagreements and clashes, for they see that such household vessels as are made of sections joined together are at the outset easily pulled apart by any fortuitous cause, but after a time, when their joints have become set, they can hardly be separated by fire and steel.

4. Just as fire catches readily in chaff, fibre, and hares' fur, but goes out rather quickly, unless it gets hold of some other thing that can retain it and feed it, so the keen love between newly married people that blazes up fiercely as the result of physical attractiveness must not be regarded as enduring or constant, unless, by being centred about character and by gaining a hold upon the rational facultiés, it attains a state of vitality.

5. Fishing with poison is a quick way to catch fish and an easy method of taking them, but it makes the fish inedible and bad. In the same way women who artfully employ love-potions and magic spells upon their husbands, and gain the mastery over them through pleasure, find themselves consorts of dull-witted, degenerate fools. The men bewitched by Circe were of no service to her, nor did she make the least use of them after they had been changed into swine and asses, while for Odysseus, who had sense and showed discretion in her company, she had an exceeding great love.

6. Women who prefer to have power over fools rather than to hearken to sensible men, are like persons who prefer to guide the blind on the road

- (139) βουλομένοις μαλλον όδηγειν τυφλούς η τοις γιγνώσκουσιν ακολουθειν και βλέπουσι.
 - B 7. Τὴν Πασιφάην ἀπιστοῦσι βοὸς ἐρασθῆναι βασιλεῖ συνοῦσαν, ἐνίας ὅρῶσαι τοὺς μὲν αὐστηροὺς καὶ σώφρονας βαρυνομένας, τοῖς δ' ἐξ ἀκρασίας καὶ φιληδονίας κεκραμένοις ὥσπερ κυσὶν ἢ τράγοις ἥδιον συνούσας.

8. Οἱ τοῖς ὅπποις ἐφάλλεσθαι μὴ δυνάμενοι δι' ἀσθένειαν ἢ μαλακίαν αὐτοὺς ἐκείνους ὀκλάζειν καὶ ὑποπίπτειν διδάσκουσιν· οὕτως ἔνιοι τῶν λαβόντων εὐγενεῖς ἢ πλουσίας γυναῖκας οὐχ ἑαυτοὺς ποιοῦσι βελτίους ἀλλ' ἐκείνας περικολούουσιν, ὡς μᾶλλον ἄρξοντες ταπεινῶν γενομένων. δεῖ δ' ὥσπερ ὅππου τὸ μέγεθος φυλάττοντα καὶ τὸ ἀξίωμα τῆς ΄γυναικὸς χρῆσθαι τῷ χαλινῷ.

C 9. Τὴν σελήνην, ὅταν ἀποστῆ τοῦ ἡλίου, περιφανῆ καὶ λαμπρὰν ὅρῶμεν, ἀφανίζεται δὲ καὶ κρύπτεται πλησίον γενομένη· τὴν δὲ σώφρονα γυναῖκα δεῖ τοὐναντίον ὅρᾶσθαι μάλιστα μετὰ τοῦ ἀνδρὸs οῦσαν, οἰκουρεῖν δὲ καὶ κρύπτεσθαι μὴ παρόντος.

10. Οὐκ ὀρθῶς Ἡρόδοτος εἶπεν ὅτι ἡ γυνὴ ἅμα τῷ χιτῶνι ἐκδύεται καὶ τὴν αἰδῶ· τοὐναντίον γὰρ ἡ σώφρων ἀντενδύεται τὴν αἰδῶ, καὶ τοῦ μάλιστα φιλεῖν τῷ μάλιστα αἰδεῖσθαι συμβόλῳ χρῶνται πρὸς ἀλλήλους.

11. "Ωσπερ ἂν φθόγγοι δύο σύμφωνοι ληφθώσι, D τοῦ βαρυτέρου γίγνεται τὸ μέλος, οὕτω πᾶσα πρᾶξις ἐν οἰκία σωφρονούση πράττεται μὲν ὑπ'

^a Herodotus, i. 8. Cf. Plutarch, Moralia, 37 c, and Hieronymus, Adversus Iovinianum, chap. xlviii. (vol. ii. p. 292 of Migne's edition). 304 rather than to follow persons possessed of knowledge and sight.

7. Women will not believe that Pasiphaë, the consort of a king, fell in love with a bull, in spite of the fact that they see some of their sex who feel bored by uncompromising and virtuous men, and take more pleasure in consorting with those who, like dogs and he-goats, are a combination of licentiousness and sensuality.

8. Men who through weakness or effeminacy are unable to vault upon their horses teach the horses to kneel of themselves and crouch down. In like manner, some who have won wives of noble birth or wealth, instead of making themselves better, try to humble their wives, with the idea that they shall have more authority over their wives if these are reduced to a state of humility. But, as one pays heed to the size of his horse in using the rein, so in using the rein on his wife he ought to pay heed to her position.

9. Whenever the moon is at a distance from the sun we see her conspicuous and brilliant, but she disappears and hides herself when she comes near him. Contrariwise a virtuous woman ought to be most visible in her husband's company, and to stay in the house and hide herself when he is away.

10. Herodotus was not right in saying ^a that a woman lays aside her modesty along with her undergarment. On the contrary, a virtuous woman puts on modesty in its stead, and husband and wife bring into their mutual relations the greatest modesty as a token of the greatest love.

11. Whenever two notes are sounded in accord the tune is carried by the bass; and in like manner every activity in a virtuous household is carried on

(139) ἀμφοτέρων ὅμονοούντων, ἐπιφαίνει δὲ τὴν τοῦ ἀνδρὸς ἡγεμονίαν καὶ προαίρεσιν.

12. 'Ο ήλιος τον βορέαν ένίκησεν. δ γαρ ανθρωπος τοῦ μεν ἀνέμου βιαζομένου το ἱμάτιον ἀφελέσθαι και λαμπρον καταπνέοντος μαλλον ἔσφιγγε και συνεῖχε τὴν περιβολήν· τοῦ δ' ἡλίου μετα τὸ πνεῦμα θερμοῦ γενομένου θαλπόμενος εἶτα καυματιζόμενος και τὸν χιτῶνα τῷ ἱματίῳ προσαπεδύσατο. τοῦτο ποιοῦσιν αἱ πλεῖσται γυναῖκες· ἀφαιρουμένοις Ε τοῖς ἀνδράσι βία τὴν τρυφὴν και τὴν πολυτέλειαν διαμάχονται και χαλεπαίνουσιν· ἂν δε πείθωνται μετὰ λόγου, πράως ἀποτίθενται και μετριάζουσιν.

13. Ό Κάτων ἐξέβαλε τῆς βουλῆς τὸν φιλήσαντα τὴν ἑαυτοῦ γυναῖκα τῆς θυγατρὸς παρούσης. τοῦτο μὲν οὖν ἴσως σφοδρότερον εἰ δ' αἰσχρόν ἐστιν, ὥσπερ ἐστίν, ἑτέρων παρόντων ἀσπάζεσθαι καὶ φιλεῖν καὶ περιβάλλειν ἀλλήλους, πῶς οὐκ αἴσχιον ἑτέρων παρόντων λοιδορεῖσθαι καὶ διαφέρεσθαι πρὸς ἀλλήλους, καὶ τὰς¹ μὲν ἐντεύξεις καὶ φιλοφροσύνας ἀπορρήτους πρὸς τὴν γυναῖκα F ποιεῖσθαι, νουθεσία δὲ καὶ μέμψει καὶ παρρησία χρῆσθαι φανερῷ καὶ ἀναπεπταμένῃ;

14. Ωσπερ ἐσόπτρου κατεσκευασμένου χρυσῷ καὶ λίθοις ὅφελος οὐδέν ἐστιν, εἰ μὴ δείκνυσι τὴν μορφὴν ὅμοίαν, οὕτως οὐδὲ πλουσίας γαμετῆς ὅνησις, εἰ μὴ παρέχει τὸν βίον ὅμοιον τῷ ἀνδρὶ καὶ σύμφωνον τὸ ἦθος. [εἰ χαίροντος μὲν εἰκόνα σκυθρωπὴν ἀποδίδωσι τὸ ἔσοπτρον, ἀχθομένου δὲ

1 kai tàs Xylander: tàs.

^a Nos. 306 and 307 of the Fables which pass under the name of Aesop. Cf. also Athenaeus, 604 f. 306 by both parties in agreement, but discloses the husband's leadership and preferences.

12. The Sun won a victory over the North Wind.^a For the wind tried by force to rob a man of his cloak, and blew briskly against him, but the man only drew his garment closer, and held it more tightly together. But when the heat of the sun succeeded the wind, the man began to get warm, and later very hot, and ended by stripping off his shirt as well as his cloak. This is the way most women act. When their husbands try forcibly to remove their luxury and extravagance they keep up a continual fight and are very cross; but if they are convinced with the help of reason, they peaceably put aside these things and practise moderation.

13. Cato expelled from the Senate ^b a man who kissed his own wife in the presence of his daughter. This perhaps was a little severe. But if it is a disgrace (as it is) for man and wife to caress and kiss and embrace in the presence of others, is it not more of a disgrace to air their recriminations and disagreements before others, and, granting that his intimacies and pleasures with his wife should be carried on in secret, to indulge in admonition, fault-finding, and plain speaking in the open and without reserve?

14. Just as a mirror, although embellished with gold and precious stones, is good for nothing unless it shows a true likeness, so there is no advantage in a rich wife unless she makes her life true to her husband's and her character in accord with his. If the mirror gives back a gloomy image of a glad man,

^b The story is told with more humorous details by Plutarch in his Life of Cato Major, chap. xvii. (p. 346 c).

VOL. 11

καί σκυθρωπάζοντας ίλαρὰν καί σεσηρυΐαν, ήμαρτημένον ἐστὶ καὶ φαῦλον. οὐκοῦν καὶ γυνὴ φαῦλος καὶ ἄκαιρος ἡ παίζειν μὲν ὡρμημένου καὶ φιλοφρονείσθαι τοῦ ἀνδρὸς ἐσκυθρωπακυῖα, σπουδάζοντος δὲ παίζουσα καὶ γελῶσα· τὸ μὲν γὰρ ἀηδίας, 140 τὸ δ' ὀλιγωρίας. δεῖ δέ, ὥσπερ οἱ γεωμέτραι λέγουσι τὰς γραμμὰς καὶ τὰς ἐπιφανείας οὐ κινείσθαι καθ' ἑαυτὰς ἀλλὰ συγκινεῖσθαι τοῖς σώμασιν, οὕτω τὴν γυναῖκα μηδὲν ἴδιον πάθος ἔχειν, ἀλλὰ κοινωνεῖν τῷ ἀνδρὶ καὶ σπουδῆς καὶ παιδιᾶς καὶ συννοίας καὶ γέλωτος.

15. Οί τὰς γυναίκας μὴ ἡδέως βλέποντες ἐσθιούσας μετ' αὐτῶν διδάσκουσιν ἐμπίπλασθαι μόνας γενομένας. οὕτως οἱ μὴ συνόντες ἱλαρῶς ταῖς γυναιξὶ μηδὲ παιδιᾶς κοινωνοῦντες αὐταῖς καὶ γέλωτος ἰδίας ἡδονὰς χωρὶς αὐτῶν ζητεῖν διδάσκουσιν.

B 16. Τοῖς τῶν Περσῶν βασιλεῦσιν aἱ γνήσιαι γυναῖκες παρακάθηνται δειπνοῦσι καὶ συνεστιῶνται βουλόμενοι δὲ παίζειν καὶ μεθύσκεσθαι ταύτας μὲν ἀποπέμπουσι, τὰς δὲ μουσουργοὺς καὶ παλλακίδας καλοῦσιν, ὀρθῶς τοῦτό γ' αὐτὸ ποιοῦντες, ὅτι τοῦ¹ συνακολασταίνειν καὶ παροινεῖν οὐ μεταδιδόασι ταῖς γαμεταῖς. ἂν οῦν ἰδιώτης ἀνήρ, ἀκρατὴς δὲ περὶ τὰς ἡδονὰς καὶ ἀνάγωγος, ἐξαμάρτη τι πρὸς ἐταίραν ἢ θεραπαινίδα, δεῖ τὴν γαμετὴν μὴ ἀγανακτεῖν μηδὲ χαλεπαίνειν, λογιζομένην ὅτι παροινίας καὶ ἀκολασίας καὶ ὕβρεως αἰδούμενος αὐτὴν ἑτέρα μεταδίδωσιν.

¹ $\tau_0 \hat{v}$ Hatzidakis, Hartman, and Kronenberg, all independently apparently (!), now confirmed by two MSS. according to the Teubner edition of 1925: $\tau \delta$. 308

ADVICE TO BRIDE AND GROOM, 139-140

or a cheerful and grinning image of a troubled and gloomy man, it is a failure and worthless. So too a wife is worthless and lacking in sense of fitness who puts on a gloomy face when her husband is bent on being sportive and gay, and again, when he is serious, is sportive and mirthful. The one smacks of disagreeableness, the other of indifference. Just as lines and surfaces, in mathematical parlance, have no motion of their own but only in conjunction with the bodies to which they belong,^a so the wife ought to have no feeling of her own, but she should join with her husband in seriousness and sportiveness and in soberness and laughter.

15. Men who do not like to see their wives eat in their company are thus teaching them to stuff themselves when alone. So those who are not cheerful in the company of their wives, nor join with them in sportiveness and laughter, are thus teaching them to seek their own pleasures apart from their husbands.

16. The lawful wives of the Persian kings sit beside them at dinner, and eat with them. But when the kings wish to be merry and get drunk, they send their wives away, and send for their music-girls and concubines.^b In so far they are right in what they do, because they do not concede any share in their licentiousness and debauchery to their wedded wives. If therefore a man in private life, who is incontinent and dissolute in regard to his pleasures, commit some peecadillo with a paramour or a maidservant, his wedded wife ought not to be indignant or angry, but she should reason that it is respect for her which leads him to share his debauchery, licentiousness, and wantonness with another woman.

· Cf. Moralia, 63 B.

Cf. Moralia, 613 A.
 309

C 17. Οἱ φιλόμουσοι τῶν βασιλέων πολλοὺς μου-(140) σικοὺς ποιοῦσιν, οἱ φιλόλογοι λογίους, οἱ φιλαθληταὶ γυμναστικούς. οὕτως ἀνὴρ φιλοσώματος καλλωπίστριαν γυναῖκα ποιεῖ, φιλήδονος ἐταιρικὴν καὶ ἀκόλαστον, φιλάγαθος καὶ φιλόκαλος σώφρονα καὶ κοσμίαν.

18. Λάκαινα παιδίσκη, πυνθανομένου τινός εἰ ἤδη τἀνδρι' προσελήλυθεν, '' οὐκ ἔγωγ','' εἶπεν, '' ἀλλ' ἐμοὶ ἐκεῖνος.'' οῦτος ὁ τρόπος, οἶμαι, τῆς οἰκοδεσποίνης, μήτε φεύγειν μήτε δυσχεραίνειν τὰ τοιαῦτα τοῦ ἀνδρὸς ἀρχομένου μήτ' αὐτὴν κατ-D ἀρχεσθαι· τὸ μὲν γὰρ ἑταιρικὸν καὶ ἰταμόν, τὸ δ' ὑπερήφανον καὶ ἀφιλόστοργον.

19. Ίδίους οὐ δεῖ φίλους κτασθαι τὴν γυναῖκα, κοινοῖς δὲ χρῆσθαι τοῖς τοῦ ἀνδρός· οἱ δὲ θεοὶ φίλοι πρῶτοι καὶ μέγιστοι. διὸ καὶ θεοὺς οῦς ὁ ἀνὴρ νομίζει σέβεσθαι τῆ γαμετῆ καὶ γιγνώσκειν μόνους προσήκει, περιέργοις δὲ θρησκείαις καὶ ξέναις δεισιδαιμονίαις ἀποκεκλεῖσθαι τὴν αὕλειον. οὐδενὶ γὰρ θεῶν ἱερὰ κλεπτόμενα καὶ λανθάνοντα δραται κεχαρισμένως ὑπὸ γυναικός.

20. Ό Πλάτων φησίν εύδαίμονα καὶ μακαρίαν είναι πόλιν, ἐν ἢ "τὸ ἐμὸν καὶ τὸ³ οὐκ ἐμὸν" Ε ἦκιστα φθεγγομένων ἀκούουσι διὰ τὸ κοινοῖς ὡς ἔνι μάλιστα χρῆσθαι τοῖς ἀξίοις σπουδῆς τοὺς πολίτας. [πολὺ δὲ μᾶλλον ἐκ γάμου δεῖ τὴν

¹ τάνδρὶ Platt: ἀνδρί.
 ² καὶ τὸ Stobaeus, Florilegium, lxxiv. 43: καὶ.

^a Cf. Moralia, 242 B.

^b Republic, p. 462 c. Cf. also Plutarch, Moralia, 484 B and 767 D.

ADVICE TO BRIDE AND GROOM, 140

17. Kings fond of the arts make many persons incline to be artists, those fond of letters make many want to be scholars, and those fond of sport make many take up athletics. In like manner a man fond of his personal appearance makes a wife all paint and powder; one fond of pleasure makes her meretricious and licentious, while a husband who loves what is good and honourable makes a wife discreet and well-behaved.

18. A young Spartan woman, in answer to an inquiry as to whether she had already made advances to her husband, said, "No, but he has made them to me."^a This behaviour, I take it, is characteristic of the true mistress of the household, on the one hand not to avoid or to feel annoyed at such actions on the part of her husband if he begins them, and on the other not to take the initiative herself; for the one course is meretricious and froward, the other disdainful and unamiable.

19. A wife ought not to make friends of her own, but to enjoy her husband's friends in common with him. The gods are the first and most important friends. Wherefore it is becoming for a wife to worship and to know only the gods that her husband believes in, and to shut the front door tight upon all queer rituals and outlandish superstitions. For with no god do stealthy and secret rites performed by a woman find any favour.

20. Plato b asserts that the state is prosperous and happy in which the people hear "mine" and "not mine" most rarely uttered, the reason being that the citizens, so far as in them lies, treat all things of real importance as common property. Much more should such expressions be eliminated from the τοιαύτην φωνήν άνηρησθαι. πλήν ωσπερ οί ίατροί λέγουσι τὰς τῶν εὐωνύμων πληγὰς την αισθησιν έν τοις δεξιοις άναφέρειν, ούτω την γυναικα τοις τοῦ ἀνδρὸς συμπαθεῖν καλὸν¹ καὶ τὸν ἀνδρα τοῖς της γυναικός, ίν' ώσπερ οί δεσμοί κατά την έπάλλαξιν ίσχυν δι' άλλήλων λαμβάνουσιν, ούτως έκατέρου την εύνοιαν αντίστροφον αποδιδόντος ή κοινωνία σώζηται δι' άμφοῖν. καὶ γὰρ ή φύσις F μίγνυσι διὰ τῶν σωμάτων ήμας, ιν' έξ έκατέρων μέρος λαβούσα και συγχέασα κοινόν άμφοτέροις άποδω το γεννώμενον, ώστε μηδέτερον διορίσαι μηδε διακρίναι το ίδιον η το άλλότριον. αυτη τοίνυν και χρημάτων κοινωνία προσήκει μάλιστα τοῖς γαμοῦσιν, εἰς μίαν οὐσίαν πάντα καταχεαμένοις και άναμείξασι μή το μέρος ίδιον και το μέρος άλλότριον άλλα παν ίδιον ήγεισθαι καί μηδέν άλλότριον. ώσπερ το κραμα καίτοι ύδατος μετέχον πλείονος οίνον καλουμεν, ούτω την ουσίαν δει και τον οίκον του άνδρος λέγεσθαι, καν ή γυνή πλείονα συμβάλληται.

21. Φιλόπλουτος ή Έλένη, φιλήδονος ό Πάρις φρόνιμος ό Όδυσσεύς, σώφρων ή Πηνελόπη. διὰ τοῦτο μακάριος γάμος ό τούτων καὶ ζηλωτός, ό 141 δ' ἐκείνων Ἰλιάδα κακῶν Ἔλλησι καὶ βαρβάροις ἐποίησεν.

22. Ο 'Ρωμαΐος ύπό των φίλων νουθετούμενος ότι σώφρονα γυναΐκα και πλουσίαν και ώραίαν άπ-

1 καλόν Wyttenbach : μάλλον.

^a Cf. Plutarch's Life of Aemilius Paulus, chap. v. (p. 312

ADVICE TO BRIDE AND GROOM, 140-141

married state; save that, as physicians tell us that blows on the left side of the body record the sensation on the right side, so, in the same way, it is a lovely thing for the wife to sympathize with her husband's concerns and the husband with the wife's, so that, as ropes, by being intertwined, get strength from each other, thus, by the due contribution of goodwill in corresponding measure by each member, the copartnership may be preserved through the joint action of both. For Nature unites us through the commingling of our bodies, in order that, by taking and blending together a portion derived from each member of a pair, the offspring which she produces may be common to both, so that neither can define or distinguish his own or the other's part therein. Such a copartnership in property as well is especially befitting married people, who should pour all their resources into a common fund, and combine them, and each should not regard one part as his own and another part as the other's, but all as his own and nothing as the other's. As we call a mixture "wine," although the larger of the component parts is water, so the property and the estate ought to be said to belong to the husband even though the wife contribute the larger share.

21. Helen was fond of wealth and Paris of pleasure; Odysseus was sensible and Penelope virtuous. Therefore the marriage of the latter pair was happy and enviable, while that of the former created an "Iliad of woes" for Greeks and barbarians.

22. The Roman,^a on being admonished by his friends because he had put away a virtuous, wealthy, 257 B), and Hieronymus, Adversus Iovinianum, i. chap. xlviii. (vol. ii. p. 292 of Migne's edition).

(141) επέμψατο, τὸν κάλτιον ἀὐτοῖς προτείνας "καὶ γὰρ οῦτος," ἔφη, "καλὸς ἰδεῦν καὶ καινός, ἀλλ' οὐδεἰς οἶδεν ὅπου με θλίβει." δεῖ τοίνυν μὴ προικὶ μηδὲ γένει μηδὲ κάλλει τὴν γυναῖκα πιστεύειν, ἀλλ' ἐν οἶς ἄπτεται μάλιστα τοῦ ἀνδρός, ὁμιλία τε καὶ ἦθει καὶ συμπεριφορậ, ταῦτα μὴ σκληρὰ μηδ' ἀνιῶντα Β καθ' ἡμέραν ἀλλ' εὐάρμοστα καὶ ἄλυπα καὶ προσφιλῆ παρέχειν. ὥσπερ γὰρ οἱ ἰατροὶ τοὺς ἐξ αἰτιῶν ἀδήλων καὶ κατὰ μικρὸν συλλεγομένων γεννωμένους πυρετοὺς μᾶλλον δεδοίκασιν ἢ τοὺς ἐμφανεῖς καὶ μεγάλας προφάσεις ἔχοντας, οὕτω τὰ λανθάνοντα τοὺς πολλοὺς μικρὰ καὶ συνεχῆ καὶ καθημερινὰ προσκρούματα γυναικὸς καὶ ἀνδρὸς μᾶλλον διίστησι καὶ λυμαίνεται τὴν συμβίωσιν.

23. Ό βασιλέὺς Φίλιππος ἤρα Θεσσαλῆς γυναικὸς αἰτίαν ἐχούσης καταφαρμακεύειν αὐτόν. ἐσπούδασεν οὖν ἡ 'Ολυμπιὰς λαβεῖν τὴν ἄνθρωπον ὑποχείριον. ὡς δ' εἰς ὅψιν ἐλθοῦσα τό τ' είδος εὐπρεπὴς ἐφάνη καὶ διελέχθη πρὸς αὐτὴν οὐκ C ἀγεννῶς οὐδ' ἀσυνέτως, '' χαιρέτωσαν,'' εἶπεν ἡ 'Ολυμπιάς, '' αἱ διαβολαί. σὺ γὰρ ἐν σεαυτῆ τὰ φάρμακα ἔχεις.'' ἄμαχον οὖν τι γίγνεται πρᾶγμα γαμετὴ γυνὴ καὶ νόμιμος, ἂν ἐν αὐτῆ πάντα θεμένη, καὶ προῖκα καὶ γένος καὶ φάρμακα καὶ τὸν κεστὸν αὐτόν, ἦθει καὶ ἀρετῆ κατεργάσηται τὴν εὖνοιαν.

24. Πάλιν ή 'Ολυμπιάς, αὐλικοῦ τινος νεανίσκου γήμαντος εὐπρεπή γυναῖκα κακῶς ἀκούουσαν, ¹ κάλτιον in Life of Aemilius Paulus, p. 257 Β: κάλπιον, καλλίγιον Stobaeus, lxxiv. 45.

^a Much the same story is told of the wife of Hystaspes by 314 and lovely wife, reached out his shoe and said, "Yes, this is beautiful to look at, and new, but nobody knows where it pinches me." A wife, then, ought not to rely on her dowry or birth or beauty, but on things in which she gains the greatest hold on her husband, namely conversation, character, and comradeship, which she must render not perverse or vexatious day by day, but accommodating, inoffensive, and agreeable. For, as physicians have more fear of fevers that originate from obscure causes and gradual accretion than of those which may be accounted for by manifest and weighty reasons, so it is the petty, continual, daily clashes between man and wife, unnoticed by the great majority, that disrupt and mar married life.

23. King Philip was enamoured of a Thessalian woman who was accused of using magic charms upon him. Olympias accordingly made haste to get the woman into her power. But when the latter had come into the queen's presence and was seen to be beautiful in appearance, and her conversation with the queen was not lacking in good-breeding or cleverness, Olympias exclaimed, "Away with these slanders! You have your magic charms in yourself." ^a And so a wedded and lawful wife becomes an irresistible thing if she makes everything, dowry, birth, magic charms, and even the magic girdle ^b itself, to be inherent in herself, and by character and virtue succeeds in winning her husband's love.

24. On another occasion, when a young man of the court had married a beautiful woman ^c of bad reputa-Satyrus in his Life of Euripides (Oxyrhynchus Papyri, ix. p. 157). ^b Homer, Il. xiv. 214.

p. 157). ^o Pantica of Cyprus, according to Phylarchus, as quoted by Athenaeus, 609 c.

VOL. 11

 (1 41) "οὖτος," εἶπεν, "οὐκ ἔχει λογισμόν οὐ γὰρ ἂν τοῖς ὀφθαλμοῖς ἔγημε." δεῖ δὲ μὴ τοῖς ὅμμασι γαμεῖν μηδὲ τοῖς δακτύλοις, ὥσπερ ἔνιοι ψηφί-D σαντες πόσα φέρουσαν λαμβάνουσιν, οὐ κρίναντες πῶς συμβιωσομένην.

25. Ό Σωκράτης ἐκέλευε τῶν ἐσοπτριζομένων νεανίσκων τοὺς μὲν αἰσχροὺς ἐπανορθοῦσθαι τῆ ἀρετῆ, τοὺς δὲ καλοὺς μὴ καταισχύνειν τῆ κακία τὸ εἶδος. καλὸν οῦν καὶ τὴν οἰκοδέσποιναν, ὅταν ἐν ταῖς χερσὶν ἔχῃ τὸ ἔσοπτρον, αὐτὴν ἐν ἑαυτῆ διαλαλεῖν, τὴν μὲν αἰσχράν " τί οῦν, ἂν μὴ σώφρων γένωμαι;" τὴν δὲ καλήν " τί οῦν, ἂν καὶ σώφρων γένωμαι;" τῆ γὰρ αἰσχρᾶ σεμνὸν εἰ φιλεῖται διὰ τὸ ἦθος μᾶλλον ἢ τὸ κάλλος.

26. Ταῖς Λυσάνδρου θυγατράσιν ὁ τύραννος ὁ Σικελικὸς ἱμάτια καὶ πλόκια τῶν πολυτελῶν ἔπεμ-Ε ψεν· ὁ δὲ Λύσανδρος οὐκ ἔλαβεν εἰπών, '' ταῦτα τὰ κόσμια καταισχυνεῖ μου μᾶλλον ἢ κοσμήσει τὰς θυγατέρας.'' πρότερος δὲ Λυσάνδρου Σοφοκλῆς τοῦτ' εἶπεν, > ού κόσμος, οὔκ, ὦ τλη̂μον, ἀλλ' ἀκοσμία φαίνοιτ' ἂν είναι σῶν τε μαργότης φρενῶν.

" κόσμος γάρ ἐστιν," ώς ἔλεγε Κράτης, " τὸ κοσμοῦν." κοσμεῖ δὲ τὸ κοσμιωτέραν τὴν γυναῖκα ποιοῦν. ποιεῖ δὲ τοιαύτην οὕτε χρυσὸς οὕτε σμά-

^a Attributed to Bias by Stobaeus, Florilegium, iii. 79 5, and by Demetrius Phalereus, Sayings of the Seven Wise Men. Other authors (e.g. Diogenes Laertius, ii. 33) assign it to Socrates.

^b Dionysius according to Plutarch, Moralia, 190 E, 229 A, and Life of Lysander, chap. ii. (p. 439 D). The same story is told of Archidamus in Moralia 218 E. 316 tion, Olympias said, "That fellow has no brains; else he would not have married on sight." Marriages ought not to be made by trusting the eyes only, or the fingers either, as is the case with some who take a wife after counting up how much she brings with her, but without deciding what kind of a helpmate she will be.

25. Socrates ^a used to urge the ill-favoured among the mirror-gazing youth to make good their defect by virtue, and the handsome not to disgrace their face and figure by vice. So too it is an admirable thing for the mistress of the household, whenever she holds her mirror in her hands, to talk with herself—for the ill-favoured woman to say to herself, "What if I am not virtuous ?" and the beautiful one, "What if I am not virtuous as well ?" For if the ill-favoured woman is loved for her character, that is something of which she can be very proud, far more than if she were loved for her beauty.

26. The Sicilian despot^b sent clothing and jewellery of the costly kind to the daughters of Lysander; but Lysander would not accept them, saying, "These adornments will disgrace my daughters far more than they will adorn them." But Sophocles,^e before Lysander, had said this:

Adornment! No, you wretch! Naught that adorns 'Twould seem to be—your crazy mind's desire.

For, as Crates used to say, " adornment is that which adorns," and that adorns or decorates a woman which makes her more decorous. It is not gold or precious stones or scarlet that makes her such, but ραγδος οὔτε κόκκος, ἀλλ' ὄσα σεμνότητος εὐταξίας αἰδοῦς ἔμφασιν περιτίθησιν.

• From an unknown play ; cf. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag. p. 310, Sophocles, No. 762.

27. Οἱ τῆ γαμηλία θύοντες Ἡρα τὴν χολὴν οὐ F συγκαθαγίζουσι τοῖς ἄλλοις ἱεροῖς, ἀλλ' ἐξελόντες ἔρριψαν παρὰ τὸν βωμόν, αἰνιττομένου τοῦ νομοθέτου τὸ μηδέποτε δεῖν χολὴν μηδ' ὀργὴν γάμω παρεῖναι. [δεῖ γὰρ εἶναι τῆς οἰκοδεσποίνης ὥσπερ οἴνου τὸ αὐστηρὸν ὠφέλιμον καὶ ἡδύ, μὴ πικρὸν ὥσπερ ἀλόης μηδὲ φαρμακῶδες.] 28. Ὁ Πλάτων τῷ Ξενοκράτει βαρυτέρω τὸ

28. Ό Πλάτων τῷ Ξενοκράτει βαρυτέρῳ τὸ ήθος ὅντι τἄλλα δὲ καλῷ κἀγαθῷ παρεκελεύετο θύειν ταῖς Χάρισιν. οἶμαι δὴ καὶ τῆ σώφρονι μάλιστα δεῖν πρὸς τὸν ἀνδρα χαρίτων, ἵν', ὡς ἔλεγε 142 Μητρόδωρος, "ἡδέως συνοικῆ καὶ μὴ ὀργιζομένη ὅτι σωφρονεῖ." δεῖ γὰρ μήτε τὴν εὐτελῆ καθ- αριότητος ἀμελεῖν μήτε τὴν φίλανδρον φιλοφροσύνης: ποιεῖ γὰρ ἡ χαλεπότης ἀηδῆ τὴν εὐταξίαν τῆς γυναικός, ὥσπερ ἡ ῥυπαρία τὴν ἀφέλειαν.

29. 'Η φοβουμένη γελάσαι πρός τὸν ἄνδρα καὶ παῖξαί¹ τι, μὴ φανῆ θρασεῖα καὶ ἀκόλαστος, οὐδὲν διαφέρει τῆς ἵνα μὴ δοκῆ μυρίζεσθαι τὴν κεφαλὴν μηδ' ἀλειφομένης, καὶ ἕνα μὴ φυκοῦσθαι τὸ πρόσωπον μηδὲ νιπτομένης. ὅρῶμεν δὲ καὶ ποιητὰς καὶ ῥήτορας, ὅσοι φεύγουσι τὸ περὶ τὴν λέξιν ὀχλικὸν Β καὶ ἀνελεύθερον καὶ κακόζηλον, τοῖς πράγμασι καὶ

1 παίξαι Wyttenbach: πράξαι.

^a Cf. O. Gruppe, Griechische Mythologie und Religionsgeschichte, p. 1134; also Plutarch, Frag. 2 of De Daedalis Plataeensibus (in Bernardakis's edition, vol. vii. p. 44).

^b The same advice in Moralia 769 D, in Plutarch's Life of C. Marius, chap. ii. (p. 407 A), and a slightly different inference in Moralia, 753 c. 318 whatever invests her with that something which betokens dignity, good behaviour, and modesty.

27. Those who offer sacrifice to Hera, the Protectress of Wedlock,^a do not consecrate the bitter gall with the other parts of the offering, but remove it and cast it beside the altar—an intimation on the part of him who established this custom that bitterness and anger ought never to find a place in married life. For the acerbity of the mistress, like that of wine, ought to be salutary and pleasant, not bitter like that of aloes, nor suggestive of a dose of medicine.

28. Plato ^b advised Xenocrates, who was somewhat churlish in character but otherwise a good and honourable man, to sacrifice to the Graces. It is my opinion that the virtuous woman has especial need of graces in her relations with her husband, in order that, as Metrodorus ^c used to put it, "she may live pleasantly with him and not be cross all the time because she is virtuous." The thrifty woman must not neglect cleanliness, nor the loving wife cheerfulness; for asperity makes a wife's correct behaviour disagreeable, just as untidiness has a similar effect upon plain living.

29. The woman who is afraid to laugh and jest a bit with her husband, lest possibly she appear bold and wanton, is no different from one who will not use oil on her head lest she be thought to use perfume, or from one who will not even wash her face lest she be thought to use rouge. But we observe both poets and public speakers, such as try to avoid vulgarity, narrowness, and affectation in their diction, employing all artistry to move and stir the · Cf. Moralia, 753 c.

(142) ταῖς οἰκονομίαις καὶ τοῖς ἦθεσιν ἄγειν καὶ κινεῖν τὸν ἀκροατὴν φιλοτεχνοῦντας. διὸ δεῖ καὶ τὴν ν οἰκοδέσποιναν ὅτι πῶν τὸ περιττὸν καὶ ἐταιρικὸν καὶ πανηγυρικόν, εὖ ποιοῦσα, φεύγει καὶ παραιτεῖται, μῶλλον φιλοτεχνεῖν ἐν ταῖς ἠθικαῖς καὶ βιωτικαῖς χάρισι πρὸς τὸν ἄνδρα, τῷ καλῷ μεθ' ἡδονῆς συνεθίζουσαν αὐτόν. ἂν δ' ἄρα φύσει τις αὐστηρὰ καὶ ἄκρατος γένηται καὶ ἀνήδυντος, εὐγνωμονεῖν δεῖ τὸν ἄνδρα, καὶ καθάπερ ὁ Φωκίων, τοῦ ᾿Αντιπάτρου πρᾶξιν αὐτῷ προστάττοντος οὐ C καλὴν οὐδὲ πρέπουσαν, εἶπεν '' οὐ δύνασαί μοι καὶ φίλψ χρῆσθαι καὶ κόλακι,'' οῦτω λογίζεσθαι περὶ τῆς σώφρονος καὶ αὐστηρᾶς γυναικός '' οὐ δύναμαι τῷ αὐτῷ καὶ ὡς γαμετῷ καὶ ὡς ἑταίρα συνεῖναι.''

30. Ταῖς Αἰγυπτίαις ὑποδήμασι χρησθαι πάτριον οὐκ ην, ὅπως ἐν οἴκῳ διημερεύωσι. τῶν δὲ πλείστων γυναικῶν ἂν ὑποδήματα διάχρυσα περιέλης καὶ ψέλλια καὶ περισκελίδας καὶ πορφύραν καὶ μαργαρίτας, ἔνδον μένουσιν.

31. 'Η Θεανώ παρέφηνε τὴν χεῖρα περιβαλλομένη τὸ ἱμάτιον. εἰπόντος δέ τινος² '' καλὸς ὁ πῆχυς,'' '' ἀλλ' οὐ δημόσιος,'' ἔφη. δεῖ δὲ μὴ μόνον D τὸν πῆχυν ἀλλὰ μηδὲ τὸν λόγον δημόσιον εἶναι τῆς σώφρονος, καὶ τὴν φωνὴν ὡς ἀπογύμνωσιν ούκ οῦσαν δὲ πρέπουσαν Stobaeus, Florilegium, lxxiv. 49.

 εἰπόντος δέ τινος Stobaeus, Florilegium, lxxiv. 49: τινός δ' εἰπόντος.

^a Cf. Moralia, 64 c, 188 F, 533 D; Plutarch's Life of Phocion, chap. xxx. (p. 755 B); Life of Agis, chap. ii. (p. 795 E). 320

ADVICE TO BRIDE AND GROOM, 142

hearer by means of their subject matter, their handling of it, and their portrayal of characters. So too the mistress of the household, just because she avoids and deprecates everything extravagant, meretricious, and ostentatious (and she does well to do so), ought all the more, in the graces of her character and daily life, to employ all artistry upon her husband, habituating him to what is honourable and at the same time pleasant. However, if a woman is naturally uncompromising, arbitrary, and unpleasant, the husband must be considerate, and do as Phocion did when Antipater prescribed for him a dishonourable and unbecoming course of action. Phocion said, "You cannot use me as a friend and flatterer both," a and so the husband must reason about his virtuous and uncompromising wife, "I cannot have the society of the same woman both as wife and as paramour.'

30. The women of Egypt, by inherited custom, were not allowed to wear shoes,^b so that they should stay at home all day; and most women, if you take from them gold-embroidered shoes, bracelets, anklets, purple, and pearls, stay indoors.

31. Theano,^c in putting her cloak about her exposed her arm. Somebody exclaimed, "A lovely arm." "But not for the public," said she. Not only the arm of the virtuous woman, but her speech as well, ought to be not for the public, and she ought to be modest and guarded about saying anything

^b This is quite contrary to the classical Greek tradition (Herodotus, ii. 35; Sophocles, Oedipus Coloneus 339), which errs just as badly in the other direction.

^c Wife of Pythagoras the philosopher. The story is told a little more fully by Clement of Alexandria, Stromata, iv. p. 522 c. (142) αἰδεῖσθαι καὶ φυλάττεσθαι πρὸς τοὺς ἐκτός· ' ἐνορᾶται γὰρ αὐτῆ καὶ πάθος καὶ ἦθος καὶ διάθεσις λαλούσης.

32. Τὴν ἀΗλείων ὁ Φειδίας ἀΑφροδίτην ἐποίησε χελώνην πατοῦσαν, οἰκουρίας σύμβολον ταῖς γυναιξὶ καὶ σιωπῆς. δεῖ γὰρ ἢ πρὸς τὸν ἄνδρα λαλεῖν ἢ διὰ τοῦ ἀνδρός, μὴ δυσχεραίνουσαν εἰ δι᾽ ἀλλοτρίας γλώττης ὥσπερ αὐλητὴς φθέγγεται σεμνότερον.¹

33. Οἱ πλούσιοι καὶ οἱ βασιλεῖς τιμῶντες τοὺς φιλοσόφους αὐτούς τε κοσμοῦσι κἀκείνους, οἱ δὲ φιλόσοφοι τοὺς πλουσίους θεραπεύοντες οὐκ ἐκεί-Ενους ποιοῦσιν ἐνδόξους ἀλλ' αὐτοὺς ἀδοξοτέρους. τοῦτο συμβαίνει καὶ περὶ τὰς γυναῖκας. ὑποτάττουσαι μὲν γὰρ ἑαυτὰς τοῖς ἀνδράσιν ἐπαινοῦνται, κρατεῖν δὲ βουλόμεναι μᾶλλον τῶν κρατουμένων ἀσχημονοῦσι. [κρατεῖν δὲ δεί[®] τὸν ἄνδρα τῆς γυναικὸς οὐχ ὡς δεσπότην κτήματος ἀλλ' ὡς ψυχὴν σώματος,] συμπαθοῦντα καὶ συμπεφυκότα τῆ εὐνοίą.[®] ὥσπερ οὖν σώματος ἔστι κήδεσθαι μὴ δουλεύοντα ταῖς ἡδοναῖς αὐτοῦ καὶ ταῖς ἐπιθυμίαις, οὕτω γυναικὸς ἄρχειν εὐφραίνοντα καὶ χαριζόμενον.

34. Τῶν σωμάτων οἱ φιλόσοφοι τὰ μὲν ἐκ διεστώτων λέγουσιν εἶναι καθάπερ στόλον καὶ F στρατόπεδον, τὰ δ' ἐκ συναπτομένων ὡς οἰκίαν καὶ ναῦν, τὰ δ' ἡνωμένα καὶ συμφυῆ καθάπερ

¹ σεμνότερον] omitted by Stobaeus, ibid., perhaps rightly.
 ² Many MSS. omit δεί and add δίκαιδν ἐστιν after εὐνοία.

^a Pausanias, vi. 25. 1; cf. also Plutarch, Moralia, 381 E. Roscher, Lexikon d. gr. u. rom. Mythologie, i. p. 412, 322 in the hearing of outsiders, since it is an exposure of herself; for in her talk can be seen her feelings, character, and disposition.

32. Pheidias made the Aphrodite of the Eleans with one foot on a tortoise," to typify for womankind keeping at home and keeping silence. For a woman ought to do her talking either to her husband or through her husband, and she should not feel aggrieved if, like the flute-player, she makes a more impressive sound through a tongue not her own.

33. Rich men and princes by conferring honours on philosophers adorn both themselves and the philosophers; but, on the other hand, philosophers by paying court to the rich do not enhance the repute of the rich but lower their own. So is it with women also; if they subordinate themselves to their husbands, they are commended, but if they want to have control, they cut a sorrier figure than the subjects of their control. And control ought to be exercised by the man over the woman, not as the owner has control of a piece of property, but, as the soul controls the body, by entering into her feelings and being knit to her through goodwill. As, therefore, it is possible to exercise care over the body without being a slave to its pleasures and desires, so it is possible to govern a wife, and at the same time to delight and gratify her.

34. Philosophers ^b say of bodies that some are composed of separate elements, as a fleet or an army, others of elements joined together, as a house or a ship, and still others form together an intimate union, mentions two ancient bronzes, one Greek and one Etruscan, in which Aphrodite is represented with one foot on a tortoise. ^b Undoubtedly the Stoic philosophers are meant; cf.

Moralia. 426 A.

ἐστὶ τῶν ζώων ἕκαστον. σχεδὸν οὖν καὶ γάμος ὅ μὲν τῶν ἐρώντων ἡνωμένος καὶ συμφυής ἐστιν, ὅ δὲ τῶν διὰ προῖκας ἢ τέκνα γαμούντων ἐκ συναπτομένων, ὅ δὲ τῶν συγκαθευδόντων' ἐκ διεστώτων, οὖς συνοικεῖν ἄν τις ἀλλήλοις οὐ συμβιοῦν νομίσειε. δεῖ δέ, ὥσπερ οἱ φυσικοὶ τῶν ὑγρῶν λέγουσι δι' ὅλων γενέσθαι τὴν κρᾶσιν, 143 οὖτω τῶν γαμούντων καὶ σώματα καὶ χρήματα καὶ φίλους καὶ οἰκείους ἀναμειχθῆναι δι' ἀλλήλων. καὶ γὰρ ὅ 'Ρωμαῖος νομοθέτης ἐκώλυσε δῶρα διδόναι καὶ λαμβάνειν παρ' ἀλλήλων τοὺς γεγαμηκότας, οὐχ ἕνα μηδενὸς μεταλαμβάνωσιν, ἀλλ' ἕνα πάντα κοινὰ νομίζωσιν.

35. Ἐν Λέπτει τῆς Λἰβὖης πόλει πάτριόν ἐστι τῆ μετὰ τὸν γάμον ἡμέρα τὴν νύμφην πρὸς τὴν τοῦ νυμφίου μητέρα πέμψασαν αἰτεῖσθαι χύτραν ἡ δ' οὐ δίδωσιν οὐδέ φησιν ἔχειν, ὅπως ἀπ' ἀρχῆς ἐπισταμένη τὸ τῆς ἑκυρᾶς μητρυιῶδες, ἂν ὕστερόν τι συμβαίνη τραχύτερον, μὴ ἀγανακτῆ μηδὲ δυσκολαίνη. τοῦτο δεῖ γιγνώσκουσαν τὴν γυναῖκα θεραπεύειν τὴν πρόφασιν· ἔστι δὲ ζηλοτυπία τῆς Β μητρὸς ὑπὲρ εὐνοίας πρὸς αὐτήν. θεραπεία δὲ μία τοῦ πάθους ἰδία μὲν εὕνοιαν τῷ ἀνδρὶ ποιεῖν πρὸς ἑαυτήν, τὴν δὲ τῆς μητρὸς μὴ περισπῶν μηδ' ἐλαττοῦν.

1 ού συγκαθευδόντων Madvig.

^a The meaning of this passage is made quite clear by No. 4 of the fragmenta incerta of the Moralia, in vol. vii. of Bernardakis's edition, p. 151, and Musonius, pp. 67-68 of O. Hense's edition=Stobaeus, Florilegium, lxix. 23.

^b Cf. Moralia, 265 E.

^e Hieronymus, Adversus Iovinianum, i. chap. xlviii. (vol.
 ii. p. 292 of Migne's edition), amplifies this by a reference 324

ADVICE TO BRIDE AND GROOM, 142-143

as is the case with every living creature. In about the same way, the marriage of a couple in love with each other is an intimate union ; that of those who marry for dowry or children is of persons joined together; and that of those who merely sleep in the same bed is of separate persons who may be regarded as cohabiting, but not really living together.ª As the mixing of liquids, according to what men of science say, extends throughout their entire content, so also in the case of married people there ought to be a mutual amalgamation of their bodies, property, friends, and relations. In fact, the purpose of the Roman law-giver b who prohibited the giving and receiving of presents between man and wife was, not to prevent their sharing in anything, but that they should feel that they shared all things in common.

35. In Leptis, a city of Africa, it is an inherited custom ° for the bride, on the day after her marriage, to send to the mother of the bridegroom and ask for a pot. The latter does not give it, and also declares that she has none, her purpose being that the bride may from the outset realize the stepmother's attitude in her mother-in-law, and, in the event of some harsher incident later on, may not feel indignant or resentful. A wife ought to take cognizance of this hostility, and try to cure the cause of it, which is the mother's jealousy of the bride as the object of her son's affection. The one way to cure this trouble is to create an affection for herself personally on the part of her husband, and at the same time not to divert or lessen his affection for his mother.

to Terence, Hecyra, ii. 1. 4 : " All mothers-in-law hate their daughters-in-law,"

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

(143) 36. Τοὺς υίοὺς δοκοῦσι μᾶλλον ἀγαπῶν ai μητέρες ὡς δυναμένους αὐταῖς βοηθεῖν, οἱ δὲ πατέρες τὰς θυγατέρας ὡς δεομένας αὐτῶν βοηθούντων· ἴσως δὲ καὶ τιμῆ τῆ πρὸς ἀλλήλους ὁ ἕτερος τὸ μᾶλλον οἰκεῖον τῷ ἐτέρῷ βούλεται μᾶλλον ἀσπαζόμενος καὶ ἀγαπῶν φανερὸς εἶναι. καὶ τοῦτο μὲν ἴσως διάφορόν ἐστιν, ἐκεῖνο δ' ἀστεῖον, ἂν ἡ γυνὴ μᾶλλον ἀποκλίνασα τῆ τιμῆ πρὸς τοὺς γονεῖς τοῦ ἀνδρὸς ἢ τοὺς ἑαυτῆς C βλέπηται, κἅν τι λυπῆται, πρὸς ἐκείνους ἀναφέρουσα, τοὺς δ' ἑαυτῆς¹ λανθάνουσα. ποιεῖ γὰρ τὸ πιστεύειν δοκεῖν πιστεύεσθαι, καὶ τὸ φιλεῖν φιλεῖσθαι.

37. Τοῖς περὶ τὸν Κῦρον Ἐλλησι παρήγγειλαν οἱ στρατηγοὶ τοὺς πολεμίους, ἂν μὲν βοῶντες ἐπίωσι, δέχεσθαι μετὰ σιωπῆς, ἂν δ' ἐκεῖνοι σιωπῶσιν, αὐτοὺς μετὰ βοῆς ἀντεξελαύνειν.² aἱ δὲ νοῦν ἔχουσαι γυναῖκες ἐν ταῖς ὀργαῖς τῶν ἀνδρῶν κεκραγότων μὲν ἡσυχάζουσι, σιωπῶντας δὲ προσλαλοῦσαι καὶ παραμυθούμεναι καταπραΰνουσιν.

D 38. 'Ορθως ό Εὐριπίδης αἰτιᾶται τοὺς τῆ λύρα χρωμένους παρ' οἶνον· ἔδει γὰρ ἐπὶ τὰς ὀργὰς καὶ τὰ πένθη μᾶλλον τὴν μουσικὴν παρακαλεῖν ἢ προσελκύειν³ τοὺς ἐν ταῖς ἡδοναῖς ὄντας. νομίζετε οὖν ὑμεῖς ἁμαρτάνειν τοὺς ἡδονῆς ἕνεκα

1 δ' έαυτηs Bernardakis: δέ αύτηs.

² ἀντεξελαύνειν] μέγα βοήσαντας έξελαύνειν Stobaeus, Florilegium, lxxiv. 51.

³ προσελκύειν F.C.B.: προσεκλύειν. 326

ADVICE TO BRIDE AND GROOM, 143

36. Mothers appear to have a greater love for their sons because of a feeling that their sons are able to help them, and fathers for their daughters because of a feeling that the daughters have need of their help. Perhaps, also, because of the honour accorded by man and wife to each other, the one wishes openly to show that he feels greater esteem and affection for the attributes which are more characteristic of the other. And herein there may perhaps be a divergence, but, on the other hand, it is a nice thing if the wife, in the deference she shows, is observed to incline rather toward her husband's parents than her own, and, if she is distressed over anything, to refer it to them without the knowledge of her own parents. For seeming confidence begets confidence, and love, love.

37. The generals issued orders to the Greeks in Cyrus's army,^a that if the enemy advanced shouting they should receive them with silence, but, on the other hand, if the enemy kept silent, they should charge against them with a shout. Women who have sense keep quiet while their husbands in their fits of anger vociferate, but when their husbands are silent they talk to them and mollify them by words of comfort.

38. Euripides ^b is right in censuring those who employ the lyre as an accompaniment to wine. For music ought rather to be invoked on occasions of anger and grief rather than to be made an added attraction for those who are engaged in their pleasures. So you two must regard those persons

^o Possibly a confused reminiscence of Xenophon, Anabasis, i. 7. 4, and i. 8. 11.

Medea, 190. Cf. also Plutarch. Moralia, 710 E.

(143) συγκαθεύδοντας ἀλλήλοις, ὅταν δ' ἐν ὀργῆ τινι γένωνται καὶ διαφορậ, χωρὶς ἀναπαυομένους καὶ μὴ τότε μάλιστα τὴν ᾿Αφροδίτην παρακαλοῦντας, ἰατρὸν οῦσαν τῶν τοιούτων ἀρίστην. ὡς που καὶ ὅ ποιητὴς διδάσκει, τὴν Ἡραν ποιῶν λέγουσαν > καί σφ' ἄκριτα νείκεα λύσω εἰς εὐνὴν ἀνέσασα ὁμωθῆναι φιλότητι.

39. 'Λεὶ μὲν δεῖ καὶ πανταχοῦ φεύγειν τὸ προσκρούειν τῷ ἀνδρὶ τὴν γυναῖκα καὶ τῆ γυναικὶ τὸν ἀνδρα, μάλιστα δὲ φυλάττεσθαι τοῦτο ποιεῖν ἐν τῷ συναναπαύεσθαι καὶ συγκαθεύδειν. ἡ μὲν γὰρ ὠδίνουσα καὶ δυσφοροῦσα πρὸς τοὺς κατακλίνοντας αὐτὴν ἔλεγε, ''πῶς δ' ἂν ἡ κλίνη ταῦτα θεραπεύσειεν οἶς ἐπὶ τῆς κλίνης περιέπεσον;'' ἁς δ' ἡ κλίνη γεννῷ διαφορὰς καὶ λοιδορίας καὶ ὀργάς, οὐ ῥάδιόν ἐστιν ἐν ἄλλῷ τόπῷ καὶ χρόνῷ διαλυθῆναι.

40. ή Έρμιόνη δοκεί τι λέγειν άληθές' λέγουσα κακών γυναικών είσοδοί μ' ἀπώλεσαν.

F

E

τοῦτο δ' οὐχ ἁπλῶς γιγνόμενόν ἐστιν, ἀλλ' ὅταν aἱ πρὸς τοὺς ἄνδρας διαφοραὶ καὶ ζηλοτυπίαι ταῖς τοιαύταις γυναιξὶ μὴ τὰς θύρας μόνον ἀλλὰ καὶ τὰς ἀκοὰς ἀνοίγωσι. τότ' οὖν δεῖ μάλιστα τὴν νοῦν ἔχουσαν ἀποκλείειν τὰ ѽτα καὶ φυλάττεσθαι τὸν ψιθυρισμόν, ἕνα μὴ πῦρ ἐπὶ πῦρ ¹ ἀληθές] Wyttenbach, followed by Hartman, thinks the adjective unnecessary.

^b Euripides, Andromache, 930; cf. also Hieronymus, Adversus Iovinianum, i. chap. xlviii. (vol. ii. p. 292 of Migne's edition).

^a Adapted from Homer, Il. xiv. 205, 209.

in error who for the sake of pleasure occupy the same bed, but when they get into some angry disagreement repose apart; they ought, instead, at that time especially to invoke Aphrodite, who is the best physician for such disorders. Such no doubt is the teaching of the poet^a when he represents Hera as saying,

I will settle their uncomposed quarrels, Sending them back to their bed to a union of loving enjoyment.

39. At all times and in all places a wife ought to try to avoid any clash with her husband, and a husband with his wife, but they ought to be especially on their guard against doing this in the privacy of their bedchamber. The woman in travail and pain kept saying to those who were trying to make her go to bed, "How can the bed cure this ailment which I contracted in bed?" But the disagreements, recriminations, and angry passions which the bed generates are not easily settled in another place and at another time.

40. Hermione seems to speak the truth when she says,^b

Bad women's visits brought about my fall.

This, however, does not come about so simply, but only when marital disagreements and jealousies open not only a wife's doors but also her hearing to such women. So, at such a time especially, a woman who has sense ought to stop her ears, and be on her guard against whispered insinuations, so that fire may not be added to fire,^c and she ought to have • Cf. the note on 123 F supra.

γένηται, καὶ πρόχειρον ἔχειν τὸ τοῦ Φιλίππου. λέγεται γὰρ ἐκεῖνος ὑπὸ τῶν φίλων παροξυνόμενος ἐπὶ τοὺς Ἐλληνας ὡς εὖ πάσχοντας καὶ κακῶς αὐτὸν λέγοντας εἰπεῖν '' τί οὖν, ἂν καὶ κακῶς ποιῶμεν αὐτούς;'' ὅταν οὖν αί⁴ διαβάλλουσαι λέγωσιν ὅτι '' λυπεῖ σε φιλοῦσαν ὁ ἀνὴρ καὶ 144 σωφρονοῦσαν,'' '' τί οὖν, ἂν καὶ μισεῖν αὐτὸν ἄρξωμαι καὶ ἀδικεῖν;''

41. Ό τὸν δραπέτην ἰδὼν διὰ χρόνου καὶ διώκων, ὡς κατέφυγε φθάσας εἰς μυλῶνα, "ποῦ δ' ἄν," ἔφη, "σὲ μᾶλλον εὑρεῖν ἐβουλήθην ἢ ἐνταῦθα;" γυνὴ τοίνυν διὰ ζηλοτυπίαν ἀπόλειψιν γράφουσα καὶ χαλεπῶς ἔχουσα λεγέτω πρὸς ἑαυτήν "ποῦ δ' ἂν ἡ ζηλοῦσά με μᾶλλον ἡσθείη θεασαμένη καὶ τί ποιοῦσαν ἢ λυπουμένην καὶ στασιάζουσαν πρὸς τὸν ἄνδρα καὶ τὸν οἶκον αὐτὸν^{*} καὶ τὸν θάλαμον προϊεμένην;²²

42. 'Αθηναίοι τρεῖς ἀρότους ἱεροὺς ἄγουσι, Β πρῶτον ἐπὶ Σκίρω, τοῦ παλαιοτάτου τῶν σπόρων ὑπόμνημα, δεύτερον ἐν τῆ 'Ραρία, τρίτον ὑπὸ πόλιν' τὸν καλούμενον Βουζύγιον. [τούτων δὲ πάντων ἱερώτατός' ἐστιν ὁ γαμήλιος σπόρος καὶ ἄροτος ἐπὶ παίδων τεκνώσει.] καλῶς τὴν 'Αφρο-ai omitted by Stobaeus, lxxiv. 52.

 aὐτ∂ν] aὐτὴν Wilamowitz, perhaps rightly.
 ³ πόλιν Basel edition, 1542: πέλιν.
 ⁴ ἰερώτατός] ἰερώτερός Madvig.

^a Cf. Moralia, 179 A and 457 F. A similar remark of Pausanias is quoted in Moralia, 230 D.

^b A remark of the same tenor is attributed to Phocion by Plutarch, Moralia, 188 h, and Life of Phocion, chap. x. (p. 746 E).

ADVICE TO BRIDE AND GROOM, 143-144

ready in mind the saying of Philip.^a For it is told that when he was being incited by his friends against the Greeks on the ground that they were being well treated, but were speaking ill of him, he said, "What would happen, then, if we were to treat them ill?" So when these back-biters say, "Your husband treats grievously his loving and virtuous wife." "Yes, what would happen, then, if I were to begin to hate him and wrong him?"

41. A man whose slave had run away, on catching sight of the fugitive some time later, ran after him; but when the slave got ahead of him by taking refuge in a treadmill, the master said, "Where else could I have wished to find you rather than here?"^b So then let the woman who, on account of jealousy, is entering a writ of divorce, and is in a high dudgeon, say to herself, "Where else would my rival like better to see me, what would she rather have me do, than feel aggrieved with my husband and quarrel with him and abandon my very home and chamber?"

42. The Athenians observe three sacred ploughings: the first at Scirum $^{\circ}$ in commemoration of the most ancient of sowings; the second in Raria, $^{\circ}$ and the third near the base of the Acropolis, the so-called Buzygius $^{\circ}$ (the ox-yoking). But most sacred of all such sowings is the marital sowing and ploughing for the procreation of children. It is a beautiful epithet

^c Scirum was near Athens on the road to Eleusis; the Rarian plain was near Eleusis; the most convenient references regarding these sacred ploughings are Roscher, Lexikon der griech. und rom. Mythologie, s.v. Buzyges, and Harrison and Verrall, Mythology and Monuments of Ancient Athens, pp. 166-8. (144) δίτην ὁ Σοφοκλῆς " εὔκαρπον Κυθέρειαν " προσηγόρευσε. διὸ δεῖ μάλιστα τούτῳ χρῆσθαι μετ' εὐλαβείας τὸν ἄνδρα καὶ τὴν γυναῖκα, τῶν ἀνιέρων καὶ παρανόμων πρὸς ἑτέρους ἁγνεύοντας ὁμιλιῶν, καὶ μὴ σπείροντας ἐξ ῶν οὐδὲν αὐτοῖς φύεσθαι θέλουσιν ἀλλὰ κἂν γένηται καρπὸς αἰσχύνονται καὶ ἀποκρύπτουσι.

43. Γοργίου τοῦ ῥήτορος ἀναγνόντος ἐν ᾿Ολυμπία λόγον περὶ ὅμονοίας τοῖς Ἔλλησιν ὅ Μελάνθιος,¹
C " οῦτος ἡμῖν," ἔφη, " συμβουλεύει περὶ ὅμονοίας, ὅς αὐτὸν καὶ τὴν γυναῖκα καὶ τὴν θεράπαιναν ἰδία τρεῖς ὅντας ὅμονοεῖν οὐ πέπεικεν." ἦν γὰρ ὡς ἔοικέ τις ἔρως τοῦ Γοργίου καὶ ζηλοτυπία τῆς γυναικὸς πρὸς τὸ θεραπαινίδιον. εῦ τοίνυν ἡρμοσμένον τὸν οἶκον εἶναι δεῖ τῷ μέλλοντι ἁρμόζεσθαι πόλιν καὶ ἀγορὰν καὶ φίλους· μᾶλλον γὰρ ἔοικε τὰ τῶν γυναικῶν ἢ τὰ πρὸς γυναῖκας ἁμαρτήματα λανθάνειν τοὺς πολλούς.

44. Εἰ καθάπερ τὸν αἴλουρον ὀσμῆ μύρων ἐκταράττεσθαι καὶ μαίνεσθαι λέγουσιν, οὖτω τὰς D γυναῖκας ἀγριαίνειν καὶ παραφρονεῖν ὑπὸ μύρων συνέβαινέ, δεινὸν ἦν μὴ ἀπέχεσθαι μύρου τοὺς ἄνδρας, ἀλλὰ δι' ἡδονὴν αὑτῶν βραχεῖαν οὖτω κακουμένας περιορῶν. [ἐπεὶ τοίνυν ταῦτα πάσχουσιν οὐ μυριζομένων τῶν ἀνδρῶν ἀλλὰ συγγιγνομένων ἑτέραις, ἀδικόν ἐστιν ἡδονῆς ἕνεκα μικρῶς ἐπὶ τοσοῦτο³ λυπεῖν καὶ συνταράττειν τὰς γυναῖκας καὶ μή, καθάπερ ταῖς μελίτταις (ὅτι³ δοκοῦσι which Sophocles applied to Aphrodite when he called her "bountiful-bearing Cytherea." ^a Therefore man and wife ought especially to indulge in this with circumspection, keeping themselves pure from all unholy and unlawful intercourse with others, and not sowing seed from which they are unwilling to have any offspring,^b and from which if any issue does result, they are ashamed of it, and try to conceal it.

1 Μελάνθιοs Hieronymus, Amyot, and Xylander : μέλανθοs. 2 τοσοῦτο Reiske : τοσούτφ. ³ ὅτι] at Hercher.

^a Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag. p. 310, Sophoeles, No. 763. ^b Cf. Plato, Laws, p. 839 A.

43. When the orator Gorgias read to the Greeks at Olympia a speech about concord, ⁶ Melanthius said, "This fellow is giving us advice about concord, and yet in his own household he has not prevailed upon himself, his wife, and maidservant, three persons only, to live in concord." For there was, apparently, some love on Gorgias's part and jealousy on the wife's part towards the girl. A man therefore ought to have his household well harmonized who is going to harmonize State, Forum, and friends. For it is much more likely that the sins of women rather than sins against women will go unnoticed by most people.

44. They say that the cat is excited to frenzy by the odour of perfumes. Now if it happened that women were similarly made furious and frantic by perfumes, it would be a dreadful thing for their husbands not to abstain from perfume, but for the sake of their own brief pleasure to permit their wives to suffer in this way. Now inasmuch as women are affected in this way, not by their husbands' using perfume, but by their having connexion with other women, it is unfair to pain and disturb them so much for the sake of a trivial pleasure, and not to follow with wives the practice observed in approaching bees

^c Cf. Diels, Fragmente der Vorsokratiker, ii.¹ pp. 248-9 (Gorgias, B 7-8^a).

- (144) δυσχεραίνειν καὶ μάχεσθαι τοῖς μετὰ γυναικῶν γενομένοις), ἁγνοὺς καὶ καθαρεύοντας ἐτέρων συνουσίας προσιέναι ταῖς γυναιξίν.
 - 45. Οἱ προσιόντες ἐλέφασιν ἐσθῆτα λαμπρὰν
 Ε οὐ λαμβάνουσιν, οὐδὲ φοινικίδας οἱ ταύροις:
 διαγριαίνεται γὰρ ὑπὸ τῶν χρωμάτων τούτων μάλιστα τὰ ζῷα· τὰς δὲ τίγρεις φασὶ περιτυμ πανιζομένας ἐκμαίνεσθαι παντάπασι καὶ διασπᾶν ἑαυτάς. ἐπεὶ τοίνυν καὶ τῶν ἀνδρῶν οἱ μὲν ἐσθῆτας κοκκίνας καὶ πορφυρᾶς ὁρῶντες δυσ ανασχετοῦσιν, οἱ δὲ κυμβάλοις καὶ τυμπάνοις ἄχθονται, τί δεινὸν ἀπέχεσθαι τούτων τὰς γυναῖκας καὶ μὴ ταράττειν μηδὲ παροξύνειν τοὺς ἄνδρας, ἀλλὰ συνεῖναι μετ' εὐσταθείας καὶ πραότητος;

46. Γυνή τις πρὸς τὸν Φίλιππον ἄκουσαν ἐφελκόμενον αὐτήν, ' ἄφες μ',' εἶπε· '' πᾶσα γυνὴ τοῦ F λύχνου ἀρθέντος ἡ αὐτή ἐστι.'' τοῦτο πρὸς τοὺς μοιχικοὺς καὶ ἀκολάστους εἴρηται καλῶς, τὴν δὲ γαμετὴν δεῖ μάλιστα τοῦ φωτὸς ἀρθέντος εἶναι μὴ τὴν αὐτὴν ταῖς τυχούσαις γυναιξίν, ἀλλὰ φαίνεσθαι τοῦ σώματος μὴ βλεπομένου τὸ σῶφρον αὐτῆς καὶ ἴδιον τῷ ἀνδρὶ καὶ τεταγμένον καὶ φιλόστοργον.

47. Ο Πλάτων τοῖς πρεσβύταις μαλλον παρήνει " αἰσχύνεσθαι τοὺς νέους," ΐνα κἀκεῖνοι πρὸς αὐτοὺς αἰδημόνως ἔχωσιν· "ὅπου" γὰρ ''ἀναισχυντοῦσι γέροντες," οὐδεμίαν αἰδῶ τοῖς νέοις

^a A wide-spread ancient superstition ; the classical references may be found in Magerstedt, Die Bienenzucht des Altertums, Sondershausen, 1851.

^b Cf. Moralia, 330 B.

° Čf. Moralia, 167 c.

(because these insects are thought to be irritable and bellicose towards men who have been with women) a when they approach their wives.

45. Those who have to go near elephants do not put on bright clothes, nor do those who go near bulls put on red^b; for the animals are made especially furious by these colours; and tigers, they say, when surrounded by the noise of beaten drums go completely mad and tear themselves to pieces.^c Since, then, this is also the case with men, that some cannot well endure the sight of scarlet and purple clothes, while others are annoyed by cymbals and drums,^d what terrible hardship is it for women to refrain from such things, and not disquiet or irritate their husbands, but live with them in constant gentleness?

46. A woman once said to Philip, who was trying to force her to come to him against her will, " Let me go. All women are the same when the lights are out." This is well said as an answer to adulterous and licentious men, but the wedded wife ought especially when the light is out not to be the same as ordinary women, but, when her body is invisible, her virtue, her exclusive devotion to her husband, her constancy, and her affection, ought to be most in evidence.

47. Plato e used to advise the elderly men more especially to have the sense of shame before the young, so that the young may be respectful toward them; for where the old men are without sense of shame, he felt, no respect or deference is engendered

^d An indication that the wife was interested in some foreign religion like the worship of Cybele. - ' Laws, p. 729 c. Also cited or referred to by Plutarch, Moralia, 14 B, 71 B, and 272 c.

οὐδ' εὐλάβειαν ἐγγίγνεσθαι. τούτου δεῖ μεμνημένον τὸν ἄνδρα μηδένα μαλλον αἰδεῖσθαι τῆς 145 γυναικός, ὡς τὸν θάλαμον αὐτῆ διδασκαλεῖον εὐταξίας ἢ ἀκολασίας γενησόμενον. - ὅ δὲ τῶν αὐτῶν ἡδονῶν αὐτὸς μὲν ἀπολαύων ἐκείνην δ' ἀποτρέπων οὐδὲν διαφέρει τοῦ κελεύοντος διαμάχεσθαι τὴν γυναῖκα πρὸς τοὺς πολεμίους, οῖς αὐτὸς ἑαυτὸν παρέδωκε.

48. Περὶ δὲ φιλοκοσμίας σὺ μέν, ὡ Εὐρυδίκη, τὰ πρὸς ᾿Αρίστυλλαν ὑπὸ Τιμοξένας γεγραμμένα ἀναγνοῦσα πειρῶ διαμνημονεύειν· σὺ δέ, ὡ Πολλιανέ, μὴ νόμιζε περιεργίας ἀφέξεσθαι τὴν γυναῖκα καὶ πολυτελείας, ἂν ὅρậ σε μὴ καταφρονοῦντα Β τούτων ἐν ἑτέροις, ἀλλὰ καὶ χαίροντα χρυσώσεσιν ἐκπωμάτων καὶ γραφαῖς οἰκηματίων καὶ χλίδωσιν¹ ἡμιόνων καὶ ἵππων περιδεραίοις. οὐ γὰρ ἔστιν ἐξελάσαι τῆς γυναικωνίτιδος ἐν μέσῃ τῆ ἀνδρωνίτιδι τὴν πολυτέλειαν ἀναστρεφομένην.

Καὶ σῦ μὲν ὥραν ἔχων ἦδη φιλοσοφεῖν τοῖς μετ' ἀποδείξεως καὶ κατασκευῆς λεγομένοις ἐπικόσμει τὸ ἦθος, ἐντυγχάνων καὶ πλησιάζων τοῖς ὠφελοῦσι· τῇ δὲ γυναικὶ πανταχόθεν τὸ χρήσιμον συνάγων ὥσπερ aἱ μέλιτται καὶ φέρων aὐτὸς ἐν σεαυτῷ[μεταδίδου καὶ προσδιαλέγου,] φίλους aὐτῇ ποιῶν καὶ συνήθεις τῶν λόγων τοὺς ἀρίστους.

C "πατὴρ" μὲν γάρ "ἐσσι" αὐτῇ "καὶ πότνια μήτηρ ήδε κασίγνητος ".

1 χλίδωσιν Stephanus: χλιδώσεσιν.

^a Plutarch's wife presumably; who Aristylla was we do not know.

^b Adapted from Homer, Il. vi. 429. 336

ADVICE TO BRIDE AND GROOM, 144-145

in the young. The husband ought to bear this in mind, and show no greater respect for anybody than for his wife, seeing that their chamber is bound to be for her a school of orderly behaviour or of wantonness. The man who enjoys the very pleasures from which he tries to dissuade his wife is in no wise different from him who bids her fight to the death against the enemies to whom he has himself surrendered.

48. In regard to love of finery, I beg, Eurydice, that you will read and try to remember what was written to Aristylla by Timoxena^a; and as for you, Pollianus, you must not think that your wife will refrain from immoderate display and extravagance if she sees that you do not despise these things in others, but, on the contrary, find delight in gilded drinking-cups, pictured walls, trappings for mules, and showy neckbands for horses. For it is impossible to expel extravagance from the wife's part of the house when it has free range amid the men's rooms.

Besides, Pollianus, you already possess sufficient maturity to study philosophy, and I beg that you will beautify your character with the aid of discourses which are attended by logical demonstration and mature deliberation, seeking the company and instruction of teachers who will help you. And for your wife you must collect from every source what is useful, as do the bees, and carrying it within your own self impart it to her, and then discuss it with her, and make the best of these doctrines her favourite and familiar themes. For to her

Thou art a father and precious-loved mother, Yea, and a brother as well.⁶

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

(145) οὐχ ἦττον δὲ σεμνὸν ἀκοῦσαι γαμετῆς λεγούσης ¨ἀνερ.

άτὰρ σύ μοί ἐσσι

καθηγητής καὶ φιλόσοφος καὶ διδάσκαλος τῶν καλλίστων καὶ θειοτάτων." ⁶τὰ δὲ τοιαῦτα μαθήματα πρῶτον ἀφίστησι τῶν ἀτόπων τὰς γυναῖκας: αἰσχυνθήσεται γὰρ ὀρχεῖσθαι γυνὴ γεωμετρεῖν μανθάνουσα, καὶ φαρμάκων ἐπωδὰς οὐ προσδέξεται τοῖς Πλάτωνος ἐπαδομένη λόγοις καὶ τοῖς Ξενοφῶντος. ⁶αν δέ τις ἐπαγγέλληται καθαιρεῖν τὴν σελήνην, γελάσεται τὴν ἀμαθίαν καὶ τὴν ἀβελτερίαν τῶν ταῦτα πειθομένων γυναικῶν, ἀστρολογίας μὴ ἀνηκόως ἔχουσα καὶ περὶ 'Αγλαονίκης' ἀκηκουῖα τῆς 'Ηγήτορος τοῦ Θετταλοῦ θυγατρὸς D ὅτι τῶν ἐκλειπτικῶν ἕμπειρος οῦσα πανσελήνων καὶ προειδυῖα τὸν χρόνον, ἐν ῷ συμβαίνει τὴν σελήνην ὑπὸ γῆς³ σκιᾶς ἁλίσκεσθαι, παρεκρούετο καὶ συνέπειθε τὰς γυναῖκας ὡς αὐτὴ καθαιροῦσα τὴν σελήνην.

Παιδίον μέν γὰρ οὐδεμία ποτὲ γυνὴ λέγεται ποιῆσαι³ δίχα κοινωνίας ἀνδρός, τὰ δ' ἄμορφα κυήματα καὶ σαρκοειδῆ καὶ σύστασιν ἐν ἑαυτοῖς ἐκ διαφθορᾶς λαμβάνοντα μύλας καλοῦσι. τοῦτο δὴ φυλακτέον ἐν ταῖς ψυχαῖς γίγνεσθαι τῶν γυναικῶν. ἂν γὰρ λόγων χρηστῶν σπέρματα μὴ δέχωνται Ε μηδὲ κοινωνῶσι παιδείας τοῖς ἀνδράσιν, αὐταὶ

'Αγλαονίκης Reiske: ἀγανίκης.
 ² γῆς Kronenberg: τῆς.
 ³ ποιῆσαι] κυῆσαι Wyttenbach.

^a Adapted from Homer, Il. vi. 429.

^b Cf. Moralia, 416 F. The belief that Thessalian women had the power to draw down the moon was wide-spread 338

ADVICE TO BRIDE AND GROOM, 145

No less ennobling is it for a man to hear his wife say, " My dear husband,

Nay, but thou art to me a guide, philosopher, and teacher in all that is most lovely and divine." Studies of this sort, in the first place, divert women from all untoward conduct; for a woman studying geometry will be ashamed to be a dancer, and she will not swallow any beliefs in magic charms while she is under the charm of Plato's or Xenophon's words. And if anybody professes power to pull down the moon from the sky, she will laugh at the ignorance and stupidity of women who believe these things, inasmuch as she herself is not unschooled in astronomy, and has read in the books about Aglaonice,^b the daughter of Hegetor of Thessaly, and how she, through being thoroughly acquainted with the periods of the full moon when it is subject to eclipse, and, knowing beforehand the time when the moon was due to be overtaken by the earth's shadow, imposed upon the women, and made them all believe that she was drawing down the moon.

It is said that no woman ever produced a child without the co-operation of a man, yet there are misshapen, fleshlike, uterine growths originating in some infection, which develop of themselves and acquire firmness and solidity, and are commonly called "moles." Great care must be taken that this sort of thing does not take place in women's minds. For if they do not receive the seed of good doctrines and share with their husbands in intellectual advancein antiquity. It may suffice here to refer to Aristophanes, Clouds, 749; and for Aglaonice to Plutarch, Moralia 417 A. ° Cf. Aristotle, De generatione animalium, iv. 7.

VOL. II

καθ' αύτὰς ἄτοπα πολλὰ καὶ φαῦλα βουλεύματα καὶ πάθη κυοῦσι.

Σύ δ' ὦ Εὐρυδίκη μάλιστα πειρῶ τοῖς τῶν σοφών και άγαθών άποφθέγμασιν όμιλειν και διά στόματος αέι τας φωνάς έχειν έκείνας ών και παρθένος ούσα παρ' ήμιν ανελάμβανες, όπως ευφραίνης μέν τόν άνδρα, θαυμάζη δ' ύπό των άλλων γυναικών, ούτω κοσμουμένη περιττώς και σεμνώς άπὸ μηδενός. τοὺς μὲν γὰρ τῆσδε τῆς πλουσίας μαργαρίτας και τὰ τῆσδε τῆς ξένης σηρικά λαβεῖν ούκ έστιν ούδε περιθέσθαι μή πολλού πριαμένην, τά δέ Θεανοῦς κόσμια καὶ Κλεοβουλίνης καὶ Γορ-F γοῦς τῆς Λεωνίδου γυναικὸς καὶ Τιμοκλείας τῆς Θεαγένους άδελφης και Κλαυδίας της παλαιάς και Κορνηλίας της Σκιπίωνος και όσαι έγένοντο θαυμασταί καί περιβόητοι, ταῦτα δ' ἔξεστι περικειμένην προίκα και κοσμουμένην αυτοίς ένδόξως άμα βιοῦν καὶ μακαρίως.

Εἰ γὰρ ἡ Σαπφώ διὰ τὴν ἐν τοῖς μέλεσι καλλι-146 γραφίαν ἐφρόνει τηλικοῦτον ὥστε γράψαι πρός τινα πλουσίαν, > κατθάνοισα¹ δὲ κείσεαι, οὐδέ τις μναμοσύνα σέθεν ἔσεται· οὐ γὰρ πεδέχεις² ῥόδων τῶν ἐκ Πιερίας, > > κατθάνοισα Moralia, 646 F: κατθανοῦσα.

> > ² πεδέχεις ibid.: παῖδ' ἔχεις.

^a Wife of Pythagoras ; cf. 142 c, supra.

^b Also called Eumetis, daughter of Ćleobulus ; cf. 148 c-E, 150 E, and 154 A-C, infra. 340

ADVICE TO BRIDE AND GROOM, 145-146

ment, they, left to themselves, conceive many untoward ideas and low designs and emotions.

And as for you, Eurydice, I beg that you will try to be conversant with the sayings of the wise and good, and always have at your tongue's end those sentiments which you used to cull in your girlhood's davs when you were with us, so that you may give joy to your husband, and may be admired by other women, adorned, as you will be, without price, with rare and precious jewels. For you cannot acquire and put upon you this rich woman's pearls or that foreign woman's silks without buying them at a high price, but the ornaments of Theano,ª Cleobulina,^b Gorgo,^c the wife of Leonidas, Timocleia,^d the sister of Theagenes, Claudia º of old, Cornelia, f daughter of Scipio, and of all other women who have been admired and renowned, you may wear about you without price, and, adorning yourself with these, you may live a life of distinction and happiness.

If Sappho thought that her beautiful compositions in verse justified her in writing⁹ to a certain rich woman,

> Dead in the tomb shalt thou lie, Nor shall there be thought of thee there, For in the roses of Pierian fields Thou hast no share, ^c Daughter of Cleomenes, king of Sparta ; cf. Herodotus, vii. 239.

⁴ Plutarch tells of Timocleia's intrepid behaviour after the battle of Chaeroneia in Moralia, 259 c, and Life of Alexander, chap. xii. (p. 671 A).

• Claudia vindicated her virtue when the goddess Cybele was brought to Rome; Livy, xxix. 14.

¹ Better known as the mother of the Gracchi, who said of her sons, "These are my jewels."

⁹ Bergk, Poet. Lyr. Gr. iii. p. 111, Sappho. No. 68; J. M. Edmonds, Lyra Graeca, in the L.C.L. i. p. 69.

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

No. The state of the second state of the (146) πῶς οὐχί σοι μᾶλλον ἐξέσται μέγα φρονεῖν ἐφ' ἑαυτῆ καὶ λαμπρόν, ἂν μὴ τῶν ῥόδων ἀλλὰ καὶ τῶν καρπῶν μετέχῃς, ῶν αἱ Μοῦσαι φέρουσι καὶ χαρίζονται τοῖς παιδείαν καὶ φιλοσοφίαν θαυμάζουσιν; why shall it not be even more allowable for you to entertain high and splendid thoughts of yourself, if you have a share not only in the roses but also in the fruits which the Muses bring and graciously bestow upon those who admire education and philosophy?

ADVICE TO BRIDE AND GROOM, 146

THE DINNER OF THE SEVEN WISE MEN (SEPTEM SAPIENTIUM CONVIVIUM)

INTRODUCTION

PLUTARCH's account of the dinner of the seven wise men is a literary tour de force. Both Plato and Xenophon had composed similar accounts of such gatherings in their own time, and Plutarch himself has recorded in detail in his Symposiacs (or Table-Talks) much of the conversation which was heard at such gatherings in his day. This is comparatively an easy task, but in the account of the dinner of the seven wise men Plutarch, who lived several centuries after Plato and Xenophon, deliberately set himself to compose an account of a meeting of people who lived a couple of centurics before Plato and Xenophon-at the dawn, almost, of authentic Greek history. There was a tradition, recorded by Plato in the Protagoras (p. 343 A) and by other writers, that the seven wise men had met at Delphi in connexion with the dedication of the two famous inscriptions on the temple of Apollo there, and there was an added tradition that they had later been entertained by Periander at Corinth. Besides this, many sayings of the wise men were traditionally current. With this material at hand, Plutarch composed his imaginative account of the dinner, adding other characters such as Neiloxenus and Aesop, and giving it a more intimate touch by introducing the feminine element in the persons of Melissa and 346

THE DINNER OF THE SEVEN WISE MEN

Eumetis; and at the end, for good measure, he added an elaboration of the familiar story of Arion's rescue by dolphins, already well known from the account of Herodotus (i. 24) and of other writers; and this is capped by a few more dolphins.

The title $(\Sigma \nu \mu \pi \delta \sigma \iota \sigma \nu \tau \tilde{\omega} \nu \epsilon \pi \tau \tilde{\alpha} \sigma \sigma \phi \tilde{\omega} \nu)$ stands as No. 110 in the catalogue of Lamprias, and the essay is occasionally quoted or referred to by later Greek writers.

Plutarch names, as the seven wise men, Thales, Bias, Pittacus, Solon, Chilon, Cleobulus, and Anacharsis. Plato (Protagoras, 343 A) puts Myson in place of Anacharsis, and in other lists Periander is found in his stead. Pherecydes, Epimenides, and Peisistratus are the other candidates for a place in the list.

146) ΤΩΝ ΕΠΤΑ ΣΟΦΩΝ ΣΥΜΠΟΣΙΟΝ

1. Η που προϊών ό χρόνος, ω Νίκαρχε, πολύ σκότος ἐπάξει τοῖς πράγμασι καὶ πῶσαν ἀσάφειαν, εί νῦν ἐπὶ προσφάτοις οὕτω καὶ νεαροῖς λόγοι ψευδείς συντεθέντες έχουσι πίστιν. ούτε γαρ μόνων, C ώς ύμεις άκηκόατε, των έπτα γέγονε το συμπόσιον, άλλά πλειόνων η δίς τοσούτων (έν οις και αυτός ήμην, συνήθης μέν ῶν Περιάνδρω διά την τέχνην, ξένος δε Θάλεω. παρ' έμοι γαρ κατέλυσεν δ άνηρ Περιάνδρου κελεύσαντος), ούτε τους λόγους όρθως άπεμνημόνευσεν όστις ήν ύμιν ό διηγούμενος. ήν δ' ώς έοικεν ούδεις των παραγεγονότων. άλλ' έπει σχολή τε πάρεστι πολλή και το γήρας ούκ άξιόπιστον έγγυήσασθαι την άναβολην τοῦ λόγου, προθυμουμένοις ύμιν άπ' άρχης άπαντα διηγήσομαι. 2. Παρεσκευάκει μέν γάρ οὐκ ἐν τῆ πόλει τὴν D ύποδοχήν ό Περίανδρος, άλλ' έν τω περί το Λέχαιον έστιατορίω παρά το της 'Αφροδίτης ίερόν, ής ήν και ή θυσία. μετά γάρ τον έρωτα της μητρός

^a He was apparently a seer versed in ritual purification; see infra, 149 d. 348

THE DINNER OF THE SEVEN WISE MEN

1. IT seems fairly certain, Nicarchus, that the lapse of time will bring about much obscurity and complete uncertainty regarding actual events, if at the present time, in the case of events so fresh and recent, false accounts that have been concocted obtain credence. For, in the first place, the dinner was not a dinner of the Seven alone, as you and your friends have been told, but of more than twice that number, including myself; for I was on intimate terms with Periander by virtue of my profession,^a and I was also the host of Thales, for he stayed at my house by command of Periander. In the second place, your informant, whoever he was, did not report the conversation correctly; apparently he was not one of those at the dinner. However, since there is nothing that demands my attention just now, and old age is too untrustworthy to warrant postponing the narration, I will begin at the beginning, and tell you, without any omissions, the story which you all seem eager to hear.

2. Periander had arranged for the entertainment, not in the city but in the dining-hall in the vicinity of Lechaeum, close by the shrine of Aphrodite, in whose honour the sacrifice was offered that day. For Periander, ever since his mother's love-affair which

(146) αὐτοῦ προεμένης τὸν βίον ἐκουσίως οὐ τεθυκώς τη 'Αφροδίτη, τότε πρώτον έκ τινων ένυπνίων της Μελίσσης ώρμησε τιμαν και θεραπεύειν την θεόν. Τών δε κεκλημένων εκάστω συνωρίς ικανώς κεκοσμημένη προσήχθη και γαρ ώρα θέρους ήν, και την όδον απασαν ύπο πλήθους άμαξων και ἀνθρώπων ἄχρι θαλάττης κονιορτὸς καὶ θόρυβος κατείχεν. ὁ μέντοι Θαλῆς τὸ ζεῦγος ἐπὶ ταῖς Εθύραις ίδών και μειδιάσας αφήκεν. εβαδίζομεν οῦν ἐκτραπόμενοι διὰ τῶν χωρίων, καθ' ἡσυχίαν, καί μεθ' ήμων τρίτος ό Ναυκρατίτης Νειλόξενος, άνηρ ἐπιεικής και τοῖς περι Σόλωνα και Θαλην γεγονώς ἐν Αἰγύπτῷ συνήθης. ἐτύγχανε δὲ προς Βίαντα πάλιν ἀπεσταλμένος· ῶν δὲ χάριν οὐδ' αὐτος ἦδει, πλὴν ὑπενόει πρόβλημα δεύτερον αὐτῷ κομίζειν έν βιβλίω κατασεσημασμένον είρητο γάρ, εί Βίας απαγορεύσειεν, επιδείξαι τοις σοφωτάτοις Έλλήνων το βιβλίον.

 "Έρμαιον" ο Νειλόξενος έφη "μοι γέγονεν
 F ένταῦθα λαβεῖν ἅπαντας ὑμᾶς, καὶ κομίζω τὸ βιβλίον ώς όρας έπι το δείπνον." άμα δ' ήμιν επεδείκνυε.

Καὶ ὁ Θαλῆς γελάσας '' εἴ τι κακόν,'' εἶπεν, '' αῦθις εἰς Πριήνην· διαλύσει γὰρ ὁ Bías, ὡς διέλυσεν αὐτὸς τὸ πρῶτον.'' '' Τί δ' ῆν,'' ἔφην ἐγώ, '' τὸ πρῶτον;'' '' Ἱερεῖον,'' εἶπεν, '' ἔπεμψεν αὐτῷ, κελεύσας τὸ had led to her self-destruction,^a had offered no sacrifice to Aphrodite, but now, for the first time, owing to certain dreams of Melissa's, he had set about honouring and conciliating the goddess.

¹ Θαλην Hercher: θάλητα.

^a Cf. Parthenius, Love-affairs, § 17. ^b The home of Bias.

DINNER OF THE SEVEN WISE MEN, 146

For each of the invited guests a carriage and pair, fashionably caparisoned, was brought to the door; for it was summer-time, and the whole length of the street even to the water's edge was one mass of dust and confusion by reason of the great crowd of vehicles and people. Thales, however, when he saw the equipage at the door, smiled and dismissed it. And so we set out on foot, leaving the road and going through the fields in a leisurely fashion, and with us two was Neiloxenus of Naucratis, an able man, who had been on terms of intimacy with Solon and Thales and their group in Egypt. He, as it happened, had been sent a second time on a mission to Bias, the reason for which he did not know, save only that he suspected that he was bringing for Bias a second problem sealed up in a packet. His instructions were, that if Bias should give up trying to solve it, he should show the packet to the wisest among the -Greeks.

"It is a piece of good fortune for me," said Neiloxenus, "to have found you all together here, and, as you see, I am bringing the packet with meto the dinner"; and at the same time he showed it to us.

Thales began to laugh, and said, "If it is anything bad, go to Priene^b again! For Bias will have a solution for this, just as he had his own solution of the first problem."

"What," said I, " was the first problem ? "

"The king," said he, "sent to Bias an animal for πονηρότατον έξελόντα καὶ χρηστότατον ἀποπέμψαι κρέας. ὁ δ' ἡμέτερος εῦ καὶ καλῶς τὴν γλῶτταν ἐξελῶν ἔπεμψεν· ὅθεν εὐδοκιμῶν δῆλός ἐστι καὶ θαυμαζόμενος."

147 "Ου διὰ ταῦτ" ἔφη "μόνον" ὁ Νειλόξενος, "ἀλλ' οὐ φεύγει τὸ φίλος εἶναι καὶ λέγεσθαι βασιλέων καθάπερ ὑμεῖς, ἐπεὶ σοῦ γε καὶ τἄλλα θαυμάζει, καὶ τῆς πυραμίδος τὴν μέτρησιν ὑπερφυῶς ἡγάπησεν, ὅτι πάσης ἄνευ πραγματείας καὶ μηδενὸς ὀργάνου δεηθεἰς ἀλλὰ τὴν βακτηρίαν στήσας ἐπὶ τῷ πέρατι τῆς σκιᾶς ῆν ἡ πυραμἰς ἐποίει, γενομένων τῆ ἐπαφῆ τῆς ἀκτῖνος δυεῖν τριγώνων, ἔδειξας ὅν ἡ σκιὰ πρὸς τὴν σκιὰν λόγον εἶχε τὴν πυραμίδα πρὸς τὴν βακτηρίαν ἔχουσαν. ἀλλ', ὅπερ ἔφην, διεβλήθης μισοβασιλεὺς εἶναι, Β καί τινες ὑβριστικαί σου περὶ τυράννων ἀποφάσεις ἀνεφέροντο πρὸς αὐτόν, ὡς ἐρωτηθεὶς ὑπὸ Μολπαγόρου τοῦ Ίωνος τί παραδοξότατον εἴης ἑωρακώς, ἀποκρίναιο ' τύραννον γέροντα,' καὶ πάλιν ἕν τινι πότω, περὶ τῶν θηρίων λόγου γενομένου, φαίης κάκιστον εἶναι τῶν μὲν ἀγρίων θηρίων τὸν τύραννον, τῶν δ' ἡμέρων τὸν κόλακα ταῦτα γάρ, εἰ καὶ πάνυ προσποιοῦνται διαφέρειν οἱ βασιλεῦς τῶν τυράννων, οἰκ εἰμενῶς ἀκούουσιν."

'' 'Αλλά τοῦτο μέν,'' εἶπεν ὁ Θαλῆς, '' Πιττακοῦ ἐστιν, εἰρημένον ἐν παιδιậ ποτε πρὸς Μυρσίλον·

^a The same story is told in Moralia, 38 B; in 506 c, and in Plutarch's Comment. on Hesiod, 71 (Works and Days, 719), the same story is told of Pittacus.

^b Cf. Pliny, Natural History, xxxvi. 17 (82).

^c Specifically ascribed to Thales by Plutarch, Moralia, 578 p; cf. also infra, 152 A.

^d Ascribed to Bias by Plutarch, Moralia, 61 c.

DINNER OF THE SEVEN WISE MEN, 146-147

sacrifice, with instructions to take out and send back to him the worst and best portion of the meat. And our friend's neat and clever solution was, to take out the tongue and send it to him,^a with the result that he is now manifestly in high repute and esteem." "Not for this alone," said Neiloxenus, " but he does not try to avoid, as the rest of you do, being a friend of kings and being called such. In your case, for instance, the king finds much to admire in you, and in particular he was immensely pleased with your method of measuring the pyramid, because, without making any ado or asking for any instrument, you simply set your walking-stick upright at the edge of the shadow which the pyramid cast, and, two triangles being formed by the intercepting of the sun's rays, you demonstrated that the height of the pyramid bore the same relation to the length of the stick as the one shadow to the other.^b But, as I said, you have been unjustly accused of having an animosity against kings, and certain offensive pronouncements of yours regarding despots have been reported to him. For example, he was told that, when you were asked by Molpagoras the Ionian what was the most paradoxical thing you had ever seen, you replied, ' A despot that lived to be old.' And again he was told that on a certain convivial occasion there was a discussion about animals, and you maintained that of the wild animals the worst was the despot, and of the tame the flatterer.d Now kings, although they would make out that they are altogether different from despots, do not take kindly to such remarks."

"But the fact is," said Thales, "that Pittacus is responsible for that statement, which was once made in jest with reference to Myrsilus. But, as for myself,

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

C έγώ δέ θαυμάσαιμ' αν," έφη, " ου τύραννον άλλά (147) κυβερνήτην γέροντα θεασάμενος. πρός δε την μετάθεσιν το τοῦ νεανίσκου πέπονθα τοῦ βαλόντος μέν έπι την κύνα πατάξαντος δε την μητρυιάν και ειπόντος 'ούδ' ούτω κακώς.' διο και Σόλωνα σοφώτατον ήγησάμην ου δεξάμενον τυραννείν. καὶ Πιττακὸς οῦτος εἰ μοναρχία μὴ προσῆλθεν, οὐκ ἂν εἶπεν ὡς 'χαλεπὸν ἐσθλὸν ἔμμεναι.' Περίανδρος δ' ἔοικεν ὥσπερ ἐν νοσήματι πατρώω τῆ τυραννίδι κατειλημμένος οὐ φαύλως έξαναφέρειν, χρώμενος όμιλίαις ύγιειναις άχρι γε νῦν καί συνουσίας άνδρών νοῦν ἐχόντων ἐπαγόμενος, D ås δè Θρασύβουλος αὐτῷ κολούσεις τῶν ἄκρων ούμὸς πολίτης ὑφηγεῖται μὴ προσιέμενος. γεωρ-γοῦ γὰρ αἶρας¹ καὶ ὀνώνιδας² ἀντὶ πυρῶν καὶ κριθῶν συγκομίζειν έθέλοντος ούδεν διαφέρει τύραννος άνδραπόδων μαλλον ἄρχειν η ἀνδρῶν βουλόμενος ἐν γὰρ ἀντὶ πολλῶν κακῶν ἀγαθὸν αἱ δυναστεῖαι τὴν τιμὴν ἔχουσι καὶ τὴν δόξαν, ἄνπερ ἀγαθῶν ὡς κρείττονες ἄρχωσι καὶ μεγάλων μείζονες εἶναι δοκωσι· την δ' ἀσφάλειαν ἀγαπωντας ἄνευ τοῦ καλοῦ προβάτων ἔδει πολλῶν καὶ ἵππων καὶ βοῶν ἄρχειν, μή ἀνθρώπων. ἀλλὰ γὰρ εἰς οὐδὲν προσ-Ε ήκοντας ἐμβέβληκεν ήμᾶς,'' ἔφη, '' ὁ ξένος οὑτοσὶ

¹ αίρας Wyttenbach: άγρας or άκρίδας.
² δνώνιδας Doehner: δρνιθας.

^a The same story is found in Moralia, 467 c.

^b Cf. Plutarch, Life of Solon, chaps. xiv. and xv. (pp. 85 D-86 в).

^o Cf. Plato, Protagoras, 339 A; Bergk, Poet. Lyr. Gr. iii. p. 384 Simonides, No. 5.

 a The usual tradition (e.g. Herodotus, v. 92) is that Periander grew worse rather than better.

• The story is familiar in other connexions also; Roman 354

DINNER OF THE SEVEN WISE MEN, 147

I should be amazed to see," he continued, "not a despot but a pilot that lived to be old. However, so far as concerns transferring this from the one to the other, my feeling is exactly that of the young man who threw a stone at his dog, but hit his stepmother, whereupon he exclaimed, 'Not so bad after all !' a This is the reason why I regarded Solon as very wise in refusing to accept the position of despot.^b And as for your friend Pittacus, if he had never addressed himself to the task of ruling single-handed, he would not have said that 'it is hard to be good.' But Periander, apparently, in spite of his being afflicted with despotism as with an inherited disease, is making fair progress towards recovery d by keeping whole-some company—at least up to the present time and by bringing about conferences with men of sense, and by refusing to entertain the suggestions offered by my fellow-citizen Thrasybulus about lopping off the topmost." Indeed, a despot who desires to rule slaves rather than men is not unlike a farmer who is willing to gather in a harvest of darnel and rest-harrow rather than of wheat and barley. For the exercise of dominion possesses one advantage to set against its many disadvantages, and this is the honour and glory of it, if rulers rule over good men by being better than they, and are thought to surpass their subjects in greatness. But rulers that are content with safety without honour ought to rule over a lot of sheep, horses, and cattle, and not over men. But enough of this," he continued, " for our visitor here has precipitated us into a conversation that is quite inappropriate, since tradition, for example, makes Tarquinius Superbus give this advice to his son (Livy, i. 54).

λόγους, ἀμελήσας¹ λέγειν τε καὶ ζητεῖν ἃ ἀρμόττει έπι δειπνον βαδίζουσιν. ή γάρ ούκ οι ει, καθάπερ έστιάσοντος έστι τις παρασκευή, και δειπνήσοντος είναι; Συβαρίται μέν γάρ ώς έοικε πρό ένιαυτοῦ τάς κλήσεις ποιούνται των γυναικών, όπως έκγένοιτο κατά σχολήν παρασκευασαμέναις έσθητι καί χρυσώ φοιταν έπι το δείπνον έγω δε πλείονος οίμαι χρόνου δείσθαι την άληθινήν του δειπνήσοντος όρθως παρασκευήν, ὄσω χαλεπώτερόν έστιν ήθει τον πρέποντα κόσμον η σώματι τον περιττον F έξευρεῖν καὶ ἄχρηστον. οὐ γὰρ ὡς ἀγγεῖον ῆκει κομίζων ἑαυτον ἐμπλησαι προς το δεῖπνον ὁ νοῦν έχων, άλλὰ καὶ σπουδάσαι τι καὶ παῖξαι καὶ άκοῦσαι καὶ εἰπεῖν ὡς² ὁ καιρὸς παρακαλεῖ τοὺς συνόντας, εἰ μέλλουσι μετ' ἀλλήλων ήδέως ἔσεσθαι. καί γάρ και όψον πονηρόν έστι παρώσασθαι, καν οίνος ή φαῦλος, ἐπὶ τὰς νύμφας καταφυγείν. σύνδειπνος δε κεφαλαλγής και βαρύς και άνάγωγος παντός μέν οίνου και όψου πάσης δε μουσουργού χάριν ἀπόλλυσι καὶ λυμαίνεται, καὶ οὐδ' ἀπεμέσαι 148 τὴν τοιαύτην ἀηδίαν ἕτοιμόν ἐστιν, ἀλλ' ἐνίοις εἰς ἅπαντα τὸν βίον ἐμμένει τὸ πρὸς ἀλλήλους δυσάρεστον, ώσπερ έωλοκρασία τις υβρεως η οργής έν οίνω γενομένης. όθεν άριστα Χίλων, καλούμενος έχθές, ού πρότερον ώμολόγησεν η

¹ άμελήσαs] άμελήσανταs some MSS.
 ² ώs Meziriacus: ῶν Wyttenbach: δ.

^a Cf. Athenaeus, 521 c.

^b A similar thought is found in Moralia, 660 B.

DINNER OF THE SEVEN WISE MEN, 147-148

he has not been careful to bring up topics and questions suitable for persons on their way to dinner. Do you not honestly believe that, as some preparation is necessary on the part of the man who is to be host. there should also be some preparation on the part of him who is to be a guest at dinner? People in Sybaris, as it appears, have their invitations to women presented a year in advance so as to afford them plenty of time to provide themselves with clothes and jewellery to wear when they come to dinner "; but I am of the opinion that the genuine preparation on the part of the man who is to be the right kind of guest at dinner requires even a longer time, inasmuch as it is more difficult to discover the fitting adornment for character than the superfluous and useless adornment for the body. In fact, the man of sense who comes to dinner does not betake himself there just to fill himself up as though he were a sort of pot, but to take some part, be it serious or humorous, and to listen and to talk regarding this or that topic as the occasion suggests it to the company, if their association together is to be pleasant.^b Now an unsavoury dish can be declined, and, if the wine be poor, one may find refuge with the water-sprites; but a guest at dinner who gives the others a headache, and is churlish and uncivil, ruins and spoils the enjoyment of any wines and viands or of any girl's music; nor is there any ready means by which one can spew out this sort of unsavouriness, but with some persons their mutual dislike lasts for their entire lifetime-stale dregs, as it were, of some insult or fit of temper which was called into being over wine. Wherefore Chilon showed most excellent judgement when he received his invitation yesterday,

(148) πυθέσθαι τῶν κεκλημένων ἕκαστον. ἔφη γὰρ ὅτι σύμπλουν ἀγνώμονα δεῦ φέρειν καὶ σύσκηνον οἶς πλεῖν ἀνάγκη καὶ στρατεύεσθαι· τὸ δὲ συμπόταις ἑαυτὸν ὡς ἔτυχε καταμιγνύειν οὐ νοῦν ἔχοντος ἀνδρός ἐστιν. ὁ δ᾿ Αἰγύπτιος σκελετός, ὃν ἐπιεικῶς εἰσφέροντες εἰς τὰ συμπόσια προτίθενται καὶ παρα-Β καλοῦσι μεμνῆσθαι τάχα δὴ τοιούτους ἐσομένους, καίπερ ὅχαοις καὶ ὅχοος ἐπίκουος ὅκον ὅμως

καίπερ ἄχαρις καὶ ἄωρος ἐπίκωμος ἥκων, ὅμως ἔχει τινὰ καιρόν, καὶ εἰ μὴ πρὸς τὸ πίνειν καὶ ἡδυπαθεῖν ἀλλὰ πρὸς φιλίαν καὶ ἀγάπησιν ἀλλήλων προτρέπεται, καὶ παρακαλεῖ τὸν βίον μὴ τῷ χρόνῳ βραχὺν ὄντα πράγμασι κακοῖς μακρὸν ποιεῖν."

3. Έν τοιούτοις λόγοις γενόμενοι κατὰ τὴν όδὸν ἀφικόμεθα πρὸς τὴν οἰκίαν, καὶ λούσασθαι μὲν ὁ Θαλῆς οὐκ ἠθέλησεν, ἀληλιμμένοι γὰρ ἦμεν· ἐπιὼν δὲ τούς τε δρόμους ἐθεᾶτο καὶ τὰς παλαίστρας καὶ τὸ ἄλσος τὸ παρὰ τὴν θάλατταν ἱκανῶς διακεκοσμημένον, ὑπ' οὐδενὸς ἐκπληττόμενος τῶν τοιού-C των, ἀλλ' ὅπως μὴ καταφρονεῖν δοκοίη μηδ' ὑπερορῶν τοῦ Περιάνδρου τῆς φιλοτιμίας. τῶν δ' ἄλλων τὸν ἀλειψάμενον ἢ λουσάμενον οἱ θεράποντες εἰσῆγον εἰς τὸν ἀνδρῶνα διὰ τῆς στοᾶς.

⁶Ο δ' 'Ανάχαρσις ἐν τῆ στοậ καθῆστο, καὶ παιδίσκη προειστήκει τὴν κόμην ταῖς χεροὶ διακρίνουσα. ταύτην δ¹ Θαλῆς ἐλευθεριώτατά πως αὐτῷ προσδραμοῦσαν ἐφίλησε καὶ γελάσας '' οὕτως,'' ¹ à added by Hercher.

^a Plutarch expands this thought in Moralia, 708 D. 358

DINNER OF THE SEVEN WISE MEN, 148

in not agreeing to come until he had learned the name of every person invited. For he said that men must put up with an inconsiderate companion on shipboard or under the same tent, if necessity compels them to travel or to serve in the army, but that to trust to luck regarding the people one is to be associated with at table is not the mark of a man of sense.^a Now the skeleton which in Egypt they are wont, with fair reason, to bring in and expose at their parties, urging the guests to remember that what it is now, they soon shall be, although it is an ungracious and unseasonable companion to be introduced at a merry-making, yet has a certain timeliness, even if it does not incline the guests to drinking and enjoyment, but rather to a mutual friendliness and affection, and if it urges upon them that life, which is short in point of time, should not be made long by evil conduct."

3. Engaging in such discourse as this along the way, we arrived at the house. Thales did not care to bathe, for we had already had a rub-down. So he visited and inspected the race-tracks, the trainingquarters of the athletes, and the beautifully kept park along the shore; not that he was ever greatly impressed by anything of the sort, but so that he should not seem to show disdain or contempt for Periander's ambitious designs. As for the other guests, each one, after enjoying a rub-down or a bath, was conducted by the servants to the diningroom through the open colonnade.

Anacharsis was seated in the colonnade, and in front of him stood a girl who was parting his hair with her hands. This girl ran to Thales in a most open-hearted way, whereupon he kissed her (118) έφη, "ποίει καλόν τόν ξένον, ὅπως ἡμερώτατος ῶν μὴ φοβερός ἦ τὴν ὄψιν ἡμῖν μηδ' ἄγριος."

³ Εμοῦ δ' ἐρομένου περὶ τῆς παιδὸς ἥτις εἴη, D" τὴν σοφήν," ἔφη, "καὶ περιβόητον ἀγνοεῖς Εὔμητιν; οῦτω γὰρ ταύτην ὁ πατὴρ αὐτός, οἱ δὲ πολλοὶ πατρόθεν ὀνομάζουσι Κλεοβουλίνην."

Καὶ ὁ Νειλόξενος εἶπεν " ἡ που τὴν περὶ τὰ aἰνίγματα δεινότητα καὶ σοφίαν," ἔφη, " τῆς κόρης ἐπαινεῖς· καὶ γὰρ εἰς Αἴγυπτον ἔνια τῶν προβαλλομένων ὑπ' αὐτῆς διῖκται."

"Οὐκ ἔγωγ'," εἶπεν ὁ Θαλῆς· " τούτοις γὰρ ὥσπερ ἀστραγάλοις, ὅταν τύχῃ, παίζουσα χρῆται καὶ διαβάλλεται πρὸς τοὺς ἐντυχόντας. ἀλλὰ καὶ φρόνημα θαυμαστὸν καὶ νοῦς ἔνεστι πολιτικὸς καὶ φιλάνθρωπον ἦθος, καὶ τὸν πατέρα τοῖς πολίταις Ε πραότερον ἄρχοντα παρέχει καὶ δημοτικώτερον."

" Εἶεν," δ Νειλόξενος ἔφη, " καὶ φαίνεται βλέποντι πρὸς τὴν λιτότητα καὶ ἀφέλειαν αὐτῆς· ᾿Ανάχαρσιν δὲ πόθεν οὕτω τημελεῖ φιλοστόργως;"

" Ότι," έφη, "σώφρων ἀνήρ ἐστι καὶ πολυμαθής, καὶ τὴν δίαιταν αὐτῆ καὶ τὸν καθαρμόν, ῷ χρῶνται Σκύθαι περὶ τοὺς κάμνοντας, ἀφθόνως καὶ προθύμως παραδέδωκε. καὶ νῦν οἶμαι περιέπειν αὐτὴν τὸν ἀνδρα καὶ φιλοφρονεῖσθαι, μανθάνουσάν τι καὶ προσδιαλεγομένην."

"Ηδη δέ πλησίον οὗσιν ήμιν τοῦ ἀνδρῶνος ἀπήνand said laughingly, "Go on and make our visitor beautiful, so that we may not find him terrifying and savage in his looks, when he is, in reality, most civilized."

When I inquired about the girl and asked who she was, he replied, "Have you not heard of the wise and far-famed Eumetis? Really, though, that is only her father's name for her, and most people call her Cleobulina after her father."

"I am sure," said Neiloxenus, "that when you speak so highly of the maiden you must have reference to the eleverness and skill that she shows in her riddles; for it is a fact that some of her conundrums have even found their way to Egypt."

"No indeed," said Thales, "for these she uses like dice as a means of occasional amusement, and risks an encounter with all comers. But she is also possessed of wonderful sense, a statesman's mind, and an amiable character, and she has influence with her father so that his government of the citizens has become milder and more popular."

"Yes," said Neiloxenus, "that must be apparent to anybody who observes her simplicity and lack of affectation. But what is the reason for her loving attentions to Anacharsis?"

"Because," replied Thales, "he is a man of sound sense and great learning, and he has generously and readily imparted to her the system of diet and purging which the Scythians employ in treating their sick. And I venture to think that at this very moment, while she is bestowing this affectionate attention on the man, she is gaining some knowledge through further conversation with him."

We were already near the dining-room when

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

τησεν 'Αλεξίδημος ό Μιλήσιος (ην δε Θρασυβούλου τοῦ τυράννου νόθος) καὶ ἐξήει τεταραγ-Γ μένος καὶ σὺν ὀργῃ τινι πρὸς αὐτὸν οὐδεν ἡμῖν γε σαφες διαλεγόμενος. ὡς δε τὸν Θαλην είδε, μικρὸν ἀνενεγκών καὶ καταστάς '' οἶαν ΰβριν,'' εἶπεν, '' εἰς ἡμᾶς Περίανδρος ὕβρικεν, ἐκπλεῦσαι μεν οὐκ ἐάσας ὡρμημένον ἀλλὰ προσμεῖναι δεηθεἰς τὸ δεῖπνον, ἐλθόντι δε νέμων κλισίαν ἄτιμον, Αἰολεῖς δε καὶ νησιώτας (καὶ τίνας γὰρ οὐχί;) Θρασυβούλου προτιμῶν· Θρασύβουλον γὰρ ἐν ἐμοὶ τὸν πέμψαντα προπηλακίσαι βουλόμενος καὶ καταβαλεῖν ὡς δὴ περιορῶν δῆλός ἐστιν.'' βαλεῖν ὡς δὴ περιορῶν δῆλός ἐστιν.''

149 " Εἶτ'," ἔφη, " σὐ δέδιας μὴ καθάπερ Αἰγύπτιοι τοὺς ἀστέρας ὑψώματα καὶ ταπεινώματα λαμβάνοντας ἐν τοῖς τόποις οῦς διεξίασι γίγνεσθαι βελτίονας ἢ χείρονας ἑαυτῶν λέγουσιν, οὕτως ἡ περὶ σὲ διὰ τὸν τόπον ἀμαύρωσις ἢ ταπείνωσις γένηται; καὶ τοῦ Λάκωνος ἔσῃ φαυλότερος, ὅς ἐν χορῷ τινι κατασταθεὶς εἰς τὴν ἐσχάτην χώραν ὑπὸ τοῦ ἄρχοντος ' εῦ γ', εἶπεν, ' ἐξεῦρες, ὡς καὶ αῦτα¹ ἔντιμος γένηται.' οὐ καταλαβόντας,'' ἐφη, " τόπον μετὰ τίνας κατακείμεθα δεῖ ζητεῖν, μᾶλλον δ' ὅπως εὐάρμοστοι τοῖς συγκατακειμένοις ὅμεν, ἀρχὴν καὶ λαβὴν φιλίας εὐθὺς ἐν αὐτοῖς ζητοῦντες,^{*}
Βμᾶλλον δ' ἔχοντες τὸ μὴ δυσκολαίνειν ἀλλ' ἐπαινεῖν

¹ αῦτα Wilamowitz-Moellendorff and F.C.B. independently: αὐτά.

² ζητοῦντες Reiske: ζηλοῦντες or δηλοῦντες.

^a A remark to like effect is assigned to Agesilaus in Moralia, 208 D, and to Damonidas in Moralia, 219 E. The idea is also credited to Aristippus by Diogenes Laertius, ii. 73.

DINNER OF THE SEVEN WISE MEN, 148-149

Alexidemus of Miletus met us. He was a son of the despot Thrasybulus, but born out of wedlock. He was coming out in a state of great agitation, angrily talking to himself, but saying nothing that was intelligible to us. When he saw Thales he recovered himself a little, stopped, and exclaimed, "What an insult! To think that Periander should behave so toward us! Why, he simply would not hear of my going away when I was bent on going, but begged me to stay over for the dinner; and then when I came he assigned to me an ignominious place, setting Aeolians, and men from the islands, and what not, above Thrasybulus. For it is plain that in my person he wishes to offer insult to Thrasybulus, who delegated me to come, and to put him low down to show that he purposely ignores him." "So then," said Thales, " as the Egyptians say of the stars, when they gain or lose altitude in their courses, that they are growing better or worse than they were before, do you fear that the obscuration and degradation affecting you because of your place at table will be brought about in a similar way? And you will be contemptible when compared with the Spartan a who in a chorus was put by the director in the very last place, whereupon he exclaimed, 'Good! You have found out how this may be made a place of honour.' When we have taken our places," continued Thales, " we ought not to try to discover who has been placed above us, but rather how we may be thoroughly agreeable to those placed with us, by trying at once to discover in them something that may serve to initiate and keep up friendship, and, better yet, by harbouring no discontent but an open satisfaction in being placed next to such persons as

(149) κλισίας δυσχεραίνων δυσχεραίνει τῷ συγκλίτῃ μάλλον ἢ τῷ κεκληκότι, καὶ πρὸς ἀμφοτέρους ἀπεχθάνεται."

"Λόγος," ἔφη, " ταῦτ' ἄλλως ἐστίν " ὁ ᾿Αλεξίδημος, " ἔργῳ δὲ καὶ τοὺς σοφοὺς ὑμᾶς ὅρῶ τὸ τιμᾶσθαι διώκοντας," καὶ ἅμα παραμειψάμενος ἡμᾶς ἀπῆλθε.

Καὶ ὁ Θαλῆς πρὸς ἡμᾶς τὴν ἀτοπίαν τοῦ ἀνθρώπου θαυμάζοντας, '' ἔμπληκτος,'' ἔφη, '' καὶ ἀλλόκοτος φύσει, ἐπεὶ καὶ μειράκιον ῶν ἔτι, μύρου σπουδαίου Θρασυβούλῷ κομισθέντος, εἰς ψυκτῆρα C κατεράσας μέγαν καὶ προσεγχέας ἄκρατον ἐξέπιεν, ἔχθραν ἀντὶ φιλίας Θρασυβούλῷ διαπεπραγμένος.''

Έκ τούτου περιελθών ὑπηρέτης " κελεύει σε Περίανδρος," ἕφη, " καὶ Θαλῆν παραλαβόντα τοῦτον ἐπισκέψασθαι τὸ κεκομισμένον ἀρτίως αὐτῷ πότερον ἄλλως γέγονεν ἤ τι σημεῖόν ἐστι καὶ τέρας· αὐτὸς μὲν γὰρ ἔοικε τεταράχθαι σφόδρα, μίασμα καὶ κηλῖδα τῆς θυσίας ἡγούμενος." ἅμα δ' ἀπῆγεν ἡμᾶς εἴς τι οἴκημα τῶν περὶ τὸν κῆπον. ἐνταῦθα νεανίσκος ὡς ἐφαίνετο νομευτικός, οὕπω γενειῶν ἄλλως τε τὸ είδος οὐκ ἀγεννής, ἀναπτύξας τινὰ διφθέραν ἔδειξεν ἡμῖν βρέφος ὡς ἔφη γεγονὸς ἐξ ὅππου, τὰ μὲν ἄνω μέχρι τοῦ τραχήλου καὶ τῶν D χειρῶν ἀνθρωπόμορφον, τὰ λοιπὰ δ' ἔχον ὅππου, τῆ δὲ φωνῆ καθάπερ τὰ νεογνὰ παιδάρια κλαυθμυριζόμενον. ὁ μὲν οῦν Νειλόξενος, " ᾿Αλεξίκακε" these. For, in every case, a man that objects to his place at table is objecting to his neighbour rather than to his host, and he makes himself hateful to both."

"All this," said Alexidemus, " is merely talk that means nothing. As a matter of fact, I observe that all you wise men too make it your aim in life to have honour shown you"; and with that he passed by us and departed.

Thales, in answer to our look of astonishment at the man's extraordinary conduct, said, "A crazy fellow, and uncouth by nature; as an instance, when he was still a boy, some especially fine perfume was brought to Thrasybulus, and this the youngster emptied into a big wine-cooler, and on top of it poured strong wine, and drank it off, thus creating enmity instead of friendship for Thrasybulus."

Just then a servant made his way to us and said, "Periander bids you, and Thales too, to take your friend here with you and inspect something which has just now been brought to him, to determine whether its birth is of no import whatever, or whether it is a sign and portent; at any rate, he himself seemed to be greatly agitated, feeling that it was a pollution and blot upon his solemn festival." With these words he conducted us to one of the rooms off the garden. Here a youth, a herdsman apparently, beardless as yet, and not bad-looking withal, unfolded a piece of leather, and showed us a newly-born creature which he asserted was the offspring of a mare. Its upper parts as far as the neck and arms were of human form, and the sound of its crying was just like that of newly-born infants, but the rest of its body was that of a horse. Neiloxenus merely exclaimed, "God save us," and turned his face away :

(149) εἰπών, ἀπεστράφη τὴν ὄψιν, ὅ δὲ Θαλῆς προσέβλεπε τῷ νεανίσκῷ πολὺν χρόνον, εἶτα μειδιάσας (εἰώθει δ' ἀεἰ παίζειν πρὸς ἐμὲ περὶ τῆς τέχνης)
" ἦ που τὸν καθαρμόν, ὡ Διόκλεις," ἔφη, " κινεῖν διανοῆ καὶ παρέχειν πράγματα τοῖς ἀποτροπαίοις, ὡς τινος δεινοῦ καὶ μεγάλου συμβάντος;"

ώς τινος δεινοῦ καὶ μεγάλου συμβάντος; " "Τί δ'," εἶπον, " οὐ μέλλω; στάσεως γάρ, ῶ Θαλῆ, καὶ διαφορᾶς τὸ σημεῖόν ἐστι, καὶ δέδια μὴ μέχρι γάμου καὶ γενεᾶς ἐξίκηται, πρὶν ἢ τὸ πρῶτον ἐξιλάσασθαι μήνιμα, τῆς θεοῦ δεύτερον ὡς ὁρậς προφαινούσης."

Ε Πρός τοῦτο μήδὲν ἀποκρινάμενος ὁ Θαλῆς ἀλλὰ γελῶν ἀπηλλάττετο. καὶ τοῦ Περιάνδρου πρὸς τὰς θύρας ἀπαντήσαντος ἡμῦν καὶ διαπυθομένου περὶ ῶν εἴδομεν, ἀφεἰς ὁ Θαλῆς με καὶ λαβόμενος τῆς ἐκείνου χειρὸς ἔφη, '' ἅ μὲν Διοκλῆς κελεύει δράσεις καθ' ἡσυχίαν· ἐγὼ δέ σοι παραινῶ νέοις οὕτω μὴ χρῆσθαι νομεῦσιν ἴππων, ἢ διδόναι γυναῖκας αὐτοῦς.''

*Εδοξε μέν οῦν μοι τῶν λόγων ἀκούσας ὁ Περίανδρος ήσθῆναι σφόδρα·καὶ γὰρ ἐξεγέλασε καὶ τὸν Θαλῆν περιβαλῶν κατησπάσατο. κἀκεῖνος 'οἶμαι δ','' εἶπεν, ''ῶ Διόκλεις, καὶ πέρας ἔσχε¹ τὸ F σημεῖον· ὁρậς γὰρ ἡλίκον κακὸν γέγονεν ἡμῖν, Αλεξιδήμου συνδειπνείν μή θελήσαντος.

4. Ἐπεὶ δ' εἰσήλθομεν, ἤδη μείζον ὁ Θαλῆς φθεγξάμενος '΄ ποῦ δ' '' εἶπεν '΄ ὁ ἀνὴρ κατακλινάμενος ἐδυσχέρανεν; '' ἀποδειχθείσης δὲ τῆς χώρας περιελθών ἐκεῖ κατέκλινεν ἑαυτὸν καὶ ἡμᾶς '΄ ἀλλὰ

¹ έσχε F.C.B.: έχειν Reiske and Hatzidakis: είχε or έχει.

^a Cf. Phaedrus, Fabulae, iii. 3.

DINNER OF THE SEVEN WISE MEN, 149

but Thales fixed his gaze upon the youth for a long time, and then, with a smile (for he was in the habit of joking with me about my profession), said, "No doubt, Diocles, you are minded to set in operation your ritual of atonement, and to trouble the gods who deliver us from evil, since you must feel that something terrible and momentous has befallen?"

"Why not?" said I, "since this thing is a sign of strife and discord, Thales, and I fear that it may go so far as to affect even marriage and offspring, because, even before we have made full atonement for the first fault that moved the goddess to wrath, she plainly shows us, as you see, that there is a second."

To this Thales made no answer, but withdrew, laughing all the while. Periander met us at the door, and inquired about what we had seen; whereupon Thales left me and took his hand, saying, "Whatever Diocles bids you do you will carry out at your own convenience, but my recommendation to you is that you should not employ such young men as keepers of horses, or else that you should provide wives for them."^a

It seemed to me that Periander, on hearing his words, was mightily pleased, for he burst out laughing and embraced Thales most affectionately. "I think, Diocles," said Thales, "that the sign has already had its fulfilment, for you see what a bad thing has happened to us in that Alexidemus would not dine with us!"

4. When we had entered the dining-room, Thales, in a louder voice than usual, said, "Where is the place at table to which the man objected?" And when its position was pointed out to him he made his way to it, and placed himself and us there, at the same καν έπριάμην " είπών " Άρδάλω κοινωνείν μιας τραπέζης." ήν δὲ Τροιζήνιος ὁ "Αρδαλος, αὐλωδὸς 150 καὶ ἱερεὺς τῶν ᾿Αρδαλείων Μουσῶν, ἅς ὁ παλαιὸς "Αρδαλος ίδρύσατο ό Τροιζήνιος.

Ο δ' Αίσωπος (ἐτύγχανε γὰρ ὑπὸ Κροίσου νεωστί πρός τε Περίανδρον αμα και πρός τον θεόν είς Δελφούς απεσταλμένος, και παρην επι δίφρου τινός χαμαιζήλου παρά τον Σόλωνα καθήμενος άνω κατακείμενον) "ήμίονος δ'," έφη, "Λυδός έν ποταμώ της όψεως έαυτοῦ κατιδών εἰκόνα καὶ θαυμάσας το κάλλος και το μέγεθος του σώματος ώρμησε θείν ώσπερ ίππος άναχαιτίσας. είτα μέντοι συμφρονήσας ώς όνου υίος είη, κατέπαυσε Β ταχύ τόν δρόμον και άφηκε το φρύαγμα και τόν θυμόν.'

 Ο δέ Χίλων λακωνίσας τῆ φωνῆ, "καὶ τύνη," ἔφη, "βραδὺς καὶ τρέχεις τὸν ἡμίονον."
 Ἐκ τούτου παρῆλθε μέν ἡ Μέλισσα καὶ κατ-εκλίθη παρὰ τὸν Περίανδρον, ἡ δ' Εὕμητις ἐκάθισε παρά το δείπνον. και ό Θαλής έμε προσαγορεύσας έπάνω τοῦ Βίαντος κατακείμενον '' τί οὐκ ἔφρασας,'' είπεν, " & Διόκλεις, Βίαντι τον Ναυκρατίτην ξένον ηκοντα μετὰ προβλημάτων βασιλικών αὖθις ἐπ' αὐτόν, ὅπως νήφων καὶ προσέχων ἑαυτῷ τὸν λόγον δέχηται; "

Και ό Βίας " άλλ' οῦτος μέν," ἔψη, " πάλαι Ο δεδίττεται ταῦτα παρακελευόμενος, έγω δέ τον Διόνυσον οίδα τά τ' άλλα δεινόν όντα και Λύσιον άπό' σοφίας προσαγορευόμενον, ωστ' ού δέδια τοῦ

¹ $\dot{a}\pi\dot{o}$ Hercher: $\dot{v}\pi\dot{o}$.

^a Cf. Pausanias, ii. 31. 3.

DINNER OF THE SEVEN WISE MEN, 149-150

time remarking, "Why, I would have given money to share the same table with Ardalus." This Ardalus was from Troezene, a flute-player and a priest of the Ardalian Muses, whose worship his forefather, Ardalus of Troezene, had established.^a Aesop too, as it happened, having been sent by Croesus only a short time before on a mission both to Periander and to the god at Delphi, was present at the dinner, seated on a low chair next to Solon, who occupied the place just above. Aesop said b: "A Lydian mule caught sight of his own image reflected in a river, and, suddenly struck with admiration at the beauty and great size of his body, tossed his mane and started to run like a horse, but then, recalling that his sire was an ass, he soon stopped his running, and gave up his pride and animation."

Whereupon Chilon, dropping into Laconian dialect, remarked, "It's slow ye are, and ye're running on like the mule."

Just then Melissa came in and took her place on the couch next to Periander, but Eumetis sat during the dinner. Then Thales, addressing himself to me (my place was just above that of Bias), said, "Diocles, why do you not tell Bias at once that our guest from Naucratis has again come to him with a king's problems, so that he may hear them stated while he is sober and circumspect?"

"Hear that!" said Bias; "this man has been trying for a long time to terrify me with such adjurations; but I know that Dionysus, besides being elever in other ways, is called the 'solver' by virtue of wisdom, so I have no fears that if I become

• Cf. No. 140 in the collection of fables that passes under the name of Aesop.

(150) θεοῦ μεστὸς γενόμενος μὴ ἀθαρσέστερον ἀγωνίσωμαι."

Τοιαῦτα μἐν ἐκεῖνοι πρὸς ἀλλήλους ἄμα δειπνοῦντες ἔπαιζον· ἐμοὶ δὲ τὸ δεῖπνον εὐτελέστερον ὁρῶντι τοῦ συνήθους ἐννοεῖν ἐπήει πρὸς ἐμαυτὸν ὡς σοφῶν κἀγαθῶν ἀνδρῶν ὑποδοχὴ καὶ κλῆσις οὐδεμίαν προστίθησι δαπάνην ἀλλὰ συστέλλει μᾶλλον, ἀφαιροῦσα περιεργίας ὅψων καὶ μύρα ξενικὰ καὶ πέμματα καὶ πολυτελῶν οἴνων διαχύσεις, οἶς D καθ' ἡμέραν χρώμενος ἐπιεικῶς ὁ Περίανδρος ἐν τυραννίδι καὶ πλούτῷ καὶ πράγμασι, τότε πρὸς τοὺς ἄνδρας ἐκαλλωπίζετο λιτότητι καὶ σωφροσύνῃ δαπάνης. οὐ γὰρ μόνον τῶν ἄλλων ἀλλὰ καὶ τῆς γυναικὸς ἀφελῶν καὶ ἀποκρύψας τὸν συνήθη κόσμον ἐπεδείκνυε σὺν εὐτελεία καὶ μετριότητι κεκοσμημένην.

5. Ἐπεὶ δ᾽ ἐπήρθησαν αἱ τράπεζαι καὶ στεφάνων παρὰ τῆς Μελίσσης διαδοθέντων ἡμεῖς μὲν ἐσπείσαμεν ἡ δ᾽ αὐλητρὶς ἐπιφθεγξαμένη μικρὰ ταῖς σπονδαῖς ἐκ μέσου μετέστη, προσαγορεύσας τὸν ᾿Ανάχαρσιν ὅ ᾿Αρδαλος ἠρώτησεν εἰ παρὰ Σκύθαις αὐλητρίδες εἰσίν.

E 'O 'δ' ἐκ τοῦ προστυχόντος '' οὐδ' ἄμπελοι '' εἶπε.

Τοῦ δ' ᾿Αρδάλου πάλιν εἰπόντος '' ἀλλὰ θεοί γε Σκύθαις εἰσί,'' '' πάνυ μεν οὖν,'' ἔφη, '' γλώσσης ἀνθρωπίνης συνιέντες, οὐχ ὥσπερ δ' οἱ Έλληνες οἰόμενοι Σκυθῶν διαλέγεσθαι βέλτιον ὅμως τοὺς θεοὺς ὀστέων καὶ ξύλων ἥδιον ἀκροᾶσθαι νομίζουσιν.''

'Ο δ' Αἴσωπος, " εἴ γ'," εἶπεν, " εἰδείης, ŵ

^a Dionysus was the god of wine.

DINNER OF THE SEVEN WISE MEN, 150

filled with his spirit a I shall compete with less courage."

In such repartee as this did those men indulge while dining; but to me, as I was noticing that the dinner was plainer than usual, there came the thought that the entertainment and invitation of wise and good men involves no expense, but rather curtails expense, since it does away with over-elaborate viands and imported perfumes and sweetmeats and the serving of costly wines, all of which were in fairly free use every day with Periander in his royal position and wealth and circumstance. But on this occasion he tried to make an impression on the men by simplicity and restraint in expenditure. Nor was this limited to these other matters, but he also made his wife put aside and out of sight her usual elaborate attire, and present herself inexpensively and modestly attired.

5. After the tables had been cleared away, and garlands distributed by Melissa, and we had poured libations, and the flute-girl, after playing a brief accompaniment for our libations, had withdrawn, then Ardalus, addressing Anacharsis, inquired if there were flute-girls among the Scythians.

He answered on the spur of the moment, " No, nor grape-vines either."

When Ardalus again said, "But the Scythians must have gods," he replied, " Certainly, they have gods who understand the language of men; they are not like the Greeks, who, although they think they converse better than the Scythians, yet believe that the gods have more pleasure in listening to the sounds produced by bits of bone and wood."

Thereupon Aesop said, " I would have you know, VOL. II N 371 ξένε, τοὺς νῦν αὐλοποιοὺς ὡς προέμενοι τὰ νεβρεῖα, χρώμενοι τοῖς ὀνείοις, βέλτιον ἠχεῖν λέγουσιν. διὸ καὶ Κλεοβουλίνη¹ πρὸς τὸν Φρύγιον αὐλὸν ἠνίξατο.³

F κνήμῃ νεκρὸς ὄνος με³ κερασφόρῷ οὖας ἔκρουσεν,⁴ ὥστε θαυμάζειν τὸν ὄνον εἰ παχύτατος καὶ ἀμουσότατος ῶν τἄλλα λεπτότατον καὶ μουσικώτατον ὀστέον παρέχεται.''

Καὶ ὁ Νειλόξενος '' ἀμέλει ταῦτ','' ἔφη, '' καὶ ἡμῖν τοῖς Ναυκρατίταις ἐγκαλοῦσι Βουσιρῖται· χρώμεθα γὰρ ήδη τοῖς ὀνείοις εἰς τὸν αὐλόν. ἐκείνοις δὲ καὶ σάλπιγγος ἀκούειν ἀθέμιτον, ὡς ὄνῷ φθεγγομένης ὅμοιον. ὅνον δ' ὑπ' Αἰγυπτίων ἴστε δήπου διὰ Τυφῶνα προπηλακιζόμενον.''

6. Γενομένης δε σιωπής ό Περίανδρος όρῶν βουλόμενον μεν ὀκνοῦντα δ' ἄρξασθαι τοῦ λόγου 151 τὸν Νειλόξενον, '' ἐγώ τοι,'' εἶπεν, '' ὦ ἄνδρες ἐπαινῶ καὶ πόλεις καὶ ἄρχοντας, ὅσοι ξένοις πρῶτον εἶτα πολίταις χρηματίζουσι· καὶ νῦν δοκεῖ μοι τοὺς μεν ἡμετέρους λόγους οἶον ἐπιχωρίους καὶ συνήθεις βραχὺν χρόνον ἐπισχεῖν, πρόσοδον δ' ὦσπερ ἐν ἐκκλησία δοῦναι τοῦς Λἰγυπτίοις ἐκείνοις καὶ βασιλικοῖς, οῦς ὁ βέλτιστος Κλεοβουλίνη Wyttenbach: κλεόβουλον ή. ήνίξατο Wyttenbach: ήξατο οτ ήρξατο.

 νεκρός δνος με Bernardakis: νεκρογόνοσαιμε. έκρουσεν Hermann: έκτικρουσε.

^a Bergk, Poet. Lyr. Graec. ii. p. 440, Cleobulina, No. 3. The restoration of Bernardakis here adopted is found in the editio minor.

^b The Egyptian god Set presumably, a malignant deity, who was sometimes represented with features of an ass. 372 my friend, that the modern flute-makers have given up the use of bones from fawns, and use bones from asses, asserting that the latter have a better sound. This fact underlies the riddle ^a which Cleobulina made in regard to the Phrygian flute :

DINNER OF THE SEVEN WISE MEN, 150-151

Full on my ear with a horn-bearing shin did a dead donkey smite me.

So we may well be astonished that the ass, which otherwise is most gross and unmelodious, yet provides us with a bone which is most fine and melodious." "That, without question," said Neiloxenus, " is "That, without question," said Neiloxenus, "is the reason for the complaint which the people of Busiris make against us of Naucratis; for we are already using asses' bones for our flutes. But for them even to hear a trumpet is a sin, because they think it sounds like the bray of an ass; and you know, of course, that an ass is treated with contumely by the Egyptians on account of Typhon.^b"

6. There was a pause in the conversation, and Periander, noticing that Neiloxenus wanted to begin his remarks, but was hesitating, said, "I am inclined to commend both states and rulers that take up the business of strangers first and of their own citizens afterwards; and now it seems to me that we should for a few minutes put a check on our own words, which are, as it were, in their own land where they are well known, and grant audience, as in a legislative sitting, to the royal communication from Egypt, which our excellent friend Neiloxenus has Cf., for example, O. Gruppe, Grischische Mythologis und Religionsgeschichte, pp. 102 and 409. Cf. also Plutarch, Moralia, 362 F, where the present statements are slightly expanded. (151) ήκει κομίζων Νειλόξενος Βίαντι, Βίας δὲ βούλεται κοινή σκέψασθαι μεθ' ήμῶν." Καὶ ὁ Βίας, "ποῦ γὰρ ἢ μετὰ τίνων," ἔφη, Καὶ ὁ Bías, '' ποῦ γὰρ ἢ μετὰ τίνων,'' ἔφη, '' προθυμότερον ἄν τις ἀποκινδυνεύσειεν, εἰ δεῖ, πρὸς τοιαύτας ἀποκρίσεις, ἄλλως τε τοῦ βασιλέως Β κελεύσαντος ἄρξασθαι μὲν ἀπ' ἐμοῦ, περιελθεῖν δ' εἰς ἅπαντας ὑμᾶς τὸν λόγον; ''

Ουτω δή παρεδίδου μεν αὐτῷ τὸ γραμματεῖον ὅ Νειλόξενος, ὅ δ' αὐτὸν ἐκέλευσε λύσαντα παντάπασιν ἐς μέσον ἀναγνῶναι. διάνοιαν δὲ τοιαύτην εἶχε τὰ γεγραμμένα.

" Βασιλεύς Αίγυπτίων "Αμασις λέγει Βίαντι σοφωτάτω Ελλήνων.

" Βασιλεύς Αἰθιόπων ἔχει πρός ἐμὲ σοφίας ἅμιλλαν. ήττώμενος δὲ τοῖς ἄλλοις ἐπὶ πᾶσι συντέθεικεν ἄτοπον ἐπίταγμα καὶ δεινόν, ἐκπιεῖν με κελεύων τὴν θάλατταν. ἔστι δὲ λύσαντι μὲν ἔχειν κώμας τε πολλὰς καὶ πόλεις τῶν ἐκείνου, C μὴ λύσαντι δ' ἄστεων τῶν περὶ Ἐλεφαντίνην ἀποστῆναι. σκεψάμενος οῦν εὐθὺς ἀπόπεμπε Νειλόξενον. ἁ δὲ δεῦ φίλοις σοῖς ἢ πολίταις γενέσθαι παρ' ἡμῶν οὐ τὰμὰ κωλύσει."

Τούτων ἀναγνωσθέντων οὐ πολὺν χρόνον ἐπισχών ὁ Bías, ἀλλὰ μικρὰ μὲν αὐτὸς πρὸς αὐτῷ γενόμενος μικρὰ δὲ τῷ Κλεοβούλῳ προσομιλήσας ἐγγὺς κατακειμένῳ '' τί λέγεις,'' εἶπεν, '' ὡ Ναυκρατῖτα; βασιλεύων ἀνθρώπων τοσούτων "Αμασις, κεκτημένος δὲ χώραν ἀρίστην τοσαύτην ἐθελήσει ἐπὶ κώμαις ἀδόξοις καὶ λυπραῖς ἐκπιεῖν θάλατταν; '' come to bring to Bias, and which Bias wishes to consider with all of us together."

"Indeed," said Bias, " in what place or company would a man more readily take the risk, if he must, of answering such questions, especially since the king has given instructions to begin with me, and after that the matter is to come round to all the rest of you?"

As he said this Neiloxenus offered him the packet, but Bias bade him by all means to open it and read it aloud. The contents of the letter were to this effect :

"Amasis, king of the Egyptians, to Bias, wisest of the Greeks.

"The king of the Ethiopians is engaged in a contest in wisdom against me. Repeatedly vanquished in all else, he has crowned his efforts by framing an extraordinary and awful demand, bidding me to drink up the ocean. My reward, if I find a solution, is to have many villages and cities of his, and if I do not, I am to withdraw from the towns lying about Elephantine. I beg therefore that you will consider the question, and send back Neiloxenus without delay. And whatever is right for your friends or citizens to receive from us shall meet with no let or hindrance on my part."

After this had been read Bias did not wait long, but, after a few minutes of abstraction and a few words with Cleobulus, whose place was near his, he said, "What is this, my friend from Naucratis? Do you mean to say that Amasis, who is king of so many people and possessed of such an excellent great country, will be willing, for the consideration of some insignificant and miserable villages, to drink up the ocean?"

- (151) Καὶ ὁ Νειλόξενος γελάσας '' ὡς θελήσαντος,'' εἶπεν, '' ὡ Βία, σκόπει τὸ δυνατόν.''
 - D "Φραζέτω τοίνυν," ἔφη, "τῷ Αἰθίοπι τοὺς ἐμβάλλοντας εἰς τὰ πελάγη ποταμοὺς ἐπισχεῖν, ἕως αὐτὸς ἐκπίνει τὴν νῦν οῦσαν θάλατταν περὶ ταύτης γὰρ τὸ ἐπίταγμα γέγονεν, οὐ τῆς ὕστερον ἐσομένης."

'Ως δε ταῦτ' εἶπεν ὁ Bías, ὁ μεν Νειλόξενος ὑφ' ἡδονῆς ὥρμησε περιβαλεῖν¹ τον Βίαντα καὶ φιλῆσαι· τῶν δ' ἄλλων ἐπαινεσάντων καὶ ἀποδεξαμένων γελάσας ὁ Χίλων, '' ῶ Ναυκρατῖτα,'' ἐφη, '' ξένε, πριν ἀπολέσθαι τὴν θάλατταν ἐκποθεῖσαν ἀπάγγελλε πλεύσας ᾿Αμάσιδι μὴ ζητεῖν ὅπως ἅλμην ἀναλώσει τοσαύτην, ἀλλὰ μᾶλλον ὅπως πότιμον καὶ γλυκεῖαν τοῖς ὑπηκόοις τὴν

Ε βασιλείαν παρέξει περὶ ταῦτα γὰρ δεινότατος Bías καὶ διδάσκαλος τούτων ἄριστος, ἂ μαθὼν "Αμασις οὐδὲν ἔτι τοῦ χρυσοῦ δεήσεται ποδανιπτῆρος ἐπὶ τοὺς Αἰγυπτίους, ἀλλὰ θεραπεύσουσι πάντες αὐτὸν καὶ ἀγαπήσουσι χρηστὸν ὅντα, κἂν μυριάκις ἢ νῦν ἀναφανῇ δυσγενέστερος.²"

"Kai μήν," ἔφη ὁ Περίανδρος, " ἄξιόν γε τοιαύτας ἀπαρχὰς τῷ βασιλεῖ συνεισενεγκεῖν ἅπαντας ' ἀνδρακάς,' ὥσπερ ἔφησεν Ομηρος ἐκείνῳ τε γὰρ ἂν γένοιτο πλείονος ἀξία τῆς ἐμπορίας ἡ παρενθήκη, καὶ ἡμῖν ἀντὶ πάντων ὠφέλιμος."

Εἰπόντος οὖν τοῦ Χίλωνος ὡς Σόλων κατ ¹ περιβαλεῖν Hercher: περιβάλλειν.
 ² δυσγενέστερος Reiske: δυσγενέστατος οι δυσμενέστερος.

^a The story of Amasis's low birth and his rise to power is told by Herodotus, ii. 172. ^b Odyssey, xiii. 14. 376 Neiloxenus answered with a laugh, "Assume that he is willing, and consider what is possible for him to do."

"Well, then," said Bias, "let him tell the Ethiopian to stop the rivers which are now emptying into the ocean depths, while he himself is engaged in drinking up the ocean that now is; for this is the ocean with which the demand is concerned, and not the one which is to be."

As soon as Bias had said these words, Neiloxenus, for very joy, hastened to embrace and kiss him. The rest of the company also commended the answer, and expressed their satisfaction with it, and then Chilon said with a laugh, " My friend, before the ocean disappears entirely in consequence of being drunk up, I beg that you sail back to your home in Naucratis and take word to Amasis not to be trying to find out how to make way with so much bitter brine, but rather how to render his government potable and sweet to his subjects; for in these matters Bias is most adept and a most competent instructor, and if Amasis will only learn them from him, he will have no further need of his golden foot-tub to impress the Egyptians,^a but they will all show regard and affection for him if he is good, even though he be shown to be in his birth ten thousand times more lowly than at present."

"Yes, indeed," said Periander, "it surely is right and proper that we all contribute an offering of this sort to the king, 'each man in his turn,' as Homer ^b has said. For to him these extra items would be more valuable than the burden of his mission, and as profitable for ourselves as anything could be."

7. Chilon thereupon said that it was only right that

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

F άρχεσθαι τοῦ λόγου δίκαιός ἐστιν, οὐ μόνον ὅτι πάντων προήκει καθ' ἡλικίαν καὶ τυγχάνει κατακείμενος πρῶτος, ἀλλ' ὅτι τὴν μεγίστην καὶ τελειοτάτην ἀρχὴν ἄρχει νόμους ᾿Αθηναίοις θέμενος, ὁ οὖν Νειλόζενος ἡσυχῆ πρὸς ἐμέ'' πολλά γ','' εἶπεν, '' ὡ Διόκλεις, πιστεύεται ψευδῶς, καὶ χαίρουσιν οἱ πολλοὶ λόγους ἀνεπιτηδείους περὶ σοφῶν ἀνδρῶν αὐτοί τε πλάττοντες καὶ δεχόμενοι παρ' ἑτέρων ἑτοίμως,¹ οἶα καὶ πρὸς ἡμῶς εἰς Αἴγυπτον ἀπηγγέλη περὶ Χίλωνος, ὡς ἄρα διαλύσαιτο τὴν πρὸς Σόλωνα φιλίαν καὶ 152 ξενίαν, ὅτι τοὺς νόμους ὁ Σόλων ἔφη μετακινητοὺς³ εἶναι."

Καὶ ἐγώ '' γελοῖος,'' ἔφην, '' ὁ λόγος· οὕτω γὰρ δεῖ³ πρῶτον ἀποποιεῖσθαι τὸν Λυκοῦργον αὐτοῖς νόμοις ὅλην μετακινήσαντα τὴν Λακεδαιμονίων πολιτείαν.''

Μικρόν οῦν ἐπισχών ὁ Σόλων '' ἐμοὶ μέν,'' ἔφη, '' δοκεῖ μάλιστ' ἂν ἔνδοξος γενέσθαι καὶ βασιλεὺς καὶ τύραννος, εἰ δημοκρατίαν ἐκ μοναρχίας κατασκευάσειε τοῖς πολίταις.''

' Δεύτερος δ' δ Βίας είπεν, '' εἰ πρῶτος' χρῷτο τοῖς νόμοις τῆς πατρίδος.''

'Επὶ τούτῷ δ' δ Θαλῆς ἔφησεν, εὐδαιμονίαν ἄρχοντος νομίζειν, εἰ τελευτήσειε γηράσας κατὰ φύσιν.

1 έτοίμως Wyttenbach : ἕτοιμοι.

- ² μή μετακινητούς Wyttenbach.
- 8 Sei] Eder Duebner.

⁴ πρωτος] πρωτος τρόποις Stobaeus, Florilegium, xlviii. 47 : hence άτρόποις Meineke.

^a The earlier Athenian laws, which Solon changed, as Lycurgus changed the laws of Sparta. Those who would 378

Solon should take the lead in speaking on this subject, not merely because he was most advanced in years and was occupying the place of honour, but because he held the greatest and most perfect position as a ruler by getting the Athenians to accept his laws. Thereupon Neiloxenus quietly remarked to me, "It is certain, Diocles, that a good many things come to be believed quite contrary to fact, and most people take delight in fabricating out of their own minds unwarranted tales about wise men, and in readily accepting such tales from others. Such, for instance, was the report, which was brought to us in Egypt, in regard to Chilon, to the effect that he had broken off his friendship and his hospitable relations with Solon because Solon asserted that laws are subject to revision." a

"The story is ridiculous," said I; "for in such case Chilon ought first to renounce Lycurgus and all his laws, for Lycurgus revised completely the Spartan constitution."

Solon then, after a moment's delay, said, "In my opinion either a king, or a despot, would best gain repute if out of a monarchy he should organize a democracy for his people."

Next Bias said, ²⁴ If he should be the very first to conform to his country's laws."

Following him Thales said that he accounted it happiness for a ruler to reach old age and die a natural death.

emend the passage would make it refer to Solon's own laws, but it should be remembered that Solon only desired that the Athenians should try out his laws for a certain length of time, and it is inconceivable that Solon with his great practical wisdom should not realize that his own laws might later need revision.

VOL. II

- (152) Τέταρτος 'Ανάχαρσις, '' εἰ μόνον' εἰη φρόνιμος.'' Πέμπτος δ' δ' Κλεόβουλος, '' εἰ μηδενὶ πιστεύοι τῶν συνόντων.''
 - Β [°]Εκτος δ' ό Πιττακός, "εἰ τοὺς ὑπηκόους ὅ ἄρχων παρασκευάσειε φοβεῖσθαι μὴ αὐτὸν ἀλλ' ὑπὲρ αὐτοῦ."

Μετὰ τοῦτον ὁ Χίλων ἔφη τὸν ἄρχοντα χρηναι μηδὲν φρονεῖν θνητόν, ἀλλὰ πάντ' ἀθάνατα."

'Ρηθέντων δε τούτων ήξιοῦμεν ήμεῖς καὶ αὐτὸν εἰπεῖν τι τὸν Περίανδρον. ὁ δ' οὐ μάλα φαιδρὸς ἀλλὰ συστήσας τὸ πρόσωπον '' ἐγὼ τοίνυν,'' ἔφη, '' προσαποφαίνομαι τὰς εἰρημένας γνώμας ἁπάσας σχεδὸν ἀφιστάναι⁴ τοῦ ἄρχειν τὸν νοῦν ἔχοντα.''

Καὶ ὁ Αἴσωπος οἶον ἐλεγκτικῶς '' ἔδει τοίνυν,'' ἔφη, '' τοῦτο καθ' ἑαυτοὺς περαίνειν καὶ μή, C συμβούλους φάσκοντας εἶναι καὶ φίλους, κατηγόρους γίγνεσθαι τῶν ἀρχόντων.''

'Αψάμενος οῦν αὐτοῦ τῆς κεφαλῆς ὁ Σόλων καὶ διαμειδιάσας εἶπεν, '' οὐκ ἂν δοκεῖ σοι μετριώτερον ἄρχοντα ποιεῖν καὶ τύραννον ἐπιεικέστερον ὁ πείθων ὡς ἄμεινον εἶη τὸ μὴ ἄρχειν ἢ τὸ ἄρχειν; ''

'' Τίς δ' αν,'' έφη, '' σοὶ τοῦτο πεισθείη μαλλον η τῷ θεῷ φράσαντι κατὰ τὸν πρὸς σὲ χρησμόν,

¹ μόνον F.C.B.: μόνος: μη μόνος Stobaeus, Florilegium, xlviii. 47: έμμόνως Tucker.

² δ' δ Bernardakis: δέ.

³ ὕστατος δ' ὁ Χείλων εἶπε κάλλιστον εἶναι βασιλέα τὸν μὴ μόνου τοῦ φοβερὸν εἶναι φροντίζοντα Stobaeus, Florilegium, xlviii. 47. This version and the omission of the article with many of 380

Fourth, Anacharsis said, "If only he have sound sense."

Fifth, Cleobulus, "If he trust none of his associates."

Sixth, Pittacus, " If the ruler should manage to make his subjects fear, not him, but for him." ^a Chilon followed by saying that a ruler's thoughts should never be the thoughts of a mortal, but of an immortal always.

When these sentiments had been expressed, we insisted that Periander himself should also say something. And he, not very cheerful, but with a hard set face, said, "Well, I may add my view, that the opinions expressed, taken as a whole, practically divorce any man possessed of sense from being a ruler."

Whereupon Aesop, as though taking us to task, said, "You ought, then, to have carried out this discussion by yourselves, and not, while professing to be counsellors and friends, to have made yourselves complainants against rulers."

Solon then, laying his hand on Aesop's head and smiling the while, said, "Don't you think that anyone could make a ruler more moderate and a despot more reasonable if he could persuade them that it is better not to rule than to rule?"

"Who," he replied, "would believe you in this matter in preference to the god who said, according to the oracle referring to you, • Plutarch cites a concrete case in his Life of Aratus, chap. xxv. (p. 1039 A).

the proper names suggests that editors may have relied too much on Stobaeus in altering this passage.

⁴ άφιστάναι] ἀφεστάναι most Mss.

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

(152)εύδαιμον πτολίεθρον ένδς κήρυκος άκοῦον'; "

Καὶ ὁ Σόλων '' ἀλλὰ μήν,'' ἔφη, '' καὶ νῦν ἐνὸς D'Αθηναΐοι κήρυκος ἀκροῶνται καὶ ἄρχοντος τοῦ νόμου, δημοκρατίαν ἔχοντες. σὺ δὲ δεινὸς εἰ κοράκων έπαΐειν και κολοιών, της δ' ίσου? φωνης ούκ ἀκριβῶς ἐξακούεις, ἀλλὰ πόλιν μὲν οἴει κατὰ τὸν θεὸν ἄριστα πράττειν τὴν ένὸς ἀκούουσαν, συμποσίου δ' ἀρετὴν νομίζεις τὸ πάντας δια-λέγεσθαι καὶ περὶ πάντων." " Σừ γάρ," ἔφη ὁ Αἴσωπος, " οὖπω γέγραφας ο τι δμοιον ήν³, οίκέτας μή μεθύειν, ώς έγραψας Αθήνησιν οἰκέτας μη έραν μηδε ξηραλοιφείν."

Γελάσαντος οῦν τοῦ Σόλωνος Κλεόδωρος δ ἰατρός '' ἀλλ' ὅμοιον,'' ἔφη, '' τὸ ξηραλοιφεῖν τῷ λαλεῖν ἐν οἴνῷ βρεχόμενον· ἦδυστον γάρ ἐστι.''

Ε Καί ό Χίλων ύπολαβών έφη "διά τοῦτό τοι μαλλον άφεκτέον αὐτοῦ."

Πάλιν δ' ό Αίσωπος, "καὶ μήν," ἔφη, "Θαλῆς έδοξεν είπειν ὅτι τάχιστα γηράσαι.

8. Γελάσας οῦν ὁ Περίανδρος, '' ἔχομεν,'' είπεν,
Υ΄ Αἴσωπε, τὴν δίκην προσηκόντως ἄτε, ⁶ πριν ἢ τοὺς 'Αμάσιδος ούς⁶ προειλόμεθα πάντας είσαγαγείν λόγους, είς έτέρους έμπεσόντες. ὄρα δή, Νειλόξενε,

1 άκοῦον Xylander: ἀκούειν.

² δ' ίσου F.C.B., cf. Life of Eumenes, chap. xiv. ad init. : δέ θεοῦ Reiske: δ' Αίδοῦς Tucker: δέ σοῦ.

- 3 δ τι δμοιον ήν F.C.B. : δ τι δμοιον.
- 4 γηράσαι F.C.B.: γηράσει.
 - 5 are F.C.B. : öri.

⁶ ods in one Ms. only.

^a Aesop, now received as an equal among people of the highest standing, had been a slave in his earlier years, and does not hesitate to joke about the fact.

Blessed the city that hears the command of one herald only?"

"Yet it is a fact," said Solon, "that even now the Athenians hearken to one herald and ruler only, and that one, the law, under their democratic constitution. You are clever in understanding ravens and jackdaws, but you have no true ear for the voice of equality, but think that, according to the god, the city which hearkens to one man fares the best, whereas in a social gathering you regard it as a virtue to have everybody talk and on every sort of subject."

"Yes," said Aesop, "that is because you have not yet written a law that slaves ^a shall not get drunk, which would be a similar law to fit this case, as at Athens you wrote a law that slaves shall not have any love-affair and shall not rub down like athletes."^b

Solon laughed at this and Cleodorus the physician said, "Nevertheless rubbing down dry is similar to talking when soaked with wine in that it is most agreeable."

And Chilon, interrupting, said, "The more reason then for refraining from it."

"I could swear," said Aesop, speaking again, "that Thales appeared to bid a man to grow old as fast as possible." ^o

8. Periander at this burst out laughing, and said, "We are fittingly punished, Aesop, for becoming involved in other subjects before introducing all of those from Amasis, to which we gave precedence. I beg, Neiloxenus, that you will look at the rest of ^b A reason for the prohibition is given in Plutarch's Life of Solon, chap. i. (p. 79 A).

⁶ So as to obtain happiness ; Aesop twists Thales' remark made a few moments before (supra, 152 A).

τὰ λοιπὰ τῆς ἐπιστολῆς, καὶ χρῶ παροῦσιν ἐν ταὐτῶ¹ τοῖς ἀνδράσιν."

'' 'Αλλὰ μήν,'' ὁ Νειλόξενος ἔφη, '' τὴν μὲν τοῦ Αἰθίοπος ἐπίταξιν οὐδέν αν τις άλλο πλήν άχνυμένην σκυτάλην' προσείποι κατ' Άρχί-

F λοχον, ό δè σòs ξένος "Αμασις ήμερώτερος έν τοîς τοιούτοις προβλήμασι και μουσικώτερος γέγονεν. έκέλευσε γάρ αὐτὸν εἰπεῖν τὸ πρεσβύτατον καὶ τὸ κάλλιστον και τὸ μέγιστον και τὸ σοφώτατον καί τὸ κοινότατον, και ναι μὰ Δία πρὸς τούτοις τὸ ὦφελιμώτατον, καὶ τὸ² βλαβερώτατον καὶ τὸ ίσχυρότατον καί το ράστον είπειν.

'Ao' ούν απεκρίνατο και διέλυσε τούτων έκαστον;

"Ουτως," ο Νειλόξενος έφη· "κρίνετε δ' ύμεις ακούσαντες. περί πολλοῦ γάρ ὁ βασιλεύς 153 ποιείται μήτε συκοφαντών άλωναι τας αποκρίσεις, ει τέ τι σφάλλεται κατά ταύτας δ³ αποκρινάμενος, τοῦτο μή διαφυγεῖν ἀνεξέλεγκτον. ἀναγνώσομαι δ' ύμιν ώσπερ απεκρίνατο.

' Τί πρεσβύτατον; ' ' χρόνος.'

Τί μέγιστον; ' κόσμος.'
 Τί σοφώτατον; ' ἀλήθεια.'
 Τί κάλλιστον; ' φŵς.'

'Τί κοινότατον;' 'θάνατος.'

'Τί ώφελιμώτατον;' 'θεός.'

'Τί βλαβερώτατον;' 'δαίμων.'

¹ ταὐτῷ Reiske: τούτφ. ² τὸ added by Hercher. ³ ὁ added by Wyttenbach.

^a Cf. Bergk, Poet. Lyr. Graec. ii. p. 708, Archilochus, No. 384

the letter and take advantage of the fact that the men are all here together."

"Well, in truth," said Neiloxenus, "the demand of the Ethiopian can hardly be called anything but a 'depressing cryptic dispatch,' a to borrow a phrase from Archilochus, but your friend Amasisis more civilized and cultivated in proposing such questions; for he bade the king name the oldest thing, the most beautiful, the greatest, the wisest, the most common, and besides these, as I can attest, to name also the most helpful thing and the most harmful, and the strongest and the easiest."

"Did the Ethiopian king give an answer and a solution for each of these questions?"

"Yes, in his way," said Neiloxenus, "but you must judge for yourselves when you hear his answers. For my king holds it to be a very important matter not to be caught impugning the answers falsely; and likewise, if the respondent is making any slip in these, he would not have this pass unquestioned. I will read the answers of the Ethiopian as he gave them:

(a) 'What is the oldest thing ?' 'Time.'
(b) 'What is the greatest ?' 'The universe.'

(c) 'What is the wisest ?' 'Truth.'

(d) 'What is the most beautiful ?' 'Light.'
(e) 'What is most common ?' 'Death.'
(f) 'What is most helpful ?' 'God.'

(g) 'What is most harmful?' 'An evil spirit.'

89. The reference is to a well-known form of cipher message in use among the Spartans. A narrow leather thong was wrapped around a cylinder, and on the surface thus formed the message was written. When the thong was received it was applied to a duplicate cylinder kept by the recipient, and so the message was read.

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

(153) 'Τί ρωμαλεώτατον;' 'τύχη.' · Τί ράστον; ' ήδύ.'

9. Τούτων πάλιν άναγνωσθέντων, & Νίκαρχε, γενομένης σιωπής Θαλής ήρώτησε τον Νειλόξενον ει προσήκατο τας λύσεις ό "Αμασις. εκείνου δ' εἰπόντος ὅτι τὰς μέν ἀπεδέξατο ταῖς δ' ἐδυσκόλαινε, Β "καὶ μὴν οὐδέν," εἶπεν ὁ Θαλη̂ς, " ἀνεπίληπτόν έστιν, άλλ' έχει πάντα διαμαρτίας μεγάλας καί άγνοίας. οίον εύθυς ό χρόνος πως αν είη πρεσβύτατον, εί τὸ μὲν αὐτοῦ γεγονὸς τὸ δ' ἐνεστώς έστι τὸ δὲ μέλλον; ὁ γὰρ μεθ' ἡμᾶς ἐσόμενος χρόνος και πραγμάτων των νυν και ανθρώπων νεώτερος αν φανείη. το δε την αλήθειαν ηγεισθαι σοφίαν οὐδὲν ἐμοὶ δοκεῖ διαφέρειν τοῦ τὸ φῶς όφθαλμόν ἀποφαίνειν. εἰ δὲ τὸ φῶς καλόν, ώσπερ έστιν, ενόμιζε, πως τον ηλιον αυτόν παρείδε; των δ' άλλων ή μέν περί θεών καί δαιμόνων απόκρισις θράσος έχει και κίνδυνον, C άλογίαν δὲ καὶ πολλήν ή περὶ τῆς τύχης· οὐ γὰρ αν μετέπιπτε ραδίως ούτως, ισχυρότατον ούσα των όντων και ρωμαλεώτατον. ου μήν ουδ' ό θάνατος κοινότατόν έστιν ου γάρ έστι πρός τους ζώντας. άλλ' ίνα μή δοκώμεν εύθύνειν τάς τών έτέρων αποφάσεις, ίδίας² ταῖς ἐκείνου παραβάλωμεν έμαυτον δε παρέχω πρώτον, εί βούλεται Νειλόξενος, έρωταν καθ' εκαστον. ώς οῦν εγέ-

1 καλόν ώσπερ έστιν Reiske: ώσπερ καλόν έστιν.

² ἀποφάσεις, iδlas F.C.B.: iδίas ἀποφάσεις: Paton would merely read $\tau \dot{a}$ for $\tau \dot{a}s$. 386

(h) 'What is strongest?' 'Fortune.'
(i) 'What is easiest?' 'Pleasure.'"

9. After this second reading, there was silence for a time, and then Thales asked Neiloxenus if Amasis had approved the answers. When Neiloxenus replied that Amasis had accepted some, but was much dissatisfied with others, Thales said, "As a matter of fact there is not a thing in them that cannot be impugned, but they all contain gross errors and evidences of ignorance. For instance, in the very first one, how can time be the oldest thing if a part of it is past, a part present, and a part future ? ^a For the time which is to come would clearly be younger than events and persons that now are. And to hold that truth is wisdom seems to me no different from declaring that light is the eye. If he thought the light beautiful, as it really is, how did he come to overlook the sun itself? Among the others the answer about gods and evil spirits evinces boldness and daring, but the one about Fortune contains much bad logic; for Fortune would not be so fickle about abiding with one if it were the mightiest and strongest thing in existence. Nor is death, in fact, the most common thing; for it does not affect the living.^b But, to avoid giving the impression of merely passing judgement upon the statements of others, let us compare answers of our own with his. And I offer myself as the first, if Neiloxenus so desires, to be questioned on each topic; and taking the questions

^a Plutarch, Moralia, 1081 c-1082 D, argues at some length about the Stoic conception of time.

^b Probably an adaptation of one of Epicurus's "leading principles," δ θάνατος οὐδὲν πρὸς ἡμῶς, " death is nothing to us," who are glive. Cf. Diogenes Laertius, x. 139, and Plutarch, Moralia, 37 A.

(153) νοντο τότε, κάγώ νῦν διηγήσομαι τὰς ἐρωτήσεις καί τὰς ἀποκρίσεις.

· Τί πρεσβύτατον; ' 'θεός,'' ἔφη Θαλῆς· '' ἀγέννητον γάρ έστι.

'Τί μέγιστον;' 'τόπος· τάλλα μέν γὰρ ό D κόσμος, τὸν δὲ κόσμον οὗτος περιέχει.' 'Τί κάλλιστον;' 'κόσμος· πῶν γὰρ τὸ κατὰ τάξιν τούτου μέρος έστί.

Τί σοφώτατον; ' ' χρόνος τὰ μεν γάρ ευρηκεν ούτος ήδη, τά δ' εύρήσει.

'Τί κοινότατον;' 'έλπίς· και γαρ οίς άλλο μηδέν, αυτη πάρεστι.

· Τί ώφελιμώτατον; ' ' ἀρετή· καὶ γὰρ τἄλλα τώ χρήσθαι καλώς ώφέλιμα ποιεί.

Τί βλαβερώτατον; ' κακία· καὶ γὰρ τὰ πλεῖστα¹ βλάπτει παραγενομένη.

· Τί ἰσχυρότατον; ' ἀνάγκη· μόνον γὰρ ἀνίκητον.

'Τί ρ΄αστον;' 'τὸ κατὰ φύσιν, ἐπεὶ πρὸς ήδονάς γε πολλάκις απαγορεύουσιν.

Ε 10. 'Αποδεξαμένων δε πάντων τον Θαλην, ό Κλεόδωρος είπε, " τοιαῦτ' ἐρωτῶν καὶ ἀποκρίνεσθαι βασιλεύσιν, ώ Νειλόξενε, προσηκόν έστιν ό δε προπίνων την θάλατταν 'Αμάσιδι βάρβαρος έδειτο της Πιττακού βραχυλογίας, ή πρός 'Αλυάττην έχρήσατο προστάττοντά τι και γράφοντα Λεσβίοις

> 1 πλείστα] χρηστά, Stobaeus, ii. 21. 2 τοιαῦτα] τοσαῦτα most Mss.

^a Either Thales or a copyist has transposed (c) and (d).

^b Most of these sentiments are attributed to Thales in works of other authors, as well as in other places in the Moralia. 388 in the order given,^a I will repeat them, together with my answers ^b:

(a) 'What is the oldest thing?' 'God,'" said Thales, "'for God is something that has no beginning.'
(b) 'What is greatest?' 'Space; for while the

(b) 'What is greatest?' 'Space; for while the universe contains within it all else, this contains the universe.'

(c) 'What is most beautiful?' 'The Universe; for everything that is ordered as it should be is a part of it.'

(d) 'What is wisest?' 'Time; for it has discovered some things already, and shall discover all the rest.'

(e) 'What is most common?' 'Hope; for those who have nothing else have that ever with them.'

(f) 'What is most helpful?' 'Virtue; for it makes everything else helpful by putting it to a good use.'

(g) 'What is most harmful ?' 'Vice ; for it harms the greatest number of things by its presence.'

(h) 'What is strongest?' 'Necessity; for that alone is insuperable.'

(i) 'What is easiest?' 'To follow Nature's course; because people often weary of pleasures.'"

10. When all had expressed their satisfaction with Thales, Cleodorus said, "Asking and answering such questions is all right for kings. But the barbarian who would have Amasis drink up the ocean to do him honour needed the terse retort which Pittacus used to Alyattes, when the latter wrote and sent an overbearing command to the Lesbians. The only answer

It may suffice here to refer, for example, to Diogenes Laertius, i. 35. The two numbered (f) and (g) are rather suggestive of the Stoic school of philosophy.

ύπερήφανον, ἀποκρινάμενος οὐδὲν ἀλλ' ἢ μόνον κελεύσας κρόμμυα καὶ θερμὸν ἄρτον ἐσθίειν.''

Υπολαβών οῦν ὁ Περίανδρος " ἀλλὰ μήν," ἔφη, " καὶ τοῖς παλαιοῖς Ἐλλησιν ἔθος ῆν, ὡ Κλεόδωρε, F τοιαύτας ἀλλήλοις ἀπορίας προβάλλειν. ἀκούομεν yàp ὅτι καὶ πρὸς τὰς ᾿Αμφιδάμαντος ταφὰς εἰς Χαλκίδα τῶν τότε σοφῶν οἱ δοκιμώτατοι ποιηταὶ συνῆλθον ἦν δ' ὁ ᾿Αμφιδάμας ἀνὴρ πολεμικός, καὶ πολλὰ πράγματα παρασχών Ἐρετριεῦσιν ἐν ταῖς περὶ Ληλάντου¹ μάχαις ἔπεσεν. ἐπεὶ δὲ τὰ παρεσκευασμένα τοῖς ποιηταῖς ἔπη χαλεπὴν καὶ δύσκολον ἐποίει τὴν κρίσιν διὰ τὸ ἐφάμιλλον, ἢ τε δόξα τῶν ἀγωνιστῶν, Ὁμήρου καὶ Ἡσιόδου, πολλὴν 154 ἀπορίαν μετ' αἰδοῦς τοῖς κρίνουσι παρεῖχεν, ἐτράποντο πρὸς τοιαύτας ἐρωτήσεις, καὶ προέβαλ' ὁ μέν, ως φησι² Λέσχης,

Μοῦσά μοι ἔννεπε κεῖνα, τὰ μήτ' ἐγένοντο πάροιθε μήτ' ἔσται μετόπισθεν, άπεκρίνατο δ' Ήσίοδος έκ τοῦ παρατυχόντος άλλ' ὅταν ἀμφὶ Διὸς τύμβω καναχήποδες ἴπποι ἄρματα συντρίψωσιν ἐπειγόμενοι περὶ νίκης.

καὶ διὰ τοῦτο λέγεται μάλιστα θαυμασθεὶς τοῦ τρίποδος τυχεῖν."

"Τί δε ταῦθ'," ὁ Κλεόδωρος εἶπε, "διαφέρει Β τῶν Εὐμήτιδος αἰνιγμάτων; ἅ ταύτην μεν ἴσως Ληλάντου Wyttenbach: λαλάντου οr λιλάντου.

 ² φησι] φασι in some Mss.

^a 'Ισον τῷ κλαίειν was the old explanation; that is, "weep," or "go hang."

^b Some MSS. make Lesches propound the question, and other tradition makes Hesiod the questioner, to whom Homer replies. Cf. note e below. 390

he made was to tell Alyattes to eat onions and hot bread." ^a Periander now entered into the conversation, and said, "Nevertheless it is a fact, Cleodorus, that the ancient Greeks also had a habit of propounding such perplexing questions to one another. For we have the story that the most famous poets among the wise men of that time gathered at Chalcis to attend the funeral of Amphidamas. Now Amphidamas was a warrior who had given much trouble to the Eretrians, and had fallen in one of the battles for the possession of the Lelantine plain. But since the verses composed by the poets made the decision a difficult and troublesome matter because they were so evenly matched, and since the repute of the contestants, Homer and Hesiod, caused the judges much perplexity as well as embarrassment, the poets resorted to questionings of this sort, and Homer, as Lesches asserts,^b propounded this :

Tell me, O Muse, of events which never have happened aforetime,

Nor in the future shall ever betide, and Hesiod answered quite off-hand :

When round Zeus in his tomb rush the steeds with galloping hoof-beats, Crashing car against car, as they eagerly run for a trophy. And for this it is said that he gained the greatest admiration and won the tripod." ^e

"But what difference is there," said Cleodorus, between things like this and Eumetis's riddles?

^e It is of interest to compare the long and variant account given in the Contest of Homer and Hesiod, a work of the second century A.D. which is usually included at the end of editions of Hesiod, also in the 5th vol. of the edition of Homer in the Oxford Classical Texts.

(154) οὐκ ἀπρεπές ἐστι παίζουσαν καὶ διαπλέκουσαν ὥσπερ ἔτεραι ζωνία καὶ κεκρυφάλους προβάλλειν ταῖς γυναιξίν, ἀνδρας δὲ νοῦν ἔχοντας ἔν τινι σπουδῆ τίθεσθαι γελοῖον."

'Η μέν οῦν Εὔμητις ἡδέως ἂν εἰποῦσά τι πρὸς αὐτόν, ὡς ἐφαίνετο, κατέσχεν ἑαυτὴν ὑπ' αἰδοῦς, καὶ ἀνεπλήσθη τὸ πρόσωπον ἐρυθήματος· ὁ δ' Αἴσωπος οἶον ἀμυνόμενος ὑπὲρ αὐτῆς '' οὐ γελοιότερον οῦν,'' εἶπε, '' τὸ μὴ δύνασθαι ταῦτα διαλύειν, οἶόν ἐστιν ὃ μικρὸν ἔμπροσθεν ἡμῖν τοῦ δείπνου προέβαλεν, άνδρ' είδον πυρὶ χαλκὸν ἐπ' ἀνέρι κολλήσαντα; τί τοῦτ' ἐστὶν ἔχοις ἂν εἰπεῖν; ''

C " 'Αλλ' οὐδὲ μαθεῖν δέομαι," ἔφη ὁ Κλεόδωρος. "Καὶ μὴν οὐδείς," ἔφη, " σοῦ ' τοῦτο μᾶλλον οἶδεν οὐδὲ ποιεῖ βέλτιον· εἰ δ' ἀρνῆ, μάρτυρας ἔχω σικύας."

Ο μέν οὖν Κλεόδωρος ἐγέλασε· καὶ γὰρ ἐχρῆτο μάλιστα ταῖς σικύαις³ τῶν καθ' αὐτὸν ἰατρῶν, καὶ δόξαν οὐχ ἥκιστα τὸ βοήθημα τοῦτο δι' ἐκεῖνον ἔσχηκε.

11. Μνησίφιλος δ' ό 'Αθηναΐος, έταῖρος ῶν καὶ ζηλωτὴς Σόλωνος, " ἐγώ τοι," εἶπεν, " ὦ Περίανδρε, τὸν λόγον ἀξιῶ καθάπερ τὸν οἶνον μὴ πλου-D τίνδην μηδ' ἀριστίνδην ἀλλ' ἐξ ἴσου πᾶσιν ὥσπερ ἐν δημοκρατία νέμεσθαι καὶ κοινὸν εἶναι· τῶν δ'

¹ έφη σοῦ Meziriacus: ἔφησε.
 ² Most Mss. have σικυωνίas and σικυωνίais.

Bergk, Poet. Lyr. Graec. ii. p. 440, Cleobulina, No. 1.
 Mnesiphilus, according to Plutarch, Life of Themistocles, chap. ii. (p. 112 n), handed down the political wisdom of 392

Perhaps it is not unbecoming for her to amuse herself and to weave these as other girls weave girdles and hair-nets, and to propound them to women, but the idea that men of sense should take them at all seriously is ridiculous."

Eumetis, to judge by her appearance, would have liked to give him an answer, but restrained herself with all modesty, and her face was covered with blushes. But Aesop, as though he would take her part, said, "Is it not then even more ridiculous not to be able to solve these? Take, for instance, the one which she propounded to us a few minutes before dinner:

Sooth I have seen a man with fire fasten bronze on another."

Could you tell me what this is ? "

"No," said Cleodorus, " and I don't want to be told, either."

"Yet it is a fact," said Aesop, "that nobody knows this more perfectly than you, or does it better, either; and if you deny this, I have cupping-glasses to testify to it."

At this Cleodorus laughed; for of all the physicians of his time he was most given to the use of cuppingglasses, and it was largely owing to him that this form of treatment has come to have such repute.

11. Mnesiphilus the Athenian,^b a warm friend and admirer of Solon's, said, "I think it is no more than fair, Periander, that the conversation, like the wine, should not be apportioned on the basis of wealth or rank, but equally to all, as in a democracy, and that Solon to Themistocles. At any rate Herodotus, viii. 57, represents Mnesiphilus as advising Themistocles against withdrawing the Greek fleet from Salamis. Cf. also Plutarch, Moralia, 869 p-E.

(154) ἄρτι περὶ ἀρχῆς καὶ βασιλείας εἰρημένων οὐδὲν ἡμῶν τοῦς δημοτικοῦς μέτεστιν. ὅθεν οἰόμεθα δεῶν πάλιν ἕκαστον ὑμῶν περὶ πολιτείας ἰσονόμου γνώμην τινὰ συμβαλέσθαι, ἀρξαμένους αὖθις ἀπὸ Σόλωνος."

'Εδόκει δη ταῦτα ποιεῖν. καὶ πρῶτος ὁ Σόλων " ἀλλ' ἀκήκοας μέν," εἶπεν, " ὡ Μνησίφιλε, μετὰ πάντων 'Αθηναίων ην ἔχω γνώμην περὶ πολιτείας εἰ δὲ βούλει καὶ νῦν ἀκούειν, δοκεῖ μοι πόλις ἄριστα πράττειν καὶ μάλιστα σώζειν δημοκρατίαν, Ε ἐν ή τὸν ἀδικήσαντα τοῦ ἀδικηθέντος οὐδὲν ήττον οἱ μὴ ἀδικηθέντες προβάλλονται καὶ κολάζουσι."

Δεύτερος δ' δ Bías ἔφησει κρατίστην είναι δημοκρατίαν ἐν ή πάντες ώς τύραννον φοβοῦνται τόν νόμον.

²Επί τούτω Θαλης την μήτε πλουσίους άγαν μήτε πένητας έχουσαν πολίτας.

Μετὰ δὲ τοῦτον ὁ ᾿Ανάχαρσις^{*} ἐν ἡ τῶν ἄλλων ἴσων νομιζομένων ἀρετῆ τὸ βέλτιον ὁρίζεται, καὶ κακία^³ τὸ χεῖρον.

Πέμπτος δ' ό Κλεόβουλος ἔφη μάλιστα σωφρονεῖν δῆμον ὅπου τὸν ψόγον μαλλον οἱ πολιτευόμενοι δεδοίκασιν ἢ τὸν νόμον.

Έκτος δ' ό' Πιττακός, ὅπου τοῖς πονηροῖς οὐκ ἔξεστιν ἄρχειν καὶ τοῖς ἀγαθοῖς οὐκ ἔξεστι μὴ ἄρχειν.

F Μεταστραφείς⁵ δ' δ Χίλων ἀπεφήνατο τὴν

¹ έφη Stobaeus, Florilegium, xliii. 131.

² 'Ανάχαρσις] Περίανδρος Stobaeus, xliii. 131.

³ κακία (κακία Pflugk) δè Stobaeus, xliii. 131.

4 δ' δ Bernardakis: δέ.

⁵ μεταστραφείs Hartman and F.C.B. independently: μετατραπείs, omitted by Stobaeus, l.c. 394 it should be general. Now in what has just been said dealing with dominion and kingdom, we who live under a popular government have no part. Therefore I think that at this time each of you ought to contribute an opinion on the subject of republican government, beginning again with Solon."

It was accordingly agreed to do this, and Solon began by saying, "But you, Mnesiphilus, as well as all the rest of the Athenians, have heard the opinion which I hold regarding government. However, if you wish to hear it again now, I think that a State succeeds best, and most effectively perpetuates democracy, in which persons uninjured by a crime, no less than the injured person, prosecute the criminal and get him punished."

Second was Bias, who said that the most excellent democracy was that in which the people stood in as much fear of the law as of a despot.

Following him Thales said that it was the one having citizens neither too rich nor too poor.

After him Anacharsis said that it was the one in which, all else being held in equal esteem, what is better is determined by virtue and what is worse by vice.

Fifth, Cleobulus said that a people was most righteous whose public men dreaded censure more than they dreaded the law.

Sixth, Pittacus said that it was where bad men are not allowed to hold office, and good men are not allowed to refuse it.

Chilon, turning to the other side, declared that the ^a Chilon, a rather strict Spartan (cf. 152 D supra), is impatient of opinions which suggest that the attitude of the people is more important than the law.

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

μάλιστα νόμων ηκιστα δὲ ρητόρων ἀκούουσαν πολιτείαν ἀρίστην εἶναι.

Τελευταίος δε πάλιν ο Περίανδρος επικρίνων έφη δοκείν αὐτῷ πάντας επαινείν δημοκρατίαν τὴν δμοιοτάτην ἀριστοκρατία.

12. Τέλος δὲ καὶ τούτου τοῦ λόγου λαβόντος ἡξίουν ἐγὼ καὶ περὶ οἴκου ἡ χρηστέον εἰπεῖν τοὺς ἄνδρας ἡμῖν: ''βασιλείας μὲν γὰρ καὶ πόλεις ὀλίγοι κυβερνῶσιν, ἑστίας δὲ πᾶσιν ἡμῖν καὶ οἴκου μέτεστι.''

Γελάσας οῦν ὁ Αἴσωπος, '' οὕκ, εἴγε τῶν πάν-155 των,'' ἔφη, '' καὶ ᾿Ανάχαρσιν ἀριθμεῖς· τούτῷ γὰρ οἶκος οὐκ ἔστιν, ἀλλὰ καὶ σεμνύνεται τῷ ἄοικος εἶναι, χρῆσθαι δ' ἁμάξῃ, καθάπερ τὸν ἥλιον ἐν ἄρματι λέγουσι περιπολεῖν, ἄλλοτ' ἄλλην ἐπινεμόμενον τοῦ οὐρανοῦ χώραν.''

Καὶ ὁ ᾿Ανάχαρσις, '' διὰ τοῦτό τοι,'' εἶπεν, '' η μόνος η μάλιστα τῶν θεῶν ἐλεύθερός ἐστι καὶ αὐτόνομος, καὶ κρατεῖ πάντων, κρατεῖται δ' ὑπ' οὐδενός, ἀλλὰ βασιλεύει καὶ ἡνιοχεῖ. πλὴν σέ γε τὸ ἄρμα λέληθεν αὐτοῦ, ὡς ὑπερφυὲς κάλλει καὶ Β μεγέθει θαυμάσιόν ἐστιν· οὐ γὰρ ἂν παίζων ἐπὶ γέλωτι παρέβαλες ἐκεῖνο τοῖς ἡμετέροις. οἶκον δέ μοι δοκεῖς, ὡ Αἴσωπε, ταυτὶ τὰ πήλινα καὶ ξύλινα καὶ κεραμεᾶ στεγάσματα νομίζειν, ὥσπερ εἰ κοχλίαν ἡγοῖο τὸ κέλυφος, ἀλλὰ μὴ τὸ ζῷον. εἰκότως οῦν σοι γέλωτα παρέσχεν ὁ Σόλων, ὅτι τοῦ Κροίσου τὴν οἰκίαν κεκοσμημένην πολυτελῶς θεα-396 best government is that which gives greatest heed to laws and least heed to those who talk about them.

Finally, Periander once more concluded the discussion with the decisive remark, that they all seemed to him to approve a democracy which was most like an aristocracy.

12. When this discussion had come to an end, I said that it seemed to me to be only fair that these men should tell us how a house should be managed. "For," said I, " but few persons are in control of kingdoms and states, whereas we all have to do with a hearth and home."

Aesop laughed and said, "Not all, if you include also Anacharsis in our number; for not only has he no home, but he takes an immense pride in being homeless and in using a wagon, after the manner in which they say the sun makes his rounds in a chariot, occupying now one place and now another in the heavens."

"And that, I would have you know," said Anacharsis, "is precisely the reason why he solely or pre-eminently of all the gods is free and independent, and rules over all and is ruled by none, but is king, and holds the reins. Only you seem to have no conception of his chariot, how surpassing it is in beauty, and wondrous in size; else you would not, even in jest, have humorously compared it to ours. It seems to me, Aesop, that your idea of a home is limited to these protective coverings made of mortar, wood, and tiles, just as if you were to regard a snail's shell, and not the creature itself, as a snail. Quite naturally, then, Solon gave you occasion to laugh, because, when he had looked over Croesus's house with its costly furnishings, he did not instantly

- (155) σάμενος οὐκ εὐθὺς ἀπεφήνατο τὸν κεκτημένον εὐδαιμόνως οἰκεῖν καὶ μακαρίως, ἄτε δὴ τῶν ἐν αὐτῷ μᾶλλον ἀγαθῶν ἢ τῶν παρ' αὐτῷ βουλόμενος γενέσθαι θεατής· σὺ δ' ἔοικας οὐδὲ τῆς σεαυτοῦ μνημονεύειν ἀλώπεκος. ἐκείνη μὲν γὰρ εἰς ἀγῶνα ποικιλίας καταστᾶσα πρὸς τὴν πάρδαλιν ἠξίου τὰ ἐντὸς αὐτῆς καταμαθεῖν τὸν δικαστήν, C ποικιλωτέρα γὰρ ἐκεῦθεν φανεῖσθαι· σὺ δὲ τὰ
 - Ο ποικιλωνερα γαρ εκείδεν φανείσσαι συ σε τα τεκτόνων και λιθοξόων έργα περινοστεῖς, οίκον ήγούμενος, οὐ τὰ ἐντὸς ἑκάστου και οἰκεῖα, παῖδας και γάμον και φίλους και θεράποντας, οἶς κἂν ἐν μυρμηκιῷ τις ἢ νεοττιῷ νοῦν ἔχουσι και σωφρονοῦσι κοινωνῃ τῶν ὑπαρχόντων, χρηστὸν οἶκον οἰκεῖ και μακάριον. ἐγὰ μὲν οῦν," ἔφη, " ταῦτα και πρὸς Αἴσωπον ἀποκρίνομαι και Διοκλεῖ συμβάλλομαι· τῶν δ' ἄλλων ἕκαστος ἀποφαίνεσθαι δικαιός ἐστι τὴν ἑαυτοῦ γνώμην." Τοῦτον οῦν ἄριστον ὁ Σόλων εἶπεν αὐτῷ δοκεῖν

Τοῦτον οὖν ἀριστον ὁ Σόλων εἶπεν αὐτῷ δοκεῖν οἶκον,¹ ὅπου τὰ χρήματα² μήτε κτωμένοις ἀδικία D μήτε φυλάττουσιν ἀπιστία μήτε δαπανῶσι μετάνοια πρόσεστιν.

Ο δε Blas εν ω τοιοῦτός εστιν ο δεσπότης δι' αύτον οίος έζω δια τον νόμον.

Ο δε Θαλής εν ῷ πλείστην ἀγειν τῷ δεσπότη σχολήν ἔξεστιν.

¹ τοῦτον . . οἶκον Stobaeus, Florilegium, lxxv. 14, and one ms.: οὕτως ὁ Σόλων ἄριστον αὐτῷ δοκείν οἶκον εἶπεν most mss. ² χρήματα] κτήματα Stobaeus, ibid., and one ms.

^o Herodotus, i. 30. Plutarch, Life of Solon, chap. xxviii. (p. 94 c), represents Aesop as being present on this occasion.

¹ • No. 159 in the collection of fables that passes under the name of Aesop ; repeated also by Plutarch, Moralia, 500 c. 398 declare that the owner led a happy and blessed existence therein, for the good reason that he wished to have a look at the good within Croesus rather than at his good surroundings.^a But you, apparently, do not remember your own fox.^b For the fox. having entered into a contest with the leopard to determine which was the more ingeniously coloured, insisted it was but fair that the judge should note carefully what was within her, for there she said she should show herself more ingenious. But you go about, inspecting the works of carpenters and stonemasons, and regarding them as a home, and not the inward and personal possessions of each man, his children, his partner in marriage, his friends, and servants; and though it be in an ant-hill or a bird's nest, yet if these are possessed of sense and discretion, and the head of the family shares with them all his worldly goods, he dwells in a goodly and a happy home. This then," said he, " is my answer to Aesop's insinuation, and my contribution to Diocles. And now it is but right that each of the others should disclose his own opinion."

Thereupon Solon said that the best home seemed to him to be where no injustice is attached to the acquisition of property, no distrust to keeping it, and no repentance to spending it.

Bias said, "It is the home in which the head of the household, because of his own self, maintains the same character that he maintains outside of it because of the law."

Thales said, "The home in which it is possible for the head of the household to have the greatest leisure." (155) 'Ο δέ Κλεόβουλος εί πλείονας έχοι των φοβουμένων αὐτὸν τοὺς φιλοῦντας ὁ δεσπότης.

Ο δε Πιττακός είπεν ώς άριστος οίκός εστιν ό των περιττών μηδενός δεόμενος¹ και των άναγκαίων μηδενός ενδεόμενος.

⁶Ο δὲ Χίλων ἔφη δεῖν μάλιστα βασιλευομένη πόλει προσεοικέναι τὸν οἶκον. εἶτα προσεπεῖπεν ὅτι καὶ Λυκοῦργος πρὸς τὸν κελεύοντα δημο-Εκρατίαν ἐν τῇ πόλει καταστῆσαι, '' πρῶτος,''² ἔφη, " ποίησον ἐν τῇ οἰκία σου δημοκρατίαν.''

13. Ἐπεὶ δὲ καὶ οῦτος ἔσχεν ὁ λόγος τέλος, ἡ μὲν Εὔμητις ἐξῆλθε μετὰ τῆς Μελίσσης, τοῦ δὲ Περιάνδρου τῷ Χίλωνι προπιόντος εὐμεγέθη κύλικα, τῷ δὲ Βίαντι τοῦ Χίλωνος, ᾿Αρδαλος ἐπαναστὰς καὶ προσαγορεύσας τὸν Αἴσωπον, '' σὺ δ' οὐκ ἄν,'' ἔφη, ''διαπέμψαιο δεῦρο τὸ ποτήριον πρὸς ἡμῶς, ὅρῶν τούτους ὥσπερ τὴν Βαθυκλέους κύλικα διαπεμπομένους ἀλλήλοις, ἑτέρῳ δὲ μὴ μεταδιδόντας; ''

F Kaì ὁ Αἴσωπος, '' ἀλλ' οὐδὲ τοῦτ','' ἔφη, '' τὸ ποτήριον δημοτικόν ἐστι³· Σόλωνι γὰρ ἔκπαλαι παράκειται μόνω.''

Τόν οῦν Μνησίφιλον προσαγορεύσας ὁ Πιττακὸς ἡρώτησε τί οὐ πίνει Σόλων ἀλλὰ καταμαρτυρεῖ τῶν ποιημάτων ἐν οἶς γέγραφεν, > ¹ μηδενός δεόμενος Stobaeus, ibid., not in Mss. ² πρωτος] πρώτον Stobaeus.

³ έστι F.C.B.: είναι (probably due to έφη).

Cleobulus said, " If the head of the household have more who love him than fear him."

Pittacus said that the best home is that which needs nothing superfluous, and lacks nothing necessary.

Chilon said that the home ought to be most like to a State ruled by a king; and then he added that Lycurgus said to the man who urged him to establish a democracy in the State, "Do you first create a democracy in your own house."^a

13. When this discussion had come to its end, Eumetis withdrew, accompanied by Melissa. Then Periander drank to Chilon in a big beaker, and Chilon did the same to Bias, whereupon Ardalus arose, and addressing himself to Aesop, said, "Won't you send the cup over here to us, seeing that these people are sending it to and fro to one another as though it were the beaker of Bathycles,^b and are not giving anybody else a chance at it?"

And Aesop said, "But this cup is not democratic either, since it has been resting all the time by Solon only."

Thereupon Pittacus, addressing Mnesiphilus, asked why Solon did not drink, but by his testimony was discrediting the verses in which he had written ° Repeated in Moralia, 189 E, 228 D, and Life of Lycurgus, chap. xix. (p. 52 A).

[•] Bathycles in his will left his beaker to the most helpful of the wise men. It was given to Thales, and he passed it on to another of the wise men, who in turn gave it to another until finally it came back to Thales again, and he dedicated it to Apollo. Cf. Diogenes Laertius, i. 28, and Plutarch, Life of Solon, chap. iv. (p. 80 E).

^e Plutarch quotes these lines also in Moralia, 751 E, and Life of Solon, chap. xxxi. (p. 96 E); cf. Bergk, Poet. Lyr. Gr. ii. p. 430, Solon, No. 26.

έργα δε Κυπρογενοῦς νῦν μοι φίλα καὶ Διονύσου και Μουσέων, ά τίθησ' άνδράσιν εύφροσύνας.

Υποφθάσας δ' Ανάχαρσις " σε γάρ, ω Πιττακέ, καί τον σόν έκεινον τον χαλεπόν φοβειται νόμον, έν ω γέγραφας 'Εάν τις ότιοῦν μεθύων ἁμάρτη, διπλασίαν η τω νήφοντι την ζημίαν είναι.

Και ό Πιττακός, "συ δέ γ'," είπεν, "ουτως έξύβρισας είς τον νόμον, ωστε πέρυσι παρ' 'Αλκαίου' ἀδελφῶ μεθυσθεὶς' ἇθλον αἰτεῖν καὶ στέφανον."

156 "Τί δ' οὐκ ἔμελλον," ἔφη ὁ 'Ανάχαρσις, "τῷ πλείστον πιόντι προκειμένων αθλων πρώτος μεθυσθείς απαιτείν το νικητήριον; η διδάξατέ μ ύμεις, τί τέλος έστι τοῦ πολύν πιειν ἄκρατον η τὸ μεθυσθηναι."

Τοῦ δὲ Πιττακοῦ γελάσαντος ὁ Αἴσωπος λόγον είπε τοιοῦτον· " λύκος ίδων ποιμένας ἐσθίοντας έν σκηνή πρόβατον έγγυς προσελθών, ' ήλίκος αν ήν,' έφη, θόρυβος ύμιν, εί έγω τοῦτ' ἐποίουν.'' Και ό Χίλων "όρθως," ἔφη, "Αισωπος ήμύνατο, μικρόν έμπροσθεν έπιστομισθείς ύφ ήμων, είτα νυν όρων ετέρους τον Μνησιφίλου λόγον ύφηρπακότας Μνησίφιλος γαρ ήτήθη την ύπερ Σόλωνος απόκρισιν.

B

" Kai λέγω," ό Μνησίφιλος είπεν, "είδώς ότι

¹ παρ' 'Αλκαίου Ε. Capps; παρά Διβουτάδη Δελφώ Madvig: παρὰ Λάβυι τῷ Δελφῷ the last guess of Wilamowitz-Moellendorff: the MSS. have $\pi a \rho \dot{a} \Lambda l \beta v \tau'$ or $\pi a \rho \dot{a} \Lambda l \beta v \iota \tau'$ or $\pi a \rho \dot{a}$ Albu $\tau \hat{\omega}$ or $\gamma d\rho$ kal vurl om. $d\delta \epsilon \lambda \phi \hat{\omega}$. Athenaeus, 437 F, unluckily does not help.

² $\pi\rho\omega\tau\sigma\sigma$ $\mu\epsilon\theta\nu\sigma\theta\epsilon$ is strongly suggested by Athenaeus, 437 F.

³ λέγω Wyttenbach : λέγων.

Give me the tasks of the Cyprus-born goddess and Lord Dionysus, Yea, and the Muses besides; tasks which bring cheer among men.

Before the other could reply Anacharsis hastened to say, "He is afraid of you, Pittacus, and that harsh law of yours in which you have decreed, 'If any man commit any offence when drunk, his penalty shall be double that prescribed for the sober.""^a

And Pittacus said, "But you at any rate showed such insolent disregard for the law, that last year, at the house of Alcaeus's brother, you were the first to get drunk and you demanded as a prize a wreath of victory."^b

"And why not?" said Anacharsis. "Prizes were offered for the man who drank the most, and I was the first to get drunk; why should I not have demanded the reward of my victory? Else do you instruct me as to what is the aim in drinking much strong wine other than to get drunk."

When Pittacus laughed at this, Aesop told the following story: "A wolf seeing some shepherds in a shelter eating a sheep, came near to them and said, 'What an uproar you would make if I were doing that!'"

"Aesop," said Chilon, "has very properly defended himself, for a few moments ago $^{\circ}$ he had his mouth stopped by us, and now, later, he sees that others have taken the words out of Mnesiphilus's mouth; for it was Mnesiphilus who was asked for a rejoinder in defence of Solon."

"And I speak," said Mnesiphilus, "with full Pittacus's law is often referred to; for example, Aristotle, Politics, ii. 12, 13; Nicomachean Ethics, iii. 5, 8.

• Cf. Athenaeus, 437 f. • Supra, 150 B.

VOL. II

156) Σόλωνι δοκεί πάσης τέχνης και δυνάμεως άνθρωπίνης τε καὶ θείας ἔργον εἶναι τὸ γιγνόμενον μαλλον ἢ δι' οῦ γίγνεται, καὶ τὸ τέλος ἢ τὰ πρὸς τὸ τέλος. ὑφάντης τε γὰρ ἂν οἶμαι χλαμύδα ποιήσαιτο¹ μαλλον ἔργον αὐτοῦ καὶ ἱμάτιον ἢ κανόνων διάθεσιν καὶ ἀνάρτησιν² ἀγνύθων, χαλκεύς τε κόλλησιν σιδήρου καὶ στόμωσιν πελέκεως μαλλον ή τι των ένεκα τούτου γιγνομένων άναγ-καίων, οίον άνθράκων ἐκζωπύρησιν ἢ λατύπης παρασκευήν. ἔτι δὲ μαλλον ἀρχιτέκτων μέμψαιτ' αν ήμας έργον αύτοῦ μη ναον μηδ' οικίαν άπο-C φαίνοντας, ἀλλὰ τρυπήσαι ξύλα καὶ φυρασαι πηλόν· aí δέ Μοῦσαι και παντάπασιν, εἰ νομίζοιμεν αὐτῶν ἔργον εἶναι κιθάραν καὶ αὐλούς, ἀλλὰ μὴ τὸ παιδεύειν τὰ ἤθη καὶ παρηγορεῖν τὰ πάθη τῶν χρωμένων μέλεσι καὶ ἁρμονίαις. οὐκοῦν οὐδὲ τῆς ᾿Αφροδίτης ἔργον ἐστὶ συνουσία καὶ μεῖξις, ούδε του Διονύσου μέθη και οίνος, άλλ' ήν έμποιοῦσι διὰ τούτων φιλοφροσύνην καὶ πόθον καὶ όμιλίαν ἡμῖν καὶ συνήθειαν πρὸς ἀλλήλους· ταῦτα γὰρ ἔργα θεῖα καλεῖ Σόλων, καὶ ταῦτά φησιν ἀγαπῶν καὶ διώκειν μάλιστα πρεσβύτης γενόμενος. έστι δε της μεν πρός γυναϊκας ανδρών όμοφροσύνης D και φιλίας δημιουργός ή 'Αφροδίτη, τοις σώμασιν ύφ' ήδονης αμα συμμιγνύουσα καὶ συντήκουσα τὰς ψυχάς τοῖς δὲ πολλοῖς καὶ μὴ πάνυ συνήθεσι μηδ' ἄγαν γνωρίμοις ὁ Διόνυσος ὥσπερ ἐν πυρὶ τῷ οἴνῷ μαλάττων τὰ ήθη καὶ ἀνυγραίνων ἀρποιήσαιτο Wyttenbach: ποιήσαι.

 ἀνάρτησιν Bernardakis: ἀνέγερσιν.
 ³ ναδν Hatzidakis: ναῦν.

a Cf. Moralia, 769 A.

knowledge that it is Solon's opinion that the task of every art and faculty, both human and divine, is the thing that is produced rather than the means employed in its production, and the end itself rather than the means that contribute to that end. For a weaver, I imagine, would hold that his task was a cloak or a mantle rather than the arrangement of shuttle-rods or the hanging of loom weights; and so a smith would regard the welding of iron or the tempering of an axe rather than any one of the things that have to be done for this purpose, such as blowing up the fire or getting ready a flux. Even more would an architect find fault with us, if we should declare that his task is not a temple or a house, but to bore timbers and mix mortar. And the Muses would most assuredly feel aggrieved, if we should regard as their task a lyre or flutes, and not the development of the characters and the soothing of the emotions of those who make use of songs and melodies. And so again the task of Aphrodite is not carnal intercourse, nor is that of Dionysus strong drink and wine, but rather the friendly feeling, the longing, the association, and the intimacy, one with another, which they create in us through these agencies. These are what Solon calls ' tasks divine,' and these he says he loves and pursues above all else, now that he has become an old man. And Aphrodite is the artisan who creates concord and friendship between men and women, for through their bodies, under the influence of pleasure, she at the same time unites and welds together their souls.ª And in the case of the majority of people, who are not altogether intimate or too well known to one another, Dionysus softens and relaxes their characters with wine, as in

(156) χήν τινα συγκράσεως προς ἀλλήλους καὶ φιλίας ἐνδίδωσιν. ὅταν δὲ τοιοῦτοι συνέλθωσιν ἄνδρες, οίους ό Περίανδρος ύμας παρακέκληκεν, ούδεν έργον έστιν οίμαι κύλικος οὐδ' οἰνοχόης, ἀλλ' αί Μοῦσαι καθάπερ κρατῆρα νηφάλιον ἐν μέσω προθέμεναι τον λόγον, ώ πλειστον ήδονης αμα και παιδιας και σπουδης ένεστιν, εγείρουσι τούτω και κατάρδουσι και διαχέουσι την φιλοφροσύνην, Ε έωσαι τα πολλά την 'οίνοχόην' άτρέμα κείσθαι κρητήρος¹ υπερθεν, όπερ απηγόρευσεν Ησίοδος έν τοῖς πίνειν μâλλον ἢ διαλέγεσθαι δυναμένοις.² ἐπεὶ τάς γε³ προπόσεις αὐτάς,'' ἔφη, '' πυνθάνομαι λείπειν⁴ τοῖς παλαιοῖς, ἕν 'δαιτρόν,'⁶ ὡς [°]Ομηρος ἔφη, καὶ μετρητὸν ἑκάστου πίνοντος, εἶθ' ὥσπερ

Αίας μερίδος μεταδιδόντος τώ πλησίον."

Είπόντος δέ ταῦτα τοῦ Μνησιφίλου Χερσίας ό Γ ποιητής (ἀφείτο γὰρ ἤδη τῆς αἰτίας καὶ διήλλακτο τῶ Περιάνδρω νεωστί, Χίλωνος δεηθέντος) " ἆρ' οὖν," ἔφη, " καὶ τοῖς θεοῖς ὅ Ζεύς, ὥσπερ τοῖς ἀριστεῦσιν ὅ ᾿Αγαμέμνων, μετρητὸν ἐνέχει τὸ ποτόν, ὅτε προέπινον ἀλλήλοις ἑστιώμενοι παρ' αὐτῶ;

Καί ὁ Κλεόδωρος, '' σừ δ', ὦ Χερσία,'' εἶπεν, '' εἰ τὴν ἀμβροσίαν τῷ Διὶ πελειάδες τινὲς κομίζουσιν, ώς ύμεις λέγετε, τάς Πλαγκτάς ύπερ-

¹ κρητήρος Hesiod: κρατήρος.

² After δυναμένοις some Mss. have a quotation from Homer, Il. iv. 261-3, ending with Eστηκεν (263).

4 λείπειν F.C.B. : λέγειν. 3 ye Reiske : Te. ⁵ έν F.C.B., δαιτρόν Meziriacus, suggested perhaps by 6 δτε Meziriacus: δτι. Amvot's version : Evdelvov.

^a Works and Days, 744. ^b Homer, Il. iv. 262.

• Plutarch seems to have made a natural slip in referring 406 a fire, and so provides some means for beginning a union and friendship with one another. However, when such men as you, whom Periander has invited here, come together, I think there is nothing for the wine-cup or ladle to accomplish, but the Muses set discourse in the midst before all, a non-intoxicating bowl as it were, containing a maximum of pleasure in jest and seriousness combined ; and with this they awaken and foster and dispense friendliness, allowing the 'ladle,' for the most part, to lie untouched ' atop of the bowl '-a thing which Hesiod a would prohibit in a company of men better able to drink than to converse. As a matter of fact," he continued, " as nearly as I can make out, among the men of olden time the practice of drinking healths was not in vogue, since each man drank one ' goblet,' as Homer b has said, that is a measured quantity, and later, like Ajax,^c shared a portion with his neighbour."

When Mnesiphilus had said this, Chersias the poet d (having been already absolved from the charge against him, and recently reconciled with Periander at Chilon's solicitation) said, "Is it to be inferred, then, that Zeus used to pour out the drink for the gods also in measured quantity, as Agamemnon did for his nobles, when the gods, dining with Zeus, drank to one another?"

And Cleodorus said, "But, Chersias, if certain doves e bring to Zeus his ambrosia, as you poets say, and with this to Ajax, when, in fact, Homer records this of Odysseus (Od. viii. 475); Ajax, of course, was the great eater, as witness Il. vii. 321, where Agamemnon favours Ajax with the sirloin and tenderloin entire. Cf. also Athenaeus, 14 a. ^d From Orchomenos in Boeotia; he is known only from this essay and Pausanias, ix. 38, 9-10, where two lines of his (?) are quoted. ^e Homer, Od. xii. 62.

πετόμεναι χαλεπῶς καὶ μόλις, οὐ νομίζεις καὶ τὸ νέκταρ αὐτῷ δυσπόριστον εἶναι καὶ σπάνιον, 157 ὦστε φείδεσθαι καὶ παρέχειν ἐκάστῷ τεταμιευμένον; "

14. " Ισως,' είπεν ὁ Χερσίας· ' ἀλλ' ἐπεὶ πάλιν οἰκονομίας λόγος γέγονε, τίς ἂν ὑμῶν φράσειεν ἡμῖν τὸ ἀπολειπόμενον; ἀπολείπεται δ' οἶμαι κτήσεώς τι λαβεῖν μέτρον αὐτάρκους καὶ ἱκανῆς ἐσομένης.''

Καὶ ὁ Κλεόβουλος, '' ἀλλὰ τοῖς μὲν σοφοῖς,'' ἔφη, '' μέτρον ὁ νόμος δέδωκε, πρὸς δὲ τοὺς φαύλους ἐρῶ λόγον τῆς ἐμῆς θυγατρὸς ὃν πρὸς τὸν ἀδελφὸν εἶπεν. ἔφη γὰρ τὴν Σελήνην δεῖσθαι τῆς ἑαυτῆς μητρὸς ὅπως αὐτῆ χιτώνιον ὑφήνῃ

Β σύμμετρον· τὴν δ' εἰπεῖν ' καὶ πῶς σύμμετρον ὑφήνω; νῦν μὲν γὰρ ὅρῶ σε πανσέληνον, αὖθις δὲ μηνοειδῆ, τοτὲ δ' ἀμφίκυρτον.' οὕτω δή, ῶ φίλε Χερσία, καὶ πρὸς ἄνθρωπον ἀνόητον καὶ φαῦλον οὐδέν ἐστι μέτρον οὐσίας· ἄλλοτε γὰρ ἄλλος ἐστὶ ταῖς χρείαις διὰ τὰς ἐπιθυμίας καὶ τὰς τύχας, ὥσπερ ὁ Αἰσώπου κύων, ὅν οὑτοσί φησιν ἐν τῷ χειμῶνι συστρεφόμενον καὶ συσπειρώμενον διὰ τὸ ῥιγοῦν οἰκίαν ποιεῖν διανοεῖσθαι, θέρους δ' αῦ πάλιν ἐκτεταμένον καθεύδοντα φαίνεσθαι μέγαν ἑαυτῷ καὶ μήτ' ἀναγκαῖον ἡγεῖσθαι μήτε μικρὸν ἔργον οἰκίαν περιβαλέσθαι τοσαύτην. ἦ γὰρ οὐχ ὅρậς,'' εἶπεν, '' ῶ Χερσία, καὶ τοὺς C μιαροὺς¹ νῦν μὲν εἰς μικρὰ κομιδῆ συστέλλοντας

¹ μιαρούς F.C.B.: μικρούς.

great difficulty hardly manage to fly over the 'clashing rocks,' do you not believe that his nectar is hard for him to get and scarce, so that he is sparing of it, and doles it out charily to each god?" 14. "Possibly," said Chersias, "but since talk of

14. "Possibly," said Chersias, "but since talk of household management has come up again, who among you will tell us about what was omitted? The topic omitted was, I think, the acquisition of some measure of property which shall be sufficient in itself and adequate."

"But," said Cleobulus, "for the wise the law has given the measure, but with reference to those of the baser sort I will tell a story of my daughter's which she told her brother. She said that the moon wanted her mother to weave for her a garment to fit her measure; and the mother said, 'How can I weave it to fit your measure? For now I see you full and round, and at another time crescent-shaped, and at still another but little more than half your full size.' And in the same way you see, my dear Chersias, there is no measure of possessions that can be applied to a foolish and worthless man. Sometimes he is one man and sometimes another in his needs, which vary according to his desires and fortunes; he is like Aesop's dog, who, as our friend here says, in the winter-time curled up as closely as possible because he was so cold, and was minded to build himself a house, but when summer returned again, and he had stretched himself out to sleep, he appeared to himself so big that he thought it was neither a necessary nor a small task to construct a house large enough to contain him. Have you not often noticed also, Chersias," he continued, "those detestable people who at one time restrict themselves to utterly small

(157) έαυτοὺς ὡς στρογγύλως καὶ Λακωνικῶς βιωσομένους, νῦν δέ, εἰ μὴ τὰ πάντων ἔχουσιν ἰδιωτῶν ἅμα καὶ βασιλέων, ὑπ' ἐνδείας ἀπολεῖσθαι νομίζοντας; "

'Ως οὖν δ Χερσίας ἀπεσιώπησεν, ὑπολαβών ὅ Κλεόδωρος, '' ἀλλὰ καὶ τοὺς σοφούς,'' εἶπεν, '' ὑμῶς ὅρῶμεν ἀνίσοις μέτροις τὰς κτήσεις νενεμημένας πρὸς ἀλλήλους ἔχοντας.'' νενεμημένας πρός άλλήλους έχοντας." Καὶ ὁ Κλεόβουλος, '' ὁ γάρ τοι νόμος,'' εἶπεν, '' ὡ βέλτιστε ἀνδρῶν, ὡς ὑφάντης ἐκάστῷ τὸ πρέπον ἡμῶν καὶ τὸ μέτριον καὶ τὸ ἁρμόττον D ἀποδίδωσι. καὶ σὺ καθάπερ τῷ νόμῷ τῷ λόγῷ τρέφων καὶ διαιτῶν καὶ φαρμακεύων τοὺς κάμνοντας οὐκ ἴσον ἐκάστῷ, τὸ δὲ προσῆκον ἀπονέμεις ἅπασιν."

Υπολαβών δ' ό "Αρδαλος, " άρ' οῦν," ἔφη, " καὶ τὸν ἐταῖρον ὑμῶν Σόλωνος δὲ ξένον Ἐπιμενίδην νόμος τις ἀπέχεσθαι τῶν ἄλλων σιτίων κελεύει, τῆς δ' ἀλίμου δυνάμεως ῆν αὐτὸς συντίθησι μικρὸν εἰς τὸ στόμα λαμβάνοντα διημερεύειν ἀνάριστον καὶ ἄδειπνον;"

'Επιστήσαντος δὲ τοῦ λόγου τὸ συμπόσιον ὅ μὲν Θαλῆς ἐπισκώπτων εῦ φρονεῖν ἔφη τὸν 'Επιμενίδην ὅτι μὴ βούλεται πράγματα ἔχειν ἀλῶν τὰ σιτία καὶ πέττων ἑαυτῷ, καθάπερ Ε Πιττακός. ''ἐγὼ γάρ,'' εἶπε, '' τῆς ξένης ἤκουον ἀδούσης πρὸς τὴν μύλην, ἐν Ἐρέσῳ γενόμενος, > άλει, μύλα, άλει· καὶ γὰρ Πιττακὸς ἄλει μεγάλας Μυτιλάνας βασιλεύων."

^a A recipe (probably forged) for making this compound 410 limits as though they purposed to live the simple Spartan life, and at another time they think that, unless they have everything possessed by all private persons and kings as well, they shall die of want?"

As Chersias lapsed into silence, Cleodorus took up the conversation and said, "But we see that the possessions which even you wise men have are distributed by unequal measure, if you be compared one with another."

And Cleobulus said, "Yes, for the law, my good sir, like a weaver, assigns to each one of us so much as is fitting, reasonable, and suitable. And you, using reason as your law in prescribing diet, regimen, and drugs for the sick, do not apportion an equal amount to each one, but the proper amount in all cases."

Ardalus then joined in and said, "Well, then, is there some law which commands that comrade of all of you, Solon's foreign friend, Epimenides, to abstain from all other kinds of food, and by taking into his mouth a bit of the potent 'no-hunger,' a which he himself compounds, to go all day without luncheon and dinner?"

This remark arrested the attention of the whole company, and Thales said jestingly that Epimenides showed good sense in not wishing to have the trouble of grinding his grain and cooking for himself like Pittacus. "For," said he, "when I was at Eresus, I heard the woman at whose house I stayed singing at the mill:

Grind, mill, grind; Yes, for Pittacus used to grind King of great Mytilene."^b may be found in Tzetzes' scholium on Hesiod, Works and Days, 41. ^b Bergk, Poet. Lyr. Graec. iii. p. 673.

VOL. 11

Ο δε Σόλων έφη θαυμάζειν τον Αρδαλον ει τον νόμον ουκ ανέγνωκε της διαίτης του ανδρος εν τοις έπεσι τοις Ησιόδου γεγραμμένον εκείνος γάρ εστιν δ πρώτος Ἐπιμενίδη σπέρματα της τροφής ταύτης παρασχών καὶ ζητεῖν δ διδάξας

F όσον έν μαλάχη τε και ασφοδέλω μέγ' ὄνειαρ.

" Οἴει γάρ," ὁ Περίανδρος εἶπε, " τὸν 'Ησίοδον ἐννοῆσαί τι τοιοῦτον; οὐκ ἐπαινέτην ὅντα φειδοῦς ἀεί, καὶ πρὸς τὰ λιτότατα τῶν ὅψων ὡς ἥδιστα παρακαλεῖν ἡμᾶς; ἀγαθὴ μὲν γὰρ ἡ μαλάχη βρωθῆναι, γλυκὺς δ' ὁ ἀνθέρικος· τὰ δ' ἄλιμα ταῦτα καὶ ἄδιψα φάρμακα μᾶλλον ἢ σιτία πυνθάνομαι καὶ μέλι καὶ τυρόν τινα βαρβαρικὸν δέχεσθαι καὶ σπέρματα πάμπολλα τῶν οὐκ εὐπορίστων. πῶς οῦν ἐῶμεν' 'Ησιόδω τὸ πηδάλιον μέν² ύπέρ καπνοῦ

κείμενον

έργα βοών δ' απόλοιτο και ήμιόνων ταλαεργών, εἰ τοσαύτης δεήσει παρασκευῆς; θαυμάζω δέ 158 σου τὸν ξένον, ὦ Σόλων, εἰ Δηλίοις ἕναγχος ποιησάμενος τὸν μέγαν καθαρμὸν οὐχ ἱστόρησε παρ' αὐτοῖς εἰς τὸ ἱερὸν κομιζόμενα τῆς πρώτης ὑπομνήματα τροφῆς καὶ δείγματα μετ' ἄλλων

¹ $\hat{\epsilon}\hat{\omega}_{\mu\epsilon\nu}$ F.C.B. of many possible emendations; Pohlenz suggests où $\kappa\epsilon\nu$, and $\langle\kappa\alpha\dot{\iota}\tau\dot{\sigma}\rangle$ after $\kappa\epsilon\dot{\iota}_{\mu\epsilon\nu\sigma\nu}$: où $\kappa\dot{\epsilon}\nu$. ² $\mu\dot{\epsilon}\nu$ Hesiod; not in MSS.

 Hesiod, Works and Days, 45, 46; quoted also in Moralia, 527 B. Cf. also Hesiod, Works and Days, 629.
 412

^a Hesiod, Works and Days, 41.

Solon said that he was surprised at Ardalus if he had not read the regulations governing the manner of living of the man in question, which are given in writing in Hesiod's verses. For Hesiod is the one who first sowed in the mind of Epimenides the seeds of this form of nourishment, inasmuch as it was he who taught that one should seek to find

How in mallow and asphodel lies an immense advantage.⁴

"Do you really think," said Periander, "that Hesiod ever had any such idea in mind? Do you not rather think that, since he was always sounding the praises of frugality, he was also summoning us to the simplest of dishes as being the most pleasant? For the mallow is good eating, and the stalk of the asphodel is luscious; but these no-hunger and nothirst drugs (for they are drugs rather than foods), I understand, include in their composition a sweet gum and a cheese found among barbarian peoples, and a great many seeds of a sort hard to procure. How, then, can we concede to Hesiod his

Rudder on high in the smoke suspended, and

All the labours of oxen and stout-toiling mules be abolished,» if there is to be need of all this preparation? I am surprised at your friend from abroad, Solon, if, when he was recently carrying out his great purification for the people of Delos,^c he did not note the memorials and examples of the earliest forms of food being brought into the temple there, including, among other

• Does Plutarch connect Epimenides with the purification of Delos by Peisistratus (Herodotus, i. 67; Thucydides iii. 107)? (158) εὐτελῶν καὶ αὐτοφυῶν μαλάχην καὶ ἀνθέρικον, ῶν εἰκός ἐστι καὶ τὸν Ἡσίοδον προξενεῖν ἡμῖν

αν εικός εύνι και τον Ποιοδού προζενειν ημιν την λιτότητα και την ἀφέλειαν." "Οὐ ταῦτ'," ἔφη, "μόνον," ὁ ᾿Ανάχαρσις, "ἀλλὰ και προς ὑγίειαν ἐν τοῖς μάλιστα τῶν λαχάνων ἐκάτερον ἐπαινεῖται." Και ὁ Κλεόδωρος "ὀρθῶς," ἔφη, "λέγεις. ἰατρικὸς γὰρ Ἡσίοδος, ὡς δηλός ἐστιν οὐκ

Β άμελως ούδ' άπείρως περί διαίτης και κράσεως οίνου καί άρετης ύδατος και λουτρού και γυναικών διαλεγόμενος καὶ συνουσίας καιροῦ καὶ βρεφῶν καθίσεως. ἀλλ' Ἡσιόδου μὲν ἐμοὶ δοκεῖ δικαιότερον Αίσωπος αύτον αποφαίνειν μαθητήν η Έπιμενίδης· τούτω γαρ αρχήν της καλής ταύτης καί ποικίλης και πολυγλώσσου σοφίας ό πρός τήν ἀηδόνα λόγος τοῦ ἰέρακος παρέσχηκεν. ἐγὼ δ' ἂν ἡδέως ἀκούσαιμι Σόλωνος· εἰκὸς γὰρ αὐτὸν πεπύσθαι, πολὺν χρόνον ᾿Αθήνησιν Ἐπιμενίδη συγγενόμενον, ο τι δή παθών ή σοφιζόμενος επί τοιαύτην ήλθε δίαιταν.

15. Και ό Σόλων έφη "τι δε τοῦτ' ἐκείνον εί δεί το φαινόμενον είπειν, και μάλιστα παρα-

¹ ώs] ών Reiske: δs some MSS.

^a Hesic	d. We	orks and	l Days.	405-821.
--------------------	-------	----------	---------	----------

- ^b Ibid. 368-9; 744-5 may be referred to.
- Ibid. 595, 737-741.
 Ibid. 373-5, 699-705.
 Ibid. 735-6, 812.

inexpensive and self-propagated foods, mallow and asphodel, whose plainness and simplicity it is most likely that Hesiod recommends to us."

"Not merely that," said Anacharsis, " but both are commended as herbs that contribute to health also in greatest measure."

"You are quite right," said Cleodorus; "for it is clear that Hesiod has knowledge of medicine, since there is no lack of attention or experience shown in what he has to say about the daily course of life, a mixing wine,^b the great value of water,^c bathing,^d women,^e the proper time for intercourse, , and the way in which infants should sit." But it seems to me that Aesop with better right than Epimenides can declare himself the pupil of Hesiod. For the words of the hawk to the nightingale^h first suggested to Aesop the idea of this beautiful and ingenious wisdom uttered by many different tongues. But I should be glad to listen to Solon; for it is likely that he, having been associated with Epimenides for a long time at Athens, has learned what experience of his or what sophistical argument induced him to resort to such a course of living."

15. Solon said, "What need was there to ask him this? For it is plain that the next best thing to the greatest and highest of all good is to require the minimum amount of food; or is it not the general opinion that the greatest good is to require no food at all?"^j

"Not mine by any means," said Cleodorus, "if I must tell what lies in my mind, especially as a table

Ibid. 750-2.
Ibid. 203.
Cf. Plutarch's Life of Solon, chap. xii. (p. 84 c).
Cf. Xenophon, Memorabilia, i. 6. 10.

- (158) κειμένης τραπέζης, ην ἀναιροῦσιν αἰρομένης τροφης φιλίων θεῶν βωμὸν οὖσαν καὶ ξενίων. ὡς δὲ Θαλης λέγει της γης ἀναιρεθείσης σύγχυσιν τὸν ὅλον ἔξειν κόσμον, οὕτως οἴκου διάλυσις' ἐστι· συναναιρεῖται γὰρ αὐτη πῦρ ἐστιοῦχον ἑστία κρατηρες ὑποδοχαὶ ξενισμοί, φιλανθρωπότατα καὶ πρῶτα κοινωνήματα πρὸς ἀλλήλους, μᾶλλον δὲ D σύμπας ὁ βίος, εἴ γε' διαγωγή τίς ἐστιν ἀνθρώπου πράξεων ἔχουσα διέξοδον, ῶν ἡ της τροφης χρεία
 - D σύμπας ο βίος, εί γε* διαγωγή τίς έστιν άνθρώπου πράξεων ἔχουσα διέξοδον, ῶν ἡ τῆς τροφῆς χρεία καὶ παρασκευὴ τὰς πλείστας παρακαλεῖ. δεινὸν μὲν οῦν, ῶ ἑταῖρε, καὶ τὸ γεωργίας αὐτῆς³ διολλυμένη γὰρ αῦθις ἀπολείπει γῆν ἡμῖν ἀμορφον καὶ ἀκάθαρτον, ὕλης ἀκάρπου καὶ ῥευμάτων πλημμελῶς φερομένων ὑπ' ἀργίας ἀνάπλεων. συναπόλλυσι δὲ καὶ τέχνας πάσας καὶ ἐργασίας, ῶν ἔξαρχός ἐστι καὶ παρέχει βάσιν πάσαις καὶ ὕλην, καὶ τὸ Ε μηδέν εἰσι, ταύτης ἐκποδῶν γενομένης. καταλίωτα δὲ καὶ του συ βείων ἡ μλών ψυ⁵ μικράν
 - λύονται δέ^{*} καὶ τιμαὶ θεῶν, [•]Ηλίψ μὲν⁵ μικράν, «τι δ' ἐλάττω Σελήνῃ χάριν αὐγῆς μόνον καὶ ἀλέας ἀνθρώπων ἐχόντων. ὀμβρίω δὲ Διὶ καὶ προηροσία Δήμητρι καὶ φυταλμίψ Ποσειδῶνι ποῦ βωμός ἐστι, ποῦ δὲ θυσία; πῶς δὲ χαριδότης ὁ Διόνυσος, εἰ δεησόμεθα μηδενὸς ῶν δίδωσι; τί δὲ θύσομεν ἢ σπείσομεν; τίνος δ' ἀπαρξόμεθα; πάντα γὰρ

¹ Reiske would insert ή τροφήs avalpeous after διάλυσις.

² εί γε Xylander: εί τε.

³ αὐτῆs P. Petavius, Tucker, Hartman, and F.C.B., all independently !: αὐτῆ.

⁴ δè added by Meziriacus. ⁵ μ

⁵ μέν idem : δέ.

^a A Stoic definition ; cf. Porphyry quoted by Stobaeus, Eclogae ethicae, ii. p. 201 (272), vol. ii. p. 140 of Meineke's edition.

stands here now, which they do away with when food is done away with, and it is an altar of the gods of friendship and hospitality. And as Thales says that, if the earth be done away with, confusion will possess the universe, so this is the dissolution of the household. For when the table is done away with, there go with it all these other things : the altar fire on the hearth, the hearth itself, wine-bowls, all entertainment and hospitality,-the most humane and the first acts of communion between man and man: rather is all real living abolished, if so be that living is a spending of time by man which involves carrying on a series of activities," most of which are called for by the need of food and its procurement. And a dreadful situation ensues, my friend, regarding agriculture itself. For let agriculture be destroyed, and it leaves us our earth again unsightly and unclean, filled with unfruitful forests and with streams sweeping on unchecked, all owing to man's inaction. And with the destruction of agriculture goes also the destruction of all arts and crafts which she initiates, and for which she supplies the basis and the material; and these all come to naught if she vanishes from the earth. Abolished too are the honours paid to the gods, since men will have but little gratitude to the Sun, and still less to the Moon, for merely light and warmth. Where will there be an altar or where a sacrifice offered to Zeus who sends the rain, or to Demeter who initiates the ploughing, or to Poseidon who watches over the tender crops ? How shall Dionysus be the giver of delights, if we shall require none of the gifts which he gives ? What shall we offer as a sacrifice or libation, and what shall we dedicate as first-fruits? All this means the overταῦτα τῶν μεγίστων ἀνατροπὴν καὶ σύγχυσιν ἔχει πραγμάτων. ἡδονῆς δὲ πάσης μὲν περιέχεσθαι καὶ πάντως ἀλόγιστόν ἐστι, πᾶσαν δὲ φεύγειν καὶ πάντως ἀναίσθήτον. τὴν μὲν οῦν ψυχὴν ἐτέραις F τισὶν ἡδοναῖς χρῆσθαι κρείττοσιν ὑπαρχέτω, τῷ δὲ σώματι λαβεῖν ἡδονὴν τῆς ἀπὸ τοῦ τρέφεσθαι δικαιοτέραν οὐκ ἔστιν εὑρεῖν, ὅπερ οὐδένα λέληθεν ἀνθρώπων· ταύτην' γὰρ ἐν μέσω θέμενοι κοινωνοῦσιν ἀλλήλοις δείπνων καὶ τραπέζης, ἀφροδισίων δὲ νύκτα² καὶ πολὺ προβάλλονται σκότος, ἡγούμενοι ταύτης τὸ κοινωνεῖν ἀναίσχυντον εἶναι καὶ θηριῶδες, ὡς τὸ μὴ κοινωνεῖν ἐκείνης."

Υπολαβών οὖν ἐγώ τοῦ Κλεοδώρου διαλιπόντος, " ἐκεῖνο δ' οὐ λέγεις," εἶπον, " ὅτι καὶ τὸν ὕπνον αμα τῆ τροφῆ συνεκβάλλομεν. ὕπνου δὲ μὴ ὄντος 159 οὐδ' ὄνειρός ἐστιν, ἀλλ' οἴχεται τὸ πρεσβύτατον ἡμῖν μαντεῖον. ἔσται δὲ μονοειδὴς ὁ βίος καὶ τρόπον τινὰ μάτην τὸ σῶμα περικείσεται τῆ ψυχῆ τὰ πλεῖστα γὰρ αὐτοῦ καὶ κυριώτατα τῶν μερῶν ἐπὶ τὴν τροφὴν ὄργανα παρεσκεύασται, γλῶττα καὶ ὀδόντες καὶ στόμαχος καὶ ὅπαρ. ἀργὸν γὰρ οὐδέν ἐστιν οὐδὲ πρὸς ἄλλην συντεταγμένον χρείαν. ὥσθ' ὁ μὴ δεόμενος τροφῆς οὐδὲ σώματος δεῖται. τοῦτο δ' ἦν αῦ τὸ³ αὑτοῦ μὴ δεῖσθαι· σὺν σώματι γὰρ ἡμῶν ἕκαστος. ἡμεῖς μὲν οὖν," ἔφην ἐγώ, " ταύτας τῆ γαστρὶ συμβολὰς εἰσφέρομεν· εἰ δὲ Σόλων ἤ τις ἄλλος τι κατηγορεῖ, ἀκουσόμεθα."

ταύτην Turnebus and Vulcobius: ήν.
 ² δὲ νύκτα Xylander: δεκτὰ.
 ³ ήν αῦ τὸ F.C.B.: ήν αὐτὸ or αὐτὸν ήν.

 $- \eta \nu a 0 + 0 + C.D.; \eta \nu a 0 + 0 0 + a 0 + 0 \nu \eta \nu.$

^a Cf. Moralia, 654 D and 1089 A.

turning and confusion of our highest concerns. To cling to every form of pleasure is utterly irrational, but to avoid every form of pleasure is utterly insensate. Let it be granted that there exist some other superior pleasures for the soul to enjoy, yet it is not possible to discover a way for the body to attain a pleasure more justifiable than that which comes from eating and drinking, and this is a fact which no man can have failed to observe; for this pleasure men put forward openly before all, and share together banquets and table, whereas their carnal delights they veil behind the screen of night and deep darkness, feeling that to share this pleasure openly is shameless and bestial, as it is also not to share the other."^a

I took up the conversation as Cleodorus left off, and said, "But there is another point you do not mention, that we banish sleep along with food ; and with no sleep there can be no dream, and our most ancient and respected form of divination is gone for ever. Life will have a monotonous sameness, and we might say that the encasement of the soul in the body will lack all purpose and effect. The most, and the most important, of the bodily organs, tongue, teeth, stomach, and liver, are provided as instruments of nutrition, no one of them is inactive, nor is it framed for any other form of usefulness. So he who has no need of food has no need of a body either; and that again would mean having no need of himself! For it is with a body that each one of us exists. This then," said I, "makes up the contributions which we offer to the belly; and if Solon or anybody else desires to impeach them in any way, we will listen."

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

B 16. "Πάνυ μέν οῦν," ἔφη ὁ Σόλων, "μὴ καὶ (159) τῶν Αἰγυπτίων ἀκριτώτεροι φανῶμεν, οι τὸν νεκρὸν ἀνατέμνοντες ἔδειξαν τῷ ἡλίῳ, εἶτ αῦ τὰ¹ μὲν εἰς τὸν ποταμὸν κατέβαλον, τοῦ δ' ἄλλου σώματος ώς ήδη καθαροῦ γεγονότος ἐπιμέλονται. τῷ γὰρ ὄντι τοῦτ' ἐστὶ τὸ μίασμα τῆς σαρκὸς ἡμῶν καὶ ὁ τάρταρος ὡς ἐν Ἅιδου, δεινῶν τινων δευμάτων και πνεύματος δμοῦ και πυρός συμπεφυρμένου και νεκρών περίπλεως. ζών γαρ οὐδεἰs² ἀπ' οὐδενὸς τρέφεται ζῶντος, ἀλλὰ θανα-τοῦντες τὰ ἔμψυχα, καὶ τὰ φυόμενα, τῷ τρέφεσθαι καί αύξεσθαι μετέχοντα του ζην, απολλύντες άδι-C κουμεν. απόλλυται γαρ έξ ου πέφυκε το μεταβάλλον είς άλλο, και πασαν φθείρεται φθοράν, όπως αν θατέρου τροφή γένοιτο. το δ' απέχεσθαι σαρκών έδωδής, ώσπερ 'Ορφέα τον παλαιον ίστοροῦσι, σόφισμα μαλλον η φυγη τών περὶ την τροφήν ἀδικημάτων ἐστί. φυγη δὲ μία καὶ καθαρμός έις δικαιοσύνην τέλειος αυτάρκη και απροσδέα γενέσθαι. ῷ δ' ἀνευ κακώσεως ἐτέρου τὴν αὐτοῦ σωτηρίαν ἀμήχανον ὁ θεὸς πεποίηκε, τούτῳ τὴν φύσιν ἀρχὴν ἀδικίας προστέθεικεν. ἀρ' οὖν οὐκ ἀξιον, ὡ φίλε, συνεκτεμεῖν ἀδικία κοιλίαν καὶ στόμαχον και ήπαρ, α καλου μέν ούδενός αισθησιν D ήμιν ούδ' όρεξιν ένδίδωσι, σκεύεσι δε μαγειρικοίς, aῦ τὰ F.C.B.: aὐτὰ.

 οὐδεἰs added by Reiske, perhaps unnecessarily.
 ⁸ τέλειος Reiske: τελειοζ.

^a This somewhat exaggerated description of the digestive tract is probably influenced by Homer, Od. x. 513 and ix. 157, and II. i. 52 and viii. 13.

^b Cf. Lucretius, De rerum natura, iii. 701 ff. 420

16. "Certainly," said Solon, "let us not show ourselves to be less discriminating than the Egyptians, who cut open the dead body and expose it to the sun, and then cast certain parts of it into the river, and perform their offices on the rest of the body, feeling that this part has now at last been made clean. For this, in truth, it is which constitutes the pollution of our flesh and its bowels of Hell, as it were, teeming with frightful streams and wind, intermingled with burning fire and corpses.^a For no living man feeds upon another living creature; nay, we put to death the animate creatures and destroy these things that grow in the ground, which also are partakers in life, in that they absorb food, and increase in size ; and herein we do wrong. For anything that is changed from what it was by nature into something else is destroyed, and it undergoes utter corruption that it may become the food of another.^b But to refrain entirely from eating meat, as they record of Orpheus ° of old, is rather a quibble than a way of avoiding wrong in regard to food. . The one way of avoidance and of keeping oneself pure, from the point of view of righteousness, is to become sufficient unto oneself and to need nothing from any other source. But in the case of man or beast for whom God has made his own secure existence impossible without his doing injury to another, it may be said that in the nature which God has inflicted upon him lies the source of wrong. Would it not, then, be right and fair, my friend, in order to cut out injustice, to cut out also bowels and stomach and liver, which afford us no perception or craving for anything noble, but are

^c Orpheus is said to have abstained from animal food (Euripides, Hippolytus, 992; Plato, Laws, p. 782 c). (159) οία κοπίδες και λέβητες, τα δε μυλωθρικοίς και καμίνοις και φυραμούχοις και μακτηρίοις έοικεν; άτεχνώς δέ των πολλών ίδοι τις αν ώσπερ έν μυλῶνι τῷ σώματι τὴν ψυχὴν ἐγκεκαλυμμένην² ἀεὶ περὶ τὴν τῆς τροφῆς³ χρείαν κυκλοῦσαν, ὤσπερ άμέλει και ήμεις άρτι μέν ούθ' έωρωμεν άλλήλους ουτ' ήκούομεν, άλλ' έκαστος έγκεκυφώς έδούλευε τῆ περί την τροφην χρεία. νυνί δ' ἐπαρθεισῶν τῶν τραπεζών έλεύθεροι γεγονότες ώς όρας, έστεφανωμένοι περί λόγους διατρίβομεν και άλλήλοις σύν-Ε εσμεν και σχολήν άγομεν, είς το μή δεισθαι τροφής έληλυθότες. άρ' ούν, άνπερ ή νύν ούσα περί ήμας έξις απαυστος διαμένη παρά πάντα τον βίον, οὐκ άει σχολήν έξομεν άλλήλοις συνείναι, μή δεδιότες πενίαν μηδ' είδότες πλούτον; ό γαρ των περιττών ζήλος εύθύς ακολουθεί και συνοικίζεται τη χρεία των άναγκαίων.

" 'Αλλ' οἴεται δεῖν τροφὴν εἶναι Κλεόδωρος, ὅπως τράπεζαι καὶ κρατῆρες ὦσι καὶ Δήμητρι⁴ καὶ Κόρῃ θυσίαι.⁵ ἔτερος δέ τις ἀξιούτω μάχας εἶναι καὶ πόλεμον, ἶνα καὶ τείχῃ καὶ νεωσοίκους καὶ F ὅπλοθήκας ἔχωμεν καὶ θύωμεν ἐκατομφόνια, καθάπερ φασὶ νόμον εἶναι Μεσσηνίοις. ἄλλον δὲ πρὸς

¹ φυραμούχοις F.C.B. : φρεωρούχοις.

² έγκεκαλυμμένην] έγκεκλημένην (better -κλεισ-) Tucker, but ef. 159 A. ³ τροφήs Amyot: ψυχήs.

⁴ ώσι και Δήμητρι Hercher: ώσιν αι δήμητρι.

5 θυσίαι Larsen: θύονται (θύεται) έτι, or θύων έτι.

^a The explanation may be found in Pausanias, iv. 19; 422 like cooking utensils, such as choppers and kettles, and, in another respect, like a baker's outfit, ovens and dough-containers and kneading-bowls? Indeed, in the case of most people, one can see that their soul is absolutely confined in the darkness of the body as in a mill, making its endless rounds in its concern over its need of food ; just as we ourselves, only a few minutes ago, as a matter of course, neither saw nor listened to one another, but each one was bending down, enslaved to his need of food. But now that the tables have been removed, we have, as you see, been made free, and, with garlands on, we are spending our time in conversation and in the enjoyment of one another's society, and we have the leisure to do this now that we have come to require no more food for a time. Assuming, then, that the state in which we find ourselves at the present moment will persist without interruption throughout our whole life, shall we not always have leisure to enjoy one another's society, having no fear of poverty and no knowledge of what wealth is? For craving for the superfluous follows close upon the use of necessities, and soon becomes a settled habit.

"But Cleodorus imagines that there ought to be food, so that there may be tables and wine-bowls and sacrifices to Demeter and the Daughter. Then let the next man argue that it is but right and proper that there be battles and war, so that we may have fortifications and dockyards and arsenals, and may offer sacrifice to celebrate the slaying of an hundred foemen,^a as they say is the custom among the Messenians. Still another man, I imagine, may enter-cf. also Plutarch, Moralia, 660 F, and Life of Romulus, chap. xxv. (p. 33 D).

την ύγίειαν οίμαι χαλεπαίνειν. δεινόν γάρ εί μηδενός νοσούντος ού στρωμνής έτι μαλακής όφελος ού κλίνης, ούκ 'Ασκληπιώ θύσομεν ούκ αποτροπαίοις, ιατρική δε μετ' οργάνων και φαρμάκων αποκείσεται τοσούτων ἀκλεής καὶ ἀπόθεστος. η τί ταῦτ' ἐκείνων διαφέρει; καὶ γὰρ ἡ τροφὴ λιμοῦ φάρμακον προσάγεται, καὶ θεραπεύειν ξαυτοὺς λέγονται 160 πάντες οι τρεφόμενοι δίαιταν,² ούχ ώς ήδύ τι καὶ κεχαρισμένον ἀλλ' ὡς ἀναγκαῖον τοῦτο τῆ φύσει πράττοντες. έπει λύπας γε³ πλείονας έστιν άπό της τροφής των ήδονων γιγνομένας κατ-αριθμήσαι, μαλλον δ' ή μεν ήδονή και τόπον έχει βραχύν έν τω σώματι και χρόνον ου πολύν ή δέ περί την διοίκησιν αὐτης ἀσχολία καὶ δυσχέρεια τί δει λέγειν όσων αισχρών και όδυνηρών ήμας έμπίπλησιν; οίμαι γὰρ εἰς τοσαῦτα βλέψαντα τὸν Ὅμηρον ἀποδείξει κεχρῆσθαι περὶ θεῶν τοῦ μὴ αποθνήσκειν τω μή τρέφεσθαι > ού γὰρ σῖτον ἔδουσ', οὐ πίνουσ' αἴθοπα οἶνον· τοὕνεκ' ἀναίμονές εἰσι καὶ ἀθάνατοι καλέονται,

Β ώς μὴ μόνον τοῦ ζῆν ἀλλὰ καὶ τοῦ ἀποθνήσκειν τὴν τροφὴν ἐφόδιον οὖσαν. ἐκ ταύτης γὰρ αἱ νόσοι, συντρεφόμεναι⁴ τοῖς σώμασιν οὐκ ἔλαττον ἐνδείας κακὸν ἔχουσι τὴν πλήρωσιν· πολλάκις δὲ καὶ μεῖζόν ἐστιν ἔργον τοῦ πορίσαι τροφὴν καὶ συν-

¹ $d\pi \delta \theta \epsilon \sigma \tau os$ Wyttenbach: $d\pi \delta \theta \epsilon \tau os$.

² δίαιταν] και διαιτάν Duebner.
 ³ γε Wyttenbach: τε.
 ⁴ συντρεφόμεναι] συντρέφονται Larsen, but it would be better to supply (if necessary) some verb like γίγνονται after νόσοι.

^b Cf. Moralia, 731 D, where the same idea is put in different words.

a Il. v. 341.

tain a violent hatred against health; for it will be a terrible thing if nobody is ill, and there is no longer any use for a soft bed or couch, and we shall not offer sacrifice to Asclepius or the averting deities, and the profession of medicine together with its numerous instruments and remedies shall be consigned to in-glorious desuetude and contempt. Yet, what difference is there between this sort of reasoning and the other? The fact is that food is taken as a remedy for hunger, and all who use food in a prescribed way are said to be giving themselves treatment, not with the thought they are doing something pleasant and grateful, but that this is necessary to comply with Nature's imperative demand. Indeed, it is possible to enumerate more pains than pleasures derived from food; or rather may it be said that the pleasure affects but a very limited area in the body, and lasts for no long time; but as for the ugly and painful experiences crowded upon us by the bother and discomfort which wait upon digestion, what need to tell their number? I think that Homer a had their very number in view when, in the case of the gods, he finds an argument to prove that they do not die in the fact that they do not live by food :

Since they eat no bread and drink no wine brightly sparkling,

Therefore their bodies are bloodless, and they are called the Immortals.

He intimates by this that food is not only an element conducive to life, but that it is also conducive to death. For it is from this source that diseases come, thriving on the very same food as men's bodies,^b which find no less ill in fulness than in fasting. For oftentimes it is harder work to use up and again to 425 (160) αγαγείν τὸ καταναλώσαι καὶ διαφορῆσαι πάλιν εἰς τὸ σῶμα παραγενομένην. ἀλλ' ὥσπερ ἂν' διαποροίεν αἱ Δαναΐδες τίνα βίον βιώσονται καὶ τί πράζουσιν ἀπαλλαγείσαι τῆς περὶ τὸν πίθον λατρείας καὶ πληρώσεως, οὕτω διαποροῦμεν ἡμεῖς, C εἰ γένοιτο παύσασθαι φοροῦντας εἰς τὴν σάρκα

C εἰ γένοιτο παύσασθαι φοροῦντας εἰς τὴν σάρκα τὴν ἄτρυτον ἐκ γῆς ἅμα καὶ θαλάττης τοσαῦτα, τἰ πράξομεν ἀπειρία τῶν καλῶν τὸν ἐπὶ τοῖς ἀναγκαίοις στέργοντες βίον. ὥσπερ οὖν οἱ δουλεύσαντες, ὅταν ἐλευθερωθῶσιν, ἃ πάλαι τοῖς δεσπόταις ἕπραττον ὑπηρετοῦντες, ταῦτα πράττουσιν αὑτοῖς καὶ δι' αὐτούς, οὕτως ἡ ψυχὴ νῦν μὲν τρέφει τὸ σῶμα πολλοῖς πόνοις καὶ ἀσχολίαις, εἰ δ' ἀπαλλαγείη τῆς λατρείας, αὐτὴν δήπουθεν ἐλευθέραν γενομέψην θρέψει καὶ βιώσεται, εἰς αὑτὴν ὅρῶσα καὶ τὴν ἀλήθειαν, οὐδενὸς περισπῶντος οὐδ' ἀπάγοντος."

Τὰ μέν οὖν ῥηθέντα περὶ τροφῆς, ѽ Νίκαρχε, ταῦτ ἦν.

17. "Ετι δέ τοῦ Σόλωνος λέγοντος εἰσῆλθε Γόργος ὁ Περιάνδρου ἀδελφός· ἐτύγχανε γὰρ εἰς
D Ταίναρον ἀπεσταλμένος ἔκ τινων χρησμῶν, τῷ Ποσειδῶνι θυσίαν καὶ θεωρίαν ἀπάγων. ἀσπασαμένων δ' αὐτὸν ἡμῶν καὶ τοῦ Περιάνδρου προσαγαγομένου καὶ φιλήσαντος καθίσας παρ' αὐτὸν ἐπὶ τῆς κλίνης ἀπήγγειλεν ἅττα δὴ πρὸς μόνον ἐκεῖνον, ὁ δ' ἡκροᾶτο, πολλὰ πάσχοντι πρὸς τὸν λόγον ὅμοιος ὥν. τὰ μὲν γὰρ ἀχθόμενος τὰ δ' ἀγανακτῶν ἐφαίνετο, πολλάκις δ' ἀπιστῶν, εἶτα θαυμάζων.

1 åv Larsen: el.

" Cf. Porphyry, De abstinentia, iii. 27.

distribute food, after it has been taken into the body, than it was to procure it and get it together in the first place. But just as the Danaids would be at a loss to know what kind of life and occupation they should follow if they should be relieved of their drudgery in trying to fill the great jar, so we are at a loss to know, if perchance we should have the opportunity to cease from heaping into this relentless flesh of ours all the multitudinous products of land and sea, what we shall do, since, owing to lack of acquaintance with noble things, we now content ourselves with the life conditioned on necessities. Just as men who have been slaves, when they are set free, do for themselves on their own account those very things which they used to do in service to their masters,^a so the soul now supports the body with much toil and trouble, but if it be relieved of its drudgery, it will quite naturally maintain itself in its new freedom and live with an eye to itself and the truth, since there will be nothing to distract or divert it."

This then, Nicarchus, is what was said on the subject of food.

17. While Solon was still speaking, Gorgus, Periander's brother, came in; for it happened that, in consequence of certain oracles, he had been sent to Taenarum, in charge of a sacred mission to offer due sacrifice to Poseidon. After we had greeted him, and Periander had embraced and kissed him, Gorgus sat down beside his brother on the couch, and gave him a report intended apparently for him alone, and he, as he listened, seemed much affected at the story; for he appeared in some ways troubled, in some ways indignant, and oftentimes incredulous,

(160) τέλος δὲ γελάσας πρὸς ἡμᾶς "βούλομαι μέν," ἔφη, "πρὸς τὸ παρὸν φράσαι τὸ προσηγγελμένον Ε ὀκνῶ δ' ἀκούσας Θαλέω ποτ' εἰπόντος ὅτι δεῦ τὰ μὲν εἰκότα λέγειν, τὰ δ' ἀμήχανα σιωπᾶν."

Υπολαβών οὖν ὁ Bías '' ἀλλὰ καὶ τοῦτ','' ἔφη, '' Θαλέω τὸ σοφόν ἐστιν, ὅτι δεῖ τοῖς μὲν ἐχθροῖς καὶ περὶ τῶν πιστῶν ἀπιστεῖν, τοῖς δὲ φίλοις καὶ τὰ ἄπιστα πιστεύειν, ἐχθροὺς μέν, ἔγωγ' ἡγοῦμαι, τοὺς πονηροὺς καὶ ἀνοήτους, φίλους δὲ τοὺς χρηστοὺς καὶ φρονίμους αὐτοῦ καλοῦντος. οὐκοῦν,'' ἔφη, '' λεκτέον εἰς ἅπαντας, ῶ Γόργε, μᾶλλον δ' ἀκτέον ἐπὶ τοὺς νέους τούτους διθυράμβους ὑπερφθεγγόμενον ὅν ἥκεις λόγον ἡμῖν κομίζων.''

18. "Εφη τοίνυν Γόργος ὅτι, τῆς θυσίας ἐφ' ἡμέρας τρεῖς συντελεσθείσης ὑπ' αὐτοῦ καὶ τῆ F τελευταία παννυχίδος οὔσης καὶ χορείας τινὸς καὶ παιδιᾶς παρὰ τὸν αἰγιαλόν, ἡ μὲν σελήνη κατέλαμπεν εἰς τὴν θάλατταν, οὐκ ὅντος δὲ πνεύματος ἀλλὰ νηνεμίας καὶ γαλήνης, πόρρωθεν ἀφεωρᾶτο φρίκη κατιοῦσα παρὰ τὴν ἄκραν, ἀφρόν τινα καὶ ψόφον ἄγουσα τῷ ῥοθίῳ περὶ αὐτὴν πολύν, ὥστε πάντας ἐπὶ τὸν τόπον οἶ προσώκελλε¹ καταδραμεῖν θαυμάσαντας. πρὶν δ' εἰκάσαι τὸ προσφερόμενον ὑπὸ τάχους, δελφῦνες ὥφθησαν, οἱ μὲν ἀθρόοι πέριξ κυκλοῦντες, οἱ δ' ὑφηγούμενοι τοῦ αἰγιαλοῦ πρὸς τὸ λειότατον, ἄλλοι δ' ἐξόπισθεν, οἶον περιέποντες.

¹ προσώκελλε F.C.B.: προσέκελλε Tucker: προσέμελλε or προσέβαλλε. 428 and then again amazed. Finally with a laugh he said to us, "In the circumstances I should like to tell the news which I have just heard, but I hesitate, since I heard Thales say once that what is probable one should tell, but what is impossible one should shroud in silence."

Thereupon Bias, interrupting, said, "But Thales is responsible also for this sage remark, that one should not believe enemies even about things believable, and should believe friends even about things unbelievable; the name 'enemies' he assigned, I think, to the wicked and foolish, and 'friends' to the good and sensible. And so, Gorgus," he continued, "it should be told to all, or rather, to compete with those newly invented dithyrambs,^a there should be heard the stronger notes of the story which your arrival has brought to us."

18. Gorgus then told us that his offering of the sacrifice had taken three days, and on the last day there was a dance and merry-making, lasting the whole night long, down by the shore. The moon was shining bright upon the sea; there was no wind, but a perfect calm and stillness, when, afar off, was seen a ripple coming towards land close by the promontory, attended by some foam and much noise from its rapid movement, so that they all ran down in amazement to the place where it was coming to shore. Before they could guess what was bearing down upon them so rapidly, dolphins were seen, some forming a dense encircling line, others leading the way to the smoothest part of the shore, and still others behind, forming, as it were, a rear-guard. In their midst,

^e Probably a covert reference to Arion as the inventor of the dithyramb (Herodotus, i. 23).

161 ἐν μέσω δ' ἀνεῖχεν ὑπὲρ τῆς θαλάττης ὄγκος ἀσαφὴς καὶ ἄσημος ὀχουμένου σώματος, μέχρι οῦ συναγαγόντες ἐἰς ταὐτὸ καὶ συνεποκείλαντες ἐξέθηκαν ἐπὶ γῆν ἄνθρωπον ἕμπνουν καὶ κινούμενον, aὐτοὶ δὲ πάλιν πρὸς τὴν ἄκραν ἀναφερόμενοι μᾶλλον ἢ πρότερον ἐξήλλοντο, παίζοντες ὑφ' ἡδονῆς τινος ὡς ἔοικε καὶ σκιρτῶντες. '' ἡμῶν δ','' ὁ Γόργος ἔφη, '' πολλοὶ μὲν διαταραχθέντες ἔφυγον ἀπὸ τῆς θαλάττης, ὀλίγοι δὲ μετ' ἐμοῦ θαρρήσαντες προσελθεῖν ἐγνώρισαν ᾿Αρίονα τὸν κιθαρωδών, Β αὐτὸν τοὕνομα φθεγγόμενον ἑαυτοῦ, καὶ τῆ στολῆ καταφανῆ γενόμενον. ῷ κιθαρωδῶν ἐχρήσατο.

"Κομίσαντες οῦν ἐπὶ σκηνὴν αὐτόν, ὡς οὐδὲν είχε κακὸν ἀλλ' ἢ διὰ τάχος καὶ ῥοῦζον ἐφαίνετο τῆς φορῶς ἐκλελυμένος καὶ κεκμηκώς, ἠκούσαμεν λόγον ἄπιστον ἅπασι πλὴν ἡμῶν τῶν θεασαμένων τὸ τέλος. ἔλεγε γὰρ ᾿Αρίων ὡς πάλαι μὲν ἐγνωκὼς ἐκ τῆς Ἱταλίας ἀπαίρειν, Περιάνδρου δὲ γράψαντος αὐτῷ προθυμότερος γενόμενος ὅλκάδος Κορινθίας παραφανείσης εὐθὺς ἐπιβὰς ἀναχθείη, μετρίῳ δὲ πνεύματι χρωμένων ἡμέρας τρεῖς αἴσθοιτο τοὺς C ναύτας ἐπιβουλεύοντας ἀνελεῖν αὐτόν, εἶτα καὶ παρὰ τοῦ κυβερνήτου πύθοιτο κρύφα μηνύσαντος ὡς τῆ νυκτὶ τοῦτο δρῶν αὐτοῖς εἴη δεδογμένον. ἔρημος οῦν ῶν βοηθείας καὶ ἀπορῶν ὅρμῆ τινι χρήσαιτο δαιμονίψ τὸ μὲν σῶμα κοσμῆσαι καὶ uplifted above the sea, was a mass like a man's body being borne along, but indistinct and ill-defined, until the dolphins drew near together, and with one accord came close to the shore, and deposited on land a human being, in whom was still the breath of life and power to move; then they themselves put forth again towards the promontory leaping even higher than before, and sporting and frolicking apparently for joy. "Many of us," continued Gorgus, "were panic-stricken, and fled from the sea-shore, but a few, including myself, grew bold enough to draw near, and they recognized Arion the harper, who pronounced his own name himself, and was easily recognizable by his dress; for he happened to be clad in the ceremonial robes which he had worn when he played and sang.

¹ συναγαγόντες] συνάγοντες nearly all Mss., perhaps rightly. 430

"We accordingly conducted him to a tent, since there was really nothing the matter with him, save that he seemed somewhat unstrung and wearied by the swiftness and rush of his ride, and we heard from him a story, incredible to all men except to us who with our own eyes had seen its conclusion. Arion said that some time ago he had resolved to leave Italy, and the receipt of a letter from Periander had only stimulated his desire the more, and when a Corinthian merchant-vessel appeared there, he had at once embarked and sailed away from that land. For three days they were favoured by a moderate breeze, and there came over Arion the feeling that the sailors were plotting to make away with him, and later he learned from the pilot, who secretly gave him the information, that they were resolved to do the deed that night. Helpless and at his wits' end, he put into execution an impulse, divinely inspired, to adorn

(161) λαβείν εντάφιον αύτω τον εναγώνιον ετι ζων κόσμον, ἐπάσαι¹ δὲ τῷ βίω τελευτῶν καὶ μὴ γενέσθαι κατά τοῦτο τῶν κύκνων ἀγεννέστερος. έσκευασμένος ούν και προειπών ότι προθυμία τις αὐτὸν ἔχοι τῶν νόμων διελθεῖν τὸν Πυθικὸν ὑπέρ σωτηρίας αύτοῦ καὶ τῆς νεώς καὶ τῶν ἐμπλεόντων, D καταστάς παρά τόν τοίχον έν πρύμνη καί τινα θεών πελαγίων ἀνάκλησιν προανακρουσάμενος ἄδοι τόν νόμον. και όσον ούπω μεσούντος αύτου καταδύοιτο μέν ό ηλιος είς την θάλατταν, άναφαίνοιτο δ' ή Πελοπόννησος. οὐκέτ' οὖν τῶν ναυτῶν τὴν νύκτα περιμενόντων άλλά χωρούντων έπι τον φόνον, ίδών ξίφη γεγυμνωμένα και παρακαλυπτόμενον ήδη τον κυβερνήτην, αναδραμών ρίψειεν έαυτον ώς δυνατον ήν μάλιστα πόρρω της όλκάδος. πρίν δ' όλον καταδύναι τό σώμα δελφίνων ύποδραμόντων άναφέροιτο, μεστός ῶν ἀπορίας καὶ ἀγνοίας καὶ ταραχῆς τὸ πρῶτον ἐπεὶ δὲ ῥαστώνη τῆς ὀχήσεως ἦν, καὶ πολλοὺς ἑώρα ἀθροιζομένους Ε περὶ αὐτὸν εὐμενῶς καὶ διαδεχομένους ὡς ἀναγκαΐον έν μέρει λειτούργημα και προσήκον πασιν, ή δ' όλκας απολειφθείσα πόρρω τοῦ τάχους αίσθησιν παρείχε, μήτε τοσούτον έφη δέους πρός θάνατον αὐτῷ μήτ' ἐπιθυμίας τοῦ ζην ὄσον φιλοτιμίας έγγενέσθαι πρός την σωτηρίαν, ώς θεοφιλής άνηρ φανείη και λάβοι περί θεών δόξαν βέβαιον. άμα δε καθορών τον ουρανόν αστέρων περίπλεων και τήν σελήνην ανίσχουσαν ευφεγγή και καθαράν, his person, and to take for his shroud, while he was still living, the elaborate attire which he wore at competitions, and to sing a final song to life as he ended it, and not to prove himself in this respect less generous than the swans. Accordingly he made himself ready, and, first saying that he was possessed by a desire to sing through one of his songs-the ode to Pythian Apollo -as a supplication for the safety of himself and the ship and all on board, he took his stand beside the bulwark at the stern, and, after a prelude invoking the gods of the sea, he began the ode. He had not even half finished it as the sun was sinking into the sea and the Peloponnesus becoming visible. The sailors therefore waited no longer for the night-time, but advanced to the murderous deed; whereupon Arion, seeing knives bared and the pilot already covering up his face, ran back and threw himself as far away from the ship as possible. But before his body was entirely submerged, dolphins swam beneath him, and he was borne upward, full of doubt and uncertainty and confusion at first. But when he began to feel at ease in being carried in this manner, and saw many dolphins gathering around him in a friendly way, and relieving one another as though such service in alternation were obligatory and incumbent upon all, and the sight of the ship left far behind gave a means to measure their speed, there came into his thoughts, as he said, not so much a feeling of fear in the face of death, or a desire to live, as a proud longing to be saved that he might be shown to be a man loved by the gods, and that he might gain a sure opinion regarding them. At the same time, observing that the sky was dotted with stars, and the moon was rising bright and clear,

1 ἐπậσαι F.C.B. (cf. e.g. Moralia, 347 E): έξậσαι.

Γ έστώσης δὲ πάντῃ τῆς θαλάττης ἀκύμονος ὥσπερ τρίβον ἀνασχιζόμενον τῷ δρόμῳ, διανοεῖσθαι πρὸς αύτὸν ὡς οὐκ ἔστιν εἶς ὅ τῆς Δίκης ὀφθαλμός, ἀλλὰ πᾶσι τούτοις ἐπισκοπεῖ κύκλῳ ὁ θεὸς τὰ πραττόμενα περὶ γῆν τε καὶ θάλατταν. τούτοις δὲ δὴ τοῖς λογισμοῖς ἔφη τὸ κάμνον αὐτῷ καὶ βαρυνόμενον ἤδη τοῦ σώματος ἀναφέρεσθαι, καὶ τέλος ἐπεὶ τῆς ἄκρας ἀπαντώσης ἀποτόμου καὶ ὑψηλῆς εῦ πως φυλαζάμενοι καὶ κάμψαντες ἐν χρῷ παρενήχοντο¹ τῆς γῆς ὥσπερ εἰς λιμένα σκάφος ἀσφαλῶς^{*} 162 κατάγοντες, παντάπασιν αἰσθέσθαι θεοῦ κυβερνήσει γεγονέναι τὴν κομιδήν.

"Ταῦθ'," ὁ Γόργος ἔφη, " τοῦ 'Αρίονος εἰπόντος, ἠρόμην αὐτὸν ὅποι³ τὴν ναῦν οἴεται κατασχήσειν. ὁ δὲ πάντως μὲν εἰς Κόρινθον, πολὺ μέντοι καθυστερεῖν· αὐτὸν γὰρ ἑσπέρας ἐκπεσόντα πεντακοσίων οὐ μεῖον οἴεσθαι σταδίων δρόμον κομισθῆναι, καὶ γαλήνην εὐθὺς κατασχεῖν." οὐ μὴν ἀλλ' ἑαυτὸν ὁ Γόργος ἔφη πυθόμενον τοῦ τε ναυκλήρου τοὕνομα καὶ τοῦ κυβερνήτου καὶ τῆς νεὼς τὸ παράσημον ἐκπέμψαι πλοῖα καὶ στρατιώτας ἐπὶ τὰς κα-σημον ἐκπέμψαι πλοΐα και στρατιώτας ἐπι τὰς κα-Β τάρσεις παραφυλάξοντας· τὸν δ' ᾿Αρίονα μετ' αὐτοῦ κομίζειν ἀποκεκρυμμένον, ὅπως μὴ προαισθόμενοι τὴν σωτηρίαν διαφύγοιεν· ὅντως οὖν ἐοικέναι θεία τύχη τὸ πρᾶγμα· παρεῖναι γὰρ αὐτοὺς ἅμα δεῦρο και πυνθάνεσθαι τῆς νεὼς κεκρατημένης ὑπὸ τῶν στρατιωτῶν συνειλῆφθαι τοὺς ἐμπόρους και ναύτας.

¹ παρενήχοντο Wyttenbach: γὰρ ἐνήχοντο, οτ ἐνήχοντο παρὰ in one Ms.

² ἀσφαλῶs Reiske: ἀσφαλέs. ⁸ ὅποι Hatzidakis: ὅπου.

^a Possibly a reference to a line of an unknown tragedian found in Moralia, 1124 F. 434 while the sea everywhere was without a wave as if a path were being opened for their course, he bethought himself that the eye of Justice is not a single eye only,^a but through all these eyes of hers God watches in every direction the deeds that are done here and there both on land and on the sea. By these reflections, he said, the weariness and heaviness which he was already beginning to feel in his body were relieved, and when at the last, as the jutting promontory, rugged and lofty, appeared in their path, they rounded it with great caution, and skirted close to the land as if they were bringing a boat safely into harbour, then he fully realized that his rescue had been guided by God's hand.

"When Arion had told all this," continued Gorgus, " I asked him where he thought the ship would make harbour; and he replied that it would surely come to Corinth, but its arrival would be much later; for he thought that after he had thrown himself overboard in the evening, he had been carried a distance of not less than fifty or more miles, and a calm had fallen immediately." Gorgus went on to say that he had ascertained the name of the captain and of the pilot, and the ship's emblem, and had sent out boats and soldiers to the landing-places to keep strict. watch; moreover, he had brought Arion with him, carefully concealed, so that the guilty ones might not gain any premature information of his rescue from death, and make good their escape; and in fact the whole affair seemed like an event divinely directed, for his men were here just as he arrived, and he learned that the ship had been seized, and the traders and sailors arrested.

(162) 19. Ο μέν ούν Περίανδρος ἐκέλευσεν εὐθύς έξαναστάντα τον Γόργον είς φυλακήν αποθέσθαι τούς άνδρας οῦ μηδείς αὐτοῖς πρόσεισι μηδὲ φράσει τὸν 'Αρίονα σεσωσμένον.

Ο δ' Αΐσωπος " ἀλλ' ὑμεῖς," ἔφη, " τοὺς ἐμοὺς χλευάζετε κολοιοὺς καὶ κόρακας εἰ διαλέγονται δελφινες δε τοιαθτα νεανιεύονται;

Κάγώ πρός αὐτόν, " άλλο τι λέγωμεν," έφην, C " ὦ Αἴσωπε· τούτω δὲ τῷ λόγω πιστευομένω καὶ γραφομένω παρ' ήμιν πλέον η χίλι' έτη διαγέγονεν καὶ ἀπὸ τῶν Ἰνοῦς καὶ Ἀθἀμαντος χρόνων." Ο δὲ Σόλων ὑπολαβών " ἀλλὰ ταῦτα μέν, ὦ Διόκλεις, έγγυς θεών έστω και ύπερ ήμας. άνθρώπινον δέ και πρός ήμας το του Ησιόδου πάθος· ἀκήκοας γὰρ ἴσως τὸν λόγον." "Οὐκ ἔγωγ'," εἶπον.¹

" `Αλλά μην άξιον πυθέσθαι. Μιλησίου γάρ, ώς ἕοικεν, ανδρός, ῷ ξενίας ἐκοινώνει ὁ Ἡσίοδος D και διαίτης, έν Λοκροΐς, τη του ξένου θυγατρί κρύφα συγγενομένου και φωραθέντος υποψίαν έσχεν ώς γνούς απ' αρχης και συνεπικρύψας το άδίκημα, μηδενός ών αίτιος, όργης δε καιρώ και διαβολής περιπεσών άδίκως. ἀπέκτειναν γαρ αὐτὸν οί της παιδίσκης άδελφοι περί το Λοκρικον Νέμειον ένεδρεύσαντες, και μετ' αὐτοῦ τὸν ἀκόλουθον, ὦ Τρωίλος ήν όνομα. των δε σωμάτων είς την 1 clmov Beiske : clmev.

^a Ino also threw herself into the sea when the crazed Athamas was about to kill her, and was metamorphosed into the sea-goddess Leucothea.

^b The story is referred to as early as Thucydides (iii. 96), and seems to have received some embellishments later. Of the many references to the story (which may be found in 436

19. Accordingly Periander bade Gorgus to withdraw at once, and have these men put into prison where nobody should have access to them or tell them that Arion had been rescued.

"Well! well!" said Aesop, "you all make fun of my jackdaws and crows if they talk with one another, and yet dolphins indulge in such pranks as this!"

"Let's change the subject, Aesop," said I to him; "more than a thousand years have elapsed since this dolphin story has been believed and committed to writing in Greek lands, even from the days of Ino and Athamas." ^a Solon here entered the conversation: "Well, Diocles, let it be granted that these things are near to the gods and far beyond us; but what happened to Hesiod is human and within our ken. Very likely you have heard the story."^b

"No, I have not," said I.

"Well, it is really worth hearing, and so here it is. A man from Miletus, it seems, with whom Hesiod shared lodging and entertainment in Locris, had secret relations with the daughter of the man who entertained them; and when he was detected, Hesiod fell under suspicion of having known about the misconduct from the outset, and of having helped to conceal it, although he was in nowise guilty, but only the innocent victim of a fit of anger and prejudice. For the girl's brothers killed him, lying in wait for him in the vicinity of the temple of Nemean Zeus in Locris, and with him they killed his servant whose name was Troilus. The dead bodies were Wyttenbach's note on the passage) perhaps the most interesting is in the Contest of Homer and Hesiod, lines 215-254 of Allen's edition (in the Oxford Classical Texts, 1912), which also assigns names to the persons concerned in it.

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

(162) θάλατταν ώσθέντων το μέν τοῦ Τρωίλου, εἰς τον Δάφνον ποταμον έξω φορούμενον, επεσχέθη περι-κλύστω χοιράδι μικρον ύπερ την θάλατταν άν-εχούση· και μέχρι νῦν Τρωίλος ή χοιρὰς καλειται· Ε τοῦ δ' Ἡσιόδου τον νεκρον εὐθὺς ἀπο γῆς ὑπολαβούσα δελφίνων άγέλη πρός το 'Ρίον κατά την Μολύκρειαν έκόμιζε. ετύγχανε δε Λοκροῖς ή τῶν Ρίων καθεστώσα θυσία και πανήγυρις, ην άγουσιν έτι νῦν ἐπιφανῶς περί τὸν τόπον ἐκείνον. ὡς δ' ώφθη προσφερόμενον το σώμα, θαυμάσαντες ώς είκος επί την άκτην κατέδραμον, και γνωρίσαντες έτι πρόσφατον τον νεκρόν απαντα δεύτερα του ζητείν τον φόνον εποιούντο διά την δόξαν του Ησιόδου. καὶ τοῦτο μὲν ταχέως ἔπραξαν, εὐρόντες τοὺς φονεῖς· αὐτούς τε γὰρ κατεπόντισαν ζῶντας καὶ τὴν οἰκίαν κατέσκαψαν. ἐτάφη δ' ὁ 'Ησίοδος πρός τῷ Νεμείω· τὸν δὲ τάφον οἱ πολλοὶ τῶν ξένων ούκ ισασιν, άλλ' αποκέκρυπται ζητούμενος ύπ' F 'Ορχομενίων, ως φασι, βουλομένων κατὰ χρησμὸν ἀνελέσθαι τὰ λείψανα καὶ θάψαι παρ' αὐτοῖς. εἴπερ οὖν οὖτως ἔχουσιν οἰκείως καὶ φιλανθρώπως πρός τούς αποθανόντας, έτι μάλλον είκός έστι τοις ζώσι βοηθείν, και μάλιστα κηληθέντας αύλοις ή τισι μέλεσι. τουτί γαρ ήδη πάντες ίσμεν, ότι μουσική τὰ ζῷα ταῦτα χαίρει καὶ διώκει, καὶ παρανήχεται τοῖς ἐλαυνομένοις πρὸς ῷδὴν καὶ αὐλὸν ἐν εὐδία πορείαις τερπόμενα. χαίρει δὲ 1 κατά την Μολύκρειαν Palmer: και την μολύκριαν.

^b These were common beliefs in ancient times as is attested by many writers. It may suffice here to refer only to Plutarch, Moralia, 704 F and 984 A-985 c. 438 shoved out into the sea, and the body of Troilus, borne out into the current of the river Daphnus, was caught on a wave-washed rock projecting a little above the sea-level; and even to this day the rock is called Troilus. The body of Hesiod, as soon as it left the land, was taken up by a company of dolphins, who conveyed it to Rhium hard by Molycreia.ª It happened that the Locrians' periodic Rhian sacrifice and festal gathering was being held then, which even nowadays they celebrate in a noteworthy manner at that place. When the body was seen being carried towards them, they were naturally filled with astonishment, and ran down to the shore; recognizing the corpse, which was still fresh, they held all else to be of secondary importance in comparison with investigating the murder, on account of the repute of Hesiod. This they quickly accomplished, discovered the murderers, sank them alive in the sea, and razed their house to the ground. Hesiod was buried near the temple of Nemean Zeus; most foreigners do not know about his grave, but it has been kept concealed, because, as they say, it was sought for by the people of Orchomenos, who wished, in accordance with an oracle, to recover the remains and bury them in their own land. If, therefore, dolphins show such a tender and humane interest in the dead, it is even more likely that they should give aid to the living, and especially if they are charmed by the sound of flutes or some songs or other. For we are all well aware of the fact that these creatures delight in music and follow after it, and swim along beside men who are rowing to the accompaniment of song and flute in a calm, and they enjoy travelling in this way.^b They take delight

^a Cf. Moralia, 984 D.

163 και νήξεσι παίδων και κολύμβοις άμιλλαται. διο και νόμος άδείας άγραφός έστιν αυτοις. θηρά γαρ ούδείς ούδε λυμαίνεται, πλήν όταν έν δικτύοις γενόμενοι κακουργώσι περί την άγραν, πληγαίς κολάζονται καθάπερ παίδες άμαρτάνοντες. μέμνημαι δε καί παρά Λεσβίων άνδρων άκούσας σωτηρίαν τινά κόρης ύπο δελφινος έκ θαλάττης γενέσθαι. άλλ' έγώ μέν ούκ άκριβω τάλλα, ό δέι Πιττακός έπει γιγνώσκει, 2 δίκαιός έστι περί τούτων διελθείν." 20. "Εφη τοίνυν ό Πιττακός ένδοξον είναι καί μνημονευόμενον ύπό πολλών τον λόγον. χρησμοῦ γαρ γενομένου τοις οικίζουσι Λέσβον, όταν έρματι Βπλέοντες προστύχωσιν δ καλειται Μεσόγειον, τότ' ένταθθα Ποσειδώνι μέν ταθρον 'Αμφιτρίτη δέ και Νηρηίσι ζώσαν καθειναι³ παρθένον· όντων ούν άρχηγετων έπτα και βασιλέων, ονδόου δέ του Έχελάου πυθοχρήστου της αποικίας ήγεμόνος. ούτος μέν ήίθεος ήν έτι, των δ' έπτα κληρουμένων. όσοις άγαμοι παίδες ήσαν, καταλαμβάνει θυγατέρα Σμινθέως ό κλήρος. ην έσθητι και χρυσώ κοσμήσαντες ώς έγένοντο κατά τον τόπον, έμελλον ευξάμενοι καθήσειν. έτυχε δέ τις έρων αυτής των συμπλεόντων, ούκ άγεννης ώς έοικε νεανίας. C οῦ καὶ τοῦνομα διαμνημονεύουσιν "Εναλον. οῦτος also in children's swimming, and vie with them in diving.ª For this reason they profit also by an unwritten law of immunity; for nobody hunts them or injures them except when they get into the fishermen'snets, and do havoc with the catch, and then they are punished with a whipping like naughty children. I remember also hearing from some men of Lesbos that the rescue of a certain maiden from the sea was effected by a dolphin, but, as I am not sure of the various details, it is only right that Pittacus, who does know them, should relate the tale."

¹ άλλ' έγώ μέν . . . ό δὲ Bernardakis seems to be the best correction suggested as yet. λέγω μὲν οὐκ ἀκριβῶs ἀλλ' ὁ Πιττακόs can also be defended: λεγόμενον ἀκριβῶs ἀλλ' ὁ.
 ² ἐπεὶ γιγνώσκει Wyttenbach: ἐπιγιγνώσκει.

³ καθείναι Hercher: καθιέναι.

20. Pittacus thereupon said that it was a famous story,^b and one mentioned by many, to this effect. An oracle had been given to those who were setting out to found a colony in Lesbos that when their voyage should bring them to a reef which is called "Midland," then they should cast into the sea at that place a bull as an offering to Poseidon, and to Amphitrite and the Nymphs of the sea a living virgin. The commanders were seven in number, all kings, and the eighth was Echelaüs, designated by the oracle at Delphi to head the colony, although he was young and still unmarried. The seven, or as many as had unmarried daughters, cast lots, and the lot fell upon the daughter of Smintheus. Her they adorned with fine raiment and golden ornaments as they arrived opposite the spot, and purposed, as soon as they had offered prayer, to cast her into the sea. It happened that one of the company on board, a young man of no mean origin as it seems, was in love with her. His name, according to a tradition still preserved, was

^a See preceding note on page 438.
^b The story is briefly mentioned by Plutarch. Moralia, 984 E, and is given in full with some variations by Athenaeus, 466 c, who quotes as his authority Anticleides an Athenian. 4.11

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

(163) ἀμήχανόν τινα τοῦ βοηθεῖν τῆ παρθένω προθυμίαν έν τω τότε πάθει λαβών παρά τόν καιρόν ώρμησε καί περιπλακείς όμοῦ συγκαθηκεν έαυτον είς την θάλατταν. εὐθὺς μὲν οὖν φήμη τις οὐκ ἔχουσα τό βέβαιον, άλλως δε πείθουσα πολλούς έν τω στρατοπέδω διηνέχθη περί σωτηρίας αὐτῶν καί κομιδής. ύστέρω δε χρόνω τον "Εναλόν φασιν έν Λέσβω φανήναι και λέγειν ώς ύπο δελφίνων φορητοί διὰ θαλάττης ἐκπέσοιεν ἀβλαβεῖς¹ εἰς την ηπειρον, έτι δ' άλλα θειότερα τούτων έκπλήττοντα καί κηλούντα τους πολλούς διηγείσθαι. D πάντων δέ πίστιν έργω παρασχείν. κύματος γάρ ήλιβάτου περί την νήσον αίρομένου και τών άνθρώπων δεδιότων, άπαντήσαι μόνον τη θαλάττη, καί³ ἕπεσθαι πολύποδας αὐτῷ πρὸς τὸ ἱερὸν τοῦ Ποσειδώνος. ών του μεγίστου λίθον κομίζοντος λαβείν τον Έναλον και άναθείναι, και τουτον Έναλον καλοῦμεν. "Καθόλου δ'," είπεν, "εί τις εἰδείη διαφοράν άδυνάτου και άσυνήθους καί παραλόγου και παραδόξου, μάλιστ' αν, ω Χίλων, και μήτε πιστεύων ώς έτυχε μήτ' απιστών, τὸ 'μηδέν ἄγαν' ώς σῦ προσέταξας διαφυλάττοι."

21. Μετά δέ τοῦτον δ 'Ανάχαρσις είπεν ὅτι τοῦ Θαλέω καλώς ύπολαμβάνοντος έν πασιν είναι Ε τοις κυριωτάτοις μέρεσι του κόσμου και μεγίστοις ψυχήν, οὐκ ἄξιόν ἐστι θαυμάζειν εί τὰ κάλλιστα

¹ ἀβλαβεῖs F.C.B. (cf. σῶον. Moralia, 984 E): ἀβλαβῶs.
² ἔτι Hercher: ἔστι.

³ τη θαλάττη, και F.C.B. : θαλάττη.
 ⁴ είδειη Pflugk : είδεν ή.
 ⁶ διαφυλάττοι Wyttenbach : διαφυλάττων.

Enalus. He, conceiving a despairing desire to help the maiden in her present misfortune, at the critical moment hurriedly clasped her in his arms, and threw himself with her into the sea. Straightway a rumour spread, having no sure foundation, but nevertheless carrying conviction to many in the community, regarding their safety and rescue. Later, as they say, Enalus appeared in Lesbos, and told how they had been borne by dolphins through the sea, and put ashore unharmed on the mainland. Other things he related more miraculous even than this, which astonished and fascinated the crowd, and he gave good grounds for believing them all by a deed which he did; for when a towering wave precipitated itself on the shores of the island, and the people were in a state of terror, he, all by himself, went to meet the sea, and cuttlefish followed him to the shrine of Poseidon, the biggest of which brought a stone a with him, and this stone Enalus took and dedicated there, and this we call Enalus. "And in general," he continued, "if a man realizes a difference between the impossible and the unfamiliar, and between false reasoning and false opinion, such a man, Chilon, who would neither believe nor disbelieve at haphazard, would be most observant of the precept, 'Avoid extremes,' as you have enjoined."

21. Following him Anacharsis said that as Thales had set forth the excellent hypothesis that soul exists in all the most dominant and most important parts of the universe,^b there is no proper ground for wonder that the most excellent things are brought ^a Athenaeus (466 c) says a golden cup was brought out of the sea by Enalus.

^b Cf. Diels, Fragmente der Vorsokratiker, vol. i. p. 12 (A 22).

VOL. II

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

περαίνεται θεοῦ γνώμη. "ψυχῆς γὰρ ὄργανον τὸ σῶμα, θεοῦ δ' ἡ ψυχή καὶ καθάπερ σῶμα πολλὰς μὲν ἐξ αύτοῦ κινήσεις ἔχει, τὰς δὲ πλείστας καὶ καλλίστας ὑπὸ ψυχῆς, οὕτως αὖ πάλιν ἡ ψυχὴ τὰ μὲν ὑφ' ἑαυτῆς κινουμένη πράττει, τὰ δὲ τῷ θεῷ παρέχει χρωμένῳ κατευθύνειν καὶ τρέπειν έαυτην ή βούλοιτο, πάντων δργάνων ευτρεπέστατον οῦσα. δεινὸν γάρ,'' εἶπεν, '' εἰ πῦρ μὲν ὄργανόν έστι θεοῦ καὶ πνεῦμα καὶ ὕδωρ καὶ νέφη καὶ F ὅμβροι, δι' ῶν πολλὰ μὲν σῷζει τε καὶ τρέφει, πολλὰ δ' ἀπόλλυσι καὶ ἀναιρεῖ, ζῷοις δὲ χρῆται πρός ούδεν άπλως ούδεπω των ύπ' αύτου γιγνομένων. άλλα μαλλον είκος έξηρτημένα¹ της του θεοῦ δυνάμεως ὑπουργεῖν, καὶ συμπαθεῖν ταῖς τοῦ θεοῦ κινήσεσιν ἢ Σκύθαις τόξα λύραι δ' Ἐλλησι καὶ αὐλοὶ συμπαθοῦσιν."

Έπι δε τούτοις δ ποιητής Χερσίας άλλων τε σωθέντων άνελπίστως έμέμνητο και Κυψέλου του Περιάνδρου πατρός, δν οι πεμφθέντες άνελειν νεογνὸν ὄντα προσμειδιάσαντ'² αὐτοῖς ἀπετράποντο καὶ πάλιν μετανοήσαντες ἐζήτουν καὶ οὐχ εὖρον 164 είς κυψέλην ύπο της μητρός αποτεθέντα. διο και τον οίκον έν Δελφοίς κατεσκεύασεν ό Κύψελος. ώσπερ θεοῦ τότε τὸν κλαυθμυρισμὸν ἐπισχόντος,

Καί ό Πιττακός προσαγορεύσας τόν Περίανδρον όπως διαλάθοι τους ζητοῦντας.

 ἐξηρτημένα Meziriacus: ἐξηρτημένων.
 ² προσμειδιάσαντ' Reiske from Herodotus, v. 92: προσομιλήσαντ'.

> ^a Cf. Moralia, 404 B. The story is found in Herodotus, v. 92.

to pass by the will of God. "For the body," he continued; " is the soul's instrument, and the soul is God's instrument; a and just as the body has many movements of its own, but the most, and most excellent, from the soul, so the soul performs some actions by its own instinct, but in others it yields itself to God's use for Him to direct it and turn it in whatsoever course He may desire, since it is the most adaptable of all instruments. For it is a dreadful mistake to assume that, on the one hand, fire is God's instrument, and wind and water also, and clouds and rain, by means of which He preserves and fosters. many a thing, and ruins and destroys many another, but that, on the other hand, He never as yet makes any use whatever of living creatures to accomplish any one of His purposes. Nay, it is far more likely that the living, being dependent on God's power, serve Him and are responsive to His movements' even more than bows are responsive to the Scythians or lyres and flutes to the Greeks."

Thereupon the poet Chersias cited, among the cases of persons who had been saved when their plight seemed hopeless, the case of Cypselus,^b the father of Periander, who, when he was a new-born babe, smiled at the men who had been sent to make away with him, and they turned away. And when again they changed their minds, they sought for him and found him not, for he had been put away in a chest by his mother. It was because of this that Cypselus constructed the building at Delphi, firmly believing that the god had at that time stopped his erying so that he might escape the notice of those who were searching for him.

And Pittacus, addressing Periander, said, "Chersias

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

(164) "εῦ γ'," ἔφη, "Περίανδρε, Χερσίας ἐποίησε μνησθεὶς τοῦ οἴκου· πολλάκις γὰρ ἐβουλόμην ἐρέσθαι σε τῶν βατράχων τὴν αἰτίαν ἐκείνων, τί βούλονται περὶ τὸν πυθμένα τοῦ φοίνικος ἐντετορευμένοι τοσοῦτοι, καὶ τίνα πρὸς τὸν θεὸν ἢ τὸν ἀναθέντα λόγον ἔχουσι."

Τοῦ δὲ Περιάνδρου τὸν Χερσίαν ἐρωτῶν κελεύσαντος, εἰδέναι γὰρ ἐκεῖνον καὶ παρεῖναι τῷ Β Κυψέλῳ καθιεροῦντι τὸν οἶκον, ὁ Χερσίας μειδιάσας " ἀλλ' οὐκ ἄν," ἔψη, " ψράσαιμι πρότερον ἢ πυθέσθαι παρὰ τούτων ὅ τι βούλεται τὸ ' μηδὲν ἄγαν' αὐτοῖς καὶ τὸ ' γνῶθι σαυτόν,' καὶ τοῦτο δὴ τὸ πολλοὺς μὲν ἀγάμους πολλοὺς δ' ἀπίστους ἐνίους δὲ καὶ ἀφώνους πεποιηκὸς ' ἐγγύα πάρα δ' ἄτα.'" " Τί δ'," εἶπεν ὁ Πιττακός, " ἡμῶν δέῃ ταῦτα φραζόντων; πάλαι γὰρ Αἰσώπου λόγον εἰς ἕκαστον ὡς ἔοικε τούτων συντεθεικότος ἐπαινεῖς." Καὶ ὁ Αἴσωπος, " ὅταν γε παίζῃ πρὸς ἐμὲ Χερσίας," εἶπε· " σπουδάζων δὲ τούτων "Ομηρον εύρετὴν ἀποδείκνυσι καί ψησι τὸν μὲν ἕΕκτορα C γιγνώσκειν ἑαυτόν· τοῖς γὰρ ἅλλοις ἐπιτιθέμενος

Αιτοντος ἀλέεινε μάχην Τελαμωνιάδαο τον δ' 'Οδυσσέα τοῦ ' μηδὲν ἄγαν ' ἐπαινέτην τῷ Διομήδει παρακελεύεσθαι

^a The frogs and the palm-tree are mentioned also in Moralia, 399 F. 446

certainly did well to mention the building, for I have often desired, Periander, to ask you the reason for those frogs, and what is their significance, carved as they are in such numbers about the base of the palm-tree,^a and what relation they have to the god or to the dedicator."

Periander bade him ask Chersias, for Chersias, he said, knew and was present when Cypselus consecrated the building; but Chersias said with a smile, "No, I will not tell until I learn from our friends here what significance they give to the precepts," 'Avoid extremes' and 'Know thyself,' and, in particular, that one which has kept many from marrying, and many from trusting, and some even from speaking, and this is it: 'Give a pledge, and mischief attends.'"

"What need of us to tell you that?" said Pittacus; "since for this long time you have been praising the stories which Aesop has composed touching each of them, as it seems."

. 'And Acsop said, "Only when Chersias is poking fun at me; but when he is serious he points to Homer as their inventor, and says that Hector 'knew himself' because he attacked all the others, but Only with Ajax, Telamon's son, he avoided a conflict.

And Odysseus, he says, gives praise to 'Avoid extremes' when he enjoins

^b For information about these famous precepts reference may be made to Plato, Protagoras, p. 343 B, and Charmides, p. 165 A; Aristotle, Rhetoric, ii. 12. 14: Pausanias, x. 24. 1; Plutarch, Moralia, 116 c, 385 D, and 511 B, and De vita et poesi Homeri, 151.

^e Homer, Il. xi. 542 (Moralia, 24 c).

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

(164) Τυδείδη, μήτ' άρ' με μάλ' αίνεε μήτε τι νείκει. την δ' έγγύην οἱ μεν άλλοι λοιδορείν αὐτὸν ὡς πρâγμα δείλαιον καὶ μάταιον οἴονται λέγοντα δειλαί τοι δειλών γε καὶ ἐγγύαι ἐγγυάασθαι, Χερσίας δ' ούτοσί φησι τὴν "Ατην ὑπὸ τοῦ Διὸς ῥιφῆναι τῇ ἐγγύῃ παραγιγνομένην ῆν ἐγγυησά-D μενος ὁ Ζεὺς ἐσφάλη περὶ τῆς τοῦ 'Ηρακλέους γενέσεως."

Υπολαβών δ' ό Σόλων '' οὐκοῦν,'' ἔφη, '' καὶ τῷ σοφωτάτῳ πιστευτέον¹ Όμήρῳ νὺξ δ' ἦδη τελέθει· ἀγαθὸν καὶ νυκτὶ πιθέσθαι. σπείσαντες οὖν Μούσαις καὶ Ποσειδῶνι καὶ ἘΑμφιτρίτῃ διαλύωμεν εἰ δοκεῦ τὸ συμπόσιον."

Τοῦτ' ἔσχεν, ὦ Νίκαρχε, πέρας ἡ τότε συνουσία. * πιστευτέον] πειστέον Hatzidakis.

A AN A DOWN OF THE ALL AND AND A DOWN AND A DOWNA AND A DOWN AND A minima he man

Son of Tydeus, praise me not too much nor chide me."

And as for the pledge, other people think that Homer vilifies it as a worthless and futile thing when he says,

Worthless are pledges of worthless folk to accept at their pledging;^b but Chersias here asserts that Mischief was hurled from heaven by Zeus because she was present at the pledge which Zeus gave when he was befooled in regard to the birth of Heracles." °

Solon here put in his word : "Well, then, we should have faith in the very great wisdom of Homer who also says,d

Night-time advances apace: 'tis well to pay heed to the night-time.

So, if it please the company, let us offer a libation to the Muses and Poseidon and Amphitrite, and be going."

And thus, Nicarchus, the party came to an end.

^a Homer, Il. x. 249 (Moralia, 57 E) ^b Homer, Od. viii. 351. • Homer, Il. xix. 91-131.

^d Ibid. vii. 282 and 293.

the second secon

attend of a fine state of the second second name and a set of the set of the

SUPERSTITION (DE SUPERSTITIONE)

And a second second standard a constant of a constant of the constant to parts match it reasonable to perform a soll and a general of a strend strend store the same of the second of the

INTRODUCTION

PLUTARCH'S essay on Superstition is, in the main, an attempt to prove that superstition is worse than atheism. Its somewhat impassioned tone savours more of the emotional sermon than of the carefully reasoned discourse, and suggests that it was originally prepared for public presentation.

Wyttenbach was disturbed because in the catalogue of Lamprias, in which this essay is No. 155, the title is given as Περί δεισιδαιμονίας πρώς Έπίκουρον, and he thought that this title might refer to some other treatise of Plutarch. The explanation is so simple that the only surprising thing is that it should have escaped a man of Wyttenbach's acumen. On the first page of the essay are the words, "the universe . . . atoms and void . . . assumption is false." Then, as now, librarians and reviewers looked at the first page, and reached their conclusions; so it was only natural that the compiler of the catalogue should conclude that the rest of the book was equally hostile to Epicurus. On the other hand, this affords interesting evidence that the compiler of the catalogue of Lamprias probably had a copy of Plutarch's works before him when he drew up his list.

The Ms. tradition of this essay is better than of many others, and one MS. (D) has preserved many 452 excellent readings.^a Only one passage, a quotation (170 B), presents serious difficulty, and of this Professor Goodwin remarked: "As to the original Greek, hardly a word can be made out with certainty."

Mention should be made of a separate edition and a parallel English translation of this essay in a book entitled " $\Pi \epsilon \rho i \delta \epsilon \omega \sigma \iota \delta a \mu \rho \nu i a s.$ Plutarchus and Theophrastus on Superstition with various appendices and a life of Plutarchus. Printed A.D. 1828. (Privately) printed by Julian Hibbert . . . Kentish Town." The translation is very literal, but is sometimes an improvement on that of William Baxter in the translation of Plutarch by "Several Hands" (London, 1684-94). Intimate and amusing is the preface of the author, who, in his notes, admits that he has never read Plato, but ends his preface with these words : "I terminate this my Preface by consigning all 'Greek Scholars' to the special care of Beelzebub."

A spirited defence of this essay (if any defence is needed) may be found in John Oakesmith's The Religion of Plutarch (London, 1902), chap. ix. pp. 179 ff.

^a In spite of the fact that Pohlenz in his preface to Vol. I. (Leipzig, 1925) of the Moralia (p. xiv) uses these words: "Codicem Paris D e recensione libidinosissima ortum"! Paton, who edited this essay, accepts the readings of D a good part of the time, and his edition would have been more intelligible had he accepted them more often.

and provide the second of the local in PUBLIC NEW TOWN

ΜΕΡΙ ΔΕΙΣΙΔΑΙΜΟΝΙΑΣ

 Τής περί θεών ἀμαθίας καὶ ἀγνοίας εὐθὺς ἐξ ἀρχῆς δίχα ῥυείσης τὸ μὲν ὥσπερ ἐν χωρίοις σκληροῖς τοῖς ἀντιτύποις ἤθεσι τὴν ἀθεότητα, τὸ δ' ὥσπερ ἐν ὑγροῖς τοῖς ἁπαλοῖς τὴν δεισιδαιμονίαν πεποίηκεν. ἅπασα μὲν οὖν κρίσις ψευδής, ἄλλως τε κἂν ἢ περὶ ταῦτα, μοχθηρόν· ἢ δὲ καὶ πάθος πρόσεστι, μοχθηρότατον. πῶν γὰρ πάθος F ἔοικε ἀπάτη φλεγμαίνουσα εἶναι· καὶ καθάπερ αἰ μετὰ τραύματος ἐκβολαὶ τῶν ἄρθρων, οὕτως αἰ μετὰ πάθους διαστροφαὶ τῆς ψυχῆς χαλεπώτεραι. 'Ατόμους τις οἶεται καὶ κενὸν ἀρχὰς εἶναι τῶν ὅλων· ψευδὴς ἡ ὑπόληψις, ἀλλ' ἕλκος οὐ ποιεῖ οὐδὲ σψυχμὸν οὐδ' ὀδύνην ταράττουσαν.

Υπολαμβάνει τις τόν πλοῦτον ἀγαθὸν εἶναι 165 μέγιστον τοῦτο τὸ ψεῦδος ἰὸν ἔχει, νέμεται τὴν ψυχήν, ἐξίστησιν, οὐκ ἐậ καθεύδειν, οἴστρων ἐμπίπλησιν, ὠθεῖ κατὰ πετρῶν, ἄγχει, τὴν παρρησίαν ἀφαιρεῖται.

Πάλιν οἴονταί τινες εἶναι σῶμα τὴν ἀρετὴν καὶ τὴν κακίαν αἰσχρὸν ἴσως τὸ ἀγνόημα, θρήνων

^a Cf. Plutarch, Life of Alexander, chap. lxxv. (p. 706 β) and Life of Camillus, chap. vi. (p. 132 c). ^b Aimed at the theories of Epicurus, and possibly of ^b Aimed at the theories of Epicurus, and possibly of Democritus.

ADDRESS OF STREET

SUPERSTITION

1. IGNORANCE and blindness in regard to the gods divides itself at the very beginning into two streams, of which the one produces in hardened characters, as it were in stubborn soils, atheism, and the other in tender characters, as in moist soils, produces superstition.^a Every false judgement, and especially concerning these matters, is a mischievous thing; but where emotion also enters, it is most mischievous. For every emotion is likely to be a delusion that rankles; and just as dislocations of the joints accompanied by lacerations are hardest to deal with, so also is it with derangements of the soul accompanied by emotion.

A man thinks that in the beginning the universe was created out of atoms and void.^b His assumption is false, but it causes no sore, no throbbing, no agitating pain.

A man assumes that wealth is the greatest good. This falsehood contains venom, it feeds upon his soul, distracts him, does not allow him to sleep, fills him with stinging desires, pushes him over precipices, chokes him, and takes from him his freedom of speech.

Again, some people think that virtue and vice are corporeal.^c This piece of ignorance is disgraceful, ^c Aimed at the Stoics, who referred all qualities to the body. Cf. Plutarch, Moralia, 1084 A.

(165) δὲ καὶ ὀδυρμῶν οὐκ ἄξιον· ἀλλ' αἴτινές εἰσι τοιαῦται κρίσεις καὶ ὑπολήψεις > ώ τλημου ἀρετή, λόγος ἄρ' ἦσθ'· ἐγὼ δέ σε ώς ἔργου ἦσκουν ἀφεὶς τὴν πλουτοποιὸν ἀδικίαν καὶ τὴν γόνιμον ἁπάσης ἡδονῆς ἀκολασίαν, ταύτας ἄξιόν ἐστιν Βοἰκτίρειν ὁμοῦ καὶ δυσχεραίνειν, ὅτι πολλὰ νοσήματα καὶ πάθη καθάπερ εὐλὰς καὶ σκώληκας ἐντίκτουσι ταῖς ψυχαῖς παροῦσαι.

2. Οὐκοῦν καὶ περὶ ῶν ὁ λόγος, ἡ μèν ἀθεότης κρίσις οῦσα φαύλη τοῦ μηδèν εἶναι μακάριον καὶ ἄφθαρτον εἰς ἀπάθειἀν τινα δοκεῖ τῆ ἀπιστία τοῦ θείου περιφέρειν, καὶ τέλος ἐστὶν αὐτῆ τοῦ μὴ νομίζειν θεοὺς τὸ μὴ φοβεῖσθαι· τὴν δεισιδαιμονίαν δὲ μηνύει καὶ τοὕνομα δόξαν ἐμπαθῆ καὶ δέους ποιητικὴν ὑπόληψιν οῦσαν ἐκταπεινοῦντος καὶ συντρίβοντος τὸν ἄνθρωπον, οἰόμενον μὲν εἶναι θεούς, εἶναι δὲ λυπηροὺς καὶ βλαβερούς. ἔοικε C γὰρ ὁ μὲν ἄθεος ἀκίνητος είναι πρὸς τὸ θεῖον, ὁ δὲ δεισιδαίμων κινούμενος ὡς οὐ προσήκει διαστρέφεσθαι. ἡ γὰρ ἄγνοια τῷ μὲν ἀπιστίαν τοῦ ὡφελοῦντος ἐμπεποίηκε, τῷ δὲ καὶ δόξαν ὅτι βλάπτει προστέθεικεν. ὅθεν ἡ μὲν ἀθεότης λόγος ἐστὶ διεψευσμένος, ἡ δὲ δεισιδαιμονία πάθος ἐκ λόγου ψευδοῦς ἐγγεγενημένον.

3. Αἰσχρὰ μèν δὴ πάντα τὰ τῆς ψυχῆς νοσήματα καὶ πάθη, τὸ δὲ γαῦρον ἐνίοις ὅμως καὶ ὑψηλὸν

^a Author unknown; cf. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag. p. 910, Adespota, No. 374. 456

SUPERSTITION, 165

perhaps, but it is not worthy of wailings or lamentations. But consider judgements and assumptions that are like this :

Poor virtue ! A mere name thou art, I find, But I did practise thee as real ! *

and thereby I gave up wrongdoing which is productive of wealth, and licentiousness which begets every sort of pleasure. These it is right and proper that we pity, and at the same time loathe, because their presence engenders many distempers and emotions, like maggots and grubs, in men's souls.

2. To come now to our subject : atheism, which is. a sorry judgement that there is nothing blessed or incorruptible, seems, by disbelief in the Divinity, to lead finally to a kind of utter indifference, and the end which it achieves in not believing in the existence of gods is not to fear them. But, on the other hand, superstition, as the very name (dread of deities) indicates, is an emotional idea and an assumption productive of a fear which utterly humbles and crushes a man, for he thinks that there are gods, but that they are the cause of pain and injury. In fact, the atheist, apparently, is unmoved regarding the Divinity, whereas the superstitious man is moved as he ought not to be, and his mind is thus perverted. For in the one man ignorance engenders disbelief in the One who can help him, and on the other it bestows the added idea that He causes injury. Whence it follows that atheism is falsified reason, and superstition is an emotion engendered from false reason.

3. Clear it is that all distempers and emotions of the soul are disgraceful, but in some of them are to

(165) καὶ διηρμένον ἔνεστιν ὑπὸ κουφότητος, δραστηρίου δ' ὅρμῆς οὐδὲν ὡς ἔπος εἰπεῖν ἀπεστέρηται. ἀλλὰ τοῦτο δὴ τὸ κοινὸν ἔγκλημα παντὸς πάθους ἐστίν, ὅτι ταῖς πρακτικαῖς ὅρμαῖς ἐκβιαζόμενα D κατεπείγει καὶ συντείνει τὸν λογισμόν. μόνος δ' ὅ φόβος, οὐχ ῆττον ῶν τόλμης ἐνδεὴς ἢ λογισμοῦ, ἄπρακτον ἔχει καὶ ἄπορον καὶ ἀμήχανον τὸ ἀλόγιστον. ῇ καὶ δεῖμα καὶ τάρβος αὐτοῦ τὸ συνδέον ὅμοῦ τὴν ψυχὴν καὶ ταράττον ὠνόμασται.

Φόβων δὲ πάντων ἀπρακτότατος καὶ ἀπορώτατος δ τῆς δεισιδαιμονίας. οὐ φοβεῖται θάλατταν ὅ μὴ πλέων οὐδὲ πόλεμον ὁ μὴ στρατευόμενος, οὐδὲ λῃστὰς ὁ οἰκουρῶν οὐδὲ συκοφάντην ὁ πένης οὐδὲ φθόνον ὁ ἰδιώτης, οὐδὲ σεισμὸν ὁ ἐν Γαλάταις οὐδὲ κεραυνὸν ὁ ἐν Αἰθίοψιν· ὁ δὲ θεοὺς δεδιὼς πάντα Ε δέδιε, γῆν θάλατταν ἀέρα οὐρανὸν σκότος φῶς κληδόνα σιωπὴν ὅνειρον.¹ οἱ δοῦλοι τῶν δεσποτῶν ἐπιλανθάνονται καθεύδοντες, τοῖς πεδήταις ἐπελαφρύνει τὸν δεσμὸν ὁ ὕπνος, φλεγμοναὶ περὶ τραύματα καὶ νομαὶ σαρκὸς θηριώδεις καὶ περιωδυνίαι κοιμωμένων ἀφίστανται·

& φίλον υπνου θέλγητρον ἐπίκουρον νόσου, ώς ήδύ μοι προσήλθες ἐν δέοντί γε.

τοῦτ' οὐ δίδωσιν εἰπεῖν ἡ δεισιδαιμονία (μόνη γὰρ

¹ δνειρον] υπαρ δνειρον Bywater.

^e The derivations of "terror" from "tie," and "awe" from "awake" are not more fanciful than those in which Plutarch indulges.

be found pride, loftiness, and exaltation, owing to their uplifting power; and no one of them, we might say, is destitute of an impulse to activity. But this general complaint may be made against every one of the emotions, that by their urgings to be up and doing they press hard upon the reasoning power and strain it. But fear alone, lacking no less in boldness than in power to reason, keeps its irrationality impotent, helpless, and hopeless. It is on this ground that the power of fear to tie down the soul, and at the same time to keep it awake, has come to be named both terror and awe.⁴

Of all kinds of fear the most impotent and helpless is superstitious fear. No fear of the sea has he who does not sail upon it, nor of war he who does not serve in the army, nor of highwaymen he who stays at home, nor of a blackmailer he who is poor, nor of envy he who holds no office, nor of earthquake he who is in Gaul,^b nor of the lightning-stroke he who is in Ethiopia; but he who fears the gods fears all things, earth and sea, air and sky, darkness and light, sound and silence, and a dream. Slaves in their sleep forget their masters, sleep makes light the chains of prisoners, and the inflammations surrounding wounds, the savage gnawing of ulcers in the flesh, and tormenting pains are removed from those who are fallen asleep :

> Dear soothing balm of sleep to help my ill, How sweet thy coming in mine hour of need.

Superstition does not give one a right to say this;

⁶ Cf. Aristotle, Ethica Nicomachea, iii. 7, and Pliny, Natural History, ii. 80 (195).

· Euripides, Orestes, 211-12.

ού σπένδεται πρός τὸν ὕπνον, οὐδὲ τῆ ψυχῆ ποτε γοῦν δίδωσιν ἀναπνεῦσαι καὶ ἀναθαρρῆσαι τὰς πι-F κρὰς καὶ βαρείας περὶ τοῦ θεοῦ δόξας ἀπωσαμένῃ), ἀλλ' ὥσπερ ἐν ἀσεβῶν χώρῷ τῷ ὕπνῷ τῶν δεισιδαιμόνων εἴδωλα φρικώδη καὶ τεράστια φάσματα καὶ ποινάς τινας ἐγείρουσα καὶ στροβοῦσα τὴν ἀθλίαν ψυχὴν ἐκδιώκει τοῖς ὀνείροις ἐκ τῶν ὕπνων, μαστιζομένην καὶ κολαζομένην αὐτὴν ὑφ' ἀὐτῆς ὡς ὑφ' ἐτέρου, καὶ δεινὰ προστάγματα καὶ ἀλλόκοτα λαμβάνουσαν. εἶτ' ἐξαναστάντες οὐ κατεφρόνησαν οὐδὲ κατεγέλασαν, οὐδ' ἤσθοντο ὅτι τῶν ταραξάντων οὐδὲν ῆν ἀληθινόν, ἀλλὰ σκιὰν 166 φεύγοντες ἀπάτης οὐδὲν κακὸν ἐχούσης ὕπαρ ἐξαπατῶσιν ἑαυτοὺς καὶ δαπανῶσι καὶ ταράττουσιν, εἰς ἀγύρτας καὶ γόητας ἐμπεσόντες λέγοντας > άλλ' ειτ' ένυπνον φάντασμα φοβή, χθονίας θ' Έκάτης κωμον εδέξω, τήν περιμάκτριαν κάλει γραῦν καὶ βάπτισον σεαυτον εἰς θάλατταν καὶ καθίσας ἐν τῆ γῆ διημέρευσον.

¹ βαπτισμούς Bentley: σαββατισμούς.

^a Author unknown ; cf. Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag. p. 910, Adespota, No. 375.

^b Euripides, The Trojan Women, 764.

⁴⁶⁰ for superstition alone makes no truce with sleep, and never gives the soul a chance to recover its breath and courage by putting aside its bitter and despondent notions regarding God; but, as it were in the place of torment of the impious, so in the sleep of the superstitious their malady calls up fearful images, and horrible apparitions and divers forms of punishment, and, by keeping the unhappy soul on the rack, chases it away from sleep by its dreams, lashed and punished by its own self as if by another, and forced to comply with dreadful and extraordinary behests. When, later, such persons arise from their beds, they do not contemn nor ridicule these things, nor realize that not one of the things that agitated them was really true, but, trying to escape the shadow of a delusion that has nothing bad at the bottom, during their waking hours they delude and waste and agitate themselves, putting themselves into the hands of conjurors and impostors who say to them :

> If a vision in sleep is the cause of your fear And the troop of dire Hecate felt to be near,^a then call in the old crone who performs magic purifications, dip yourself in the ocean, and sit down on the ground and spend the whole day there.

Greeks from barbarians finding evil ways ! • because of superstition, such as smearing with mud, wallowing in filth, immersions, casting oneself down with face to the ground, disgraceful besieging of the gods, and uncouth prostrations. "To sing with the mouth aright" was the injunction given to the harp-players by those who thought to preserve the good old forms of music; and we hold it to be 461 (166) θεοις άξιουμεν όρθω τώ στόματι και δικαίω προσεύχεσθαι, και μή την έπι των σπλάγχνων μέν γλώτταν εί καθαρά και όρθη σκοπείν, την δ' έαυτων διαστρέφοντας και μολύνοντας ατόποις όνόμασι και ρήμασι βαρβαρικοΐς καταισχύνειν και παρανομεῖν τὸ¹ θεῖον καὶ πάτριον ἀξίωμα τῆς εὐσεβείας. ᾿Αλλ' ὅ γε κωμικὸς οὐκ ἀηδῶς εἴρηκέ που πρός τούς καταχρυσοῦντας τὰ κλινίδια καὶ καταργυροῦντας > ο τι μόνον ήμιν προικ' έδωκαν οί θεοί² υπνον,³ τί τοῦτο πολυτελές σαυτώ⁴ ποιείς;

C έστι δε καί πρός τον δεισιδαίμονα είπειν, "ό τι τον ύπνον οί θεοί λήθην κακών έδοσαν ήμιν και άνάπαυσιν, τί τοῦτο κολαστήριον σαυτῷ ποιεῖς ἐπίμονον καὶ ὀδυνηρόν, τῆς ἀθλίας ψυχῆς εἰς ἄλλον ὕπνον ἀποδρᾶναι μὴ δυναμένης;'' ὁ 'Ηράκλειτός φησι τοῖς ἐγρηγορόσιν ἕνα καὶ κοινὸν κόσμον εἶναι, των δε κοιμωμένων έκαστον είς ίδιον άναστρέφεσθαι. τω δε δεισιδαίμονι κοινός ούδείς έστι κόσμος ούτε γαρ έγρηγορώς τῷ φρονοῦντι χρηται ούτε κοιμώμενος απαλλάττεται τοῦ ταράττοντος, άλλ' όνειρώττει μέν ό λογισμός, έγρήγορε δ' ό φόβος ἀεί, φυγή δ' οὐκ ἔστιν οὐδὲ μετάστασις.

4. [°]Ην φοβερός έν Σάμω Πολυκράτης τύραννος, ήν έν Κορίνθω Περίανδρος, άλλ' οὐδεὶς ἐφοβεῖτο D τούτους μεταστὰς εἰς πόλιν ἐλευθέραν καὶ δημοκρατουμένην. ό δὲ τὴν τῶν θεῶν ἀρχὴν ὡς τυ-

1 to] els to Hercher.

2 ήμιν . . . θεοί Meineke: έδωκαν ήμιν οι θεοί προίκα. ³ ύπνον F.C.B.: τον ύπνον. ⁴ σαυτώ Meineke: σεαυτώ.

- 5 υπνον] τόπον Hercher.

meet to pray to the gods with the mouth straight and aright, and not to inspect the tongue laid upon the sacrificial offering to see that it be clean and straight, and, at the same time, by distorting and sullying one's own tongue with strange names and barbarous phrases, to disgrace and transgress the god-given ancestral dignity of our religion.

Nor is there lack of humour in what the comic poet ^a has somewhere said with reference to those who cover their bedsteads with gold and silver :

> The one free gift the gods bestow on us, Our sleep, why make its cost to you so much?

But to the superstitious man it is possible to say, "The gift of sleep which the gods bestow on us as a time of forgetfulness and respite from our ills; why do you make this an everlastingly painful torturechamber for yourself, since your unhappy soul cannot run away to some other sleep?" Heracleitus ^b says that people awake enjoy one world in common, but of those who are fallen asleep each roams about in a world of his own. But the superstitious man enjoys no world in common with the rest of mankind; for neither when awake does he use his intelligence, nor when fallen asleep is he freed from his agitation, but his reasoning power is sunk in dreams, his fear is ever wakeful, and there is no way of escape or removal.

4. A despot much feared in Samos was Polycrates, as was Periander in Corinth, but nobody feared these men after he had removed to a free State governed by its own people. But as for the man who fears

^a Probably some poet of the new Comedy; cf. Kock, Com. Att. Frag. iii. p. 438.

^b Diels, Fragmenta der Vorsokratiker, i. p. 95.

(166) ραννίδα φοβούμενος σκυθρωπην και ἀπαραίτητον ποῦ μεταστῆ ποῦ φύγη, ποίαν γῆν ἄθεον εὕρη, ποίαν θάλατταν; εἰς τί καταδὺς τοῦ κόσμου μέρος καὶ ἀποκρύψας σεαυτόν, ὡ ταλαίπωρε, πιστεύσεις ὅτι τὸν θεὸν ἀποπέφευγας; ἔστι καὶ δούλοις νόμος ἐλευθερίαν ἀπογνοῦσι πρᾶσιν αἰτεῖσθαι καὶ δεσπότην μεταβάλλειν ἐπιεικέστερον· ἡ δὲ δεισιδαιμονία θεῶν ἀλλαγήν οὐ δίδωσιν, οὐδ' ἔστιν εὑρεῖν ὅν οὐ φοβήσεται θεὸν ὁ φοβούμενος τοὺς πατρώους καὶ γενεθλίους, ὁ φρίττων τοὺς σωτῆρας καὶ τοὺς Ε μειλιχίους τρέμων καὶ δεδοικώς, παρ' ῶν αἰτούμεθα πλοῦτον εὐπορίαν εἰρήνην ὁμόνοιαν ὅρθωσιν λόγων καὶ ἔργων τῶν ἀρίστων.

Είθ' ούτοι το δουλεύειν ατύχημα ήγοῦνται καὶ λέγουσι δεινή τις ἀνδρὶ καὶ γυναικὶ συμφορὰ δούλους γενέσθαι δεσπότας τε δυσχερεῖς¹ λαβεῖν·

πόσω δε δεινότερον οἶεσθε πάσχειν αῦ τοὺς² ἀνεκφεύκτους ἀναποδράστους ἀναποστάτους³; ἔστι δούλω φεύξιμος βωμός, ἔστι καὶ λησταῖς ἀβέβηλα πολλὰ τῶν ἱερῶν, καὶ πολεμίους οἱ φεύγοντες, ἂν ἀγάλματος λάβωνται ἢ ναοῦ, θαρροῦσιν· ὁ δε δεισιδαίμων ταῦτα μάλιστα φρίττει καὶ φοβεῖται καὶ δέδοικεν, ἐν οῖς οἱ φοβούμενοι τὰ δεινότατα τὰς ἐλπίδας ἔχουσι. μὴ ἀπόσπα τὸν

¹ δυσχερεῖs Valckenaer: δυστυχεῖs.
 ² αῦ τοὺs F.C.B.: αὐτοὺs, omitted in many MSS.
 ³ Bernardakis would add λαμβάνονταs after ἀναποστάτουs.

^a From an unknown tragic poet; cf. Nauck, Trag. Graee. Frag. p. 910, Adespota, No. 376. 464 the rule of the gods as a sullen and inexorable despotism, where can he remove himself, where can he flee, what country can he find without gods, or what sea? Into what part of the universe shall you steal away and hide yourself, poor wretch, and believe that you have escaped God? There is a law even for slaves who have given up all hope of freedom, that they may demand a sale, and thus exchange their present master for one more mild. But superstition grants no such exchange; and to find a god whom he shall not fear is impossible for him who fears the gods of his fathers and his kin, who shudders at his saviours, and trembles with terror at those gentle gods from whom we ask wealth, welfare, peace, concord, and success in our best efforts in speech and action.

Then again these same persons hold slavery to be a misfortune, and say,

For man or woman 'tis disaster dire Sudden to be enslaved, and masters harsh To get.^a

But how much more dire, think you, is the lot of those for whom there is no escape, no running away, no chance to revolt? For a slave there is an altar to which he can flee, and there are many of our shrines where even robbers may find sanctuary, and men who are fleeing from the enemy, if once they lay hold upon a statue of a god, or a temple, take courage again. These are the very things that most inspire a shuddering fear and dread in the superstitious man, and yet it is in them that those who are in fear of the most dreadful fate place their hopes. Do not drag the superstitious man 465 F δεισιδαίμονα τῶν ἱερῶν· ἐνταῦθα κολάζεται καὶ τιμωρείται.

Τί δεî μακρά λέγειν; "πέρας ἐστὶ τοῦ βίου πασιν ἀνθρώποις ὁ θάνατος,'" τῆς δὲ δεισιδαιμονίας οὐδ' οῦτος, ἀλλ' ὑπερβάλλει τοὺς ὅρους ἐπέκεινα τοῦ ζῆν, μακρότερον τοῦ βίου ποιοῦσα τὸν φόβον καὶ συνάπτουσα τῷ θανάτῷ κακῶν ἐπίνοιαν ἀθανάτων, καὶ ὅτε παύεται πραγμάτων, 167 ἄρχεσθαι δοκοῦσα μὴ παυομένων. "Αιδου τινὲς ἀνοίγονται πύλαι βαθεῖαι, καὶ ποταμοὶ πυρὸς ὅμοῦ καὶ Στυγὸς ἀπορρῶγες ἀνακεράννυνται, καὶ σκότος ἐμπίπλαται πολυφαντάστων' εἰδώλων τινῶν χαλεπὰς μὲν ὅψεις οἰκτρὰς δὲ φωνὰς ἐπιφερόντων, δικασταὶ δὲ καὶ κολασταὶ καὶ χάσματα καὶ μυχοὶ μυρίων κακῶν γέμοντες. οὕτως ἡ κακοδαίμων δεισιδαιμονία τῆ περιττῆ πρὸς ἅπαν τὸ δοκοῦν δεινὸν εὐλαβεία λανθάνει ἑαυτὴν ὑποβάλλουσα παντοίοις δεινοῖς.³

5. Τούτων οὐδὲν τῆ ἀθεότητι πρόσεστιν, ἀλλ' ἡ μὲν ἄγνοια χαλεπὴ καὶ τὸ παρορῶν καὶ τυφλώτ-Β τειν περὶ τηλικαῦτα συμφορὰ μεγάλη ψυχῆς, ὥσπερ ὀμμάτων πολλῶν τὸ φανότατον καὶ κυριώτατον ἀπεσβεσμένης τὴν τοῦ θεοῦ νόησιν. ταύτῃ δὲ τὸ ἐμπαθές, ὥσπερ εἶρηται, καὶ ἐλκῶδες καὶ ταρακτικὸν καὶ καταδεδουλωμένον εὐθὺς πρόσεστι τῆ δόξῃ. μουσικήν φησιν ὅ Πλάτων ἐμμελείας καὶ εὐρυθμίας

¹ δ θάνατος] θάνατος in the better MSS. of Demosthenes, xviii. 97.

² πολυφαντάστων Stobaeus, Florilegium, ed. Meineke, vol. iv. p. 245: πολυφάνταστον.

³ τŷ περίττη κτλ.] This is the reading of D: other uss. have κal θεῷ τὸ (or τῷ) μỳ παθεῖν ἐκπεπέφυγεν ἀφυλάκτῷ προσδοκῶν αὐτŷ πεποίηκε. 466 away from his shrines, for it is in them that he suffers punishment and retribution.

What need to speak at length? "In death is the end of life for all men," a but not the end of superstition; for superstition transcends the limits of life into the far beyond, making fear to endure longer than life, and connecting with death the thought of undying evils, and holding fast to the opinion, at the moment of ceasing from trouble, that now is the beginning of those that never cease. The abysmal gates of the nether world swing open, rivers of fire and offshoots of the Styx are mingled together, darkness is crowded with spectres of many fantastic shapes which beset their victim with grim visages and piteous voices, and, besides these, judges and torturers and yawning gulfs and deep recesses teeming with unnumbered woes. Thus unhappy superstition, by its excess of caution in trying to avoid everything suggestive of dread, unwittingly subjects itself to every sort of dread.

5. Nothing of this kind attaches to atheism, but its ignorance is distressing, and to see amiss or not to see at all in matters of such importance is a great misfortune for the soul; for it is as if the soul had suffered the extinction of the brightest and most dominant of its many eyes, the conception of God. But superstition is attended by emotion, as has already been said,^b and by sore distress and disturbance and mental enslavement from the very beginning. Plato ^c says that music, the creator of ^a From Demosthenes, Or. xviii. (On the Crown), 97; quoted again in Moralia, 333 c.

VOL. II

^b Supra, 165 B.

[·] Adapted freely from the Timaeus, p. 47 D.

(167) δημιουργόν ἀνθρώποις ὑπό θεῶν οὐ τρυφῆς ἕνεκα καὶ κνήσεως ὤτων δοθῆναι, ἀλλ' ὥστε τῶν τῆς ψυχῆς περιόδων καὶ ἁρμονιῶν τὸ ταραχῶδες καὶ πεπλανημένον ἐν σώματι, μούσης τε καὶ χάριτος ἐνδεία πολλαχῆ δι' ἀκολασίαν καὶ πλημμέλειαν ἐξυ-C βρίζον, αὖθις εἰς τάξιν ἀνελίττουσαν οἰκείως καὶ περιάγουσαν καθιστάναι.¹

> "δσσα δὲ μὴ πεφίληκε Ζεύς," φησὶ Πίνδαρος, "ἀτύζονται βοὰν Πιερίδων ἀίοντα·" καὶ γὰρ διαγριαίνεται καὶ ἀγανακτεῖ, καὶ τὰς τίγρεις δέ φασι περιτυμπανιζομένας ἐκμαίνεσθαι καὶ ταράττεσθαι καὶ τέλος αὐτὰς διασπᾶν. ἔλαττον οὖν κακὸν οἶς διὰ κωφότητα καὶ πήρωσιν ἀκοῆς ἀπάθεια πρὸς μουσικὴν καὶ ἀναισθησία συμβέβηκεν. ὁ Τειρεσίας ἐχρῆτο δυστυχία μὴ βλέπων τὰ τέκνα μηδὲ τοὺς συνήθεις, ὁ δ' Ἀθάμας μείζονι καὶ ἡ ᾿Αγαύη, βλέποντες ὡς λέοντας καὶ D ἐλάφους· καὶ τῷ Ἡρακλεῖ δήπου μανέντι τοὺς νἱοὺς ἐλυσιτέλει μήτ' ἰδεῖν μήτ' αἰσθέσθαι παρόντας ἢ χρῆσθαι τοῖς φιλτάτοις ὡς πολεμίοις. 6. Τί οὖν; οὐ δοκεῖ σοι καὶ τὸ τῶν ἀθέων πρὸς

6. Τί οῦν; οὐ δοκεῖ σοι καὶ τὸ τῶν ἀθέων πρὸς τοὺς δεισιδαίμονας πάθος ἔχειν τοιαύτην διαφοράν; οἱ μὲν² οὐχ ὅρῶσι τοὺς θεοὺς τὸ παράπαν, οἱ δὲ κακοὺς ὑπάρχειν νομίζουσιν· οἱ μὲν παρορῶσιν, οἱ δὲ δοξάζουσι φοβερὸν τὸ εὐμενὲς καὶ τυραννικὸν καθιστάναι Hercher: καθιστάν οr παρείναι.

 ² μέν Wyttenbach: μέν οῦν.

^a Pythian Odes, i. 13 (25); quoted also in Moralia, 746 B and 1095 E. ^b Cf. Moralia, 144 D.

⁶ All these were victims of a god-sent madness.

harmony and order, was given to mankind by the gods not for the sake of pampering them or tickling their ears, but so that whatever in a man's body is disturbing and errant, affecting the cycles and concords of his soul, and in many instances, for lack of culture and refinement, waxing wanton because of licentiousness and error, music should, in its own way, disengage and bring round and restore to its proper place again.

Whatsoever things there be Which by Zeus are not held dear, says Pindar,ª

In affrighted panic flee

When the Muses' voice they hear.

In fact they become provoked and angry ; and tigers, they say, surrounded by the sound of beaten drums go utterly mad, and get so excited that they end by tearing themselves to pieces.^b There is less harm, therefore, for those who, as the result of deafness or impairment of hearing, have a feeling of indifference and insensibility toward music. Teiresias laboured under a misfortune in not being able to see his children or his intimate friends, but greater was the misfortune of Athamas^c and Agave,^c who saw them as lions and deer ; and for Heracles^c in his madness it would undoubtedly have been better neither to see his sons, nor to realize that they were present, than to treat his nearest and dearest as enemies.

6. What then? Does it not seem to you that the feeling of the atheists compared with the superstitious presents just such a difference? The former do not see the gods at all, the latter think that they do exist and are evil. The former disregard them, the latter conceive their kindliness to be frightful, (167) το πατρικόν και βλαβερόν το κηδεμονικόν και το αμήνιτον' άγριον είναι και θηριώδες. είτα χαλκοτύποις μέν πείθονται και λιθοξόοις και κηροπλάσταις ανθρωπόμορφα των θεών τα είδη ποιούσι, Ε καί τοιαῦτα πλάττουσι καὶ κατασκευάζουσι καὶ προσκυνούσι· φιλοσόφων δέ και πολιτικών ανδρών καταφρονοῦσιν, ἀποδεικνύντων τὴν τοῦ θεοῦ σεμνότητα μετά χρηστότητος και μεγαλοφροσύνης καί εύμενείας και κηδεμονίας. περίεστιν ούν τοις μέν αναισθησία και απιστία των ώφελούντων, τοις δε ταραχή και φόβος πρός τὰ ώφελοῦντα. και όλως ή μέν άθεότης απάθεια πρός το θειόν έστι μή νοούσα το άγαθόν, ή δε δεισιδαιμονία πολυπάθεια κακόν τό άγαθόν ύπονοούσα. φοβούνται τούς θεούς και καταφεύγουσιν έπι τους θεούς, κολακεύουσι καί λοιδορούσιν, εύχονται καί καταμέμ-F φονται. κοινόν ανθρώπων το μή πάντα διευτυχείν.

> κεῖνοι γάρ τ'³ ἄνοσοι καὶ ἀγήραοι πόνων τ' ἄπειροι, βαρυβόαν πορθμον πεφευγότες 'Αχέροντος, ό Πίνδαρος θεούς φησι, τά δ' άνθρώπινα πάθη καὶ πράγματα μέμικται συντυχίαις ἄλλοτ' ἄλλως ρεούσαις.

7. Φέρε δή πρώτον έν τοις άβουλήτοις σκόπει τον άθεον και καταμάνθανε την διάθεσιν, αν ή τάλλα μέτριος, χρωμένου σιωπή τοις παρούσι και

¹ ἀμήνιτον Meziriacus, Reiske, and Wyttenbach : ἄμικτον or auluntor. Cf. Moralia, 413 D.

² τὰ ἐίδη ποιοῦσι] τὰ σώματα εἶναι in most Mss.
 ³ γάρ τ΄ Moralia, 1075 Α: γὰρ.

^a Or, as given in most MSS., " that the bodies of the gods are like the bodies of men." 470 their fatherly solicitude to be despotic, their loving care to be injurious, their slowness to anger to be savage and brutal. Then again such persons give credence to workers in metal stone, or wax, who make their images of gods in the likeness of human beings," and they have such images fashioned, and dress them up, and worship them. But they hold in contempt philosophers and statesmen, who try to prove that the majesty of God is associated with goodness, magnanimity, kindliness, and solicitude. So the atheists have more than enough of indifference and distrust of the Beings who can help them, whereas the superstitious experience equal agitation and fear towards the things that can help them. Or, in fine, atheism is an indifferent feeling towards the Deity, which has no notion of the good, and superstition is a multitude of differing feelings with an underlying notion that the good is evil. For the superstitious fear the gods, and flee to the gods for help; they flatter them and assail them with abuse, pray to them and blame them. It is the common lot of mankind not to enjoy continual good fortune in all things.

> Age and illness not their lot, Toil and labour they know not, 'Scaped is Acheron's loud strait, says Pindar ^b of the gods, but human experiences and actions are linked with chance circumstances which move now in one course and now in another.

7. Come now, observe the atheist in circumstances not desired by him, and take note of his attitude. If he be moderate in general, you will note that he takes ^b Frag. 143 (ed. Christ). Cited by Plutarch again in Moralia, 763 c and 1075 A.

πορίζοντος αύτώ βοηθείας και παρηγορίας, αν δέ δυσφορή και περιπαθή, πάντας έπι την τύχην και 168 το αυτόματον απερειδομένου τους όδυρμούς καί βοώντος ώς οὐδέν κατά δίκην οὐδ' ἐκ προνοίας άλλα πάντα συγκεχυμένως και ακρίτως φέρεται καί ταράττεται¹ τὰ τῶν ἀνθρώπων. τοῦ δέ δεισιδαίμονος ούχ ούτος ό τρόπος, άλλ' εί καί μικρότατον αὐτῷ κακόν τι συμπεπτωκός ἐστιν, άλλα κάθηται πάθη χαλεπά και μεγάλα και δυσαπάλλακτα τη λύπη προσοικοδομών, και προσεμφορών αύτῷ δείματα καὶ φόβους καὶ ὑποψίας καί ταραχάς, παντί θρήνω καί παντί στεναγμώ καθαπτόμενος· ούτε γάρ ανθρωπον ούτε τύχην ούτε καιρόν ούθ' έαυτόν άλλά πάντων τόν θεόν Β αίτιαται, κάκείθεν έπ' αύτον ηκειν και φέρεσθαι ρεύμα δαιμόνιον άτης φησί, και ώς ού δυστυχής ῶν ἀλλὰ θεομισής τις ἄνθρωπος ὑπὸ τῶν θεῶν κολάζεσθαι και δίκην διδόναι και πάντα πάσχειν προσηκόντως δι' αύτον οι εται.

Νοσών θ' ό ἄθεος ἐκλογίζεται καὶ ἀναμιμνήσκεται πλησμονὰς αὐτοῦ καὶ οἰνώσεις καὶ ἀταξίας περὶ δίαιταν ἢ κόπους ὑπερβάλλοντας ἢ μεταβολὰς ἀέρων ἀήθεις καὶ τόπων, ἔπειτα προσκρούσας ἐν πολιτείαις καὶ περιπεσὼν ἀδοξίαις πρὸς ὅχλον

¹ ταράττεται Wyttenbach: πράττεται or σπαθάται, which seems dubious: διασπάται? 472 his present fortune without a word, and tries to procure for himself means of help and comfort; but if he be given to impatience or violent emotion, you will note that he directs all his complaints against Fortune and Chance, and exclaims that nothing comes about according to right or as the result of providence, but that the course of all human affairs is confusion and disorder, and that they are all being turned topsy-turvy. This, however, is not the way of the superstitious man; but if even the slightest ill befall him, he sits down and proceeds to construct, on the basis of his trouble, a fabric of harsh, momentous, and practically unavoidable experiences which he must undergo, and he also loads himself with fears and frights, suspicions and trepidations, and all this he bitterly assails with every sort of lamentation and moaning. For he puts the responsibility for his lot upon no man nor upon Fortune nor upon occasion nor upon himself, but lays the responsibility for everything upon God, and says that from that source a heaven-sent stream of mischief has come upon him with full force; and he imagines that it is not because he is unlucky, but because he is hateful to the gods, that he is being punished by the gods, and that the penalty he pays and all that he is undergoing are deserved because of his own conduct.

The atheist, when he is ill, takes into account and calls to mind the times when he has eaten too much or drunk too much wine, also irregularities in his daily life, or instances of over-fatigue or unaccustomed changes of air or locality; and again when he has given offence in administering office, and has encountered disrepute with the masses or calumny with

(168) η διαβολαῖς πρὸς ήγεμόνα τὴν αἰτίαν ἐξ αύτοῦ καὶ τῶν περὶ αὐτὸν σκοπεῖ > πῆ παρέβην; τί δ' ἔρεξα; τί μοι δέον οὐκ ἐτελέσθη;

- τῷ δὲ δεισιδαίμονι καὶ σώματος ἀρρωστία πᾶσα C καὶ χρημάτων ἀποβολὴ καὶ τέκνων θάνατοι καὶ περὶ πολιτικὰς πράξεις δυσημερίαι καὶ ἀποτεύξεις πληγαὶ θεοῦ καὶ προσβολαὶ δαίμονος λέγονται. ὅθεν οὐδὲ τολμῷ βοηθεῖν οὐδὲ διαλύειν τὸ συμβεβηκὸς οὐδὲ θεραπεύειν οὐδὲ ἀιαλύειν τὸ συμβεβηκὸς οὐδὲ θεραπεύειν οὐδὲ ἀντιτάττεσθαι, μὴ δόξῃ θεομαχεῖν καὶ ἀντιτείνειν κολαζόμενος, ἀλλ' ώθεῖται μὲν ἔξω νοσοῦντος ὅ ἰατρός, ἀποκλείεται δὲ πενθοῦντος ὅ νουθετῶν καὶ παραμυθούμενος φιλόσοφος. '' ἔα με,'' φησίν, '' ἄνθρωπε, διδόναι δίκην, τὸν ἀσεβῆ, τὸν ἐπάρατον, τὸν θεοῖς καὶ δαίμοσι μεμισημένον.''
- D ^{*}Εστιν ἀνθρώπου μὴ πεπεισμένου θεοὺς εἶναι λυπουμένου δ' ἄλλως καὶ περιπαθοῦντος ἀπομάξαι δάκρυον, ἀποκεῖραι κόμην, ἀφελέσθαι τὸ ἱμάτιον· τὸν δὲ δεισιδαίμονα πῶς ἂν προσείποις ἢ πῆ¹ βοηθήσεις; ἔξω κάθηται σακκίον ἔχων καὶ περιεζωσμένος ῥάκεσι ῥυπαροῖς, πολλάκις δὲ γυμνὸς ἐν πηλῷ κυλινδούμενος ἐξαγορεύει τινὰς ἁμαρτίας αὐτοῦ καὶ πλημμελείας, ὡς τόδε φαγόντος ἢ πιόντος ἢ βαδίσαντος ὅδὸν ἢν οὐκ εἴα τὸ δαιμόνιον. ἂν δ' ἄριστα πράττη καὶ συνῆ πράως³ δεισιδαι-

¹ $\pi \hat{y}$] ποῦ most Mss. ² πράωs Abernetty and F.C.B.: πράφ.

^a Pythagoras, Carmina aurea, 42; quoted again in Moralia, 515 F. 474

SUPERSTITION, 168

a ruler, he looks to find the reason in himself and his own surroundings :

Where did I err, and what have I done? What duty of mine was neglected?^a

But in the estimation of the superstitious man, every indisposition of his body, loss of property, deaths of children, or mishaps and failures in public life are classed as "afflictions of God" or "attacks of an evil spirit."^b For this reason he has no heart to relieve the situation or undo its effects, or to find some remedy for it or to take a strong stand against it, lest he seem to fight against God and to rebel at his punishment; but when he is ill the physician is ejected from the house, and when he is in grief the door is shut on the philosopher who would advise and comfort him. "Oh, sir," he says, "leave me to pay my penalty, impious wretch that I am, accursed, and hateful to the gods and all the heavenly host."^c

It is possible in the case of a man unconvinced of the existence of gods, when he is in grief and great distress in other ways, to wipe away a tear, cut his hair, and take off his cloak; but what words can you address to the superstitious man, or in what way-shall you help him? He sits outside his house with sackcloth on and filthy rags about him; and oftentimes he rolls naked in the mire as he confesses divers sins and errors of his—eating this or drinking that, or walking in a path forbidden by his conscience. But if he is very fortunate, and but mildly yoked with

Cf. Cicero, Tusculan Disputations, iii. 29 (72).

^e Perhaps the language was suggested by the words in Sophocles, Oedipus Tyrannus, 1340.

VOL. II

(168) μονία, περιθειούμενος¹ οἴκοι κάθηται και² περιματτόμενος, αἱ δὲ γρᾶες "καθάπερ παττάλῳ," Ε φησὶν ὁ Βίων, " ὅ τι ἂν τύχωσιν αὐτῷ περιάπτουσι φέρουσαι καὶ περιαρτῶσι."

8. Τὸν Τιρίβαζόν³ φασιν ὑπὸ τῶν Περσῶν συλλαμβανόμενον σπάσασθαί τε τὸν ἀκινάκην, εὕρωστον ὄντα, καὶ διαμάχεσθαι· μαρτυρομένων δὲ καὶ βοώντων ὅτι συλλαμβάνουσιν αὐτὸν βασιλέως κελεύσαντος, αὐτίκα τὸ ξίφος καταβαλεῖν καὶ τὼ χεῖρε συνδῆσαι παρασχεῖν. ἀρ' οῦν οὐχ ὅμοιόν ἐστι τὸ γιγνόμενον; οἱ μὲν ἄλλοι διαμάχονται συμφοραῖς καὶ διωθοῦνται τὰ πράγματα, φυγὰς ἑαυτοῖς μη- χανώμενοι καὶ παρατροπὰς τῶν ἀβουλήτων· ὅ Τδὲ δεισιδαίμων οὐδενὸς ἀκούσας, αὐτὸς πρὸς αὐτὸν εἰπών '΄ ταῦτα πάσχεις, ὡ κακόδαιμον, ἐκ προνοίας καὶ θεοῦ κελεύοντος '΄ ἔρριψε πῶσαν ἐλπίδα, προ- ήκατο ἑαυτόν, ἔφυγε, διεκρούσατο τοὺς βοηθοῦντας.

Πολλά τῶν μετρίων κακῶν ὀλέθρια ποιοῦσιν ai δεισιδαιμονίαι. Μίδας ὁ παλαιός, ὡς ἔοικεν, ἔκ τινων ἐνυπνίων ἀθυμῶν καὶ ταραττόμενος οὕτω κακῶς ἔσχε τὴν ψυχήν, ὥσθ' ἑκουσίως ἀποθανεῖν αἶμα ταύρου πιών. ὁ δὲ τῶν Μεσσηνίων βασιλεὺς ᾿Αριστόδημος ἐν τῷ πρὸς Λακεδαιμονίους⁴ πολέμῳ, κυνῶν λύκοις ὠρυομένων ὅμοια καὶ περὶ τὴν ἑστίαν αὐτοῦ τὴν πατρώαν περιθειούμενος Hercher: περιθυόμενος.

 ² καl added by Reiske.
 ³ Τιρίβαζόν Hercher: τηρίβαζόν οτ τειρίβαζόν.

4 Λακεδαιμονίους Xylander: μεσσηνίους.

^a Plutarch, in his Life of Artaxerxes, chap. xxix. (p. 1026 c), represents Tiribazus as fighting to the end, but this may have been on another occasion.

superstition, he sits in his house, subjecting himself to fumigation, and smearing himself with mud, and the old crones, as Bion says, "bring whatever chance directs and hang and fasten it on him as on a peg."

8. Tiribazus, they say, when an attempt was made by the Persians to arrest him, drew his sword, being a man of great strength, and fought desperately. But when the men protested and cried out that they were arresting him by the King's command, he instantly threw down his sword and held out his hands to be bound.^a Is not what actually happens just like this? The rest of men fight desperately against misfortunes, and force their way through difficulties, contriving for themselves means to escape and avert things undesired; but the superstitious man, without a word from anybody, says all to himself, "This you have to undergo, poor soul, by the dispensation of Providence and by God's command," and casts away all hope, gives himself up, runs away, and repulses those who would help him.

Many ills of no great moment are made to result fatally by men's superstition. Midas of old, dispirited and disturbed, as it appears, as the result of some dreams, reached such a state of mind that he committed suicide by drinking bull's blood.^b And Aristodemus, king of the Messenians in the war against the Spartans, when dogs howled like wolves, and quitch-grass began to grow around his ancestral ἀγρώστεως ἀναβλαστανούσης καὶ τῶν μάντεων τὰ σημεῖα φοβουμένων, ἐξαθυμήσας καὶ κατα-169 σβεσθεὶς ταῖς ἐλπίσιν αὐτὸς ἑαυτὸν ἀπέσφαξεν. ἦν δ' ἴσως καὶ Νικία τῷ 'Αθηναίων στρατηγῷ κράτιστον οὕτως ἀπαλλαγῆναι τῆς δεισιδαιμονίας ὡς Μίδας ἢ 'Αριστόδημος ἢ φοβηθέντι τὴν σκιὰν ἐκλιπούσης τῆς σελήνης καθῆσθαι περιτειχιζόμενον ὑπὸ τῶν πολεμίων, εἶθ' ὁμοῦ τέτταρσι μυριάσιν ἀνθρώπων φονευθέντων τε καὶ ζώντων ἁλόντων ὑποχείριον γενέσθαι καὶ δυσκλεῶς ἀποθανεῖν. οὐ γὰρ γῆς ἀντίφραξις ἐν μέσῳ γενομένης φοβερόν, οὐδὲ δεινὸν ἐν καιρῷ περιόδων' σκιᾶς πρὸς σελήνην ἀπάντησις, ἀλλὰ δεινὸν τὸ τῆς Β δεισιδαιμονίας σκότος ἐμπεσὸν τοῦ' ἀνθρώπου συγχέαι καὶ τυφλῶσαι λογισμὸν ἐν πράγμασι μάλιστα λογισμοῦ δεομένοις.

^b Plutarch, in trying to be a physician of the soul to cure superstition, has here unwittingly turned homoeopath. Cf. B. Perrin's note on chap. xxxi. (p. 128 Å) of the Life of Themistocles in Plutarch's Themistocles and Aristides (New York, 1901), page 256. To the references there given should be added Nicander, Alexipharmaca, 312.

> Γλαῦχ', ὅρα, βαθὺς³ γὰρ ἤδη κύμασιν ταράσσεται πόντος, ἀμφὶ δ' ἄκρα⁴ Γυρέων ὀρθὸν ἴσταται νέφος, σήμα χειμώνος.

τοῦτ' ἰδών κυβερνήτης εὕχεται μὲν ὑπεκφυγεῖν καὶ θεοὺς ἐπικαλεῖται σωτῆρας, εὐχόμενος δὲ τὸν οἴακα προσάγει, τὴν κεραίαν ὑφίησι,

¹ περιόδων Xylander: ποδών ; cf. 171 A infra.

² έμπεσον τοῦ Bywater and F.C.B. : έμπεσόντος.

³ Γλαῦκ' ὅρα βαθύς Canter, but the reading is established by other quotations of the passage: γλαυκεοράβδοις.

⁴ άκρα J. Pierson : άκρą.

^a Other portents which disheartened Aristodemus are related by Pausanias, iv. 13. 478 hearth, and the seers were alarmed by these signs, lost heart and hope by his forebodings, and slew himself by his own hand.^a It would perhaps have been the best thing in the world for Nicias, general of the Athenians, to have got rid of his superstition in the same way as Midas and Aristodemus, rather than to be affrighted at the shadow on the moon in eclipse and sit inactive while the enemy's wall was being built around him, and later to fall into their hands together with forty thousand men, who were either slain or captured alive, and himself meet an inglorious end.^b For the obstruction of light caused by the earth's coming between sun and moon is nothing frightful, nor is the meeting of a shadow with the moon at the proper time in its revolutions anything frightful, but frightful is the darkness of superstition falling upon man, and confounding and blinding his power to reason in circumstances that most loudly demand the power to reason.

> Glaucus, see, the mighty ocean Even now with billows roars, Round about the Gyrian summits Sheer in air a dark cloud soars, Sign of storm . . .; ^e when the pilot sees this, he prays that he may escape the storm, and calls upon the Saviours,^d but while he is praying he throws the helm over, lowers the yard, and ^b The details regarding Nicias are to be found in Thucydides, vii. 35-87, and in Plutarch's Life of Nicias, chap. xxiii. (p. 538 p) ff.

^c A fragment from Archilochus: cf. Bergk, Poet. Lyr. Graec. ii. p. 696, Archilochus, No. 54.

^d Castor and Pollux.

(169) φεύγει μέγα λαΐφος ὑποστολίσας ἐρεβώδεος ἐκ θαλάσσης.

ό 'Ησίοδος κελεύει πρὸ ἀρότου καὶ σπόρου τὸν γεωργὸν εύχεσθαί τ' Διὶ χθονίω Δημήτερί θ' ἀγνῆ

C τῆς ἐχέτλης ἐχόμενον, Ὅμηρος δὲ τὸν Αιαντά φησι τῷ Ἔκτορι μέλλοντα μονομαχεῖν εὔχεσθαι κελεύειν τοὺς Ἐλληνας ὑπὲρ αὐτοῦ τοῖς θεοῖς, εἶτ' εὐχομένων ἐκείνων ὁπλίζεσθαι. καὶ ὁ ᾿Αγαμέμνων ὅτε τοῖς μαχομένοις προσέταξεν εὖ μέν τις δόρυ θηξάσθω, εὖ δ' ἀσπίδα θέσθω, τότε παρὰ τοῦ Διὸς αἰτεῖ δός με κατὰ πρηνές βαλέειν Πριάμοιο μέλαθρον ἀρετῆς γὰρ ἐλπὶς ὁ θεός ἐστιν, οὐ δειλίας πρόφασις. ἀλλ' Ἰουδαῖοι σαββάτων ὅντων ἐν ἀγνάμπτοις² καθεζόμενοι, τῶν πολεμίων κλίμακας προστιθέντων καὶ τὰ τείχη καταλαμβανόντων, οὐκ ἀνέστησαν ἀλλ' ἔμειναν ὥσπερ ἐν σαγήνῃ μιῷ τῇ δεισιδαιμονίῷ συνδεδεμένοι.

D 9. Τοιαύτη μέν έν τοῖς ἀβουλήτοις καὶ περιστατικοῖς λεγομένοις πράγμασι καὶ καιροῖς ἡ δεισιδαιμονία, βελτίων δ' οὐδὲν οὐδ' ἐν τοῖς ἡδίοσι τῆς ἀθεότητος. ἦδιστα δὲ τοῖς ἀνθρώποις

¹ τ '] δ ' in some MSS. and in Hesiod.

² άγνάπτοιs in some MSS. preferred by Abernetty.

^a Cf. Bergk, Poet. Lyr. Graec. iii. p. 730; Plutarch, Moralia, 475 F, and Nauck, Trag. Graec. Frag. p. 910, Adespota, No. 377. ^b Works and Days, 465-8. ^c Homer, Il. vii. 193 ff. ^d Ibid. ii. 382

⁶ Adapted from Homer, Il. ii. 413-414.

Furling the big main sail, Hastens to make his escape Out from the murky sea.^a Hesiod advises ^b that the farmer before ploughing and sowing should

Pray to Zeus of the world below and to holy Demeter with his hand on the plough-handle; and Homer says ^{σ} that Ajax, as he was about to engage in single combat with Hector, bade the Greeks pray to the gods for him, and then, while they were praying, donned his armour; and when Agamemnon enjoined ^d on the fighting men,

See that each spear is well sharpened, and each man's shield in good order, at the same time he asked in prayer from Zeus,

Grant that I raze to the level of earth the palace of Priam; *

for God is brave hope, not cowardly excuse. But the Jews, t because it was the Sabbath day, sat in their places immovable, while the enemy were planting ladders against the walls and capturing the defences, and they did not get up, but remained there, fast bound in the toils of superstition as in one great net.

9. Such are the characteristics of superstition in undesired and critical (as they are called) circumstances and occasions, but it is not one bit better than atheism even under pleasurable conditions. The pleasantest things that men enjoy are festal

¹ Perhaps the reference is to the capture of Jerusalem by Pompey in 63 B.C. (cf. Dio Cassius, xxxvii. 16), or possibly to its capture by Antony in 38 B.C. (cf. Dio Cassius, xlix. 22). Cf. also Josephus, Antiquitates Jud. xii. 6. 2, and I Maccabees, ii. 32 ff.

(169) έορταὶ καὶ εἰλαπίναι πρὸς ἱεροῖς καὶ μυήσεις καὶ ὀργιασμοὶ καὶ κατευχαὶ θεῶν καὶ προσκυνήσεις. ἐνταῦθα τοίνυν σκόπει τὸν ἄθεον γελῶντα μὲν μανικὸν καὶ σαρδάνιον¹ γέλωτα τοῖς ποιουμένοις καί που παραφθεγγόμενον ἠρέμα² πρὸς τοὺς συνήθεις ὅτι τετύφωνται καὶ δαιμονῶσιν οἱ θεοῖς ταῦτα δρᾶσθαι νομίζοντες, ἄλλο δ' οὐδὲν ἔχοντα κακόν. ὁ δὲ δεισιδαίμων βούλεται μὲν οὐ δύναται δὲ γαίρειν οὐδ' ἦδεσθαι.

πόλις δ' όμοῦ μὲν θυμιαμάτων γέμει, Ε όμοῦ δὲ παιάνων τε καὶ στεναγμάτων ή ψυχή τοῦ δεισιδαίμονος· ἐστεφανωμένος ἀχριậ, θύει καὶ φοβεῖται, εὔχεται φωνῆ παλλομένη καὶ χερσὶν ἐπιθυμιậ τρεμούσαις, καὶ ὅλως ἀποδείκνυσι τὸν Πυθαγόρου λόγον φλύαρον εἰπόντος ὅτι βέλτιστοι γιγνόμεθα πρὸς τοὺς θεοὺς βαδίζοντες· τότε γὰρ ἀθλιώτατα καὶ κάκιστα πράττουσιν οἱ δεισιδαίμονες, ὥσπερ ἄρκτων φωλεοῖς ἢ χειαῖς δρακόντων ἢ μυχοῖς κητῶν τοῖς τῶν θεῶν μεγάροις ἢ ἀνακτόροις προσιόντες.

10. "Οθέν ἔμοιγε καὶ θαυμάζειν ἔπεισι τοὺς τὴν F ἀθεότητα φάσκοντας ἀσέβειαν εἶναι, μὴ φάσκοντας δὲ τὴν δεισιδαιμονίαν. καίτοι γ' Ἀναξαγόρας δίκην ἔφυγεν ἀσεβείας ἐπὶ τῷ λίθον³ εἰπεῖν τὸν ἥλιον, Κιμμερίους δ' οὐδεὶς εἶπεν ἀσεβεῖς ὅτι τὸν ἥλιον οὐδ' εἶναι τὸ παράπαν νομίζουσι. τί σὺ

1 σαρδάνιον] σαρδόνιον or σαρδώνιον.

² $\eta \rho \epsilon \mu a$] $d \tau \rho \epsilon \mu a$ in some MSS.

³ λίθον] μύδρον, the traditional word, by correction in one MS. Plutarch probably drew from the well-known passage in Plato's Apology, p. 26 D.

days and banquets at the temples, initiations and mystic rites, and prayer and adoration of the gods. Note that the atheist on these occasions gives way to insane and sardonic laughter at such ceremonies, and remarks aside to his cronies that people must cherish a vain and silly conceit to think that these rites are performed in honour of the gods; but with him no harm is done save this. On the other hand the superstitious man, much as he desires it, is not able to rejoice or be glad:

> The city is with burning incense filled : Full too of joyous hymns and doleful groans ^a is the soul of the superstitious man. When the garland is on his head he turns pale, he offers sacrifice and feels afraid, he prays with quavering voice, with trembling hands he sprinkles incense, and, in a word, proves how foolish are the words of Pythagoras,⁹ who said that we reach our best when we draw near to the gods. For that is the time when the superstitious fare most miserably and wretchedly, for they approach the halls or temples of the gods as they would approach bears' dens or snakes' holes or the haunts of monsters of the deep.

10. Hence it occurs to me to wonder at those who say that atheism is impiety, and do not say the same of superstition. Yet Anaxagoras was brought to trial for impiety on the ground that he had said the sun is a stone; but nobody has called the Cimmerians impious because they do not believe even in the existence of the sun at all.^c What say you? The λέγεις; δ μὴ νομίζων θεούς εἶναι ἀνόσιός ἐστιν; δ δὲ τοιούτους νομίζων οἶους οἱ δεισιδαίμονες, οὐ μακρῷ δόξαις ἀνοσιωτέραις σύνεστιν; ἐγὼ γοῦν ἂν ἐθέλοιμι μᾶλλον τοὺς ἀνθρώπους λέγειν περὶ ἐμοῦ μήτε γεγονέναι τὸ παράπαν μήτ' εἶναι 170 Πλούταρχον ἢ λέγειν ὅτι Πλούταρχός ἐστιν ἄνθρωπος ἀβέβαιος εὐμετάβολος, εὐχερὴς πρὸς ὀργήν, ἐπὶ τοῖς τυχοῦσι τιμωρητικός, μικρόλυπος· ἂν καλῶν ἐπὶ δεῖπνον ἑτέρους παραλίπῃς ἐκεῖνον, ἂν ἀσχολίας σοι γενομένης ἐπὶ θύρας μὴ ἔλθῃς ἢ μὴ προσείπῃς, διέδεταί σου τὸ σῶμα προσφὺς ἢ συλλαβὼν ἀποτυμπανιεῖ τὸ παιδίον, ἢ θηρίον ἔχων τοῖς καρποῖς ἐφήσει καὶ λυμανεῖται τὴν ὀπώραν.

^a Sophocles, Oedipus Tyrannus, 4; quoted also in Moralia, 95 c, 445 D, and 623 c.

^b Cf. Moralia, 413 B.

^c Cf. Homer, Od. xi. 13-19.

Τοῦ Τιμοθέου τὴν *Αρτεμιν ἄδοντος ἐν 'Αθήναις καὶ λέγοντος θυιάδα¹ φοιβάδα μαινάδα λυσσάδα

Κινησίας ό μελοποιός ἐκ τῶν θεατῶν ἀναστάς, Β '' τοιαύτη σοι,'' εἶπε, '' θυγάτηρ γένοιτο.'' καὶ μὴν ὅμοια τούτοις καὶ χείρω περὶ 'Αρτέμιδος οἱ δεισιδαίμονες ὑπολαμβάνουσιν, > αἴτε κα ἀπ' ἀγχόνας ἄξασα, αἴτε κα λεχών κναίσασα, αἴτε κἀκ νεκρῶ παροῦσα, ἀμπεφυρμένα ἐσῆλθες, αἴτε καὶ ἐκ τριόδων

> > 1 θυιάδα Bergk: θυάδα.

man who does not believe in the existence of the gods is unholy? And is not he who believes in such gods as the superstitious believe in a partner to opinions far more unholy? Why, for my part, I should prefer that men should say about me that I have never been born at all, and there is no Plutarch, rather than that they should say "Plutarch is an inconstant fickle person, quick-tempered, vindictive over little accidents, pained at trifles. If you invite others to dinner and leave him out, or if you haven't the time and don't go to call on him, or fail to speak to him when you see him, he will set his teeth into your body and bite it through, or he will get hold of your little child and beat him to death, or he will turn the beast that he owns into your crops and spoil your harvest "a

When Timotheus, in a song at Atliens, spoke of Artemis as Ecstatic Bacchic frantic fanatic,^b

Cinesias, the song-writer, standing up in his place among the audience, exclaimed, "May you have a daughter like that!" It is a fact that the superstitious make assumptions like that, and even worse than that, about Artemis:

> If hasting in fear from a hanging corpse, If near to a woman in childbirth pain, If come from a house where the dead are mourned, Polluted you entered the holy shrine, Or if from the triple cross-roads come

Probably a covert reference to Artemis who sent the Calydonian boar to ravage the fields; Homer, Il. ix. 533 ff.
Bergk, Poet. Lyr. Graec. iii. p. 620, Timotheus, No. 1; ef. Plutarch, Moralia, 22 A.

170)

καθαρμάτεσσιν ἐπισπωμένα τῷ παλαμναίῳ συμπλεχθεῖσα.¹

Οὐδἐν δὲ τούτων ἐπιεικέστερα φρονοῦσι περὶ ᾿Απόλλωνος περὶ "Ηρας περὶ ᾿Αφροδίτης· πάντας γὰρ τούτους τρέμουσι καὶ δεδοίκασι. καίτοι τί τοιοῦτον ἡ Νιόβη περὶ τῆς Λητοῦς ἐβλασφήμησεν, οἶον ἡ δεισιδαιμονία πέπεικε περὶ τῆς θεοῦ τοὺς C ἄφρονας, ὡς ἅρα λοιδορηθεῖσα κατετόξευσε τῆς ἀθλίας γυναικὸς έξ μέν θυγατέρας, έξ δ' υίέας ήβώοντας;

ούτως ἄπληστος ἀλλοτρίων κακῶν ἦν καὶ ἀνίλαστος. εἰ γὰρ ἀληθῶς ἡ θεὸς χολὴν εἶχε καὶ μισοπόνηρος ἦν καὶ ἦλγει κακῶς ἀκούουσα καὶ μὴ κατεγέλα τῆς ἀνθρωπίνης ἀμαθίας καὶ ἀγνοίας ἀλλ' ἦγανάκτει, τούτους ἔδει τοξεῦσαι τοὺς τοσαύτην ὠμότητα καὶ πικρίαν καταψευδομένους αὐτῆς καὶ τοιαῦτα λέγοντας καὶ γράφοντας. τῆς γοῦν Ἐκάβης προβαλλόμεθα τὴν πικρίαν ὡς βάρβαρον καὶ θηριώδη λεγούσης τοῦ ἐγὼ μέσον ἧπαρ ἔχοιμι ἐσθέμεναι προσφῦσα, την δέ Συρίαν θεόν οι δεισιδαίμονες νομίζουσιν, αν

D

¹ The MSS. with only the slightest variations read as follows: all $\tau \epsilon \kappa a\nu \dot{a}\pi' \dot{a}\gamma \dot{c}\dot{\nu}\alpha s \dot{a}\xia\sigma a$ all $\tau \epsilon \kappa a\lambda\epsilon\chi\dot{\nu}\alpha \kappa\nu al\sigma a\tau\epsilon$ all $\tau \epsilon \kappa a\nu \dot{\epsilon}\kappa \epsilon \kappa\rho s$ µalovca $\dot{a}\nu \pi \epsilon \phi v \rho \mu \dot{\epsilon} \alpha \dot{\epsilon} \dot{\sigma} \dot{\eta} \lambda \theta s$ all $\dot{\epsilon}\kappa al \dot{\epsilon}\kappa$ $\tau \rho \iota \pi \dot{\delta} \delta \omega \nu$, $\kappa \tau \lambda$. It was long ago recognized that we here have to do with a writer who in Doric dialect touches upon certain things which were taboo in the worship of Artemis, essentially the same as are referred to by Euripides in Iphig. Taur. 380-4. There is a temptation to suggest other possible restorations, for example $\nu \epsilon \kappa \rho o \dot{v} \kappa \lambda a (o v \sigma a, \lambda \epsilon \chi o \dot{v} \mu a l')$ $o \delta \sigma a, \nu \epsilon \kappa \rho \delta \nu \kappa \nu a (\sigma a \sigma a, but those interested will find other$ 486

SUPERSTITION, 170

Drawn to the place by cleansing rites For the part you bear to the guilty one.^a

And they think no more reasonably than this about Apollo and about Hera and about Aphrodite. For they tremble at all of these and dread them. And yet what did Niobe say regarding Leto that was so irreverent as is the belief which superstition has fixed in the minds of the unthinking regarding the goddess, that, because she was derided, she required that the unhappy woman's Daughters six that she bore and six sons in the prime of young manhood ^b be shot dead? So insatiable was she in doing harm to others, and so implacable! For if it were really true that the goddess cherishes anger, and hates wickedness, and is hurt at being ill spoken of, and does not laugh at man's ignorance and blindness, but feels indignation thereat, she ought to require the death of those who falsely impute to her such savagery and bitterness, and tell and write such stories. At any rate, we bring forward the bitterness of Hecuba as something barbaric and savage when she says,

I wish I might eat up his liver,

Biting it 'tween my teeth."

And yet of the Syrian goddess^d the superstitious

 Cf. Bergk, Poet. Lyr. Gr. iii. p. 680; Lobeck, Aglaophamus, p. 633, and Wilamowitz-Moellendorff, Lesebuch (Berlin, 1902), p. 336.

^b Adapted from Homer, Il. xxiv. 604.

^c Homer, Il. xxiv. 212.

^d Cf., for example, Athenaeus, 346 d, or Kock, Com. Attic. Frag. iii. p. 167, Menander, No. 544.

attempts at restoration in the books mentioned in note a above.

(170) $\mu a i \nu i \delta a s^1 \tau i s \ddot{\eta} \dot{a} \phi \dot{\nu} a s \phi \dot{a} \gamma \eta, \tau \dot{a} \dot{a} \nu \tau i \kappa \nu \dot{\eta} \mu i a \delta i$ εσθίειν, ἕλκεσι τὸ σῶμα πιμπράναι, συντήκειν τὸ ήπαρ.

11. [°]Αρ' οὖν τὸ μὲν λέγειν τὰ φαῦλα περὶ τῶν θεῶν ἀνόσιον, τὸ δὲ δοξάζειν οὐκ ἀνόσιον; ἢ καὶ τήν φωνήν αποπον ή δόξα ποιεί του βλασφημούντος; καί γάρ ήμεις την βλασφημίαν ότι δυσμενείας σημειόν έστι προβαλλόμεθα, και τούς κακῶς ἡμᾶς λέγοντας ἐχθροὺς νομίζομεν ὡς καὶ κακῶς φρονοῦντας. ὁρᾶς δ' οἶα περὶ τῶν θεῶν οἱ Ε δεισιδαίμονες φρονοῦσιν, ἐμπλήκτους ἀπίστους εύμεταβόλους τιμωρητικούς ώμούς μικρολύπους ύπολαμβάνοντες, έξ ών ανάγκη και μισείν τον δεισιδαίμονα και φοβείσθαι τους θεούς. πως γαρ ού μέλλει, τὰ μέγιστα τῶν κακῶν αύτῶ δι' ἐκείνους οἰόμενος γεγονέναι καὶ πάλιν γενήσεσθαι; μισών δέ θεούς και φοβούμενος έχθρός έστι. καν δεδοίκη. προσκυνεί γε και θύει και κάθηται πρός ίεροῖς, καὶ οὐ θαυμαστόν ἐστι· καὶ γὰρ τοὺς τυράννους ασπάζονται περιέπουσι χρυσούς ανιστασιν, άλλὰ μισοῦσι σιγῆ " κάρα σείοντες." `Αλέξανδρον Έρμόλαος έθεράπευε, Παυσανίας έδορυφόρει Φίλ-F ιππον, Χαιρέας Γάιον, άλλ' εκαστος τούτων έλεγε παρακολουθών ή σ' αν τισαίμην, ει μοι δύναμίς γε παρείη.

1 μαινίδας] μαινίδα most Mss.: μαινίδια Paton. ² κάν δεδοίκη F.C.B. : κάν (καl some Mss.) δέδιε και or καίτοι.

 ^b Cf. Plutarch, Life of Alexander, chap. lv. (p. 696 c).
 ^c It is said that Pausanias later helped to kill Philip. Cf. Aristotle, Politics, v. 10; Diodorus Siculus, xv.94-95; Aelian, Varia Historia, iii. 45; Valerius Maximus, i. 8, ext. 9. 488 believe that if anybody eats sprats or anchovies, she will gnaw through the bones of his shins, inflame his body with sores, and dissolve his liver.

^a Sophocles, Antigone, 291.

11. Is it, then, an unholy thing to speak meanly of the gods, but not unholy to have a mean opinion of them? Or does the opinion of him who speaks malignly make his utterance improper? It is a fact that we hold up malign speaking as a sign of animosity, and those who speak ill of us we regard as enemies, since we feel that they must also think ill of us. You see what kind of thoughts the superstitious have about the gods ; they assume that the gods are rash, faithless, fickle, vengeful, cruel, and easily offended; and, as a result, the superstitious man is bound to hate and fear the gods. Why not, since he thinks that the worst of his ills are due to them, and will be due to them in the future? As he hates and fears the gods, he is an enemy to them. And yet, though he dreads them, he worships them and sacrifices to them and besieges their shrines; and this is nothing surprising; for it is equally true that men give welcome to despots, and pay court to them, and erect golden statues in their honour, but in their hearts they hate them and "shake the head." " Hermolaüs^b attended upon Alexander, Pausanias c served as bodyguard for Philip, and Chaerea^d for Gaius Caligula, yet each one of these must have said as he followed along :

Verily I would have vengeance if only my strength were sufficient.^e ^d Cassius Chaerea fomented the conspiracy which resulted in the death of Caligula; cf. Tacitus, Annals, i. 32; Suetonius, Caligula, 56-58.

• Homer, Il. xxii. 20.

PLUTARCH'S MORALIA

Οἰκ οἴεται θεοὺς εἶναι ὁ ἄθεος, ὁ δὲ δεισιδαίμων οὐ βούλεται, πιστεύει δ' ἄκων· φοβεῖται γὰρ ἀπιστεῖν. καίτοι γ' ὥσπερ ὁ Τάνταλος ὑπεκδῦναι τὸν λίθον ἐπαιωρούμενον οὕτω καὶ οὗτος τὸν φόβον ὡς οὐχ ἦττον ὑπ' αὐτοῦ πιεζόμενος ἀγαπήσειεν ἄν, καὶ μακαρίσειε τὴν τοῦ ἀθέου διάθεσιν ὡς ἐλευθέριον. νυνὶ δὲ τῷ μὲν ἀθέῳ δεισιδαιμονίας οὐδὲν μέτεστιν, ὁ δὲ δεισιδαίμων τῇ προαιρέσει ἄθεος ῶν ἀσθενέστερός ἐστιν ἢ ὥστε δοξάζειν περὶ θεῶν ὁ βούλεται.

171 12. Καὶ μὴν ὁ ἄθεος δεισιδαιμονίας οὐδαμῆ συναίτιος, ή δε δεισιδαιμονία τη άθεότητι και γενέσθαι παρέσχεν άρχην και γενομένη δίδωσιν άπολογίαν, ούκ άληθη μέν ούδε καλήν, προφάσεως δέ τινος ούκ άμοιρον ούσαν. ού γάρ έν ούρανω τι μεμπτόν ούδ' έν αστροις ούδ' έν ώραις η περιόδοις σελήνης η κινήσεσιν ήλίου περί γην, "ήμέρας και νυκτός δημιουργοίς," η τροφαίς ζώων η καρπων γενέσεσι πλημμελές και άτακτον ένιδόντες ούτως άθεότητα τοῦ παντός κατέγνωσαν, ἀλλὰ τῆς δεισιδαιμονίας έργα και πάθη καταγέλαστα, και ρήματα και κινή-Β ματα καί γοητείαι και μαγείαι και περιδρομαί και τυμπανισμοί και ἀκάθαρτοι μέν καθαρμοι ῥυπαραί δ' άγνεῖαι, βάρβαροι δὲ καὶ παράνομοι πρὸς ίεροῖς κολασμοί και προπηλακισμοί, ταῦτα δίδωσιν ἐνίοις λέγειν ώς μή είναι θεούς άμεινον ή είναι, τοιαῦτα

^a Adapted from Plato, Timaeus, p, 40 c. Plutarch quotes the phrase more accurately in Moralia, 937 E, 938 E, and 1006 E.

The atheist thinks there are no gods ; the superstitious man wishes there were none, but believes in them against his will ; for he is afraid not to believe. And yet, as Tantalus would be glad indeed to get out from under the rock suspended above his head, so the superstitious man would be glad to escape his fear by which he feels oppressed no less than Tantalus by his rock, and he would call the condition of the atheist happy because it is a state of freedom. But, as things are, the atheist has neither part nor lot in superstition, whereas the superstitious man by preference would be an atheist, but is too weak to hold the opinion about the gods which he wishes to hold.

12. Moreover, the atheist has no part in causing superstition, but superstition provides the seed from which atheism springs, and when atheism has taken root, superstition supplies it with a defence, not a true one or a fair one, but one not destitute of some speciousness. For it is not because these people saw in the heavens anything to find fault with, or anything not harmonious or well-ordered in the stars or seasons, or in the revolutions of the moon or in the movements of the sun around the earth, " artisans of day and night," a or in the feeding and growth of living creatures, or in the sowing and harvesting of crops, as the result of which they decided against the idea of a God in the universe; but the ridiculous actions and emotions of superstition, its words and gestures, magic charms and spells, rushing about and beating of drums, impure purifications and dirty sanctifications, barbarous and outlandish penances and mortifications at the shrines-all these give occasion to some to say that it were better there should be no gods at all than gods who accept with

(171) μέν δεχομένους τοιούτοις δε χαίροντας, ουτω δ' ύβριστάς, ουτω δε μικρολόγους και μικρολύπους.
13. Οὐκ ἄμεινον οῦν ἦν Γαλάταις ἐκείνοις και Σκύθαις τὸ παράπαν μήτ' ἔννοιαν ἔχειν θεῶν μήτε φαντασίαν μήθ' ἱστορίαν ἢ θεοὐς εἶναι νομίζειν χαίροντας ἀνθρώπων σφαττομένων αιματι και C τελεωτάτην θυσίαν και ἱερουργίαν ταύτην νομίζοντας; τί δε; Καρχηδονίοις οὐκ ἐλυσιτελει Κριτίαν λαβοῦσιν ἢ Διαγόραν νομοθέτην ἀπ' ἀρχῆς μήτε τινὰ δαιμόνων μήτε θεῶν νομίζειν ἢ τοιαῦτα θύειν οἶα τῷ Κρόνω ἔθυον; οὐχ ὥσπερ Ἐμπεδοκλῆς φησι τῶν τὰ ζῶα θυόντων καθαπτόμενος > μορφήν δ' ἀλλάξαντα πατήρ φίλον υίον ἀείρας σφάζει ἐπευχόμενος μέγα νήπιος, ἀλλ' εἰδότες καὶ γιγνώσκοντες αὐτοὶ τὰ αὐτῶν τέκνα καθιέρευον, οἱ δ' ἄτεκνοι παρὰ τῶν πενήτων ὠνούμενοι παιδία κατέσφαζον καθάπερ ἄρνας η̈ D νεοσσούς, παρειστήκει δ' ή μήτηρ ἄτεγκτος καὶ ἀστένακτος. εἰ δὲ στενάξειεν η̈ δακρύσειεν, ἔδει τῆς τιμῆς στέρεσθαι, τὸ δὲ παιδίον οὐδὲν ῆττον ἐθύετο· κρότου τε κατεπίμπλατο πάντα πρὸ τοῦ ἀγάλματος ἐπαυλούντων καὶ τυμπανιζόντων ἕνεκα τοῦ μὴ γενέσθαι τὴν βοὴν τῶν θρήνων ἐξάκουστον.

^a Cf. Caesar, Gallic War, vi. 16 and Strabo, iv. 4. 5.

^b Cf. Herodotus, iv. 70-72.

^c Both Critias and Diagoras were famous atheists of antiquity. Cf. Sextus Empiricus, Adversus Mathematicos, ix. 54; Plutarch, Moralia, 880 p, 1075 A.

^d Plutarch says (Moralia, 175 A and 522 A) that the practice was stopped by Gelon, tyrant of Syracuse, after his victory over the Carthaginians in 480 B.c. But cf. Diodorus, xx. 14, which suggests that the practice was later revived. 492 pleasure such forms of worship, and are so overbearing, so petty, and so easily offended.

13. Would it not then have been better for those Gauls^a and Scythians^b to have had absolutely no conception, no vision, no tradition, regarding the gods, than to believe in the existence of gods who take delight in the blood of human sacrifice and hold this to be the most perfect offering and holy rite? Again, would it not have been far better for the Carthaginians to have taken Critias or Diagoras^c to draw up their law-code at the very beginning, and so not to believe in any divine power or god, rather than to offer such sacrifices as they used to offer to Cronos?^d These were not in the manner that Empedocles describes ^e in his attack on those who sacrifice living creatures :

Changed in form is the son beloved of his father so pious, Who on the altar lays him and slays him. What folly !

No, but with full knowledge and understanding they themselves offered up their own children, and those who had no children would buy little ones from poor people and cut their throats as if they were so many lambs or young birds; meanwhile the mother stood by without a tear or moan; but should she utter a single moan or let fall a single tear, she had to forfeit the money, f and her child was sacrificed nevertheless; and the whole area before the statue was filled with a loud noise of flutes and drums so that the cries of wailing should not reach the ears of the people. Yet, Cronos here is, of course, the Greek equivalent of Phoenician El (Hebrew Moloch or Baal). Cf. G. F. Moore in the Journal of Biblical Lit. xvi. (1897), p. 161.

^e Diels, Fragmente der Vorsokratiker, i. p. 275.

¹ Since the bad omen of her conduct would nullify the good effect of the sacrifice.

(171) εί δέ Τυφωνές τινες η Γίγαντες ήρχον ήμων τούς θεους ἐκβαλόντες, ποίαις ἂν ἦδοντο θυσίαις ἢ τίνας ἄλλας ἱερουργίας ἀπήτουν; "Αμηστρις δ' ἡ Ξέρξου γυνὴ δώδεκα κατώρυξεν ἀνθρώπους ζῶντας ὑπὲρ αύτης τω Αιδη, δν δ Πλάτων φησί φιλάνθρωπον Ε όντα καί σοφόν και πλούσιον, πειθοί και λόγω κατέχοντα τας ψυχάς, "Αιδην ώνομάσθαι. Ξενοφάνης δ' δ φυσικός τούς Αίγυπτίους κοπτομένους εν ταῖς ἑορταῖς καὶ θρηνοῦντας ὅρῶν ὑπέμνησεν οἰκείως. '΄ οὖτοι,'' φησίν, '΄ εἰ μὲν θεοί εἰσι, μὴ θρηνεῖτε αὐτούς· εἰ δ' ἄνθρωποι, μὴ θύετε αὐτοῖς.'' 14. 'Αλλ' ούδεν ούτω πολυπλανές και πολυπαθές νόσημα και μεμιγμένον έναντίαις δόξαις και μαχομέναις μαλλον ώς το της δεισιδαιμονίας. φευκτέον ούν αὐτὴν ἀσφαλῶς τε καὶ συμφερόντως, οὐχ ώσπερ οί ληστών η θηρίων έφοδον η πυρ άπερι-F σκέπτως και άλογίστως περιφεύγοντες εμπίπτουσιν είς ανοδίας βάραθρα και κρημνούς έχούσας. ούτω γαρ ένιοι φεύγοντες την δεισιδαιμονίαν έμπίπτουσιν είς άθεότητα τραχεΐαν και άντίτυπον, ύπερπηδήσαντες έν μέσω κειμένην την ευσέβειαν.

^c The saying is quoted also in Moralia, 379 B and 763 c, and referred to in 228 E, cf. also Aristotle, Rhetoric, ii. 23, 27.

^a Herodotus, vii. 114; but compare iii. 35.

^b The reference is probably to Plato, Cratylus, pp. 403 A-404 B, where are repeated the popular etymologies of Pluto from $\pi\lambda \delta \hat{v} \tau \sigma s$ (wealth), and Hades from $\pi \dot{a} v \tau a \tau \dot{a} \kappa a \lambda \dot{a} \epsilon i \delta \dot{\epsilon} v a a (all-knowing of good).$

if Typhons or Giants were ruling over us after they had expelled the gods, with what sort of sacrifices would they be pleased, or what other holy rites would they require? Amestris, the wife of Xerxes, caused twelve human beings to be buried alive a as an offering in her behalf to propitiate Hades, of whom Plato says b that it is because he is humane and wise and rich, and controls the souls of the dead by persuasion and reason, that he has come to be called by this name. Xenophanes, the natural philosopher, seeing the Egyptians beating their breasts and wailing at their festivals, gave them a very proper suggestion: "If these beings are gods," said he, "do not bewail them; and if they are men, do not offer sacrifices to them."a

14. But there is no infirmity comprehending such a multitude of errors and emotions, and involving opinions so contradictory, or rather antagonistic, as that of superstition. We must try, therefore, to escape it in some way which is both safe and expedient, and not be like people who incautiously and blindly run hither and thither to escape from an attack of robbers or wild beasts, or from a fire, and rush into trackless places that contain pitfalls and precipices. For thus it is that some persons, in trying to escape superstition, rush into a rough and hardened atheism, thus overleaping true religion which lies between.^d

^d An application of the Aristotelian doctrine that virtue is the mean between two extremes (vices).

COLUMN TY PROPERTY AND

- ACHAEUS, 165: Greek tragic poet, of Eretria in Euboea, born about 484 B.C.
- Acheron, 135 : a river of the other world.
- Achilles, 49, 127, 171: one of the most prominent Greek leaders in Trojan war.
- Ada, 241 : queen of Caria. Adrastus, 19 : son of Talaüs, king of Argos, and brother of Eriphyle, who betrayed her husband Amphiaraüs for the sake of the necklace of Harmodia.
- Acacus, 209: son of Zeus and Acgina; after his death he be-came one of the judges in the other world.
- Aemilius Paulus, L., 313: surnamed Macedonicus from his victory over the Macedonians under Perseus at Pydna, 168 B.C., was a famous Roman general of patrician family. He lived 229 (?)-
- 160 B.C. Plutarch wrote his life. Aeschines, 197, 199: Attic orator, opp nent of Demosthenes, 389-314 B.C.
- Aeschylus quoted, 9, 15, 81, 111, 131, 151, 185: Athenian tragic poet, 525-456 B.C.
- Aesop. 160, 293, 369, 371, 381, 383, 393, 397, 399, 401, 403, 409, 415, 437, 447 : at one time a slave, was a writer of fables. cira 570 B.C. The fables now current as Aesop's can hardly be in anything like their original form.
- Agamedes, 145. 147: brother of Trophonius, who with Trophonius built a Temple of Apollo at Delphi; afterwards hononred at Lebadeia.

- Agamemnon, 407, 481: brother of Menelaüs, and commander-inchief of the Greeks in the Trojan war.
- Agave, 469: daughter of Cadmus. and mother of Pentheus, whom she slew while she was in a Bacchic frenzy.
- Aglaonice, 339: learned daughter of Hegetor of Thessaly.
- Ajax, 407, 451: son of Telamon. from the island of Salamis, one of the Greek heroes of Troy. Sophocles' Ajaz portrays his last day.
- Alcaeus, 403: an emendation by Capps of an almost hopeless pas- sage. Perhaps mapà ro Kpoiro may be defended by Diogenes Laertius, i. 99.
- Alcmeon, 19: son of Amphiaraüs and Eriphyle; the father enjoined his sons to kill their mother as soon as they should be grown up.
- Alcyoneus, 199: son of Antigonus Gonatus.
- Alexander the Great, 65, 75, 227, 241, 489 : son of Philip, and king of Macedon, 356-323 B.C.
- Alexander (see Paris), son of Priam. 75.
- Alexidemus, 363, 365 : son of Thrasybulus tyrant of Miletus.
- Alyattes, 389, 391 : king of Lydia, 617 (?)-460 B.C.
- Amasis, 375, 377, 383, 385, 387, 389: king of Egypt, 26th dynasty.
- Amestris 495 : wife of Xerxes, king of Persia.

- Amphiaraüs, 155: an Argive, son of Oecles and Hypermnestra; a prophetand heroat Argos. Took part in the Calydonian boar hunt, the Argonautic expedition, and the expedition of the Seven against Thebes, where he met his death. Worshipped as a hero after death; oracular shrine at Oropus.
- Amphidamas, 391: legendary king and hero of Chalcis in Euboea.
- Amphitrite, 441, 449 : goddess, wife of Poseidon.
- Anacharsis, 347, 359, 361, 371, 381, 395, 397, 403, 415, 443 : a Scythian of high rank and intelligence, who travelled widely in pursuit of knowledge, visiting Athens in the time of Solon, circa 594 B.c.
- Anaxagoras, 193, 195, 483: Greek philosopher from Clazomenae in Asia Minor, friend of Pericles at Athens, banished from Athens he retired to Lampsacus; circa 500-428 B.C.
- Anaxagoras quoted, 83.
- Anchises, 97: a Trojan beloved of Aphrodite, by whom he became the father of Aeneas.
- Andromache, 191 ; wife of Hector.
- Antigonus Gonatas, 193, 199: the son of Demetrius Poliorcetes born circa 319 B.C.; king of Macedonia 283-239 B.C.
- Antimachus, 131: of Colophon in Asia Minor, epic and elegiac poet, 5th century B.C. Besides Lyde he - wrote a long epic poem Thebaïs. Antipater, 321: trusted Macedonian officer, appointed regent by Alexander during his Asiatic expedition, 334 B.C., and continued as regent after Alexander's death until 320 B.C. Was General against the Greeks during the Lamian war.
- Aphrodite, 301, 329, 333, 349, 351, 405, 487, of the Eleans, 323: the Greek goddess of love.
- Apollo, 433, 487: the Greek god, brother of Artemis.
- Apollonius, to whom Plutarch's letter is addressed, 109, 211.

- Apollonius, son of Apollonius (?), see 106.
- Arcesilaüs, 151, 237: Greek philosopher 4th and 3rd century B.c.; succeeded Crates as head of the Academy.
- Archemorus (or Opheltes), 155 : son of Lycurgus, king of Nemes; left alone by his nurse, Hypsipyle, he was killed by a serpent, at the time of the expedition of the Seven against Theoes.
- Archilochus quoted, 385, 479: from the Island of Paros: wrote elegiac poetry as well as the lambic, of which he was reputed to be the inventor; circa 650 B.C.
- Ardalus, 369, 371, 401, 411, 413 : an hereditary priest and flute-player from Troezene.
- Argus. 47: of the hundred eyes; appointed by Hera to guard Io, after Io had been changed into a beifer.
- Arion, 431, 433, 435 437, a famous harp player from the island of Lesbos, reputed inventor of dithyrambic poctry; he lived in the latter part of the 7th century B.C.
- Aristeides, 75: a high-minded Athenian, often called "the "the Just" fought at Marathon and Salamis; died 468 B.C. Plutarch wrote his life.
- Aristodemus, 477, 479 : king of the
- Messenians, 8th century B.C. Aristotle, 177, 275: the philosopher, 384-322 в.с.
- Aristylla, 337 and note. Arsinoë, 161: sister and wife of Ptolemy Philadelphua.
- Artemis, 485: the Greek goddess, sister of Apollo.
- Asclepius (Lat. Aesculapius), 425: the legendary founder of the art of medicine; later reputed to be the son of Apollo.
- Athamas, 437, 469: son of Aeolus, and king of Orchomenos in Boeotia. In a fit of insanity he slew his own son, Learchus.

Athena Ergane, 85.

Athens, Athenians, 331, 379, 383; fond of fighting, 239.

Athletic trainers, 271, 273.

BATHING, 221, 223, 261.

- Bathycles, beaker of, 401, and note.
- Bias, 347, 351, 369, 375, 377, 379, 395, 399, 401, 429: of Priene in Asia Minor, circa 550 B.C., one of the Seven Wise Men.
- Bion quoted, 477: called Borysthenites, circa 250 B.C., a Scythian philosopher from Olbia on the north of the Black Sea, noted for his pangent sayings. He tried out the different systems of philosophy, and finally attached himself to the Peripatetics.
- Biton, 145: an Argive, brother of Cleobis.
- Boeotia, wedding custom in, 301.
- Briareus, 47, 61: also called Aegaeon (Hom. II. i. 403); son of Uranus (or Poseidon ?) and Gaea; a monster with fifty heads and an hundred arms.
- Bull's blood, suicide by drinking, 477.
- Busiris, 373 : a town in Egypt.
- Buzygins, 321 : a ceremonial ploughing observed at Athens.
- CAESAR, C. IULIUS, 31: famous Roman general, statesman, and writer, 100-44 B.C. Plutarch wrote his life.
- Caligula, 489: emperor of Rome, A.D. 37-41.
- Callicles, 207-211: an Athenian, one of the characters in Plato's Gorgias.
- Carthage, 75: celebrated city on the northern coast of Africa, settled by the Phoeniciana.

Carthaginians, 493.

Castor (and Pollux), 479: the Dioscuri, protectors especially of sailors.

Cathartics, use of, 275, 277, 279.

- Cato, M. Porcins, 245, 263, 307: the Elder, commonly called the Censor, 2344(?)-149 B.c. Plutarch wrote his life.
- Cato, M. Porcius, 33, 35: commonly called Cato Uticensis, or Cato

- Minor, 95-46 B.C. Plutarch wrote his life.
- Celts, 167: a people of Western Europe.
- Chaerea, Cassius, 489: a Roman, leader of the conspiracy against the emperor Caligula.
- Chaeremon quoted, 75: Greek tragic poet, early part of 4th century B.C.

Chalcis, 391: a town in Euboea.

- Chersias, a poet, 407 and note, 409, 411, 445, 447, 449.
- Chilon, 5, 63, 347, 357, 369, 377, 379, 381, 383, 395, 401, 403, 407, 443 : of Lacedaemon, one of the Seven Wise Men, circa 500 B.C.
- Chios, 35: large island off the west coast of Asia Minor.
- Cicero, M. Tullius, 31: famous Roman orator and statesman, 106-43 B.C. Plutarch wrote his life.
- Cimmerians, 483: in Homer a mythical people who lived in utter darkness. Later an actual people living north of the Black Sea.
- Cinesias, 485: Attic dithyrambic poet, 5th century B.c., often ridiculed by contemporary poets.
- Circe, 303: the sorceress of the Odyssey, who changed men into animals.
- Clandia, Quinta, 341: a Roman matron, 3rd and 2nd centuries B.C.
- Cleobis, 145: an Argive, brother of Biton.
- Cleobulina (really named Eumetis), 341, 373 : daughter of Cleobulus of Rhodes : famed for her riddles.
- Cleobulus, 347, 375, 381, 395, 401, 409, 411 : of Lindus in Rhodes; one of the Seven Wise Men, early part of the 6th century B.C.
- Cleodorus, 383, 389, 391, 393, 407, 411, 415, 419, 423: a character in the Dinner of the Seven Wise Men.
- Cocytus, 135: a river of the other world.
- Cornelia, 341: a Roman matron, mother of the Gracchi; 2nd century B.C.

Crantor, 106; quoted, 113, 121, 173:

VOL. II

Academic philosopher from Soli in Cilicia, pupil of Xenocrates and Polemo: early part of 3rd century B.C.; wrote $\Pi e \rho i \pi \epsilon \nu \theta o v g$ and comments on Plato.

- Crassus, M. Licinius, 19, 23: a very wealthy Roman; lived 115-53 B.C.; triumvir with Pompey and Julius Caesar 60 B.C. Plutarch wrote his life.
- Crates, 9, 235, 317: of Thebes in Boeotia, 3rd century B.O., Cynic philosopher, disciple of Diogenes.
- Creon, 65: king of Corinth who gave his daughter to Jason, and suffered death with his daughter at the hands of Medea, Jason's former wife. (Euripides, Medea.)
- Crete, 5: the large island south of Greece, home of early Aegean civilization.
- Critias, 493: one of the Thirty Tyrants at Athens 404 B.C.; feil at the battle of Munychia that year; an unprincipled and godless man.
- Croesus, 369, 397 : klng of Lydia in Asia Minor, 560-546 B.C., famous for his wealth; conquered by Cyrus the Great,
- Cronos, 207: (Lat. Saturn) god, son of Uranus and the father of Zeus, Poseidon, Hera, and others.
- Cronos (= El, or Moloch), 493 and note.
- Cypselus, 445, 447: son of Aeëtion and father of Periander.
- Cyrus the younger, 327 : the second of the sons of Darius Nothos, king of Persia; attempted to wrest the kingdom from his brother Artaxerxes, and fell as the battle of Cunaxa, 401 B.c.
- Cytherea, 833; a name of Aphrodite.
- DANON, 51; offered himself as surety to be put to death if his friend Phintias (condemned for plotting against Dionyslus the elder) did not come back to suffer punishment.

Danaë, 129: daughter of Acrisius and mother of Perseus, the Argive hero; cast into the sea with Perseus in a chest by Acrisius.

500

- Danaids, 427: the fifty daughters of Danaus, king of Argos, who, for the inurder of their husbands were condemned in the other world to fill with water a great vase which had a hole in the bottom.
- Daphnus, 439: a river of Locris, emptying near the entrance of the Gulf of Corinth.
- Death not an evil, 131 ff.
- Delos, 413: an island in the Aegean sea, one of the Cyclades.
- Delphi, 441, 445, 447; a town in Phocis, the seat of the celebrated oracle of Apollo.
- Delphi, the two inscriptions at, 183, 447.
- Demades, 239; a brilliant Athenian orator, opponent of Demosthenes; put to death by Antipater, 318 p.c.
- Demeter, 299, 417, 423, 481: the Greck goddess of agriculture, worshipped especially at Athens and Eleusis.
- Demetrius of Phalerum, 119, 281: Athenian orator and writer, 350(?) -283 B.c., put in charge of Athens by the Macedonians (317 B.c.), but forced to flee, 307-308 B.c., by Demetrius Poliorcetes.
- Democritus, 251, 283 : of Abdera in Thrace ; widely travelled ; suggested the atomic theory ; "the laughing philosopher." Circa 460-360 p.c.
- Demosthenes, 193, 197, 199; the famous Attic orator, 385-322 B.C.
- Demosthenes quoted, 15, 89, 467.
- Demus (v.l. Onomademus) of Chios, 35.
- Determinants, as a subject for discussion, 271.
- Diagoras, 493: of Melos, 5th cent. B.C., known as "the atheist."

Dictys, 129; of Seriphus; rescued Danaë and Perseus when they were afloat in the chest.

Diocles, 348, 367, 379, 399, 437: a character in the Dinner of the Seven Wise Men.

Diogenes, 9: of Sinope 420 (?)-323 B.C., the famous Cynic philosopher, to whom are ascribed numerous pungent and witty sayings.

Diogenes quoted, 15, 139.

- Dion, 65, 193, 197; of Syracuse in Sicily, brother-in-law of the elder Dionysius. Plutarch wrote his life.
- Dionysiac artists, 13: actors and musicians.
- Dionysins the elder, 317: born 430 B.C., rose to be tyrant of Syracuse, 405-367 B.C.
- Dionysius the younger, 65: son of Dionysius the elder, succeeded his father as ruler, but was finally driven ont by Timoleon, 343 B.C.
- Dionysus, 269, 369, 405, 417; the Greek god of wine, and patron of the drama.

Dolphins, stories abont, 429-443.

- Domitius, 3, 19, 33: Cn. Domitius Ahenobarbus, last part of 2nd cent. and first part of 1st cent. R.C. Cousul 96 B.C. Censor 92 B.C., with L. Licinius Crassus.
- Drinks, kinds and use of, 265, 267, 269, 289.
- ECHELAÜS, 441: head of the expedition to found a colony at Lesbos.
- Egypt, 351, 361, 379.
- Egyptians, 167, 321, 363, 373, 375, 495.
- Elephantine, 375: an important city of upper Egypt.

Elysius, 147, 149: of Terina in Italy; father of Enthynoüs.

Emetics, use of, 275, 277.

Empedocles quoted, 47, 57, 81, 493: physical philosopher of Acragas (Agrigentum) in SicHy, middle of 5th cent B.C., said to have thrown himself into the crater of Mt. Etna.

Enalus, 443 : a local hero of Lesbos. Epameinondas, 51, 287: of Thebes in; Bocotia, circa 420-362 B.C., famous general and statesman, founder of the Theban League. Ephemera (insects), 159.

- Epicharmus quoted, 79: comic poet from the island of Cos, but lived most of his life in Sicily under the patronage of Hiero.
- Epicurns, 231, 452 : the celebrated Greek philosopher, 341-270 B.C., founder of the Epicurean school; greatly admired by the Roman poet, Lucretius.
- Epicurus, quoted, 83.
- Epimenides, 347, 411, 413, 415; priest, and prophet from Crete, circa 600 B.c.; rated by some as one of the Seven Wise Men; purified Athens after the murder of Cylon.
- Eresus, 411: a town on the west coast of the island of Lesbos.
- Eretrians, contest for the Lelantine Plain, 391.
- Ethiopia, no thunder storms in, 459.
- Ethiopian king, the, 375, 385.

Eumetis, 361, 309, 391, 393, 401. See Cleobulina.

- Euripides quoted, 15, 17, 49, 61, 81, 111, 113, 115, 119, 121, 129, 131, 133, 137, 151, 153, 157, 168, 181, 185, 189, 201, 227, 233, 237 (2), 265, 327, 329, 459, 461, 486: Athenian tragic poet, circa 485-406 B.C.
- Eurydice, 299, 337, 341: a young friend of Plutarch's.
- Enthycrates, 75; of Olynthus, accused by Demosthenes of having betraved his country to Philip of Macedon,
- Euthynoüs, 147; son of Elysius.

Exact mode of living, 249, 279. Exercise, 257, 259, 273, 275.

- Food, kinds and use of, 229, 233,
- 235, 239, 249, 255, 263, 265, 289, 411-427.
- GALATIANS, 167: an ancient people living inland in Asia Minor are probably meant, but the Gauls may be included also.
- Gaul, no earthquakes in, 459.

VOL. II

- Gauls, 493: an ancient people inhabiting northern Italy, France, Belgium, and some parts of the adjacent territory.
- Getae, 289: a people of Thrace (called Daci by the Romans) living near the river Danube.
- Glaucus, 217, 219, 221, 229: a physician.
- Gorgias, 207, 333: of Leontini in Sicily; famous as an author and rhetorician, born about 480 B.C., and said to have lived over one hundred years.
- Girgo, 341: a Spartan woman.
- Gorgus, 427, 429, 431, 435, 437: hrother of Periander.
- Graces, the, 301.
- Greeks, contrasted with barbarlans, 167, 371, 445.
- Greeks, customs of in early times, 391, 413.
- Gryllus, 197 : son of Xenophon the historian.

HADES, 133, 135, 495.

- Hector, 127, 171, 191, 447, 481: son of Priam, and the great Trojan hero of the lliad.
- Hecuba, 487 : wife of Priam.
- Helen, 313: wife of Menelaüs; her abduction by Paris was the alleged cause of the Trojan war.
- Hera, 145, 319, 329, 487: sister and wife of Zeus, mother of Hephaestus.
- Heracleitus quoted, 79, 183, 285, 463: physical philosopher of Ephesus in Asia Minor, circa 560-500 B.C., often called "the Obscure."
- Heracles, 29, 449, 469: the famous strong man of the Greeks.
- Hermes, 301: the Greek god.
- Hermione, 329: daughter of Menelaüs and Helen; married to Neoptolemus, and later to Orestes.
- Hermolaüs, 489: a Macedonlan, attendant of Alexander the Great.
- Herodotus quoted, 305: Greek historian of the 5th cent. B.C.
- Hesiod, 391, 407, 413, 415, 437, 489:

of Ascra in Boeotia, epic poet of the 8th or 9th century B.C.

- Hesiod quoted, 37, 89, 97, 127, 177, 198, 243, 481.
- Hiero, 25: powerful tyrant of Syracuse and Gela in Sicily, 478-467 B.C.
- Hieronymus (St. Jerome), 279.
- Hippocles, 121, received a letter of condolence from Crantor, but otherwise unknown.
- Hippocrates, 27, 214, 243, 255: of Cos, perhaps the most famous physician of antiquity; 5th and 4th centuries B.C.
- Homer, 391, 407, 447, 449: the traditional author of the Iliad and the Odyssey.
- Homer, the Ikiad quoted, 18, 27, 51, 57, 119, 123, 127, 139, 175, 187, 189, 191, 207, 217, 227, 278, 329, 339, 425, 447, 449, 481, 487, 480. Homer, the Odyssey quoted, 27, 51,
- Homer, the Odyssey quoted, 27, 51, 57, 83, 123, 139, 157, 175, 219, 239, 273, 449.
- Hypelpyle, 49: daughter of Thoas, king of Lemnos, and herself later queen of Lemnos; captured by pirates, and sold into slavery to Lycurgus, king of Neunea, she became nurse of his child Anchemorus.

INDIAN PROBLEM, 271.

- Ino, 437 : daughter of Cadmus and Harmonia, and wife of Athamas.
- Ion of Chios quoted, 167, 183: tragic poet, contemporary of Aeschylus at Athens.
- Iphicrates, 87: famous Athenian general, 5th and 4th cents. B.C. Of lowly birth, he rose to high command by his courage and genius.

Islands of the Blest, 207.

JASON of Pherae ("Prometheus"), 21, 383: ruler ("Tagus") of Thessaly early in 4th cent. B.C. Jews, 481.

Justice, the eye of, 435.

"KNOW THYSELF," 21, 447.

- LACYDES (v.l. Lacedes), 23 : king of Argos.
- Laïs, 231: a celebrated Greek courtesan, contemporary and rival of Phryne.
- Lasthenes, 75: of Olynthus, acensed by Demosthenes of having betrayed his country to Philip of Macedon.
- Lechaeum, 349: one of the harbours of Corinth.
- Leo, of Byzantium, 19: writer of rhetoric and history, contemporary of Philip of Macedon.
- Leonidas, 341: leader of the Spartans at Thermopylae.
- Leptis Magna, 325: a city on the north coast of Africa.
- Lesbians, 389.
- Lesbos, 441, 443: a large island off the north-west coast of Asia Minor.
- Lesches, 391 : reputed author of the Little Iliad.
- Leto, 487: mother of Apollo and Artemis; honoured especially at Delos.
- Life a loan from the gods, 181.
- Locris, 437: a country north of the Gulf of Corinth.
- Lycian (or Locrian?) law-giver, 165.
- Lycurgus, 379: reputed founder of the Spartan constitution. Plutarch wrote his life
- Lyde, 131: wife of Antimachus of Colophon.

Lydians, 167, 269.

- Lynceus, 11: son of Apharens and brother of Idas; he took part in the Argonautic expedition, and was gifted with extraordinary powers of vision.
- Lysander, 317: Spartan general and naval commander, brought to a close the Peloponnesian war by winning the battle of Aegospotami, 404 R.c.; fell in the battle of Haliartus, 395 R.c.
- Lysimachus, 239: a Macedonian, one of the Generals of Alexander the Great, at whose death he became king of Thrace. In 291 s.c. he thied to subdue the Getae, but was compelled to surrender. He fell in battle against Selencus, 251 s.c.

- MARATHON, 37: a plain on the east coast of Attica, scene of the battle of Marathon, 490 R.C.
- Medius, 227 : companion and satellite of Alexander the Great.
- Melanthius, 333: probably the Attic tragic poet, 5th cent. R.C., noted for his pithy and witty remarks.
- Melissa, 351, 369, 371, 401: wife of Periander of Corinth.
- Menander quoted, 49, 59, 79, 97 (?), 115, 201, 247, 271: comic poet of the New Comedy, 342-291 B.C.
- Menelaüs, 57: brother of Agamennnon and husband of Helen.
- Meno, 47: of Thessaly, one of the generals in the army of the younger Cyrus, 401 B.C.; put to death by Tissaphernes. He is made the principal character in Plato's Meno.
- Merope, 25, 153: daughter of Cypselus, and wife of Cresphontes; afterwards wife of Polyphontes.
- Messenians, a custom among, 423; war with Sparia, 477.
- Metrodorus, 319: probably the Metrodorus from Lampsacus, who was a pupil and friend of Epicurus. He died 277 B.C.
- Midas, 177, 179, 477, 479: son of Gordus, and king of Phrygia circa 700 B.c.; by some identified with the legendary Midas to whom are attached the apocryphal stories of the "golden touch" and the "ass's ears."
- Miletus. 437 : an important city of Asia Minor near the month of the river Meander.

Milk not a beverage, 265.

- Miltiades, 37: one of the ten generals in command of the Athenians at Marathon. He held the supreme command on the day of the battle.
- Minos, 209, 209: son of Zeus and Europa; legendary king of Crete; after his death one of the judges in the other world.
- Minucius, Spurius, 25: pontifex maximus at Rome, 418 B.C.

Mischief (personified), 449.

- Mnesimachus, 139: comic poet of the Middle Comedy.
- Mnesiphilus, 393, 395, 401, 403, 407: an Athenian, friend of Solon's.
- Molpagoras, 353: presumably a demagogue of Chios (in Bithynia?) who raised himself to the supreme power.
- Molycreia, 439: a town at the entrance of the Gulf of Corinth.
- Moschion, 215: a friend of Plutarch's.
- Mourning, 161 ff.
- Mourning (personified), 161.
- Murena, L. Lucinius, 33: 1st cent. B.C. Served under Lucullus in the 3rd Mithridatic war. Consul 63 B.C. Prosecuted for bribery by Serv. Sulpicius, who was supported by Cato Minor. Murena was defended by Cicero (Pro-Murena) and was acquitted.
- Muses, the, 301, 343, 405, 407, 449.
- Myrsilus, 353: tyrant of Mitylene, 7th cent. B.C.

Myson, 347: one of the Seven Wise Men according to Plato.

- Mysteries, the, 139.
- NASICA, P. Cornelius Scipio, 13: surnamed "Corculum," 2nd cent. E.C., a wise and learned man, twice consul; consistently opposed to Cato's policy regarding Carthage.
- Naucratis, 351, 369, 873, 375, 377 : a Greek colony situated in the Delta of the Nile.
- Neiloxenus, 351, 353, 361, 373, 375, 377, 379, 383, 385, 387; of Naucratis in Egypt.
- Nero, 65: emperor of Rome, A.D. 54-68.
- Nicarchus, 849, 427, 449: a character in the Dinner of the Seven Wise Men.
- Nicias, 479: a celebrated Athenian general during the Peloponnesian war; a good man in spite of a certain timidity and superstition. Plutarch wrote his life.
- Niger, 261: a friend of Plutarch's.
- Niobe, 183, 487: daughter of Tantalus and wife of Amphion, king of Thebes; she boasted of the number of her children, compared with those of Leto.

- ODVSSEUS, 303, 313, 447: a most important character in the Homeric poems.
- Olympias, 125, 315, 317: wife of Philip of Macedon and mother of Alexander the Great.
- Olynthus, 75: a flourishing town in the Chalcidian penInsula at the head of the Gulf of Torone, captured by the Spartans in 379 B.C., and by Philip in 347 B.C.
- Onomademus. See Demus.
- Orchomenos, 439 : a town in Boeotia near Lake Copaïs.
- Orestes, 51: son of Agamemnon and Clytemnestra; he slew his mother to avenge the death of his father.
- Orpheus, 421; legendary early bard; reputed to have enchanted all animate and inanimate things by the music of his lyre; he is said to have abstained from eating meat.
- PANDORA, 127: ("all-gifted") the first woman, made by the gods and given to Epimetheus as wife. Her curiosity got the better of her discretion.
- Pantica, 315: a woman from Cyprus.
- Paralus, 195: son of Pericles.
- Paris, 75, 313: son of Priam the king of Troy, and abductor of Helen. Also called Alexander.
- Parmenio, 65, 125: trusted general of Philip and Alexander; accused of plotting against the life of Alexander, he was assarsinated by command. He lived 400-330 B.C.
- Pasiphaë, 305: daughter of the Sun (Helios), wife of Minos, early king of Crete.
- Patroclus, 49: son of Menoetins, and friend and close companion of Achilles.
- Pausanias, 25, 125: regent of Sparta from 479 B.C. Commanded the Greeks at the battle of Plataeae; died 468 B.C.

Pausanias, 489: a Macedonian of good family, attendant of Philip.

- Peirithous, 49, 65: king of the Lapithae in Thessaly; intimate friend of Thessaly; one helped him in his unsuccessful attempt to carry off Persephone from the other world.
- Pelsistratus, 347: benignant "tyrant" of Athens, off and on, from 560 to 528 B.C.; rated by some as one of the Seven Wise Men.
- Pelopidas, 51: eminent Theban general and statesman, early part of 4th cent. s.c.; intimate friend of Epameinondas.
- Penelope, 313: faithful wife of Odysseus.
- Periander, 347, 349, 359, 363, 365, 367, 369, 371, 373, 377, 381, 383, 391, 393, 395, 401, 407, 413, 427, 431, 437, 445, 447, 463; son of Cypselus; ruler of Corinth 627-555 B.C. He was sometimes rated as one of the Saven Wise Men.
- Pericles, 195 : the famous Athenian general and statesman. Died 429 B.C. Plutarch wrote his life.
- Persephone ("The Daughter"), 423: daughter of Demeter, with whom she is often associated in worship. Persian kings, a custom of, 309.
- Perauasion, 301.
- Pherecydes, 347: of Syros; 6th cent. B.C.; rated by some as one of the Seven Wise Men.
- Philemon, quoted, 111, 129: an Athenian comic poet of the New Comedy; born about 360 p.c.
- Philip, 75, 125, 225, 315, 231, 335: of Macedon, 382-336 B.C., conqueror of Greece, father of Alexander the Great.
- Philocrates, 75: Athenian orator, 4th century a.c. one of the ten ambassadors sent to treat with Philip of Macedon, thought to have been hribed; at any rate, he went into voluntary exile before his trial.

- Philotas, 65: son of Parmenio, one of Alexander's most brilliant commanders, accused of plotting against the life of Alexander, he was put to death just before his father in 330 B.C.
- Phintias, 51: friend of Damon, q.v. Phocion, 281, 321: upright Athenian
- general and statesman, 402-317 B.C. He was put to death on a charge of treason. Plutarch wrote his life.
- Phryne, 231 : a famous courtesan of Thespiae in Boeotia, 4th century B.C.
- Pindar, 145, 147: famous Greek lyric poet, 522-442 B.C.
- Pindar, quoted, 15, 31, 35, 119, 121, 137, 145, 185, 203, 205, 469, 471.
- Pittacus, 347, 353, 355, 381, 389, 395, 401, 403, 411, 441, 445, 447: of Mitylene in Lesbos, one of the Seven Wise Men, a statesman, military leader, and poet.
- Plato, 205, 241, 339: the celebrated philosopher, 427-346 B.C., friend and follower of Socrates, and founder of the Academic school of philosophy.
- achool of philosophy. Plato quoted, 17, 25, 27, 39, 41, 47, 79, 81, 99, 141, 143, 165, 207, 231, 253, 283, 293, 311, 319, 335, 346, 467, 491.
- Plautus Rubellius, 65: greatgrandson of the Roman emperor Tiberius; he was put to death by order of Nero, who feared that he might aspire to the throne.
- Plutarch, better never born than bad, 485.
- Pluto, 207: god of the underworld = Hades.
- Pollianns, 299, 337: a young friend of Plutarch's.
- Pollux (and Castor), 479, the Dioscuri, protectors especially of sailors.
- Polycrates, 463: ruler of Samos latter part of 7th century B.c.; son of Aeaces.
- Pompey (Cn. Pompeius Magnus), 23, 31: 106-48 B.C.; famcus Roman general; triumvir wi h

Julius Caesar and Crassus. Plutarch wrote his life.

Poseidon, 207, 417, 427, 441, 443, 449: Greek god of the sea.

Postumia, 25 : a Vestal virgin.

- Priam, 13, 127, 169, 171: king of Troy at the time of the Trojan war.
- Priene, 351: a Greek city on the coast of Asia Minor; birthplace of Bias.
- Prodicus, 239: a celebrated sophist from the island of Ceos; 5th century B.C.
- Prometheus, 7, 81, 85, 89, 209: ("forethought") legendary benefactor of mankind, who brought fire from heaven to mortals.
- Prometheus: a name for Jason of Pherae, 21.
- Proteus, 69: the god who had the power to change himself into varied forms.
- Proverbial sayings, 17, 217, 245, 329

Pulcher, Cn. Cornelius, 5: procurator of Achaea in 2nd century A.D.

- Pylades, 51: son of Strophius, king of Phocis, and consin of Orestes whose intimate friend and helper he was, later marrying his sister.
- Pythagoras quoted, 33, 63, 223, 483; carmina aurea, 185, 475: the celebrated Greek philosopher, 6th century B.C.

RABIA, 831 : a place near Eleusis.

Regulus, 227: a pancratiast of Plutarch's time.

- Rhadamanthys, 209: son of Zeus and Europa, and brother of Minos. After his death he became one of the judges in the other world.
- Rhium, 439: promontory at the entrance of the Gulf of Corinth.

ST. JEROME, 297.

Sappho, 341: of Lesbos, the famous poetess, often called the tenth Muse. Satyr, 7: one of the attendants of Dionysus.

- Scaurus, 3, 33: M. Aemilius Scaurus, builder of the Aemilian way; last part of the 2nd century and first part of 1st century B.C. Consul 115 B.C. Convicted of ambitus, and died in exile.
- Scipio, Publius Cornelius Scipio Aemilianus Africanus, 75 : Roman general, conqueror of Carthage; 185-129 в.с.

Scirum, 331 : a place near Athens. Scythian, 269, 371, 445, 493

- Sejanus, Aelius, 65: commander of the practorian troops and confidant of the emperor Tiberius, over whom he gained complete ascendancy, until at last Tiberius became suspicious, and brought about the death of Sejanus and many of his friends.
- Sick people, behaviour of: 101, 221, 223, 247. Silenus, 177, 179: constant com-panion of Dionysus, gifted also with knowledge of the past and with power to prophesy the future.
- Simonides of Amorgus quoted, 285: writer of iambic verse circa 625 в.с.
- Simonides of Ceos quoted, 35, 125, 135, 137, 233 : distinguished lyric and epigrammatic poet, 556-467 B.C.
- Skeleton at the feast, 359.
- Smintheus, 441: one of the leaders of the expedition to found a colony at Lesbos.
- Socrates, 29, 47, 131, 137, 143, 149, 197, 207, 229, 259, 317 : the wellknown Athenian philosopher, 468-399 в.с.
- Solon, 301, 347, 351, 355, 369, 379, 381, 383, 393, 395, 397, 399, 401, 403, 405, 411, 413, 415, 419, 421, 427, 449: the Athenian lawgiver, 638-558 B.C.; one of the Seven Wise Men.

Solon quoted, 39, 403.

Sophocles quoted, 21, 55, 59, 77, 85, 137, 187, 317, 483, 489:

Athenian tragic poet, 495-406 B.C.

Spartan songs quoted, 153; saying quoted, 363.

Spartans, 249, 379.

Stepmother, 355.

Styx, 467: a river of the other world.

Sun, chariot of, 397. Superstition, 455 ff. Syrians, 167.

TAENARUM, 427 : the south-western promontory of Laconia.

- Tantalus, 491: legendary king, father of Pelops. He suffered everlasting punishment in the other world.
- Tartarus, 207, 209: synonym for the lower world or a place below the lower world; later the place of punishment.

Taylor, Jeremy, 297.

- Teiresias, 469: the famous blind seer of Thebes in Boeotia.
- Telephus, 21: king of Mysia at the time of the Trojan war, wounded by Achilles.

Terina, 147: a Greek city on the west coast of Bruttium in Italy.

- Thales, 347, 349, 359, 361, 363, 365, 367, 369, 370, 387, 389, 399, 399, 411, 417, 429, 443; measured the height of the pyramid, 351, 353 : of Miletus in Asia Minor, circa 636-346 R.C. The first Greek philosopher; also a statesman and mathematician; one of the Seven Wise Men.
- Theagenes, 341: leader of the Thebans at the battle of Chaeroneia.
- Theano, 821, 341: wife of Pythagoras.

Theatre, free admission to, 219.

- Themistocles, 25, 37 : leader of the Athenians in the second Persian war, 480 B.C.
- Theognis quoted, 67: of Megara, elegisc gnomic poet of the 6th and 5th centuries s.c.
- Theophrastus, 281: of Lesbos, born 372 a.c., pupil of Aristolle, and a distinguished philosopher and writer.

Theophrastus quoted, 123, 283.

- Theramenes, 125: prominent Athenian at the time of the Peloponnesian war; rated by Aristotle as one of the three best citizens of Athens; chosen one of the Thirty Tyrants, and put to death by them 404 a.c. because of his moderation.
- Theseus, 49, 65, 163: son of Aegeus, and the great legendary Attic king and hero. Plutarch wrote his life.
- Thrasybulus, 355, 363, 365: tyrant of Miletus, 7th century B.C.
- Thucydides quoted, 65: Greek historian of the Peloponnesian War, born 471 B.C.
- Tiberius Caesar, 65, 287: emperor of Rome, A.D. 14-37.
- Timesias, 63: of Clazomense in Asia Minor, founder of the colony of Abdera in Thrsce.
- Timocleia, 341 : sister of Theagenes who fell at Chaeroneia.
- Timothens, 241: son of Conon the Athenian general; he was himself several times chosen general in the years 378-356 s.C.
- Timotheus, 485 : of Miletus, 447-357 B.C., lyric poet.
- Timoxena, 337 : Plutarch's wife.
- Tiribazus, 477: Persian satrap, in favour with Artaxerxes II. (Memnon) king of Persia.
- Titus, 215, 223, 227 : emperor of Rome, A.D. 79-81; born A.D. 40.
- Troilus, 169: young son of Priam king of Troy; slain by Achilles.
- Troïlus, 437, 439: the name of the servant of Hesiod.
- Trophonius, 145, 147: brother of Agamedes, who with Agamedes builtatemple of Apollost Delphi; sfter his death he was worshipped at Lebadeia, and the famous oracle of Trophonius was at that place.
- Typhon (= the Egyptian god Set), 373.
- Xanthippe, 29: wife of Socrates. Xanthippus, 195: son of Pericles.

- Xenocrates, 281, 319: of Chalcedon, 399-314 B.C., disciple of Plato; succeeded Speusippus as head of the Academic school of philosophy.
- Xenophanes, 495: of Colophon in Asia Minor, Greek philosopher living afterwards at Elea in Italy, sometimes called the first Unitarian. Latter part of 6th century, B.C.
- Xenophon, 197, 239: Greek historian and general writer, 430-850 (?) B.C.

Xenophon quoted, 5, 7, 827.

- Xerxes, 495 : king of Persia 485-465 B.C. ; conducted the great expedition against Greece.
- ZENO, 95: from Citium in Cyprus, founder of the Stoic school of philosophy at Athens, circa 270 B.C.

Zeno quoted, 9.

Zeus, 161, 207, 407, 417, 437, 439, 449, 481; the supreme Greek god. Zeuxippus, 215 : a physician. Zeuxis, 55 : a most celebrated Greek Zenxis, 55 : a most celebrated Greek painter; latter.part of 5th century B.C.

Printed in Great Britain by R. & R. CLARK, LIMITED, Edinburgh

State of the second state

VOLUMES ALREADY PUBLISHED

LATIN AUTHORS

AMMIANUS MARCELLINUS. J. C. Rolfe. 3 Vols. APULEIUS : THE GOLDEN ASS (METAMORPHOSES). W. Adlington (1566). Revised by S. Gaselee. ST. AUGUSTINE: CITY OF GOD. 7 Vols. Vol. 1. G. E. McCracken, Vol. VI. W. C. Greene, ST. AUGUSTINE, CONFESSIONS OF. W. Watts (1631). 2 Vols. ST. AUGUSTINE: SELECT LETTERS. J. H. Baxter.

Ausonius. H. G. Evelyn White. 2 Vols.

BEDE. J. E. King. 2 Vols. BOETHIUS : THACTS AND DE CONSOLATIONE PHILOSOPHIAE. Rev. H. F. Stewart and E. K. Rand.

CAESAR : ALEXANDRIAN, AFRICAN AND SPANISH WARS. A. G. Way.

CAESAR : CIVIL WARS. A. G. Peskett.

CAESAR : GALLIC WAR. H. J. Edwards.

CATO AND VARRO : DE RE RUSTICA. H. B. Ash and W. D. Hooper.

CATULLUS. F. W. Cornish; TIBULLUS. J. B. Postgate: and PERVIGILIUM VENERIS. J. W. Mackail.

CELSUS: DE MEDICINA. W. G. Spencer. 3 Vols.

CICEBO : BRUTUS AND ORATOR. G. L. Hendrickson and H. M. Hubbell.

CICERO : DE FINIBUS. H. Rackham.

CICERO : DE INVENTIONE, etc. H. M. Hubbeli.

CICERO : DE NATURA DEORUM AND ACADEMICA. H. Rackham.

CICERO : DE OFFICIIS. Walter Miller.

CICERO : DE ORATORE, etc. 2 Vols. Vol. I : DE ORATORE. Books I and II. E. W. Sutton and H. Rackham Vol. II: DE ORATORE, BOOK III; DE FATO; PARADOXA STOI-CORUM ; DE PARTITIONE ORATORIA. H. Rackham.

- CICERO : DE REPUBLICA, DE LEGIBUS, SOMNIUM SCIPIONIS. Clinton W. Keyes.
- CICERO : DE SENECTUTE, DE AMICITIA, DE DIVINATIONE. W. A. Falconer.
- CICERO: IN CATILINAM, PRO MURENA, PRO SULLA, PRO FLACCO. Louis E. Lord.
- CICERO : LETTERS TO ATTICUS. E. O. Winstedt. 3 Vols.
- CICERO: LETTERS TO HIS FRIENDS. W. Glynn Williams. 3 Vols.
- CICERO: PHILIPPICS. W. C. A. Ker.
- CICERO : PRO ARCHIA, POST REDITUM, DE DOMO, DE HA-RUSPICUM RESPONSIS, PRO PLANCIO. N. H. Watts.
- CICERO : PRO CAECINA, PRO LEGE MANILIA, PRO CLUENTIO. PRO RABIRIO. H. Grose Hodge.
- CICERO: PRO CAELIO, DE PROVINCIIS CONSULARIBUS, PRO BALBO. R. Gardner.
- CICERO: PRO MILONE, IN PISONEM, PRO SCAURO, PRO FONTEIO, PRO RABIRIO POSTUMO, PRO MARCELLO, PRO LIGARIO, PRO REGE DEIOTARO. N. H. Watts.
- CICERO : PRO QUINCTIO, PRO ROSCIO AMERINO, PRO ROSCIO COMOEDO, CONTRA RULLUM. J. H. Freese.
- CICERO: PRO SESTIO, IN VATINIUM. R. Gardner.
- [CICERO]: RHETORICA AD HERENNIUM. H. Caplan.

CICERO : TUSCULAN DISPUTATIONS. J. E. King. CICERO : VERRINE ORATIONS. L. H. G. Greenwood. 2 Vols. CLAUDIAN. M. Platnauer. 2 Vols.

COLUMELLA: DE RE RUSTICA; DE ARBORIBUS. H. B. Ash, E. S. Forster, E. Heffner. 3 Vols.

CURTIUS, Q. : HISTORY OF ALEXANDER. J. C. Rolfe. 2 Vols. FLORUS. E. S. Forster; and CORNELIUS NEPOS. J. C. Rolfe. FRONTINUS : STRATAGEMS AND AQUEDUCTS. C. E. Bennett and M. B. McElwain.

FBONTO: CORRESPONDENCE. C. R. Haines. 2 Vols.

GELLIUS. J. C. Rolfe. 3 Vols.

HORACE : ODES AND EPODES. C. E. Bennett.

HORACE : SATIRES, EPISTLES, ARS POETICA. H. R. Fairclough.

JEROME : SELECT LETTERS. F. A. Wright.

JUVENAL AND PERSIUS. G. G. Ramsay.

LIVY. B. O. Foster, F. G. Moore, Evan T. Sage, A. C. Schlesinger and R. M. Geer (General Index). 14 Vols. LUCAN. J. D. Duff.

LUCRETIUS. W. H. D. Rouse.

MARTIAL, W. C. A. Ker. 2 Vols. MINOR LATIN POETS : from Publilius Syrus to Rutilius NAMATIANUS, including GRATTIUS, CALPUBNIUS SICULUS, NEMESIANUS, AVIANUS, with "Aetna," "Phoenix" and other poems. J. Wight Duff and Arnold M. Duff.

OVID : THE ART OF LOVE AND OTHER POEMS. J. H. Mozley. OVID: FASTI. Sir James G. Frazer.

OVID : HEROIDES AND AMORES. Grant Showerman.

OVID: METAMORPHOSES. F. J. Miller. 2 Vols.

OVID : TRISTIA AND EX PONTO. A. L. Wheeler.

PETRONIUS. M. Heseltine : SENECA : APOCOLOCYNTOSIS. W. H. D. Rouse.

PLAUTUS. Paul Nixon. 5 Vols.

PLINY: LETTERS. Melmoth's translation revised by W. M. L. Hutchinson. 2 Vols.

PLINY: NATURAL HISTORY. 10 Vols. Vols. I-V and IX. H. Rackham. Vols. VI and VII. W. H. S. Jones. Vol.

X. D. E. Eichholz.

PROPERTIUS. H. E. Butler.

PRUDENTIUS. H. E. Butler. 2 Vols. QUINTILIAN. H. E. Butler. 4 Vols. REMAINS OF OLD LATIN. E. H. Warmington. 4 Vols. Vol. I (Ennius and Caecilius). Vol. II (Livius, Naevius, Pacuvius, Accius). Vol. III (Lucilius, Laws of the XII Tables). Vol. IV (Archaic Inscriptions).

SALLUST. J. C. Rolfe.

SCRIPTORES HISTORIAE AUGUSTAE. D. Magie. 3 Vols.

SENECA : APOCOLOCYNTOSIS. Cf. PETRONIUS.

SENECA : EPISTULAE MORALES, R. M. GUMMERE. 3 Vols. SENECA : MORAL ESSAYS. J. W. BASORE. 3 Vols. SENECA : TRAGEDIES. F. J. Miller. 2 Vols.

SIDONIUS : POEMS AND LETTERS. W. B. Anderson. 2 Vols. SILIUS ITALICUS. J. D. Duff. 2 Vols. STATIUS. J. H. Mozley. 2 Vols.

SUETONIUS. J. C. Rolfe. 2 Vols. TACITUS: DIALOGUS. Sir Wm. Peterson; and AGRICOLA AND GERMANIA. Maurice Hutton.

TACITUS: HISTORIES AND ANNALS. C. H. Moore and J. Jackson, 4 Vols, TERENCE. John Sargeaunt. 2 Vols.

TERTULLIAN : APOLOGIA AND DE SPECTACULIS. T. R. Glover : MINUCIUS FELIX. G. H. Rendall.

VALERIUS FLACCUS. J. H. Mozley.

VARRO : DE LINGUA LATINA. R. G. Kent. 2 Vols. Velleius Paterculus and Res Gestae Divi Augusti. F. W. Shipley.

VIRGIL. H. R. Fairclough. 2 Vols.

VITRUVIUS : DE ARCHITECTURA. F. Granger. 2 Vols.

GREEK AUTHORS

ACHILLES TATIUS. S. Gaselee.

- AELIAN: ON THE NATURE OF ANIMALS. A. F. Scholfield. 3 Vols.
- AENEAS TACTICUS, ASCLEPIODOTUS AND ONASANDER. The Illinois Greek Club.

AESCHINES. C. D. Adams. AESCHYLUS. H. Weir Smyth. 2 Vols.

ALCIPHRON, AELIAN AND PHILOSTRATUS : LETTERS. A. R. Benner and F. H. Fobes.

APOLLODORUS. Sir James G. Frazer. 2 Vols.

APOLLONIUS RHODIUS. R. C. Seaton.

THE APOSTOLIC FATHERS. Kirsopp Lake. 2 Vols.

APPIAN'S ROMAN HISTORY. Horace White. 4 Vols.

ARATUS. Cf. CALLIMACHUS.

ARISTOPHANES. Benjamin Bickley Rogers. 3 Vols. Verse trans.

ARISTOTLE: ART OF RHETORIC. J. H. Freese.

ARISTOTLE: ATHENIAN CONSTITUTION, EUDEMIAN ETHICS. VIRTUES AND VICES. H. Rackham.

ARISTOTLE: GENERATION OF ANIMALS. A. L. Peck.

- ARISTOTLE: METAPHYSICS. H. Tredennick. 2 Vols. ARISTOTLE: METEOBOLOGICA. H. D. P. Lee. ARISTOTLE: MINOR WORKS. W. S. Hett. "On Colours," "On Things Heard," "Physiognomics," "On Plants," "On Marvellous Things Heard," "Mechanical Problems,"

"On Indivisible Lines," "Situations and Names of Winds," " On Melissus, Xenophanes, and Gorgias."

ABISTOTLE : NICOMACHEAN ETHICS. H. Rackham.

A BISTOTLE: OECONOMICA AND MAGNA MORALIA. G. C. Armstrong. (With Metaphysics, Vol. II.)

ARISTOTLE : ON THE HEAVENS. W. K. C. Guthrie.

Aristotle : On the Soul, Parva Naturalia, On Breath. W. S. Hett.

- ARISTOTLE : THE CATEGORIES. ON INTERPRETATION. H. P. Cooke ; PRIOR ANALYTICS. H. Tredennick.
- ABISTOTLE: POSTEBIOB ANALYTICS. H. Tredennick: TOPICS, E. S. Forster.

ARISTOTLE: SOPHISTICAL REFUTATIONS. COMING-TO-BE AND PASSING-AWAY. E. S. FORSTER. ON THE COSMOS. D. J. Furley.

ARISTOTLE : PARTS OF ANIMALS. A. L. Peck ; MOTION AND PROGRESSION OF ANIMALS. E. S. FORSTER.

ARISTOTLE: PHYSICS. Rev. P. Wicksteed and F. M. Cornford. 2 Vols.

ABISTOTLE: POETICS; LONGINUS ON THE SUBLIME. W. Hamilton Fyfe; DEMETRIUS ON STYLE. W. Rhys Roberts. ABISTOTLE: POLITICS. H. Rackham.

ARISTOTLE: PROBLEMS. W. S. Hett. 2 Vols.

ARISTOTLE: RHETORICA AD ALEXANDRUM. H. Rackham.

(With Problems, Vol. II.)

ARRIAN: HISTORY OF ALEXANDER AND INDICA. Rev. E. Iliffe Robson. 2 Vols.

ATHENAEUS : DEIPNOSOPHISTAE. C. B. Gulick. 7 Vols.

ST. BASIL: LETTERS. R. J. Deferrari. 4 Vols.

CALLIMACHUS : FRAGMENTS. C. A. Trypanis.

CALLIMACHUS: HYMNS AND EPIGRAMS, AND LYCOPHEON. A. W. Mair; ARATUS. G. R. Mair.

CLEMENT OF ALEXANDRIA. Rev. G. W. Butterworth.

Colluthus. Cf. Oppian.

DAPHNIS AND CHLOE. Cf. LONGUS.

DEMOSTHENES I: OLYNTHIACS, PHILIPPICS AND MINOB ORATIONS: I-XVII AND XX. J. H. Vince.

DEMOSTHENES II : DE COBONA AND DE FALSA LEGATIONE. C. A. Vince and J. H. Vince.

DEMOSTHENES III: MEIDIAS, ANDROTION, ARISTOCRATES, TIMOCRATES, ARISTOGEITON. J. H. VINCE.

DEMOSTHENES IV-VI : PRIVATE ORATIONS AND IN NEAEBAM. A. T. Muitay.

DEMOSTHENES VII: FUNERAL SPEECH, EROTIC ESSAY, EXORDIA AND LETTERS. N. W. and N. J. DeWitt.

DIO CASSIUS : ROMAN HISTORY. E. Cary. 9 Vols.

DIO CHRYSOSTOM. 5 Vols. Vols. I and II. J. W. Cohoon. Vol. III. J. W. Cohoon and H. Lamar Crosby. Vols. IV and V. H. Lamar Crosby.

DIODORUS SICULUS. 12 Vols. Vols. I-VI. C. H. Oldfather. Vol. VII. C. L. Sherman. Vols. IX and X. Russel M. Geer. Vol. XI. F. R. Walton.

DIOGENES LAERTIUS. R. D. Hicks. 2 Vols.

DIONYSIUS OF HALICABNASSUS : ROMAN ANTIQUITIES. Spelman's translation revised by E. Carv. 7 Vols.

EPICTETUS. W. A. Oldfather. 2 Vols.

EURIPIDES. A. S. Way. 4 Vols. Verse trans.

EUSEBIUS: ECCLESIASTICAL HISTORY. Kirsopp Lake and J. E. L. Oulton. 2 Vols.

GALEN : ON THE NATURAL FACULTIES. A. J. Brock.

THE GREEK ANTHOLOGY. W. R. Paton. 5 Vols.

- THE GREEK BUCOLIC POETS (THEOCRITUS, BION, MOSCHUS). J. M. Edmonds.
- GREEK ELEGY AND JAMBUS WITH THE ANACREONTEA. J. M. Edmonds. 2 Vols.

GREEK MATHEMATICAL WORKS. IVOR Thomas. 2 Vols.

HERODES. Cf. THEOPHBASTUS : CHARACTERS.

HERODOTUS. A. D. Godley. 4 Vols.

HESIOD AND THE HOMERIC HYMNS. H. G. Evelyn White.

HIPPOCRATES AND THE FRAGMENTS OF HERACLEITUS. W. H. S. Jones and E. T. Withington. 4 Vols.

HOMER: ILIAD. A. T. Murray. 2 Vols.

HOMER : ODYSSEY. A. T. Murray. 2 Vols.

ISAEUS. E. S. Forster.

ISOCRATES. George Norlin and LaRue Van Hook. 3 Vols. ST. JOHN DAMASCENE: BARLAAM AND IOASAPH. Rev. G. R.

Woodward and Harold Mattingly.

JOSEPHUS. H. St. J. Thackeray and Ralph Marcus. 9 Vols. Vols, I-VII.

JULIAN. Wilmer Cave Wright. 3 Vols.

LONGUS: DAPHNIS AND CHLOE. Thornley's translation revised by J. M. Edmonds; and PARTHENIUS. S. Gaselee.

LUCIAN. 8 Vols. Vols. I-V. A. M. Harmon; Vol. VI. K. Kilburn; Vol. VII. M. D. Macleod.

LYCOPHBON. Cf. CALLIMACHUS.

LYRA GRAECA. J. M. Edmonds. 3 Vols. Lysias. W. R. M. Lamb.

MANETHO. W. G. Waddell ; PTOLEMY : TETRABIBLOS. F. E. Robbins.

MARCUS AURELIUS. C. R. Haines.

MENANDER. F. G. Allinson.

MINOR ATTIC OBATORS. 2 Vols. K. J. Maidment and J. O. Burtt.

NONNOS: DIONYSIACA. W. H. D. Rouse. 3 Vols.

OPPIAN, COLLUTHUS, TRYPHIODORUS. A. W. Mair.

PAPTEL NON-LITERARY SELECTIONS. A. S. Hunt and C. C. Edgar. 2 Vols. LITERARY SELECTIONS (Poetry). D. L. Page.

PARTHENIUS. Cf. LONGUS.

PAUSANIAS: DESCRIPTION OF GREECE. W. H. S. Jones. 5 Vols. and Companion Vol. arranged by R. E. Wycherley.

PHILO. 10 Vols. Vols. I-V. F. H. Colson and Rev. G. H. Whitaker; Vols. VI-X. F. H. Colson; General Index. Rev. J. W. Earp.

Two Supplementary Vols. Translation only from an Armenian Text. Ralph Marcus.

PHILOSTRATUS : IMAGINES ; CALLISTRATUS : DESCRIPTIONS. A. Fairbanks.

PHILOSTRATUS: THE LIFE OF APOLLONIUS OF TYANA. F. C. Conybeare. 2 Vols.

PHILOSTRATUS AND EUNAPIUS: LIVES OF THE SOPHISTS. Wilmer Cave Wright.

PINDAR. Sir J. E. Sandys.

PLATO : CHARMIDES, ALCIBIADES, HIPPARCHUS, THE LOVERS, THEAGES, MINOS AND EPINOMIS. W. R. M. Lamb.

PLATO : CRATYLUS, PARMENIDES, GREATER HIPPIAS, LESSER HIPPIAS. H. N. Fowler.

PLATO : EUTHYPHBO, APOLOGY, CRITO, PHAEDO, PHAEDRUS. H. N. Fowler.

PLATO: LACHES, PROTAGOBAS, MENO, EUTHYDEMUS, W. R. M. Lamb.

PLATO: LAWS. Rev. R. G. Bury. 2 Vols.

PLATO : LYSIS, SYMPOSIUM, GORGIAS. W. R. M. Lamb.

PLATO: REPUBLIC. Paul Shorey. 2 Vols.

PLATO: STATESMAN, PHILEBUS. H. N. Fowler: Iox. W. R. M. Lamb.

PLATO : THEAETETUS AND SOPHIST. H. N. Fowler.

PLATO: TIMAEUS, CRITIAS, CLITOPHO, MENEXENUS, EPI-STULAE, Rev. R. G. BURY.

PLUTARCH: MORALIA. 15 Vols. Vols. I-V. F. C. Babbitt; Vol. VI. W. C. Helmbold; Vol. VII. P. H. De Lacy and B. Einarson; Vol. IX. E. L. Minar, Jr., F. H. Sandbach, W. C. Helmbold; Vol. X. H. N. Fowler: Vol. XII. H. Cherniss and W. C. Helmbold. PLUTARCH : THE PARALLEL LIVES. B. Perrin. 11 Vols. POLYBUS. W. R. Paton. 6 Vols. PROCOFIUS : HISTORY OF THE WARS. H. B. Dewing. 7 Vols. PTOLEMY : TETRABIBLOS. Cf. MANETHO. QUINTUS SMYRNAEUS. A. S. Way. Verse trans. SEXTUS EMPIRICUS. Rev. R. G. Bury. 4 Vols. SOPHOCLES. F. Storr. 2 Vols. Verse trans. STRABO : GEOGRAPHY. Horace L. Jones. 8 Vols. THEOPHRASTUS : CHARACTERS. J. M. Edmonds : HERODES. etc. A. D. Knox. THEOPHBASTUS : ENQUIRY INTO PLANTS. Sir Arthur Hort 2 Vols. C. F. Smith. 4 Vols. THUCYDIDES. TRYPHIODORUS. Cf. OPPIAN. XENOPHON : CYROPAEDIA. Walter Miller. 2 Vols. XENOPHON: HELLENICA, ANABASIS, APOLOGY, AND SYMPO-SIUM. C. L. Brownson and O. J. Todd. 3 Vols. XENOPHON : MEMORABILIA AND OECONOMICUS. E. C. Marchant XENOPHON : SCRIPTA MINORA. E. C. Marchant.

VOLUMES IN PREPARATION

GREEK AUTHORS

ARISTOTLE : HISTORY OF ANIMALS. A. L. Peck. PLOTINUS. A. H. Armstrong.

LATIN AUTHORS

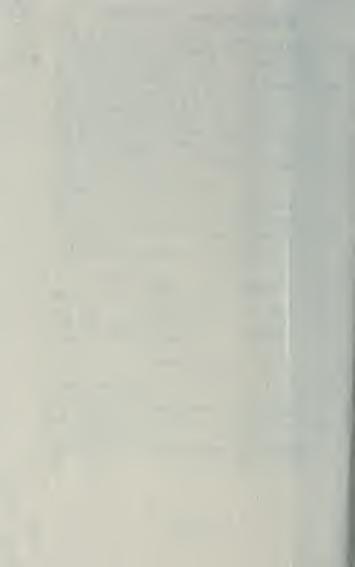

BARRIUS AND PHAEDRUS. B. E. Perry.

DESCRIPTIVE PROSPECTUS ON APPLICATION

CAMBRIDGE, MASS. HARVARD UNIV. PRESS LONDON WILLIAM HEINEMANN LTD

JUL 0 9 1998

